Union Succeeds In Ending Two Wildcat Strikes

Seamen Defy USWA Back-to-Work Orders

● NEW YORK (AP) — Workers at two steel plants hit by wildcat strikes returned to their jobs today at the behest of union leaders.

David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers, said 13,000 employees of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation at Aliquippa, Pa., and 1,000 at U.S. Steel's Morrisville, Pa., plant had returned.

Still out were 9,000 Republic Steel workers in Cleveland, Mc-Donald said he was "trying to get a rundown" on the status of 3,700 union members who quit work on ore boats and ore carriers.

He made the announcement just before union negotiators met for further contract discussion with management representatives.

The walkouts spread Wednesday as inflamed rank and filers set by telegram by McDonald and other officers of the union. McDonald's "militant and vigorous action" was being taken to get the men back to work.

The strikes caused cancellation of a negotiating session scheduled for Wednesday morning. After McDonald's back-to-work orders were issued, an afternoon session was held. There was no announcement on what happened at the meeting.

The union is seeking a package increase estimated unofficially at 15 to 20 cents an hour. Present wages average $2.30 an hour.

The industry has insisted on a one-year wage freeze, contending this would help curb inflation and fight foreign competition.

LAKERS' STRIKE

The contract expiration led to a strike in Great Lakes shipping. Seamen on 137 Great Lakes vessels went on strike against 12 ore-shipping firms.

The union's local 5000, which has headquarters at Cleveland, and the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades were ordered to walk off their ships as they reached port.

The Lake Carriers' Association, 20 steel company ore ships in Great Lakes ports, A union spokesman said more than 100 would be idle by the weekend if the strike continued.

Officials of Local 5000 rejected the contract-extension agreement. They said that although the seamen are members of the steelworkers union the local was not a party to the contract extension.

The agreement was signed after the seamen were covered by the extension and had been ordered back to work.

$7,000,000 ASSETS

DUNDALK (CP) — Dundalk District Credit Union held a membership approach drive here Tuesday to mark the accumulation of more than $7,000,000 in assets. The union was founded by a farm forum 15 years ago with assets of less than $50. Its 42 miles south of Owen Sound.

Says Diefenbaker Only Possible Pressure Source

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal J. W. Pickersgill said today that external political pressure" on the CBC described in evidence to the Commons broadcasting committee Tuesday could have come only from Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Mr. Pickersgill made the statement—he denied it was an accusation—as he sought to have the committee continue its inquiry into this question.

The statement in the committee by the Liberal MP for Bonavista-Twillingate brought angry shouts from Progressive Conservative members. Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton) called it "irresponsible idle gossip."

Mr. Pickersgill said three CBC witnesses Tuesday had told the committee there had been pressure on acting CBC president E. L. Bushnell by someone who was capable of putting in jeopardy the job of Revenue Minister Nowlan, the minister who reports to Parliament for the publicly-owned corporation.

"There is only one person to whom that can comply," he said. "That is the prime minister."

NOT A CHARGE

Committee chairman Ernest Halpenny (PC—London) and several other Conservative members asked Mr. Pickersgill whether he was making that charge.

When Mr. Pickersgill said "no" there were unidentified members shouting, "You haven't the guts" and, "Put up or shut up."

Mr. Pickersgill said Mr. Bushnell, in testifying today, did not deny he had left the impression with senior CBC officers that there was political pressure involving Mr. Nowlan.

The Liberal MP finally presented a motion that the committee hear further evidence from Dr. W. J. Morton, a member of the CBC board of directors, and from Eugene Hutchison, chief of CBC-English-language radio networks.

Mr. Pickersgill's motion was defeated by a show-of-hands vote which reporters counted as 16 to 14.

But the vote did not close the inquiry.

D. Fisher immediately presented a motion that Mr. Nowlan be invited to give evidence about the "edition" which Mr. Bushnell said the minister gave him.

Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton) said he would support that motion. It would get the committee "back on the rails" where it belonged.

The committee, after only brief discussion, rejected Mr. Fisher's motion to call Mr. Nowlan by a vote of 21 to 2.

Mr. Nowlan, who is a member of the committee, was not present on Tuesday's or Wednesday's meetings. He has attended only a few of the committee's meetings.

MURDER CHARGE

WOODSTOCK (CP) — William J. Ashby, 49, of Canning, charged in connection with the murder of his 35-year-old wife, Katherine, was remanded Tuesday for one week. Mrs. Ashby's body was found in the family's home Saturday night. A .30-30-calibre rifle was found near the body.

Prospects for Friday are for rising temperatures.

GASOLINE STRIKE IN METRO AREA SET FOR JULY 7

Will Lock up All Service Stations

TORONTO (CP) — For almost a year and a half the price of gasoline in the Toronto area has bounced about like one of the tennis balls some service stations offer as a sales inducement.

This year the gas price war erupted April 15 when a midtown service station dropped its price to 33.9 cents a gallon from the normal 43.9.- By the end of the month motorists could get standard gas for 28.9 cents.

Next week motorists face the prospect of being unable to buy gasoline anywhere in the metropolitan area in a lockup of 2,700 union members who quit work on Gasoline Retail Limited and Automotive Association is successful.

MEETING REFUSED

The strike was called for 7 a.m. July 7 after 10 major oil companies declined to meet with the association's negotiating committee, or to give in to any of its demands.

Metro Toronto's 1,200 dealers want the oil companies to stop selling gas to some branded and unbranded dealers at prices lower than the wholesale others They call its "discrimination."

Kenneth Langdon, association field manager, says oil companies have been selling their surplus gas to some unbranded dealers from six to 10 cents below the normal price.

When these independent operators gain their savings on to the public, the price war begins. Oil companies then subsidize their branded dealers to some degree.

Ben-Gurion Gets Backing For Sales of Arms

JERUSALEM (Reuters) Premier David Ben-Gurion gained support from parliamentary backing for the sale of arms to West Germany and the formance of the CNR station before Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip have made use of the train. Up to Wednesday night when they boarded it at Ottawa they had travelled by plane, automobile and aboard the royal yacht Britannia and barge.

Army Secretary M. C. Kertcher, 62, of Toronto broke the Royal Standard above the main entrance of the CNR station before Queen Elizabeth and Philip disembarked and walked to their motor coach for a 12-mile drive through the industrial centre.

It was the beginning of a day which was to take the Queen on a train tour to the Western Ontario cities of Brantford, Galt, Guelph and Kitchener while Prince Philip flew to London to present new colors to the Royal Canadian Regiment.

They were to rejoin in Stratford this evening to attend the Shakespearean Festival Players' performance of As You Like It. Immigration Minister Fairclough accompanied the royal party on the Hamilton visit to Richfield House, historic site commemorating a battle in the War of 1812, Civic Stadium for a performance of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders and the Canadian Red Cross Building.

By comparison with today's hot pace, an air of ceremonial formality more in keeping with the anniversary occasion surrounded the Queen's stay in Ottawa. Dominion Day was a reverent day, a family day, often an emotional one.

The sun was shining brilliantly as the Queen arrived from Toronto late Tuesday aboard an RCAF's C-5 aircraft to receive a 21-gun salute and formal welcome at Uplands airport. As she boarded the royal train for Hamilton Wednesday night, it was pouring rain.

The outdoor ceremonies and appearances here included a 15-minute stop at a football field where her sixpence was cheered by 5,000 children; the unveiling of a Commonwealth air forces memorial and the presentation on Parliament Hill of colors to three Canadian military units.

The family theme was prominent in the Queen's noon-hour TV

Brilliant Sunshine Greets Royal Couple in Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Queen Elizabeth, wearing a pink dress and small white hat, stepped from the rear of the 16-car royal train into brilliant sunshine at 9 a.m. EDT today for a 2¼-hour visit to Hamilton. The temperature was a cool 61.

It was the first time since the tour of Canada began two weeks ago that the Queen and Prince Philip have made use of the train. Up to Wednesday night when they boarded it at Ottawa they had travelled by plane, automobile and barge.

Mayor Lloyd Jackson welcomed the royal couple at the station and presented Prince Philip with a gift of $3,000,000 worth of industrial centre.

Pope Urges Powers to Try 'Every Approach' for Peace

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John appealed today to the leaders of rival powers to "try every approach" for peace because a nuclear war would destroy civilization and vanquished alike.

The 77-year-old "head of the Roman Catholic Church also appealed for Christians to reunite, to the press, movies and television to counteract evil, and called a spreading tendency to "self-hatred and immorality.

"Truth, unity and peace" were the subjects of the pontiff's first encyclical letter to the bishops of his church since his coronation eight months ago.

The encyclical began with the words "Ad Petri cathedram"—"near Peter's chair."

The pontiff warned that "relations do not aim at "fraternal unity which must rest on the principle of love" and said they must be established on a solid, true and genuine peace, or are slipping in complete blindness toward a new and frightful war.

PARLIAMENT SET FOR BIG DEBATE ON DEFENCE

Critical Fire From Opposition Expected

The status of Canadian defence was to come under Commons scrutiny—and likely heavy criticial fire from the opposition—as debate opened on defence estimates of $1,025,000,000 for the fiscal year.

The Commons and the Senate spent only two hours at work Wednesday and then adjourned until Monday to allow Parliament to in connection with the Ottawa visit of the Queen and Prince Philip.

The celebrations of Canada's 92nd birthday were marked in the Commons by the singing of God Save the Queen and O Canada simultaneously in French and English—according to each member's preference.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Opposition Leader Pearson and CCF House Leader Hazen Argue were among those who paid tribute to the presence of the royal couple in Canada on its birthday as a nation.

STUDY CRIMINAL CODE

In the short debate that followed, members considered amendments to the Criminal Code. They concentrated on government-proposed provisions that would empower aircraft pilots to arrest anyone who commits an offence in flight and turn him over to Canadian courts for trial.

Justice Minister Fullon said a gap in existing Canadian law makes it possible for a person to kill another with impunity on an aircraft flying over the Atlantic to Canada.

In opposition insistence, he agreed to have another look at certain details of this proposal before it is passed.

In the Senate Tuesday, final approval was given a government bill establishing a $1,000,000 fund for research into children's diseases as Canada's official gift to the Queen on the current Royal Tour. It was previously approved by the Commons.

Sub Reported Sighted off Brazil Coast

Canadian Firms To Manufacture Frames, Engines

Total Cost $30,000,000 For 200 Fighter Planes

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has decided to buy the American Lockheed F-104G supersonic fighter plane for the RCAF Air Division in Europe, Defence Minister Pearkes announced today.

The airframe and engine will be manufactured in Canada but final details of production and costs will be given later by Defence Production Minister O'Hurley.

Basic cost is expected to be about $150,000,000 for some 200 planes. On top of this will be the cost of spare parts, tools, groundhandling equipment, training aids and technical publications. The total program may exceed $300,000,000.

The F-104 will be built in Canada by either A. V. Roe Canada Limited, Malton, Ont., or Canadair Limited, Montreal. The two manufacturers are expected to engage in a hard fight for the contract.

The F-104 will replace the Canadian-built Sabre now used in eight of the 12 squadrons in the air division. The other four squadrons are equipped with the Canadian CF-100 jet interceptor.

AS STEEPLED PLANE

The F-104 will be used as a ground strike and reconnaissance plane. Its chief function in event of war in Europe would be to strafe Russian installations between western Europe and the Soviet border. The United States and West German air forces are also to get the F-104.

In exchange for the licence to build its plane, Lockheed Aircraft Corporation of California will place defence subcontracts with Canadian manufacturers. Lockheed will get a royalty of about five per cent of the selling price of the F-104 or about $12,500,000. It is expected to place contracts in Canada of at least the same amount.

Other announcements by Mr. Pearkes in launching a Commons debate on the $1,025,000,000 defence budget for 1959-60:

1. Considerable is being given to providing facilities so that U.S. Air Force interceptors can operate from Canadian airfields.

2. Two of the seven new radar stations will be built in Ontario, one, Ont., and Chibougamau, Que. Construction will start "shortly" and the stations will be built in Western Canada and Newfoundland as sites are now. are being carried out.

3. The electronic brain which will control the operations of the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile will be "considerably smaller" than reported previously this brain, known as SAGE—semi-automatic ground environment—will be at North Bay.

4. The second of six new naval destroyers will be laid down this month and the remaining four at approximately six-month intervals.

5. Procurement of civil defence communications and radiation detection equipment for the army has been put on a priority list.

Substantial deliveries will be made this year.

MISSILE FACTOR

Mr. Pearkes said that it is expected that by the early 1960's long-range ballistic missiles will have replaced the manned bomber as the principal threat.

Eight Executives Of Continental Can Co. Killed

MARION, Ohio (AP)—An airliner owned by the Continental Can Company hurtled out of an overcast sky late Wednesday and disintegrated in a wheat field near here. All 10 aboard, including eight of the firm's leading executives, were killed.

The plane literally dug the graves for most of them. Only parts of three bodies were found. Others evidently were buried under the earth.

Eight of the 10 men aboard were executives returning from Chicago to New York, where the firm has its headquarters, after a meeting of company officials. The other two were the crew.

The plane, believed to be a twin - engined Martin, was demolished almost beyond recognition.

NAMES OF DEAD

Employees Get $105,000 From Savings Fund

The Bakelite Company announced today that 136 employees received cheques amounting to over $105,000, the cash distribution of accumulated funds in the general savings fund, a part of the company savings plan. Of the total, the employees themselves saved over $80,000 and the company added over $25,000. Employees of Union Carbide Canada Limited, of which Bakelite Company is a division, received a total of $2,006,000 under the general savings fund.

The savings plan which went into effect July 1, 1957, combines provisions for short-term savings under the general savings fund, with cash distribution every two years and for long-range investment with an option for purchasing Canada Savings Bonds or Union Carbide capital stock. Special plans were made available to Union Carbide employees as early as 1935.

An employee may authorize payroll deductions up to 7½% of his normal straight-time earnings with a maximum allowable deduction of $83 per month. The company then contributes 10, 15 or 20% of the employees' payments, depending on whether he has one, two or three or more years' service credit.

According to P. O. Jeffrey, vice-president and general manager of Bakelite, the savings plan is one of several welfare and benefit plans available to Union Carbide employees.

Camper Killed by Lightning, Barn Stock Burns in Fire As Heavy Storm Hits Area

A Toronto man was killed by lightning in the West Lake area of Prince Edward county and a Stirling district barn was burned to the ground, together with livestock and hay, as a sharp electrical storm swept through the Bay of Quinte district Wednesday evening.

Mr. Simsons with his wife Lillian were camping on the shore of West Lake when, as the sudden storm sprang up at about 5 p.m. he was carrying a table out of the rain into their tent, he was struck by the bolt of lightning.

Members of the Picton Fire Department and Bond's Ambulance service responded to the action but all efforts to revive him were unsuccessful and he was pronounced dead at about 10 p.m. by Dr. L. Dockrill of Picton. Dr. C. R. Richmond of Picton was the coroner.

At Oak Lake the barn of Garnet Sarles on the southwest shore of the lake, was burned when struck by lightning shortly after nine o'clock. Also lost in the blaze were a Hereford cow, three sows, about 13 smaller pigs and 1400 bales of hay.

Belleville firemen were called to the scene and, running two lines of hose from Oak Lake were successful in saving several nearby cottages. A driveshed and a small amount of machinery was also lost in the blaze.

Firemen stood by at the scene until five o'clock this morning.

The storm erupted suddenly shortly after the supper hour last night and was accompanied by gusts of wind, thunder and lightning which lit up the evening sky. A total of about two thirds of an inch of rain fell in several heavy showers which passed over the district.

District, Division Heads Pay Visit to Kiwanis Club

Belleville Kiwanis Club was honored Tuesday by the presence of two Kiwanis district officials, D.G.M. District Governor Gilles E. Sarault from Quebec City and Lieutenant-Governor of the Division 8-A, Charlie Smith of Kingston.

Both men were introduced by President Gerry Wishart and given standing ovations by club members.

The noon meeting marked the official visit to the Belleville club.

Governor Sarault's visit was in an unofficial capacity, having made his official visit to the Belleville club on Monday evening when Kingston club played host. On the last day of his official tour of nine Kiwanis divisions, Gov. Sarault stopped in Belleville en route to Toronto.

Commenting briefly on the Kiwanis International convention held recently in Dallas, Texas, which he attended, Gov. Sarault said it was from realize the biggest, vitality and strength of Kiwanis. He added he was impressed with the way Canadian Kiwanis International President Al Bond conducted the convention; and also with other officers and Canadian Kiwanians attending convention, including president Gerry Wishart. Governor also congratulated district convention attendance chairman Walter Loak for his efforts in encouraging attending at the Montreal convention to be held in September.

Guest speaker was Lt.-Gov. Smith who used the club's theme "Build Individual Responsibility"—as the theme of his address.

"This expresses in three words the whole essence of Kiwanis," he stated, in noting interest in the club is created by planning effective, interesting programs, and such, and planning entails responsibility on the part of officers, directors, committee chairmen and members.

Taking these three words individually, the Kingston contractor proceeded to explain how they apply to Kiwanis. He said to build anything, more than materials and physics action is required — there must be first a need for a project, and a plan to work from.

Mr. Smith explained that "individual" describes the feelings of most new club members when they first join the club, but they are immediately put on committees and given the opportunity of working their way up the ladder of Kiwanis success.

MUST BE IDEALISTS

Referring to the third word in the theme, he said all good Kiwanians have a sense of responsibility—officers to the community, directors to the chairmen, and chairmen to the members.

"The measure of a club's success is the measure of responsibility taken and discharged," the Lieut.-Governor stated, emphasizing Kiwanians must not only determine a community need, and supply the materials and manpower for the project, but also put thought and sense of responsibility into planning the project.

"You must remain a little—be idealists," he said. A description of Kiwanis found in a Kiwanis International magazine: "Kiwanis organizes the good intentions of its members into a powerful stimulant to club officers, he remarked.

He also briefly touched on the three fields of Kiwanis work where individual responsibility is built; in Kiwanis administration, in citizenship service and in personal service to the club.

President Wishart announced that on July 15th the interprovincial student exchange student from Quebec will be guest of the club. The student exchange is sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

Secretary Will Mills announced the local club has received an invitation from the Trenton Kiwanis Club to which will play host for the annual Kiwanis Golf Day on July 8th. The Trenton Club has taken over sponsorship of this event this year as the local club was not able to secure facilities for the event at the local golf course.

'Angel Parking' Charge Stands Despite Spelling

Wrong spelling of the misdemeanor on a parking ticket doesn't give the offender a legal out when the case comes to court.

This was learned today by a local woman charged with illegal parking on a city street.

The woman pleaded not guilty on the ground there was no such parking offence such as spelled out on the traffic ticket. The magistrate pointed out that that the charge was spelled correctly on the court document.

The woman had been charged with "angle parking in such a manner that traffic was blocked." The notation on the parking ticket prepared by the city had the woman spelled the offence as ANGEL parking.

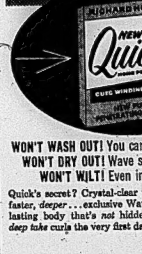
Deluge Spoils Demonstration Of Fire-Fighting

Yesterday evening the Batawa Fire Department put on a demonstration of how to put out fires, but last night's deluge put out the outdoor activities for the regular monthly meeting at Batawa of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association of fire departments. Other than this the meeting of some 50 representatives of the 13 municipalities belonging to the association was routine.

Herb Mallory of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office was present and answered a number of questions on the activities of the department. The various types of fire extinguishers was also discussed.



It is anticipated that a 14th member the community of Point Anne, will be joining the association at its next meeting. There have been various requirements, such as adequate insurance and compensation coverage, which are required of each member department, which the Point Anne department is in process of meeting.

The next meeting of the Mutual Aid Association will be in Belleville on August 5th. The use of relay pumping systems will be discussed and demonstrated. Johnny Aquino, of Batawa, is the president of the association and was chairman of last night's meeting. Belleville Fire Chief Gerald Vance is the co-ordinator for the activities of the Mutual Aid system when it is called into action.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials surged to a record index high as the stock market bounded ahead today in light morning trading.

The 11 a.m. volume was 696,-600 shares, slightly below last Tuesday's 430,000 at the same hour.

The proposed merger of two British Columbia paper companies featured the industrial section, MacMillan and Bloedel.

B jumped 3½ points at 44⅝ while Powell River, the other company involved, was up 1 at 61⅛.

Uraniums were strong for the third straight session, (the market was closed Wednesday, Dominion Day). Algom added at 16⅝ and Consolidated Denison gave up ½ at 15¾.

International Nickel added 2¼ to 72¼ after a near-tragedy involved guids, rising $1.15 to $7.15.

Boy Apparently Pushed Into Deep End of Pool

Don Parliament, 11-year-old son of Mrs. E. K. Parliament, Tracey Street, was said fully recovered Tuesday after a near drowning accident at the Dundas Street community swimming pool on the holiday.

The lad was apparently pushed into the pool at the deep end, after he failed to surface he was pulled to safety by lifeguards on duty at the pool.

The boy being immediately given artificial respiration, while Belleville fire trucks were called and applied their resuscitator and took the boy to hospital. Later in the afternoon the boy was released following observation.

Don later told his mother that he had been standing at the deep end of the pool when someone unexpectedly pushed him, thus knocking the wind out of him. He failed to surface in the usual time and pass on the diving tower spotted him doubled up, lying on the bottom of the pool.

James Rutherford and Ray Finkle, lifeguards on duty, pulled him from the water and the lifeguards, Louise Fisher and Lynn Devereaux, gave him artificial respiration until the arrival of firemen.

radio broadcast to the nation when she spoke from the informal atmosphere of Government House verandah in line with her expressed wish that it be a front porch chat with Canadians . . . to talk informally with people whom I could not meet personally during her visit."

She made a point in her seven-minute broadcast, part of it delivered on fluent French, referring to "my home in Ottawa."

To complete the family picture, there was a formal-dress buffet-tasked evening dinner at which the six with Canadians from coast to coast walks of life, both the Queen and the prince proved gracious hosts obviously interested in the different pursuits of their guests.

Many of the guests who included representatives of the arts, letters and science, labor, industry, religion, farming, civic education and nursing, commented on the friendly, informal atmosphere of the royal dinner party.

GUESTS COMMENTS

Claude T. Bissell, president of the University of Toronto, described it as "one of the most enjoyable evenings I've ever been at."

Christine Livingston of Manotick, director-in-chief of the Victorian Order of Nurses in Canada, said it was a wonderful party.

Squadron Leader Hugh Maurice (Rocket) Richard, said the atmosphere was so relaxed he felt as if he was being addressed Prince Philip by his first name.

"I don't seem to mind," remarked Montreal Canadiens' perennial star; in fact, I think he called me Maurice—or Rocket. I just can't remember."

There was an air of reverence and no little emotion as the Queen unveiled the memorial to 738 Second World War Commonwealth airmen who lie in unknown graves. About 6,000 persons watched the solemn 50-minute ceremony on Green Island.

The Queen appeared somewhat tired and drawn some two hours later on Parliament Hill when she presented her colors and regimental standard to the Canadian Grenadier Guards of Montreal, the 48th Highlanders of Toronto and the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders of Hamilton. She is colonel-in-chief of the three regiments.

Then she returned to Government House, where in rapid succession she decorated 12 men and women for bravery or service, and received Commonwealth high commissioners and ambassadors, members of the capital's diplomatic corps.

A George Medal was presented to Fit. Lt. W. J. Marsh, North Bay, Ont., R.C.A.F. for gallantry to Sgt. I. J. McPherson, Belleville, and Mackenzie Harouteunian, Merrilton.

Then came a quick change into a magnificent chalk-white strapless evening gown emblazoned with embroidery, sapphires and diamonds for her final dress engagement—the dinner with her Canadian ministers.

A thunderstorm which had threatened to disrupt the Parliament Hill ceremony broke while the Queen was dining with her guests but it merely added to the rain or huddled in doorways near the Union Station to wave her goodbye as she boarded the royal train for the overnight run to Hamilton.

VC RETIRES

QUEBEC (CP) — Brig. Paul Triquet, 49, the second Canadian to win the Victoria Cross during the Second World War, retired Wednesday from the army. Commanding officer of the 8th Militia Group here since 1954, he will join the lumber business he started 12 years ago. In his 32-year career he rose from private to field officer and won the VC with the Royal 22nd Regiment.

Sea Cadets Will Use Centre as Permanent Home

TRENTON — The Trenton Community Gardens will be, within the next few days the permanent home of the Trenton Sea Cadets.

The several rooms adjacent to the Gardens' upstairs auditorium are being remodeled to accommodate the stores and gear of the Cadets and they will drill, in inclement weather, in the spacious auditorium.

R.C.S.C.C. "Trent" comprises approximately forty personnel including the Commanding Officer, Lieut. Robert H. Farrell and his fellow officers, Lieutenants Ross Millahan, Gerry Lee, Borden Young, Surgeon Lieut. John Beecroft and Chaplains Shannon and MacLeland.

Mr. D. James MacDonald, Superintendent of the Trenton Sea Cadet Corps, when approached by a statement, advised that he was pleased with the new location and that a bigger and better program of Sea Cadet activities was already in progress for the coming year. Still further advancement in numbers was planned for the area immediately outside the Gardens, on which the Sea Cadets would drill in fine weather.

It is also stated that the new location, in such close proximity to the Bay, would be particularly advantageous when the Corps was able to acquire a boat in the furtherance of their training and indications that the general public would be in a better position to observe the Cadets in their highly commendable endeavors in the new location.

The Trenton Community Gardens Commission is very happy to welcome the Sea Cadet Corps and emphasizes that this is just another example of how the Gardens is serving the purpose for which it was built.

Legion Members Attend Colborne Church Services

TRENTON — A large delegation of local Legionnaires attended Memorial Church Parade and Service at Colborne on Sunday.

The Trenton contingent was led by branch treasurer and district secretary J. W. Jeffery, and the branch colors were carried by Comrade Orvel Smith and R. Carl Taylor, the color party being under the command of Sergeant-at-Arms Victor E. Burt.

The Colborne Legion, probably the largest ever held in Colborne, included five bands and approximately 500 marching Legionnaires. Bands participating were the Port Hope Legion Pipe Band, the Havelock Pipe Band, the Cobourg Legion Band, the Colborne Boy Scout and Girl Guide Regimental Band and the Cobourg Kinsmen Band.

Trenton Legionnaires who participated in the parade and service included District Commander Louis Knack, who placed a wreath on the Cenotaph, Commodore J. B. Harvey, who represented the RCN(R) Zone Commander Capt. Edi Donaldson.

Other Legionnaires well known in the area who participated and took part in the proceedings were Provincial Vice-President Frederick J. O'Brecht of Durham, Regional Vice-President "Scotty" Houghton of Brighton and District Command-er-elect Frank Hills of Port Hope.

The local veterans were very much impressed with the organization of the parade and service, held in conjunction with Colborne's 100th birthday and with the hospitality of the host Legion, Colborne Branch, No. 187.

THEATRES REOPEN

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP)— Bermuda's movie theatres, closed for a week after protests by the Negro community over segregation, will reopen today on a non-segregated basis. Bermuda General Theatres, which operates a year ago to desegregate seating, but made no announcement until Negroes began boycotting the cinemas several weeks ago.

LIGHTNING STRIKES

TRENTON — Damage was light but inconvenience was high as a heavy electrical storm broke over Trenton last night. A bolt of lightning in the height of the storm slammed down and into a hydro transformer causing the lights in town to go out for about 30 seconds. It was also reported that another bolt of lightning struck the TV aerial at the home of Mrs. E. R. Cunnell, 34 Goulbg Street. The bolt apparently came out the front of the TV set, smashing it to pieces, and knocked Mrs. Cunnell, who was in the room at the time, onto the floor.

ONE-WAY TRAFFIC

Welding on the steel portion of the swing bridge on Dundas Street in Trenton cut the traffic down to one way again in the early hours of Tuesday. The same work was done again during the early hours today but the exact work the repair men were doing could not be known. However because of the hour it is very likely to be of a specific. Painting work on the town portion of the bridge is still underway and is to be done at completion set before the visit by the Queen.

CLOSES SHOP

One of the oldest shops on Dundas Street West in Trenton, Bonter's Tailor Shop, closed permanently on Tuesday night at 5.30 p.m. Mr. Bonter, who has been in the tailoring business in Trenton for over 50 years, has retired and it is expected to stay at his home in Bayside. On hand to see Mr. Bonter close his door for the last time, following a full business day, were several customers, among them Councillor W. A. Fraser. Grant Rathbun whose buses Mr. Bonter had travelled for many years, was also present.

WINDOW DISPLAYS

Mayor Ross Burtt, Don Bonisteel and Mrs. Fred Jeffery were selected as the judges of the window display in the weekend store front competition for the Queen's visit. The competition was sponsored jointly by Trenton Retail Merchants' Association and prizes will be $25, $15 and $10. The judges will select the winner prior to the Royal visit and will withhold their decision until the Retail Merchants can plan a presentation.

BLAST ROCK

Dynamite blasts were heard in Trenton on Tuesday as the Ontario Hydro contractors dislodated the rock on Quinte St., between the Bay and Mowbray to dig the sewer trench along the street. The 12-foot deep trench will be the major sewer line from the west side of the river and the new pumping station at the foot of the town bridge on the east side of the river. Curious and excited watchers away from the area before the blasts were set off.

END CENTENNIAL

Colborne citizens brought their centennial to a fitting end last night with a popular "Shirt-Tail Parade." Celebrations had started last Saturday and had continued until last night.

BIKE-CAR CRASH

Arthur Struyk, 17, of 242 Dundas Street East, escaped injury yesterday when his bicycle he was riding and a car driven by Jack E. Hemmerick, 84 Mormora Street collided at the intersection of Campbell and Dundas streets in Trenton. Damage to the fender of the car was estimated at $25 and damage to the front wheel and forks of the bike was estimated at $15. The mishap was investigated by Sergeant Doug. Bradshaw of the Provincial Police Force. The only other mishaps on Trenton streets on Tuesday and Wednesday were of a minor nature.

Three Different Calls Answered By Fire Dept.

TRENTON — A TV set, an electric refrigerator and a smouldering mattress brought Trenton firemen out on the two different calls yesterday. Only one of the calls could cause the heavy storm which struck the town last night.

The first call came from a home on Marmora Street where a TV set began to smoke and the firemen were called. No damage, other than to the TV set was caused and the firemen quickly had it under control.

The second call came from an apartment on Front Street where the wires of a refrigerator had started to burn. The smoke was quite heavy and the firemen were required to use their Scott Air Packs to gain entrance to the room. They removed the burning appliance from the unit and extinguished a small blaze, which had started on a rug behind the burning refrigerator. Damage was also slight at this blaze.

The third call came from the home of J. T. Gannon at 32 Stanley Street, where a mattress lip a single bed in an upstairs bedroom was smouldering.

There was no one at home at the time the smoke was noticed coming from the window and four other contestants for the honor.

Madoc township boys repeated their success of recent years on the softball diamond, winning the county championship for the third year in a row, Sidney township boys were the runners-up.

Madoc girls, not to let the boys outdo them, also won the day's softball honors in their department, defeating Rawdon in the finals.

Isabella Sager, Madoc Twp., Jr. Farmers' 'Miss Hastings'

The young Madoc township club girl was named Miss Hastings at a concluding dance held last night in the girls' gymnasium at the OCIA. There were four other contestants for the honor.

Miss Isabella Sager, 17, of Madoc township was named Miss Hastings at the Hastings County Junior Farmers' field day held Wednesday at the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville.

The second call came from an apartment on Front Street where the wires of a refrigerator had started to burn. The smoke was quite heavy and the firemen were required to use their Scott Air Packs to gain entrance to the room. They removed the burning appliance from the unit and extinguished a small blaze, which had started on a rug behind the burning refrigerator. Damage was also slight at this blaze.

THURLOW HOSTS

Host club for the day was the Thurlow Junior Farmers' club with Jeanette Twiddy acting as master of ceremonies for the field competition and also for the dance at which Miss Hastings was chosen. Trophies and awards were presented by Sid McDonald agricultural representative of Stirling.

The Thurlow township rigiare dancing team had no competition in a scheduled dancing contest but won high praise for their exhibition as they went through their routine under the calling of Jeanette Twiddy.

Chosen primarily for her activity in homemaking and 4-H Club work, Miss Sager as Miss Hastings, has completed three Homemaking Clubs and 13 4-H Clubs and is a past president and a member of her club for the past four years. Aside from being a member she calling on an active part in her club executive, having been both secretary and vice-president and also press reporter for the county organization.

She is also active in the work of the church and is a member of the choir and a Sunday school teacher.

At Madoc high school she has been president of the youth council and captain of the girls' team.

She is president of her Cub group and completing her grade 13 school work this year. will this summer enter the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing to train as a nurse.

Nursing Sister Drowns in Crash Of RCAF Canso

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — An RCAF nursing sister, a veteran of thousands of miles of mercy flights in British Columbia, was drowned Tuesday when an air force Canso crashed in a fog-shrouded harbor.

FO Muriel Kerr, 34, of Sarnia, was trapped inside the flying boat when it struck a floating log and sank in 40 fathoms of dark water while landing here. The body was sent to this northern B.C. coastal city to pick up a 14-year-old boy injured in the explosion of a dynamite cap.

A second plane later completed the mission.

Four of the eight other persons aboard the plane were injured and were being treated in hospitals here. None are in serious condition.

Plan Maitland Chemical Plant

MONTREAL (CP) — Work is to start soon on a $17,000,000 chemical plant at Maitland, Ont., it was announced here today.

Sogemines Limited of Montreal said construction is to begin this summer with the plant expected to go into production early in 1961.

The plant, to be, erected on a 200-acre site acquired last year, will provide ammonium nitrate nitrogen solutions, anhydrous ammonia and hydrogen. The ammonia and hydrogen will be supplied by pipeline to the du Pont of Canada works at Maitland, the announcement said.

The plant is to use Alberta natural gas as its principal raw material. About 150 people will be employed when it opens.

SUMMER'S HERE NOW

Well, how do you like the summer?

That question comes a little late, what with the heat wave last weekend, and all?

Oh, come now, you are not suggesting that season is a question of temperature, not in this part of central Canada, are you?

Summer, no matter what the thermometer, or the calendar, may say starts in Canada just as soon as Dominion Day is over. Or, if any of our readers shudder at that word "Dominion" as archaic, as soon as July 1 has slipped by.

The fact that a date on the calendar has any significance makes Canada's birthday rather unusual amongst our holidays. With the exception of holidays with a religious significance, like Christmas and Good Friday, and of New Year's Day, which is more of a recuperative period after New Year's Eve than a true birthday, July 1 is about the only remaining holiday which is celebrated on the day on which it falls, by most people at least. True, one Belleville plant, Bakelite, is still looking forward to its July 1 holiday this coming Friday, but the rest of us are now launched securely into summer.

School is definitely over, worried frowns erased from the brows of the young or cast into a scowl on the faces of their elders, as the results may have dictated, promised presents bought and already in use by the successful scholars, cherished plans for the coming year confirmed or swept into the ashcan, summer jobs found or an intensive course of loafing started, cottages repaired or the family retreat to the cool basement properly organized. We can settle down for two months now of that period of the year which every true Canadian talks about for the other ten months.

That is one thing which has not changed about July 1.

The observance of the day itself, though, has undergone sweeping alterations in many circles.

Time was when July 1 was a real holiday, but that was before the advent of the five-day week. Now, with the holiday observed in mid-week, as it was this year, it hardly seems worthwhile to regard it in any other light than a method of shortening the week's work for working hours between weekend and weekend. Who wants to make a big thing of a one-day holiday when two-day holidays come regularly with only five days between them?

Of course, there are those of us who are not on the five-day week, but whose week is five and a half days long, reducing the week-end to a day and a half, or even a day and a half with the half-day holiday in midweek. To these people, July 1 may still be a holiday of some considerable proportions.

Then there are the fishermen, to whom July 1 is of importance primarily for another reason than the fact it is Canada's birthday. That is the date on which the fish of Ontario throughout most of the rest of the province, on which it is legal to haul 30-pound muskies and five-pound bass from their watery lairs.

Meanwhile the time for painting of houses grows daily shorter, vacation time looms with the holiday pot still not as full of bills as it should be, those bare patches on the lawn have to be covered with the accrued grass of the fortnight's estimate that they would not fill in without re-seeding and, indeed, all the pleasures of summer are with us again.

WHY THE DELAY?

Ninety-two teenagers, between the ages of 15 and 19, were arrested at Killaloe Sunday night when police broke up a drinking party in a boarding house there.

More than 20 other youngsters are said to have slipped through the police lines, composed of twenty officers.

This is an extraordinary story. The size of the "party" is remarkable, but no more so than a statement in the report of the raid which appeared in the Ottawa Journal: "Police said the drinking parties had been going on since early spring almost ever Sunday evening."

That statement begs the question — how do the police know this to be true? If it is the result of observations by the police themselves, why was no action taken sooner? Any time over a hundred people assemble at an abandoned farm to drink, the ingredients for a serious crime are present. What would the police have said if, on one of the Sunday evenings, a brawl had started and some youth had been seriously injured? No clue is given in the Ottawa Journal's story as to the sex of those arrested, but if girls were among them, (we presume that some of them were boys), the case for prompter action is even more obvious.

JUST AN OPINION

By EDGAR A. GUEST

I don't care what a fellow's creed
Or what his faith may be,
Religion is a human need
And good in it I see.
A real belief in something fine
Beyond this earthly plan,
And faith in wisdom that's Divine
Helps any opinion I've expressed.

Religion doesn't drag you down
Or fill your life with woe;
It will not put you on the town,
A creature, vile and low.
But it will make you want to be Fine
And lift you up, somehow.
There, my opinion I've

South Africa Buys Apples

Hamilton Spectator

Canada's trade commissioner in Capetown reports that for the first time in ten years Canadian apples have re-appeared in South Africa. Imports were prohibited by the embargo of 1928. The amount will neither eliminate surpluses nor change the balance of trade very much. The total shipment is valued at $4,-360, but it is a sign that South African apple crop is available in March and the big selling season is from March to May. By September even the quality of cold storage stock is deteriorating. Early South African fruits are not on the market until December. The Canadian apple is complementary and the South African government has recognized this by a duty - free season from October to December.

All of which should mean the opening of a new outlet. We hope it does. The trade commissioner has offered some good advice on marketing practices but he has neglected to give any price comparisons. For the Canadian consumer who even at the height of our season, finds the Canadian apple a luxury beyond his reach, it raises the same question which is being asked in connection with other primary products.

Once we were wont to speak of ourselves scornfully as hewers of wood and drawers of water. Then came the period when hewing wood and drawing water became a very profitable business on which wage levels and our standard of living were based up to heights previously undreamed of. Now we have entered another era in which we are learning that you can price yourself out of the markets even in wood and water. The solution is too obvious to need repetition and perhaps there is no place that we can practise it more profitably than in the Canadian apple, which has no peer among the fruits in any country of the world.

Top G-Men Sure to Lose

Hamilton Spectator

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover's distaste for the word "cop" as a reference to a policeman will probably produce in respectable circles little more than sympathy. The noun, which is said to have first arrived from a North of England dialect vein in which it meaning "to catch" in the sense of getting certain retribution for some illdoing, is almost dead in its place of origin, but like so many other expressions it has developed its meaning slightly and gone on to enjoy a new and flourishing existence in other spheres.

There seems to be little that can be done to kill off a word of that kind. "Cop" began in the underworld where there has always been a well-developed slang, and, like one dandelion on a lawn, it has the start of three upheaval far and wide and stained, at least in some quarters, a dubious respectability.

Mr. Hoover's suggestion that the word is wanting in the point of grammatical English will not shame it back into the obscurity of the underworld from which it crept.

It has become the most popular synonym for a policeman. A glance into the American Thesaurus of Slang, which contains one hundred and fifty names for policemen, including detectives, who have a special section to themselves. By far the greater number of them are derived from the underworld and are, as might be expected, unflattering and amusing in a wry sort of way. A policeman, we learn for the first time, is a "bluecoat" or "dropper" and a "skull buster", while in these days of the motor car traffic policeman is known as a "ticket plasterer", a name no doubt borrowed from the world of criminal-who, like more respectable citizens, had received a parking ticket.

The word "cop", with its dishonest opposite "robbers", is now the name of a branch of literature and entertainment. It must be admitted that while "policeman" conveys a much more respectable ring about it than "cops and robbers" and "police and robbers", where it should be, on law and order, it lacks pungency. Even if Mr. Hoover, it cannot hope to win.

Perhaps we should be satisfied that in the realm of law and order, whatever they are called, always do and leave it at that.

Canadian PLACE NAMES

WAINWRIGHT, ALBERTA

Originally, this Alberta town was called Edgerton, after a son which has not been preserved in local history, but when the Grand Trunk Pacific came through the territory in 1908, citizens sought to be served a more dignified name. William Wainwright, then vice-president of the GPT was asked to permit his name to be used and he consented. Chief Commissioner of the area is that it is close to the great buffalo grounds of Canada's only buffalo herd roams over a large area.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The personnel manager of a corporation that employs many hundreds of people is explaining to me why he could not hire a charming young lady of whom he wished to give employ-ee a letter of reference. She was eminently suited for the job of receptionist. Very smart looking, a trained stenographer, business college diploma in her certificate and filing duties.

"What we are looking for," said the personnel manager, "is a widow in her thirties, or perhaps a fairly divorced young woman. Failing that, a girl in her thirties who has no further expectation or intention of marrying. The trouble with taking on the obvious attention type of twenty-three is that we would go to all the trouble of training her to the tricky job of receptionist only to have her run off and get married to one of the many attractive young businessmen she would meet at our executive front office.

"Why a widow or divorcee?" I checked.

"They are much less impressed by men," explained the personnel manager. "They handle men with far greater skill than unmarried girls. Receptionists often have to deal with men in tantrums, impatient men, crafty men, shrewd men. And they can gauge a man, his importance, his standing, his attention in coming to our head office. It takes a woman who has lived with a man to have the capacity to figure these things out on sight. That experience could not save several hundred man hours of executive time every day."

TODAY'S TALK

CREATION

Creation of every variety is a thing of wonder. Today I was wandering about my yard and noted on the ground a tiny spot of blue. I picked it up and put it in my hand. It was the fragment of an hatched robin's egg. I searched, but it was all I could discover of interest in that Robin's part in creation. I could not find the nest nor any sign of this one of another generation. That feathered Mother's voice, however, may be one that I hear each and every evening.

Starlings have a home right under the eaves of the roof that stands out about two feet from the room where I sleep each night. I feel them all astir and so I rejoice that they have been given a new nest to cover with their rest in the bird world. Nature is whispering to us, and keeps urging us to be watchful. We can learn from the instinct of nature beyond all count. Many a lesson can be learned that we never discovered before. Creation is all about us. The earliest wild flowers dedicated themselves to the springtime. God's voice is to be heard in Ralph Waldo Emerson's "The Wind in the Willows."

The trees about my home keep reaching higher and higher to get a grasp upon the sun's warming power of more and more. Creation! All growth in Nature is from the reflected rays of the shining sun. There is a beginning to everything. Even in the love

ELOQUENT BUT TOO LATE

As a minister was putting the finishing touches on his sermon one Saturday night, he received a telephone call asking whether or not he would conduct a funeral service the following Tuesday afternoon. He replied that he would, and asked if he might call on the family. He was hurriedly told that would not be necessary. They would see him at the funeral parlor.

He discovered to his amazement just before the service began that he had been called in to say a few words over the remains of a famous gangster who had been murdered a few days before in a gang war. The minister girded up the loins of his mind and soul and gave them a

Mosaic Art Ancient One

Philadelphia Bulletin

The art of making pictures by piecing together scraps of marble, glass, tile or enamel is ancient and honorable. As an example unearthed by the University of Pennsylvania in Ur of the Chaldees is about 5,500 years old. The Greeks and Romans developed the mosaic pavement; Egyptians used it for jewelry; Persians "painted" their palaces with it, and the Italians in the Middle Ages raised the art of glass mosaic to its highest level.

None of this will be much help to the Philadelphia court in deciding a case involving a controversy between Antonio Rosati, Picasso's small mosaic picture of a French abrbor, called "Les Arbres." It is a work of art, to enter this county duty free, if as one customs official has said, it is nothing but "bits of glass on stone" it may be subject to a tariff tax.

This sort of thing has happened before. For years as an imported modernistic picture done with scraps of fabric was declared to be a wearable fibre product and taxed according to 30 per cent of its declared value.

It may not be within the province of the U.S. customs officials to decide what is or what isn't. They are accurate. Even in designating a mosaic as "bits of glass." The non-taxable artistry which put them together is probably beyond exact definition.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

WHAT TESTS CAN BE GIVE N TO DIAGNOSE EPILEPSY

I'm a little bit touchy about the following letter — because to me it represents a rather deep misunderstanding. It's from a reader who doesn't fully understand what medical care involves. Maybe we, as doctors, are to blame for letting her become confused. But regardless of the blame, we aren't understanding each other, and that's hard.

The letter, somewhat condensed, says:

"Dear Dr. Molner: Although you devoted quite a bit of space to epilepsy, you didn't answer my question. I said I realized that the E.E.G. test (electroencephalogram, or 'brain wave' test, which is quite comparable to an electro-cardiogram for the heart) is used to see whether the brain wave pattern is normal.

"From what I have read, it would seem as if there are more or less are other factors which may contribute. I would like to know just what tests can be given to determine this?

"Please don't say I should follow my doctor's advice. I like my doctor and I follow his advice. You doctors all stick together to the point that sometimes, I think, a patient is the one who suffers from such togetherness on your part.

"If it were your child with epilepsy, would you be content with just one test? Or would you have others, and then if either point you didn't touch on was brain surgery. — Mrs. J.P."

My first bit of advice is just this: you don't want. I still say. Follow your doctor's advice if your troubled, tell him why, and ask him to explain what he is going to ease your mind. Some problems are over complicated to work take two weeks to answer a sentence question.

Remember that I cannot and will not diagnose by mail, in 30 seconds any doctor can learn more about a person by seeing him than he can learn from half a dozen letters. That's common sense.

But to answer your question: The E. E. G., plus signs that are quite obvious, may tell all that it is needed in epilepsy.

OTHERS MAY BE NEEDED

Or, again, additional tests may be required because the E.E.G. alone still leaves some other questions. Such additional tests might include a sugar tolerance test looking for a severe drop in blood sugar; a metrazol test for the chance that the thyroid is abnormal; or X-rays looking for some abnormality in the bone of the skull or the brain.

Performing every conceivable test is neither wise nor economical. That's true of many maladies besides epilepsy. You don't keep on running tests once the true trouble is ascertained.

And the same answer applies to brain surgery. If a tumor or the like is discovered you naturally consider whether surgery is feasible for that particular case. But you can't possibly say that surgery is — or is not — advised for epilepsy in general.

Yes, I guess doctors "stick together," that oftentimes they "stick together" for the purpose of saving patients' lives, even sometimes bitterly, until argument distills basic truth that we can all use.

I decline to accept that this is detrimental to the patient!

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between a nervous disorder and a mental disability ill — M. B."

Perhaps you can ask the hardest questions in 12 words- What's the difference between having a cold and having pneumonia? It's a matter of degree and extent! Mental — like physical — illness can range from very mild to very severe. That's the only answer that is possible in the space of a 1,000-word article on the subject.

Mrs. M. White: I suspect that jitters are your trouble. I haven't seen your X-rays, and I say: Nothing, on the evidence like this, ask your doctor! He can tell you in a moment.

Want to lose weight? It can be done if you follow the advice given in my pamphlet, "The Lost Secret Of Reducing." For a copy, write to your local Free Lance-Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope, and 5c in coin to cover handling.

No Cold Feet Among Birds

Sylva

A friend of mine remarked the other day that he found it difficult to understand why wild birds didn't succumb to the bitter cold that we have experienced this past Winter. Why, for instance, do the poor creatures not freeze their feet in sheets of snow-covered ice?

Well, birds are truly remarkable creatures, and they have many features which enable them to cope with the rigors of winter. Their feet have very little blood supplied to the muscle tissue. Tendons take the place of the latter and withstand the temperatures without damage.

The study of birds and bird behavior can be an interesting and rewarding pastime. Birds can be studied at all times of the year, and it is surprising how many species can be differentiated with little effort, even in mid-Winter.

Even a basic knowledge of bird life is interesting and informative. Many of a bird's bones are hollow, providing a light, strong body framework and some birds have lung extensions or "air sacs" in the wing bones which improve "air worthiness".

Birds have no sweat glands or pores, and their feathers, which make excellent insulation (who has not seen a chilled bird in a sleeping bag!). Bills are tucked under the feathers and some birds, like the Hungarian partridge, huddle together in groups to conserve body heat.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

POPE URGES

In the third section he mentioned the ecumenical (universal) council of the Roman Catholic Church which he has called. The Pope said the Roman Catholic Church is "the father house of all Christianity" and that its doors are open for all to re-enter.

Of the responsibilities of writers and the press, the Pope said:

"Those who deliberately and wantonly attack the known truth, and in their speech, writing and action, employ the weapons of falsehood, in order to attract and win over uneducated people, to mould the inexperienced and impressionable minds of the young and fashion them to their own way of thought, certainly are abusing the ignorance and innocence of others and engaging in a practice wholly to be condemned.

"BOUND TO DUTY"

"In a special manner, then, we are compelled to exhort to a careful, exact and prudent exposition of the truth, those who by means of books, reviews and daily papers, so abundant at the present time, make such a great contribution to the formation and training of the minds of their fellow citizens, especially the young, and in the moulding of their opinions and the regulating of their habits. These same men are gravely bound in duty not to disseminate lies, error, obscenity but only the truth, and in particular to publicize that which leads, not to vice, but to good and virtuous practices."

Turning to radio, motion pictures and television, the Pope declared:

"Granted that from these there can arise inspiration and encouragement to what is good and honorable and in accord with Christian virtue; yet often, alas, they can be the cause of entertainment to loose morals, to disorderly life, to the snares of error and treacherous vices, especially in the minds of the young."

The Pope wrote that once "truth is grasped in its fullness . . . the idea of unity ought to permeate minds and hearts and actions."

"A sincere love of truth, then," the Pope continued, "is essential for all, whether private citizens or those who hold the destinies of nations in their hands, if they wish to attain that harmony and peace from which can arise true prosperity, whether of individuals or of whole peoples."

The Pope said he found encouraging signs that the class struggle is easing in the world, "but there still remain a long way to go."

"There continue to exist too many differences in material possessions," he continued. "There are too many caused or easily . . . on account of the theory— sometimes defective, sometimes completely unjust, concerning the right of property — among those who selfishly desire their own advantage and convenience.

"Employers should also provide in some suitable way for the workers to share more and more in the fruits of their labor and feel themselves partners in the whole enterprise.

The pontiff said unity in the church will be one of the objectives of the Ecumenical Council he has called. It probably will not convene before 1961."

The Pope noted that "quite recently in not a few communities which are separated from the Chair of Blessed Peter, there has been aroused a certain sympathy of mind toward the faith and Catholic teaching."

He said there is room for unity of ideas, adding: "There are quite a number of points which the Catholic Church leaves to the discussion of the theologians, both so far as these points are not absolutely certain, and also . . . as to the probable theories of this kind do not tear asunder the unity of the Church."

No Holiday For Firemen

July 1st was no holiday for the Belleville Fire Department. Firemen were not answered by the local firefighters and a near-tragedy was averted. At 11.14 a.m. there was a call to the swimming pool where a young lad was revived from a near drowning incident. At 4.41 p.m. there was a call to the residence of Mrs. Allman at 12 Murney Street when a transformer in her TV set burned out, creating a lot of smoke. No serious damage was sustained.

At 9.21 yesterday evening Captain Al Bump and Fireman Bill Coleman answered the alarm to Garnet Sarles' barn fire at Oak Lake. Both this event and the incident at the Minamen pool are covered in greater detail elsewhere in this edition. Whilst firemen were fighting the barn fire another call came in at 10.00 p.m. from the residence of Mr. Bell at 10 James Street. Here a refrigerator had caught fire during the height of the storm. Only the refrigerator was damaged, fortunately.

On Tuesday, June 30th, there were two false alarms from the Bell Telephone. It is suspected that they were due to children.

Fifteen-Pound Salmon Netted Near Picton

Picton commercial fisherman Glenn Vancott lifted his nets on June 13 and found an unusual fish. It was big and it was silver with scattered small black spots.

It weighed 15.9 pounds and measured 35 inches from snout to tail-tip.

The fish was brought to Picton where it was identified as a male Atlantic salmon. Scale samples were examined and its age placed at four years.

The salmon is believed to have originated from plantings made by the New York State Conservation Department in the once famous Salmon River in Oswego county, N.Y.

A planting was made in 1952 and in 1958, 2,250 yearling salmon from east coast rivers being planted at an average length of 6 inches. Survival was believed good since several five-pound salmon were recaptured last year in and around the mouth of the Salmon River by anglers.

It was from this planting that Vancott's fish came.

Department of Lands and Forests officials say this stock will soon mature. (Atlantic salmon do not die after first spawning) and the sight of the big fish returning to their home stream to bring forth their own progeny is being eagerly anticipated.

Meanwhile, plantings are continuing.

Community Gives Parting Gift to Priest

More than 200 residents of Batawa gathered in the Batawa Recreation Hall June 29th, to bid farewell to Father Gaborik Paulin Priest at Sacred Heart Church, Batawa, for the past 11 years. Transferred to Chatham, Ontario, the popular Batawa priest was the recipient of several fine gifts and parting speeches of well wishing neighbors of the village and district.

The evening was planned by community resident children with children of the Sacred Heart School giving several musical numbers under the direction of Sister Mary Rose Carmel. Instrumental contribution was made by Helen Mikulicek and Helen Leather-land. The sentiments of all present were expressed in a solo by Gertrude Duncan, who gave a fine rendition of "Friend Of Mine."

Mrs. Duncan, public relations officer of Bata Shoe Company of Canada, Limited, presided as chairman for the evening and read a message from Dr. C. R. Bata, vice-president of management directing of the company, who was unavoidably absent.

GIFT PRESENTED

Mr. Frank Vozobule spoke briefly on behalf of the company and presented Father Gaborik with a handsome portable typewriter, a gift from Bata Shoe Company. Rev. Hector Beach, minister of Batawa United Church, spoke briefly concerning his personal friendship with Father Gaborik and emphasized how pleasant and easy it was to have such harmonious understanding in a community. The efforts of his work in Batawa would be witnessed in the days to come. Father Gaborik has the best wishes and prayers of all who know him for continued success in his new field of endeavor."

Representing the high school students of the village, Jerry Janecka Jr., gave Father Gaborik a gift from the students as a token of the esteem in which he was held by the youngsters of the village."

Greetings were expressed on behalf of the Sacred Heart Parent-Teachers' Association by Farrell O'Neill, and Mrs. Robert Millar presented greetings from the Sacred Heart Catholic Women's League.

Fur Harvest Shows Decline

The long hard winter of 1958-59 had its effect on the annual wild fur harvest of the Province of Ontario, the Department of Lands and Forests, according to officials.

The total number of beaver, fisher, marten, mink, and otter caught by local trappers was 11,233 as compared to 9,927 for 1957-58.

Beaver was down 2,500 pelts, fisher, 14; marten was even at one pelt; mink lacked 265 pelts of last year's catch, and otter 13.

Returns from the muskrat harvest are not complete as yet but it is expected to be down from last year's count of 42,588. The total season's revenue for the trappers will amount to over $124,000.

machine, Mr. Anthony Dalcar delivered a message accompanying the community gift. Said Mr. Dalcar . . . "Many things will remain a portrayal in the fine work which Father Gaborik did while serving the people of Batawa to the glory of God. There were the intangible things in which he contributed comfort to troubled loved ones in time of bereavement and sorrow. He had married our youth, folg and blessed our babes; and in the more tangible things . . . his contribution to the village beautification program with his lovely flower gardens is appreciated by all who see the gardens, and the church and rectory."

Father Gaborik came to Batawa with a task — a task that has been so well completed that another call has been made for his services. While we regret his departure from us we can find comfort in the fact that wherever he goes people will benefit from his very goodness. Following is Batawa's farewell and gifts, Father Gaborik stated he would never forget all his friends in Batawa. Growing and children alike would live forever in his memory and serve to inspire him to greater efforts in his calling.

The program closed with the national anthem and prayer, followed by a fellowship hour with dainty refreshments served by the Sacred Heart Catholic Women's League.

Road Oiling Now Under Way Across City

Yesterday's holiday disturbed the normal Wednesday afternoon road repairing in the downtown area. The City Works Department will, however, be continuing this work next week. Meanwhile the road oiling program continues on the city streets and several streets are being prepared for resurfacing. The road maintenance work on the intersection of Harriet and Coleman streets is expected to start early next week.

The heavy rains of yesterday evening served to point up the necessity and advantage of the ditching program which the department has been conducting for the past number of weeks. No troubles from the effects of the rainfall have been reported. The ditching program is being continued on Farley Avenue, Wallbridge Road, and the northern part of Sidney Street. Some ditching activity may also be expected in the Hillcrest area.

Other work of the Public Works department over the past week also includes regular maintenance and the installation of several sewer connections for new private homes.

Royal Train Stops in City To Change Crews

Making an overnight train journey from Ottawa to Hamilton where the Royal Tour continues today, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip passed through the city early this morning. The Royal train stopping briefly at the north station for servicing.

The train was stopped at Belleville for about 18 minutes as the train was checked and a change of crew made for the balance of the trip. Engineer Jack Woodfellow brought the train in and Harry Leeman took the train to Toronto. Both engineers are from this city.

RCMP officers, city police and railway police were on hand to guard the train during its brief stop in the city.

delivering nuclear weapons on North America.

By 1961-62, a detection and warning system against such missiles would likely be in operation in North America "but it appears unlikely that a satisfactory means of intercepting and destroying the missiles will be accomplished within the next few years."

"In consequence, there may be a period between the time when the intercontinental ballistic missile is available to a potential enemy and the time when some defense against the ballistic missile is possible," Mr. Pearkes said.

"In view of the consequences of nuclear warfare, the world is perhaps approaching the stage when the use of force as an instrument of policy to settle man's differences is no longer valid."

TOO EXPENSIVE

Mr. Pearkes said that new weapons are so expensive that Canada alone can't afford to develop them.

"We must, of necessity, take advantage of our position in the Western alliance and be able to obtain proven equipment from our partners in most our limited requirements, thus avoiding the exorbitant cost of development and the risk of failing to produce the weapons in time to meet the threat. . . .

"Development (in Canada) of the large complex weapon systems of the future is not contemplated, but development of components for such systems is quite within Canadian capabilities and a co-operative role with our larger partners."

The F-104 was originally designed as an air defence interceptor. It is a single - seat plane powered by a General Electric J-79GET engine and capable of a speed of twice the speed of sound.

WORLD RECORD-HOLDER

It holds the world speed record at more than 1,400 miles an hour and the world altitude record of more than 90,000 feet.

The stated is a version of the plane, the F-104G, has been chosen by German Air Force and will be manufactured under licence in West Germany. It is capable of carrying conventional or nuclear air-to-ground missiles.

The fact that the F-104 will be used by more than one NATO member in Europe will give more RCAF Air Division more flexibility. The RCAF squadrons would be able to operate from German airfields because F-104 spare parts would be available.

New York Critic Praises Directors' Work in Othello

STRATFORD (CP)—The Queen attends a command performance at the Shakespearean festival tonight and a New York critic has suggested she confer some sort of royal order on Canadian co-directors Jean Gascon and George McCowan for Tuesday night's production of Othello.

Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times confirmed the pair as giving the festival "one of its best productions".

"They have played Shakespeare without trying to improve him," he wrote after seeing the opening performance of the tragedy.

Othello was presented on the second night, a switch from the usual practice of playing the comedy on the second night and the tragedy on the first.

SOME JUST DOING DUTY

As You Like It, which opened Monday, did not receive the praise that greeted both it and Othello. Michael Langham, artistic director of the festival, commented that first-night reaction is partially accounted for by a certain proportion of the audience attending "not out of love but seemingly out of a sense of duty."

That is why the second night is usually been more successful, he said, and "now we have scored bullseyes with each kind of comedy."

Toronto critic Herbert Whittaker of The Globe and Mail said the presentation of Othello redeemed the festival's seventh season.

Of Montreal's Mr. Gascon and Toronto's Mr. McCowan, he said: "They have in collaboration built a production that is true to that Shakespearean play in its piece."

The Queen and Prince Philip however, won't get to see the production that has brought rave reviews. Instead they will see a performance of As You Like It which festival officials hope will receive a more appreciative audience.

FIRST-NIGHT PROBLEM

Douglas Rain, who scored a personal triumph with the critics in his role as Iago in Othello said the first play "took it on the chin" as in other years, He said he was absolutely amazed at the lack of concentration of the first night audience which was forever "rustling and wrestling."

Praise Tuesday night also went to leading man Douglas Campbell in the title role. Mr. Langham, who has directed two previous productions of the tragedy in which the actor played, said Campbell's performance was perhaps "the most important serious dramatic characterization that this festival has yet seen." It really was the rare occasion when an actor crosses the boundary from being a fine player to being a great one.

Mr. Atkinson said Mr. Campbell played a massive Moor, whose simplicity destroys him . . . he is as interesting, intelligent and accomplished actor."

TOMLINSON—MILES

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on June 6, by the Reverend Harry M. Davis, when Joyce Ethel Miles, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Miles, was united in marriage to Lloyd Murray Tomlinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tomlinson, Oshawa, and the late Mr. Tomlinson.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon presided at the organ and accompanied Miss Loretta McDougall, who sang, "The Lord's Prayer," and "Wedding Hymn."

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a gown of Swiss white embroidered eyelet organza, the bouffant skirt of which was accented by a violet cummerbund. Her short tulle veil was held in place by a circlet of white flowers and she carried a nosegay of white button 'mums and mauve delphinium flowerets.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss Lois Fillmore, of Baie Verte, N.B., who was gowned in mauve print organza and carried a nosegay of mauve and white 'mums.

Mr. Daniel Tomlinson, of Oshawa, was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Mr. Karl Climo of Toronto and Mr. William McHugh of Oshawa.

The reception was held in the church parlors where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a lace sheathing sheath dress with corsage of Sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy crepe in a two-piece style with corsage of white button 'mums.

For their wedding trip to the Maritimes and New England States, the bride chose a beige jacket dress with matching hat and accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson will reside in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests attended from Oshawa, Don Mills, Detroit, Capreol, Toronto, Peterborough, Exeter, Claremont and Kingston.

Prior to her marriage, showers honoring the bride were given by Mrs. Earl Henry, Oshawa; Miss Lois Fillmore, Toronto; Mrs. Wilbur Fox and Miss Beverley Fox, Belleville, and Miss Dorothy Denyes of the staff of Henry Morgan and Company Limited, Toronto.

Miscellaneous Shower Held For Bride Elect

IVANHOE — Mrs. Earl McMaster was hostess with Mrs. John Stephens and Mrs. Milton Shaw as co-hostesses at a charmingly arranged miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Ellen Mitz, popular bride elect, on the evening of June 26th at the home of Mrs. McMaster.

The early part of the evening was spent in the car port, making a bride's book. Each girl read a short joke as they were introduced to Miss Lee Watson and Mrs. Glen Belcour both of Toronto, who will act as bridesmaids.

Appropriate readings were given by Mrs. Milton Shaw, who also conducted a sing-song.

As the guests entered the living room for the presentation, corsages of roses were presented to the bride-to-be and also her mother, by Mrs. John Stephens.

After Ellen had opened the prettily wrapped gifts, over-flowing a large mauve umbrella, and expressed her gratitude all joined in singing "My Best To You."

The dining room was prettily decorated with pink peonies and orange blossoms, a bridal party of dolls, pink candles lighted the table.

This and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Going Shopping?

Only a calamitous person would ask such a silly and aggravating question on days when people's minds are on cool drinks, swimming, abbreviated clothes and enjoyment of the weather which for so many weeks they looked forward to. Summer is here in all its glorious heat (if you like glorious heat) and all those wonderful recreations that attend it.

However we do have to eat and this is the season for all the fresh vegetables and fruit we dream of during the long autumn, winter and spring months. It is not necessary for T & T to enumerate all the luscious products that come from the soil and abound in the Bay of Quinte area. And there are all the innumerable recipes from which to provide delectables for the summer appetites. Now and for the next few weeks we can enjoy the harvest of the season and the produce of nature. If we are suffering from the heat, there are long cool drinks that can be made from fresh fruits, and the cold cuts that come from the stock of the farms. Jam to think about also helps to make one cool.

Since detail and statistics are inclined to generate heat which is not required T & T restrains any inclination to generate heat and suggests we resort instead to thoughts of the placid waters of lake and which is so delightfully merchandized in our stores.

Now for a few vital statistics we wish all our readers good and hearty to start off the summer month of July.

In April of this year World Mental Health Year (WMHY) was opened on World Health Day. It will last for eighteen months during which special efforts are to be made by the World Health Organization, UNESCO, governmental and non - governmental bodies throughout the world. Possibly T & T ought not to have mentioned the generation of heat from statistics, because a few are required to illuminate the appalling seriousness of this "the greatest public health problem in the world today." There are nearly 1,500,000 patients in Europe. In the USA there are 600,000 hospitalized patients and "one in eleven will require some form of personality disturbance." And the figures continue: "In the Netherlands roughly thirty-five students in every 1,000 need some kind of psychological or psychiatric treatment. Japan, Denmark, Austria and Switzerland lead the world in the numbers of suicides, while France consumes ten times more alcohol proportionately than the USA, or Sweden, and five times more than Britain. If the amount of bodily disease in the world reached the proportions of many of the existing social ills with mental and emotional causes (delinquency, alcoholism, drug addiction, suicide, etc.) not to mention classical mental disease, an epidemic state would be declared and strong measures taken to combat it.

"The increase in mental ill health now involves whole populations. We must realize that many of the problems of modern living are in fact mental health problems — problems of nervousness, fear, lack of courage, intolerance, prejudice and impulsiveness."

"After centuries when mentally sick people were regarded as lunatics who had to be locked up in institutions or even chained in prisons, society is slowly losing its terror of mental disease and is coming to regard it as curable like other sicknesses. If treatment is begun early enough about 80 percent of mental patients can now look forward to being cured and take their place in society again."

So the UNESCO Courier outlines some of the gigantic steps being taken for treatment and therapy throughout the world. When we read and pass on the tremendous challenges these United Nations agencies are meeting in the name of all humanity, one wonders how other agencies can be so devoted to death and destruction. If the two opposites meet head-on it can only be hoped by an ordinary folk that the humanitarian agencies are victorious.

T and T is happy its readers have expressed their approval of our sketchy reports taken from such sources that are at our disposal.

Holloway E.G. Closes Season With Supper

Last Tuesday evening, the Evening Group of Holloway Street United Church held the last meeting of the season in the form of a pot-luck supper, buffet style.

Mrs. Jean Bateman welcomed everyone present and said grace, then the members sat down to a delicious spread.

A short business meeting took place to discuss the plans for the projects for the summer months.

Mrs. Ethel Knight took over the social part of the evening as auctioneer at the auction sale which was successful.

Mrs. Elfreda Vader and her group were hostesses for the evening.

Women Seem Afraid of Work Says One at 100

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Catherine Farrell, who celebrates her 100th birthday Friday, says "I have felt better in my life."

But she's a little disappointed in her Ontario friends in Maxwell, where she was born. Maxwell is 31 miles east of Owen Sound.

"They're all 25 to 30 years younger than I and not one of them can come up for the fun. I'd love to drive up to see them but I'm a nice lady, so I don't."

Mrs. Farrell, who once kept a boarding house and frequently served Sunday dinner to as many as 100 guests, says "work" might be her middle name.

But, she says, most of today's women seem to be afraid of work. "They're afraid of hurting their fingernails or something and they've always putting something on their faces. I never used powder or anything—just good soap and water."

Summer Sparkle

By TRACY ADRIAN

Summer frocks with their new low necklines demand beads and bangles to give sparkle to the more casual costumes. Even dressier outfits are more festive when adorned with necklaces like the one pictured.

Six ropes of clear and flower-colored crystal beads are used for this handsome piece. It is worn with a sleeveless dress with a low, rounded neckline. For a touch reminiscent of the "Roaring Twenties," the model is sporting a wide ribbon headband.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

PLACE FOR ICED-TEA SPOON

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I serve glasses of iced tea or iced-coffee at the table, I prefer to set the glasses on saucers or small breadandbutter plates. Then, when I set the table, where should I put the teaspoon, now?—E. S.

Put the iced-tea spoon directly on the saucer or the small plate under the glass.

NO REASON TO POSTPONE THEIR HOUSEWARMING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I would like your advice about our housewarming. We are going to move into our own home very shortly. Because of limited finances we will have to do with what furniture we have, which is not in the best condition and which will not completely furnish the house. As a matter of fact, there will be several entirely empty rooms. In due time we expect to furnish our new house properly and completely, however, we are both extremely happy and proud about owning this new home of ours. My husband wants very much to have a housewarming soon after we move in and are as settled as we can be for the time being. But I believe we should postpone the housewarming until the furnishing of the house is completed — which I'm sure will take a few years. So Mrs. Beeckman, what is your advice?—M. H.

I'm 100 per cent on your husband's side! Please plan to give that important and significant housewarming soon after you've moved into your new house and have settled as much as you can settle with the furniture and furnishings you have. Don't postpone this joyful occasion to welcome with warm hospitality your relatives and friends to your new home, to let them share your happiness and pride in at last achieving the home you've dreamed of having. Place the furnishings you have to their very best advantage . . . and don't worry about what you haven't got. And why not have fun putting a sign at the entrance of each empty room, reading: "This will be our guest room" . . . "This will be our upstairs living-room" or "Watch for the grand opening of this room . . . we hope in early 1961!"

(And may I send every good wish to you and your husband for a delightful housewarming, and for all happiness in your new house?)

PLANS FOR CHURCH WEDDING OF VERY YOUNG WIDOW

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A young woman in her early-twenties, a widow is to be married in a few weeks. Both she and her bridegroom-to-be are Protestants, and they are to be married in church. Her first wedding was a large church wedding. She wishes to have this second wedding very informal and every plan as fight and as nice as she can have it. She wishes to invite all the guests to the church, mainly members of the families, her bridegroom and a few intimate friends. She is to have one attendant, a matron of honor, and the bridegroom will, of course, have a best man. The church ceremony is to be at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and following this there will be a small, informal reception. She is planning to wear a dress in a shade of blue especially becoming to her, street-length, with a rather full skirt. She and I are planning her wedding, and would be so grateful if you will answer several be seated.

Women's Activities

TRINITY UNITED W.A.

MADOC — Trinity United Women's Association met in the church parlors for their June meeting with a fine attendance of its members and a very welcome visitor and former member, Mrs. Lowery now residing at Flinton.

Mrs. R. C. Jackson took charge of the meeting and opened by reading an appropriate poem followed the "Theme Song" and prayer by Rev. W. Millen.

As it was the last meeting for the season, Mr. Millen spoke on plans that were being made for the beginning of the fall season, and left with the members some timely topics to consider during the summer holidays.

It was decided to send a donation of money to the treasurer of W.A. Belleville Presbytery to be given to the Bellecliffe Camp for the purchase of a resuscitator.

Mrs. W. McCoy conducted the worship service, the theme, "Loving Kindness of the Lord." Bible Story Psalm 103 and comemtary by Mrs. McCoy.

Mrs. John Storring, who was the delegate to W. A. Presbyterial held at Bellecliffe recently gave a fine report on the proceedings of the day.

Mrs. Albert—Bailey was in charge of the program and gave a reading entitled "Standard Bearers" assisted by Mrs. B. Tanner, who read "Flags of Readiness for Service" written by Mrs. Ethel M. Chapman, and a story by Pastor Young, "Fear is the Cause of Most of the Ills Today" by Mrs. C. Whytock. "I'm Disgraced Person" by Mrs. Bennett; a humorous reading by Mrs. Bailey concluded a worthwhile program. Following tea and sandwiches a contest was enjoyed. The meeting will be withdrawn during July and August.

questions for us:

1. Do you approve of the plans we've made so far?

2. Should she wear a corsage, or carry a bouquet?

3. Her father is dead, but she has an older brother. Is it proper for her brother to give her in marriage?

4. Should she come into the church with her brother or with her bridegroom?

5. Will you please give us any other suggestions?

All the guests think that he and the bride-to-be have made for her second wedding a very tasteful taste . . . and I'm sure her small church wedding will be lovely and most attractive.

2. Usually the bride at her second wedding wears a corsage, in best taste a simple, rather small corsage . . . but it is not incorrect for her to carry a bouquet, of course, a large bouquet, and the fee established in a rather informal design.

3. At a second marriage the giving-in-marriage procedure is usually omitted. However, the minister may perform the ceremony will advise about this.

4. About this procedure, too, I strongly advise the bride to consult with the minister and he will suggest the procedure that seems most appropriate for the occasion and in his church. If the bride particularly wishes to come up the aisle, the minister may suggest that she and her brother (the hon or brother's right) follow the matron of honor, walking side-by-side. At the end of his aisle her bridegroom with his best man, will be waiting for guests. They may walk first in precessional, or they may not take any part in the processional. In my judgment, it is extremely awkward for that number of guests to arrive at the church and not be given any direction about where they are to BEAUTY SALON FOR FORMER SKATING QUEEN—Barbara Ann Scott, former world figure skating champion, is half-owner of a new beauty salon in the Chicago suburb of Glencoe. One feature of her new business venture will be the quick, 30-minute hair styling for the last-minute date. The salon, owned by Barbara and her husband, Tom Xing, a Chicago executive, will be managed by Phillip Penzo who did Barbara's hair during the one years she spent as a professional skater in the ice revue. The former Ottawa girl intends to make her home and husband her first career. Here she works in the kitchen of their Chicago apartment while her husband looks on. (CP Photo).

By CHRISTINE STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Barbara Ann Scott, the Canadian beauty who gave up a famous skating career for marriage, is to have her name in lights again—this time in front of a beauty salon.

But the Barbara Ann Scott Beauty Salon, to open shortly in the Chicago suburb of Glencoe, does not represent a new career for the former world champion figure skater, now Mrs. Tom Xing.

"It's ridiculous, this talk of my coming out of retirement," Ottawa-born Barbara Ann told The Canadian Press in a long-distance telephone interview.

"I'll still be able to take care of my home and husband, I think a wife should be a wife first."

The salon's manager will be Philip Penzo, who styled Barbara's hair during her four years as a professional skater with the Hollywood Ice Revue.

"One day Tommy and I were in New York and we happened to meet Phil—we've been friends for years," Barbara Ann said. "Phil mentioned that he liked his present work—doing the hair-dos for the Broadway musical Jamaica—but he'd like to settle into a business.

"So Tommy and I hit on the idea of a beauty salon in Chicago with Philip as manager. He agreed and we set up the plans."

The salon is located on the ground floor of a new Glencoe building. Opening date is still uncertain, said Barbara Ann, because heavy wiring for the machines takes a long time. But the colors had been chosen—black and white, Tom's choice, and blue, long Barbara's favorite hue.

One feature of the salon is to be the "quick, dry do" for the last-minute date, said Barbara Ann.

"If you suddenly get a call from your husband who says, 'Be ready in two hours. We're taking the boss to the club for dinner,' you can telephone Philip and in 20 minutes he'll dry-comb your hair into a fresh style, perhaps with the aid of some artificial hair pieces which we'll keep on hand.

"The essence of the salon will be that Phil will do whatever you like—high-styled or simple, dry-combed or shampooed. And of course he'll make up faces too."

Barbara Ann herself has always preferred the natural look, both in hair and clothes. Her silver - blonde tresses, still are combed into a page-boy, as when she was skating, but she sometimes wears it up-swept at night.

Barbara and Tom, now an executive with the Chicago Merchandise Mart, were married in 1955. She was press agent for the Hollywood Ice Revue, which she joined in 1951 after turning professional.

"One thing about Tommy," she once said, "He didn't make me do silly things like some press agents. He recognized that I wasn't a glamor girl and didn't want to be."

Their summer life in Chicago centres around golf. They play almost every night after Tom finishes work, until 9:30 p.m. if light permits. Barbara Ann is trying to push her golf score down to 100. Then Tom is to give her a gold golf charm for her bracelet collection.

"After four years of marriage," Barbara Ann reminisced, "housework is still a novelty.

"I love cooking and washing and ironing. I don't think a husband should have to look after his own wardrobe.

"A woman comes into the apartment once a week to clean, but apart from that I fuss about and keep the place tidy."

Her meal-planning is regulated by Tom's arrival time at home—perhaps steak if he's going to be late, or a roast if he's to be on time.

"His favorite dessert is strawberry soufflé made with egg whites and baked in the oven," is Barbara Ann. "We both like to eat. Except when I'm golfing—then I'm just not hungry."

Does she look back with nostalgia or regret to the days when she was winning skating championships—twice world and European champion, once Olympic champion?

"Not a bit, I was fortunate because I liked skating. Whatever formal education I missed I gained in world travel, which is broadening. But I'm a wife now —my greatest career to date."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Ellen P. — Ed is being cruel.

Edward P. — A year ago my wife's sister, a woman in her early 40's, passed away. Her husband and two children came to live with us.

My problem now concerns my brother-in-law, who has been paying too much attention to my wife. I'm not accusing Tom of anything serious, but that he and Ellen sit talking for hours at a time. He comes home at lunchtime because he happens to work just around the block and insists upon helping Ellen with the dishes at all times. She balks and I can't get in a word edgewise.

I don't like to ask him to move, but I think things might be better if Tom and I had, by way of living just isn't doing anybody any good.

Ellen P. — Ed is being very cruel. Where in the world is Tom to go with two young children if not without the money to hire a housekeeper? He used up all his savings on my sister's medical bills. And could we tell him go to live alone while his kids stayed with us? That's mean "to both him and the kids.

I realize Tom takes up too much of my time, but I'm trying to break him of this habit gradually. It's just that we both needed to talk when my sister died, and before that in her illness. Tom has the habit of telling me about all his' problems will work and the kids.

I feel I have helped Tom a lot in readjusting his life. He says he doesn't know what he would have done without me.

The Council: It is certainly natural for two individuals sharing a common loss to try to comfort one another in their grief. The feeling that outsiders cannot possibly understand the depth of their pain draws mourners into a private world.

But the fact that Tom lost a wife and is in need of the feminine element in his life has drawn him closer to Ellen than is good for both of them and their families. While she has been ministering to Tom's needs in a maternal fashion, Ellen has lost sight of the others who need her at least as much.

Ellen should recognize that her strong sympathy at this stage is beginning to outlive its usefulness. Tom should by now start recuperation from the first pain of loss. Now he has to begin to tackle the problem of the future. He is fortunate to have found a homemaker who substitute mother for his children in Ellen, but he should not also find feminine companionship in her. This is too much to ask and too much for Ellen to give.

This may not be the best moment for Tom to move from this household, however, but he must start to move away emotionally. Ellen should not allow her sympathy to run away with her good judgment on this score She should show her brother-in-law in tactful words and deeds that her time and best energies belong primarily to her husband and family.

Beauty of Paintings Testify Wartime Years Are Forgotten

EDMONTON (CP)—The calm beauty of the paintings by Edmonton artist Mrs. Helena Suska testify that the wartime years have been forgotten.

Mrs. Suska, who held a four-day exhibition here recently, has been greatly impressed by Canada and Canadians since she came here in 1951. A native of Poland, she lives here with her husband Julien, and two daughters, Julia and Magdalena, are at Calgary.

The family fled their home in western Poland when the Second World War began.

"I left with my husband, two daughters, an old servant and a dog, and I never went back home," she said.

WARSAW SEPARATION

Her husband had been administrative head of Rydgoszcz province in Poland. When they reached Warsaw, the family was separated, Julia going with her father across the southern frontier and Mrs. Suska remaining with her other daughter.

Then, for years, Mrs. Suska had to hide, first from the Germans and then from the Russians. Finally she received word that her husband and Julia had reached England through efforts of the Swedish Red Cross. Mrs. Suska herself managed to escape with Magdalena, reaching West Berlin. She was reunited with her husband in London.

After the family came to Canada Mrs. Suska was encouraged to paint by Senator Donald Cameron at the school of fine arts in Banff, Alta. She had become matron of the women's residence there, and returned for five summers to fill this position.

REMINDERS OF HOME

Her paintings mainly are landscapes of the lakes and mountains of the Rocky Mountains area. "They remind me very much of my own country," she said.

Their two daughters now are married and living in Calgary, and there are five grandchildren.

Mrs. Suska says she has great admiration for Canadian women "who can raise a bunch of children, sweep their houses and still look glamorous."

She appreciates the standard of living in Canada, but feels that housewives should be more aware of world events. "It will make them conscious of how happy they are."

Mother's Helper

FEATHER PILLOWS on youngsters' beds are likely to take quite a beating, and could do with quick freshenings between washings. You can tumble them in your dryer for five or ten minutes and they'll come out plump again. Of course, their covers must be firmly sewed.

Two Dinners For Two

by Mary Moore

MENU 1:
Roast chicken with herb rice stuffing, new spinach, kernel corn with carrot dice, leaf lettuce, radish and cucumber salad with Italian French dressing, cherry and banana fruit cup, shortcrust bars, iced coffee.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Homemade Garden Vegetable Soup; Large Broiled Meat Cakes; Oven French Fries; Hosebud Beets; Individual Fruit Salad Desserts: Canned Peach Halves filled with Yellow Cream Cheese Balls, Syrup Cherries, Pineapple Chunks; Cottage Cheese Topped with Raspberry or Elderberry Jelly; Assorted Crackers; Assorted Cheeses; Coffee.

SUNDAY

(Cold Supper)

Cold Meat Platter: Sliced Cold Roast Chicken (from Saturday), Salami, Jellied Tongue; Sweet Chili Sauce; Pizza Pie (see Friday); Chefs Lettuce Heart and Pineapple Salad: Lattice Cherry Pie: Coffee.

MENU 2

Individual chicken pies, currant jelly, buttered new cabbage, homemade fresh raspberry ice cream snowballs, iced tea.

Since these two dinners for two are designed to be served one week apart, I will give you the method of preparing No. 1 now and one week from now another instalment will show up with directions for dinner No. 2.

DIRECTION FOR DINNER NO. 1 FOR TWO:

Roast Chicken: Buy an oven ready 2½ pound roaster. Stuffing: Sauté gently in 2 tablespoons bacon fat of good flavor, not at all burned, 2 tablespoons each chopped chives and parsley and 1 finely chopped celery stalk. In 2 minutes add ½ cup raw brown or white rice and continue sautéing for 3 more minutes. Add ¼ teaspoon each curry powder and pepper ½ teaspoon rosemary leaves, ½ teaspoon salt. Stir until bacon fat is absorbed by rice then add 1 cup boiling water. Cover tightly and turn off heat for 5 minutes. Turn on heat to very low and cook 20 minutes longer. While hot fill chicken with this stuffing and skewer the opening shut. Tie wings and legs to body. Brush skin with butter, sprinkle with paprika and bake uncovered, no water in pan, at 325 deg. Fahr. for 2 hours basting twice.

After dinner before putting leftover chicken away, pull the meat from the bones, wrap carefully in foil and freeze for next week's chicken pies. (See Thursday, July 9th). Make soup from the carcass, see below.

ITALIAN FRENCH DRESSING:
One cup salad or olive oil, ¼ cup each lemon juice and vinegar, 1 clove of garlic sliced, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons sugar. Shake well before using.

HOMEMADE CHICKEN SOUP:

To the bony carcass of one roasted chicken, add 4 cups cold water, 2 tablespoons each raw rice and barley, ½ cup each chopped onions, celery, carrots, tomatoes and noodles, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 chicken bouillon cubes and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Simmer until all are tender. Pour through large strainer to facilitate removing all bones. Return all other ingredients to broth, reheat and serve for lunch or supper.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

IVANHOE — The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John McInroy.

The president, Mrs. William Donnan, opened the meeting with a poem. Scripture Psalm was read by Mrs. Barton Haggerty. Thirteen members answered the roll call.

Mrs. Milton Shaw gave the key word. "I believe in the forgiveness of sins."

Mrs. K. Rooney reviewed the chapter in the study book on titled "Building For Our Future." This study included the four synods, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, and was presented in an interesting manner.

Mrs. Rooney, residing in Vernon, B.C., for a number of years, has a wide knowledge of the work and problems.

Following the offering a piano solo was given by Mrs. H. Benson and a reading on the life of "Jonathan Goforth" was given by B. Fleming. Mrs. H. Thompson read "Be Careful What You Say."

A Bible contest was conducted by Mrs. Barton Haggerty.

"Beneath the Cross of Jesus" was sung and Mrs. Wm. Shaw closed with prayer.

POOR INVESTMENT

LONDON (CP) — Rev. David Chisholm, Anglican vicar of St. Aidhelm's in the Edmonton district, went out 100 $1 bills in a "talents scheme" to raise funds for the church. Ninety - nine parishioners returned them—with a profit of £224. The 100th, a middle-aged woman, sent back 2s 6d with a note: "Sorry sir, I invested it on three (soccer) pools — and lost."

Bathing Beauty

By TRACY ADRIAN

The skirted swimsuit has really come in for a fashion revival this year, as part of a trend toward more feminine styles for active play wear.

This flower-printed pique suit exemplifies the silhouette. A flattering cuff decorates the top of the bodice and the straps are removable because inner construction insures adequate suit hold-up. Brief tricot panties hug the figure beneath a flared skirt.

QUESTION ANSWERED

WISBECH, Eng. (CP) — Colin Halet, a Methodist lay preacher, gave an address to a church in this Cambridgeshire town on the text: "What Lack I?" After the service he found that his motorcycle had been stolen.

Women's Institute

MADOC W.I.

MADOC — Mrs. Albert Bailey ...tes to the members of Madoc Women's Institute, with 22 in attendance, and three visitors.

...rs E. T. Nayler, president, opened the meeting.

During the business period it was decided to purchase a flag for the new public school. It was announced that the Souvenir Coffee Spoons had arrived and same could be purchased from Mrs. K. Nicol.

Mrs. Moore gave a brief summary from the C.A.C. pamphlet, touching on a few important items, namely the choosing of good terry towels, and the new fasteners to take the place of zippers.

Mrs. A. Empey presented current events for the month, touching on the most important events.

The program on home economics and health was taken by the conveners, Mrs. G. S. White and Mrs. S. R. Beatty, who, unable to be present, prepared a paper on health and this was read by Mrs. Empey.

Mrs. White gave an interesting paper on home economics which told of the different ways of advertising and how to shop.

Mrs. Beatty's paper on health dealt with first aid, which proved beneficial at this season of the year.

A splendid report on the district annual convention of North Hastings held in Springbrook, was given by Mrs. W. Forestell.

A bounteous lunch was served and thanks to the hostess and all who took part were given by Mrs. Will Stewart. The July meeting will be at Mrs. Nayler's cottage with a pot-luck lunch.

Moslem Women Doing Little to Gain Freedom

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ALGIERS (AP) — Behind the mud walls of North African homes, 10,000,000 Moslem women dream of the freedom enjoyed by their Western sisters.

Frustrated by male suspicions, feelings of inferiority and the tenets of Islam, they do little to win emancipation.

Recent government decrees in Tunisia, Morocco and French-ruled Algeria were intended to make life easier, but 90 per cent of rural Arab women don't even know they exist.

For them, life hasn't changed from what it was centuries ago —cooking, bearing a child every year and obeying their husbands.

A number of educated women who have broken with the past are admired but not imitated.

The French tried to win support from Moslem women in rebellion-torn Algeria by granting them the right to vote, amending marriage laws and taking away the husband's privilege of needing his wife by repeating three times, "I divorce you."

However, since the percentage of emancipated women among Moslem women is done primarily by the wives of French army officers, it encounters political opposition.

In protest, Moslem girls who had never worn veils covered their faces when they took the annual college examinations.

In Morocco, thousands of women threw off their veils when the new Moroccan state was born in 1956.

Today, many of these same women again wear veils despite the urgings of one of King Mohammed V's daughters, Lalla Aisha, who planned the citizenry by appearing on a public beach in a two-piece bathing suit.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba's government abolished polygamy and accorded women equal status before the law. But in Tunisia as throughout the rest of North Africa, the majority of their husband to market.

Moslem women are little affected by the 20th century.

They still peer at the world through a slit in their shawls and trot behind the donkeys carrying

Sumptuous Beauty

By ALICE ALDEN

Not every woman is endowed with the presence, the carriage, the chic to wear clothes of great originality and striking design. But for that fortunate person Pierre Cardin has designed an ankle length sheath of geranium red re-embroidered French lace. In contrast, the short bolero and the great, floor-length stole are of white silk faille.

Women's Activities

PLAINFIELD W.A.—W.M.S.

A joint meeting of the Plainfield W.A. and W.M.S. was held at Mrs. Charlie Treverton's home.

The meeting was opened by the W.M.S president, Mrs. Kerr.

It was reported that there is an increase in the allocation for 1959. There is a great need for candidates to take the place of retiring missionaries.

The school for leaders will be held at Whitby starting Aug. 17th and continuing through August 21st.

The devotional part of the meeting was taken by the W.A. including a solo by Mrs. Sills, "Leaning On the Everlasting Arms"; a reading by Mrs. Diltz, "If You Believe," by Patience Strong; Scripture lesson, Job 2:1-10.

Mrs. Middleton gave a talk on "Friendship," saying "there were no barriers of black and white with the early Christians. They had an unbreakable fellowship. Can we not spend one hour of 168 for fellowship in our church on Sunday?"

It was decided to take a certain amount of talent money and see how much it can be increased.

Mrs. Diltz passed on a few thoughts from the Belleville Presbytery. She said the W.A. should not be used for making ren.

money. More attention should be paid to the spiritual side. Each woman should spend 15 minutes a day reading her Bible; also that the Society obtain visiting cards to be left with shut-ins.

The meeting closed and a social half hour was spent. Attendance; 19 adults and six children.

Women's Institute

REDNERSVILLE W.I.

ALBURY — The June meeting of the Rednersville W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Wannamaker on Thursday evening with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Elmer Young, opened the meeting.

The business was very short, the topic for the evening was "Citizenship." The convener, Mrs. Harmon Montgomery, introduced the guest speaker, Harriet Stevens, who spoke on "United Nations," which everyone enjoyed. Mrs. Montgomery presented the speaker with a little gift and thanked her for the address.

Mrs. Kenneth Green also thanked the speaker, the hostess and the lunch committee for the lovely evening for which everyone showed appreciation.

Refreshments were served.

Ben-Gurion Feels Time Come To Look Away From the Past

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

At the root of Israel's current government crisis lies the basic question whether the Israelis are prepared to bury the past in the interest of their nation's future.

Before the November elections, Premier David Ben-Gurion's political foes no doubt will try to stir up popular opinion against the cabinet decision to sell arms to West Germany.

More than anything, the present dispute illustrates the emotional overtones that color crisis in the infant state.

After 2,000 years of dispersal, the Jews in a single generation experienced the most brutal tragedy and their greatest triumph—Hitler's massacre of 6,000,000 of their number and, only a few years later, the establishment of their state.

CHANGES VIEWPOINT

The premier, who played a key role in shaping the new nation, now apparently feels the time has come to look away from the past.

Closer relations with Germany would strengthen the position of his state economically and politically. He expressed gratitude that Israeli-made weapons should have been chosen in the competition with those from other countries.

"I distinguish between the Germany of yesterday and the Germany of today," he said. "Therefore I am for maintaining friendly relations with the present Germany."

In the crisis of 1938, Ben-Gurion found himself in trouble over the question of buying arms from Germany. At that time, when he resigned and reformed his coalition government, he said:

"If you offer me a choice between all the ideals in the world, glorious as they may be, and the security of Israel, I will unhesitantingly choose the latter."

TWO-POINT POLICY

The premier's policy since the 1948 armistice has been characterized by a determination to build up the state through immigration and economic development and to rely for its defence on its own military strength rather than on external diplomacy.

In the first he has been remarkably successful, though the problem of Israel's heavy dependence on economic aid still remains unsolved.

The government now is conducting an intensive export drive in a determined bid to reduce the country's dependence on external help. Arms were one of the commodities that found a ready market.

Perhaps a more significant aspect of the current crisis, like most of the previous disputes, is that it is not about the long-term prospects of Israel's relations with her Arab neighbors.

In spite of the internal fights, the Israelis remain united when looking outwards at their Arab neighbors. There is little doubt that the nation will continue to rely on its own military strength for defence against its neighbors.

GASOLINE STRIKE

But, says Mr. Langdon, the branded dealer is not subsidized to the full amount of the price drop. When standard gas is selling at the normal 43.9 cents, the dealer's gross per gallon is 8½ cents. During a price war his margin drops to five cents and the company stands the rest of the reduction.

Some branded dealers in specific areas are given greater subsidies than similarly - branded ones. Unbranded dealers are independent service station operators who may buy their gas from one or more companies.

The retail dealers' association also has asked the companies to cut out the use of gimmicks such as steak knives and beach balls, and to do away with price signs—except, of course, for the government inspected meters on gas pumps.

WINDSOR PRECEDENT

The refusal of the oil companies to comply has put Toronto in the same spot Windsor was in last February. After a lockup was called in Windsor, however, the companies settled on all issues.

Hamilton has the same price war as Toronto and dealers there also propose to lock up July 7.

If the same thing doesn't happen in Toronto as in Windsor, only 20 stations scattered throughout the metropolitan area will remain open for emergencies when the lockup begins Tuesday.

Manned by pickets at no cost to the operator, they'll sell gas at normal prices to the police, fire department, doctors, ambulances, funeral homes and one or two others.

STOCKING UP GAS

A check of service station operators showed many car drivers have started laying in a stock of gas and others are keeping their tanks full by buying a few gallons at a time.

Any stations remaining open after the lockup starts will be picketed, as will be head offices of the oil companies and their bulk storage plants.

The retail association has received assurance from the Toronto and District Labor Council that no Truckers' Union members will cross the picket lines, thus stopping bulk deliveries of gas.

"We're not really fighting with the public," said Mr. Langdon, "but we do want to impress upon them the fact that their representatives in government need to take a hand in solving this problem."

Commons Broadcasting Body Will Likely Decide Today Whether to Continue Probe

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons broadcasting committee was expected to decide today whether to delve more deeply into allegations of political influence in the cancellation of the controversial CBC radio program Preview Commentary.

An eventful one-day inquiry on Tuesday ended abruptly after startling statements by two top corporation officials that acting CBC President E. L. Bushnell and said heads would "roll" if the program of political commentat wasn't dropped.

Mr. Bushnell himself told the committee he has never received orders, directives or even hints from cabinet ministers or anyone "who could be said to have political influence."

When Tuesday's hearing ended, Chairman Ernest Halpenny (PC —London) declared the questioning of CBC witnesses was at an end.

J. W. Pickersgill (L. — Bonavista-Twillingate) protested the move, and described as "closure" the chairman's action in calling for an adjournment motion and cutting off further discussion.

Mr. Halpenny modified his stand Wednesday and told a reporter that if committee members "feel we haven't completed the evidence of witnesses who were there, there is no reason why we can't call them."

Mr. Pickersgill indicated he would like to have the committee told why the CBC Board of Directors last week received a previous decision and ordered reinstatement of the program.

Revenue Minister Nowlan, who reports to parliament for the publicly-owned CBC, has said he talked in some of the board rooms in Toronto just before the board changed its mind.

In his evidence Tuesday Mr. Bushnell denied, after some hesitation, that anyone speaking for Prime Minister Diefenbaker had spoken to him.

Under cross - examination by Mr. Pickersgill, the CBC head denied publicly and flatly that Mr. Diefenbaker himself had spoken to him.

SURPRISE EVIDENCE

Mr. Bushnell, who has been acting as ailing CBC President Alphonse Ouimet, took the witness' stand after two of his top officers gave some surprising evidence of behind-the - scenes conversations leading up to the Preview Commentary cancellation.

Charles Jennings, CBC controller of broadcasting, said Mr. Bushnell told him time and both Mr. Ouimet and Mr. Bushnell would lose their jobs "and that the position of minister (Mr. Nowlan) would be in jeopardy" if the program did not come off the air.

H. G. Walker, CBC Ontario director, said he was told also by Mr. Jennings that the heads of Mr. Nowlan and Mr. Bushnell would "roll" if the program were not cancelled by June 22.

Mr. Walker also said that he and Mr. Jennings heard Mr. Bushnell tell President Ouimet by telephone June 23 the decision to cancel the program must be reversed "or stand to lose" if president ought both be removed from their jobs."

This was on the evening before the CBC directors reinstated the program.

Under questioning by Mr. Pickersgill, Mr. Bushnell said he would "prefer not" to answer a query as to how Mr. Jennings got the information that Mr. Nowlan's job was in jeopardy.

The acting president admitted speaking of the possibility of himself and Mr. Ouimet losing their jobs but said he was not cancelled.

He said the reason for this was that in the last six months the CBC had experienced "a tragic series of top management disasters" and he had decided that "we should not lose our heads" certainly heads would roll, and quite properly."

NOWLAN ANSWER

Mr. Bushnell gave no answer to another question — a query whether Revenue Minister Nowlan had "conveyed to me the impression that certain programs had displeased a great many people in the government and elsewhere."

He was asked whether Mr. Nowlan mentioned Preview Commentary as one of the displeasing programs.

"I don't truthfully answer that," Mr. Bushnell replied.

Mr. Nowlan was not present at the committee hearing.

The 27 CBC employees who contributed resignations now have been reinstated.

Three were originally refused to withdraw their resignations until they appeared before the committee, and their evidence was surprising for their jobs today, with no discipline being further actual threats. They are Frank Peers, Hugh Gillis and Bernard Trotter.

Crawford Gordon Quits as Head Of A.V. Roe

TORONTO (CP) — Crawford Gordon, the dynamic, driving executive who headed the meteoric rise of A. V. Roe Canada Ltd., has no place in the Canadian industrial world, has resigned his position as president and general manager.

The resignation removes him also from positions in other companies in the Roe set-up—notably from the chairmanship of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation Ltd., itself described as Canada's greatest industrial complex.

The reason for the resignation given in a press release from the Roe company—is "an irreconcilable difference of opinion over matters of policy."

UNABLE TO AGREE

Mr. Gordon said:

"I sincerely regret this turn of events, but under the circumstances there was no alternative. There was a disagreement which we were unable to resolve.

"My association with A. V. Roe Canada has been most satisfying in that I believe that I have made a contributed and will continue to contribute something of real and lasting value to Canada's industrial progress."

Sir Roy Dobson, chairman of Roe and managing director of its British parent company, in a London Siddely group of Britian—said:

"Words cannot adequately express our regret at this unfortunate turn of events. Crawford Gordon has brought about many of our best personal friends and, I believe, one of the most competent young industrialists Canada has produced."

Gordon's resignation is effective July 31, and in the meantime Mr. Gordon will be on leave of absence. Until a successor is named, Sir Roy will assume his responsibilities.

NO DETAILS GIVEN

No hint was given of the nature of the differences of opinion and it is understood the company regards them as "a private corporate matter."

Mr. Gordon was 36 when he took charge of Roe of Canada in 1951.

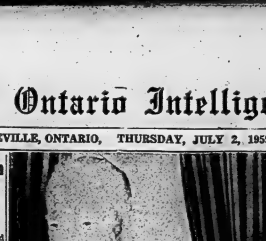
The company, formed in 1945, was already a leading aircraft and missile developer and builder.

Mr. Gordon first led a reorganization of the company's corporate structure, setting it up as a holding company with three subsidiaries — Avro Aircraft Ltd., Orenda Engines Ltd. and Canadian Steel Improvement Ltd., all at Malton.

In 1953 it made its first big step into other fields with purchase of Dominion Steel Co. Ltd.

BOUGHT, SOLD SHARES

In early 1957 it bought 100,000 shares—or about 20 per cent—of Algoma Steel Corporation Ltd., centred at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.



Later in 1957 Roe bought and quired 76-per-cent control of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation Ltd., and subsequently disposed of its Algoma shares.

It proceeded with development of the CF-105 jet interceptor (the Arrow), until the federal government's cancellation of the program early this year gave the company a severe accident blow.

Mr. Gordon—tall, rugged, and native-born son of Winnipeg and a graduate in commerce of Manitoba University.

He served with various government departments 1941-1946; became president of English Electric Company of Canada and executive vice-president of John Inglis Co., and then returned to government service for a period in 1951 before joining Roe.

His immediate plans are not known.

Four Provinces Set Up Royal Scholarships for Visit

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four provinces and at least three Canadian cities have already announced scholarship funds, totalling $900,000, to honor the Queen's visit.

In a letter Tuesday night to Ontario, the first province to announce its scholarship plan, the Queen's private secretary said the Queen "appreciates very much the proposal to set up scholarships in her name."

"She hopes in years to come these scholarships will prove to be of real benefit to their holders," the letter to Ontario's Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay said.

Other provinces to announce their gift scholarships are Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Halifax, Regina and Saskatoon have honored the Queen's visit with similar gifts.

Before her tour began the Queen is understood to have indicated to officials her hope that any gifts to her would be something which would help young Canadians.

Besides the scholarships, the federal government has set up a $1,000,000 fund to aid research into the diseases of children, Newfoundland announced a $100,000-a-year fund for research into the education of mentally retarded children and Quebec set up a $250,000 fund for research into heart diseases.

British Columbia announced a special bonus payment of $1,500,000 to the needy and handicapped to mark the visit and said a further gift would be announced later.

The scholarships and research funds reflect a radical change from the traditionally expensive and often useless gifts given on royal tours. In 1939 the federal government gave—King George VI a pure gold map of Canada.

Ontario has announced a $500,000 Queen Elizabeth II Ontario Scholarship Fund. It will be renewable and is administered by a committee of Ontario universities presidents in any field of learning the committee feels "should receive encouragement."

Alberta's scholarship plan calls for $810,000 annually with awards in seven tentative categories.

Manitoba announced a $100,000 scholarship to be set up this year but details are not specified.

Halifax will give two $500 scholarships to city students, Saskatoon will present two $300 bursaries and Regina will give five $200 bursaries, all for 1959 only.

Union Member Found Guilty In Murder Case

LONDON, Ky. (AP)—A United Mine Workers member was convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment Wednesday night in the fatal shooting of a new-union coal mine operator.

A jury returned a verdict against John Henry Warren, 32, accused of killing Woodrow Smith, 46, at Smith's mine near Stinking Creek.

Smith was the first of three persons killed during the current four-month UMW strike which has made idle thousands of miners in eastern Kentucky.

Queen Overcome By Reception Of Toronto Visit

TORONTO (CP) — "She was quite overcome by it all."

In those words, Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay of Ontario summed up the Queen's reaction to her two-day Toronto visit.

Mr. Mackay was the last person to chat with the Queen and Prince Philip as they took off from Malton airport Tuesday for Ottawa after a busy round of activities climaxed a few minutes before by their attendance at the historic Queen's Plate horse race.

She left behind waving spectator and smiling dignitaries gathered at the airport, a small segment of the estimated 500,000 people who watched her tour through they Ontario capital.

Before the brief, hurried visit to New Woodbine race track, the Queen and Philip stopped off in suburban Etobicoke where they officially opened the new municipal offices of the third-largest municipality in Metropolitan Toronto. Its population is 225,000.

Biggest welcome of the day came from 30,000 persons at the Golden Mile shopping centre in suburban Scarborough where at least 20 persons fainted or suffered minor mishaps in a rush to see the Queen.

After the Queen left for Ottawa, her thanks were conveyed to Premier Frost and the Ontario government for the banquet in her honor Monday night and the scholarship fund named for the visit. She expressed appreciation in a letter for the warm reception she and Prince Philip have received during their Ontario tour to date.

German Immigrant's Letter Claiming Unjust Detention Causing Furore in Montreal

TORONTO (CP) — A German immigrant's letter containing complaints about Montreal police, published in a newspaper and read on a television program, has led to criticism and defence of the CBC program. It also has touched off a police investigation.

In the letter Wilhelm Kraus of Guelph says he and a friend were detained unjustly by police during a visit to Montreal May 31. The letter, published Friday in the Toronto Globe and Mail, was read Wednesday night on the CBC television program Tabloid which originates in Toronto.

Ernest Piesiu, assistant director of Montreal police department, said he is "checking all the circumstances" surrounding Mr. Kraus' complaints and has ordered an investigation.

C. E. Smith, managing director of the Montreal Tourist and Convention Bureau, said "the letter was very derogatory and I don't know if it was necessary to put on that show (Tabloid) at tempted to tell the Montreal police how to verify any facts."

ATTACK ON MONTREAL

"I don't know whether this is an attempt by people in Toronto to besmirch Montreal," he said, "but they certainly succeeded."

Lyal Brown, information director for CBC in Ontario, said Wednesday night: "We are following a double standard for freedom of expression — freedom for newspapers and censorship for the CBC."

The producer on Tabloid had already appeared in at least one Canadian newspaper. He discussed on Tabloid without editorial opinion as an item of human interest. We believe it is important to viewers of Tabloid in Montreal to have given their version of the story before we present the letter."

Mr. Brown said the program was trying to besmirch the good name of Montreal or Toronto.

"They know Tabloid will give them a fair shake and any informed answer regarding the reported experience of Mr. Kraus."

The letter was read on the television program by CBC interviewer John O'Leary.

Mr. O'Leary said he had telephoned Mr. Kraus in Guelph and received permission to read the letter. He made no comment on it and Mr. Kraus did not appear on the show.

In the letter, Mr. Kraus said he had driven his friend to Montreal May 31 to meet the friend's mother who was arriving in Canada for a visit.

ARRESTED ON STROLL

After renting a room and cleaning up they went for a stroll through the port district.

"We were already on our way back to the hotel when we suddenly heard a car stopping behind us. A voice ordered us to put our hands up and face the wall." We first thought we were in Russia so complied. But then saw police officers coming toward us.

Mr. Kraus said they were searched and his friend was kicked in the leg. They could not get a satisfactory answer from the police officers apparently they spoke only French.

A plainclothesman told them to get in a car and drove to Toronto to besmirch Montreal," he said, "but they certainly succeeded."

Lyal Brown, information director for CBC in Ontario, said Wednesday night: "We are following a double standard for freedom of expression — freedom for newspapers and censorship for the CBC."

"They know Tabloid will give them a fair shake and any informed answer regarding the reported experience of Mr. Kraus."

The letter was read on the television program by CBC interviewer John O'Leary.

Mr. O'Leary said he had telephoned Mr. Kraus in Guelph and received permission to read the letter. He made no comment on it and Mr. Kraus did not appear on the show.

In the letter, Mr. Kraus said he had driven his friend to Montreal May 31 to meet the friend's mother who was arriving in Canada for a visit.

ARRESTED ON STROLL

After renting a room and cleaning up they went for a stroll through the port district.

"We were already on our way back to the hotel when we suddenly heard a car stopping behind us. A voice ordered us to put our hands up and face the wall." We first thought we were in Russia so complied. But then saw police officers coming toward us.

Mr. Kraus said they were searched and his friend was kicked in the leg. They could not get a satisfactory answer from the police officers apparently they spoke only French.

A plainclothesman told them to get in a car and drove to Montreal police headquarters. He said the police station on Notre Dame St. they were taken into the accident to the officer in charge but "his only reaction was to grin like a fool" when he heard what had hurt."

Mr. Kraus said they were then taken into custody and put in different cells despite their protests that they had done nothing wrong and that they had to pick up their mother from the boat the next day.

Mr. Kraus said their protests were met with contempt and requests to see the German consul were of no avail. The next afternoon they were released without any explanation or questions.

He said the Montreal police told them that if they didn't like it in Montreal to go back to their country.

Thousands Gather at Ottawa To See Queen and Pageantry

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Except for the capital, the nation was subdued Wednesday as Canada celebrated 92 years of Confederation.

There was pageantry in Ottawa. Thousands gathered near City Hall to see the Queen dedicate the Commonwealth Air Forces Memorial.

Later she presented new colors to three infantry units while Canadian and U.S. tourists jammed Parliament Hill.

Harness racing, baseball games and other holiday attractions drew crowds across the country.

LONDON (CP) — Canada's Dominion Day was celebrated with parties and receptions in many corners of the world.

The annual Dominion Day party here was shifted to high-ceilinged Lancaster House, an impressive setting for a party given by the government for the festive occasion.

Their restraint melted into spontaneous clapping when the Queen Mother, escorted by George Drew, the Canadian high commissioner, accompanied her.

CANADA CLUB SPEAKER

Dr. George Edward Hall, principal and vice-chancellor of the University of Western Ontario, told a dinner of the Canada Club that some of the owners of so-called foreign capital, other than those in the United States, might justifiably take a look at their policies as reflected in the Canadian community."

"Don't sell Canada short, the days of exploitation are over," he added.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported that First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan and other Russian leaders attended a reception in Moscow given by David M. Johnson, Canada's ambassador to Russia.

In Belgrade President Tito, in a message to Governor-General Vincent Massey, expressed his wish for the progress of the Canadian people.

Canadian Capt. Of Grain Carrier Denies Fault

DETROIT (AP)—The captain of the Canadian grain carrier Royalton has denied fault for the Lake Huron collision last Thursday which sank the Liberian freighter Atlas.

Contradicting prior testimony of the Monrovia's Greek skipper, Capt. George B. Albinson said Wednesday he ordered it speed stop or going slightly astern when the ships met."

Albinson said the $1,080,000 were filled in U.S. district court by suits of members of the Monrovia's crew for $1,000,000 injuries in the collision. The suits were filed by Eastern Shipbuilding Company of Liverpool, England, owners of the Monrovia, and by Canada Steamships Ltd. of Port Colborne, owner of the Royalton.

The Monrovia, stove in on one side, sank in about 180 feet of water within 15 minutes of the collision on foggy Lake Huron. Her crew were saved by another freighter.

ACCUSED OF SPEEDING

Capt. Albinson testified before the Coast Guard Board inquiry before which the Monrovia's Capt. Stefanos Svokos, from Athens, has accused the Royalton of excessive speed and failure to answer his signals. Svokos testified Tuesday.

Albinson said that after picking up a target, presumably the Monrovia, on radar, he turned twice to port. He said that upon then hearing the Monrovia's whistle to starboard he turned to port again and checked to slow speed.

He tried to call the other ship on the radio-telephone two or three times but got no answer," Albinson said.

WENT FULL ASTERN

He said he ordered full astern seven minutes before the collision and double full astern three minutes before the boats struck.

The Monrovia's second mate, Adamantios Pappas, 42, of Chois, Greece, also a witness, criticized his own captain.

Pappas said that Capt. Svokos made a "bad decision" in ordering a turn to the right instead of left when they neared a signal from the for-hidden Royalton.

Nikita Adopts Extremely Tough Line in Talk With Harriman Over Berlin Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Two New York newspapers report that Soviet Premier Khrushchev, in an interview with Averell Harriman, adopted an extremely tough line in discussing the Berlin crisis.

"Khrushchev was very rough in his talks with Harriman.

"Khrushchev indicated he is determined to get us out of Berlin if apparently thinks he can because he judges that the world balance of power has shifted in his favor."

ALSO REPORT

The New York Herald Tribune, in a copyright Washington story by Joseph Alsop, said of the interview held last week with the former New York state governor at Khrushchev's office and country villa:

"The crude threats that the Soviet leader indulged in, the brutal tone and unprintable language that he enjoyed are considered to mark a new phase in the world situation.

"The fact that Khrushchev was really speaking, not to former governor Harriman, but through him to President Eisenhower, was made abundantly clear."

The Herald Tribune said:

"In strong language, he (Khrushchev) warned that the Soviet Union would give immediate military support to the East German regime, if the government attempted to assert their established right of access to West Berlin after a peace treaty had acknowledged the territorial severity of the East German government."

Meanwhile, Khrushchev's wife and representative, Deputy Premier Frol Kozlov, engaged in friendly conversation during the banquet with Vice-President Richard Nixon.

The Russian's unexpected jaunt erupted at Nixon's reception for Kozlov Wednesday night at President Eisenhower's guest house. The verbal battle could resume Thursday, when Nixon will be Kozlov's guest at a Soviet Embassy reception.

Kozlov had complained to Eisenhower about the U.S. attitude toward Russia, for example, he said, the United States forces Russia to pay in gold for fuel, relieving food sent to Russia after the Bolsheviks seized power.

Nixon said that only last Monday former president Herbert Hoover, U.S. relief administrator after the First World War, had shown him a letter from the Soviet government expressing thanks for the outright gift which the U.S. Congress had approved. Nixon said the record should be kept straight.

The question is not one to be discussed, it is not disputed," Kozlov finally admitted to Nixon's interpreter. He seemed somewhat shaken but he never lost his smile during the spirited discussion. Neither did Nixon or Herter.

As guests eavesdropped, Nixon told Kozlov he is "a hard man" and the vice-president advised Mrs. Kozlov against asking questions.

And the vice-president advised Mrs. Kozlov against believing reports of widespread differences in the U.S. administration, saying he and Herter spoke as one on foreign policy.

Boer War 'Vet' Dies Wednesday

Born in England, he came to Canada in 1905 after serving 17 years with the Imperial Army in Aden, India and South Africa. He was twice mentioned in despatches during the South African campaign for outstanding action in the battle of Spion Kopje.

He enlisted in 1915 with the 15th Battalion at Collingwood and went overseas. First World War service with that unit. In 1921 his family moved to Collingwood where special recognition when he was appointed to the rank of King's Serjeant-at-Arms by late King George V.

For 25 years Mr. Brooker was a master moulder at Collingwood Shipyards, retiring in 1946.

RUNS AGROUND

QUEBEC (CP)—The 1,000-ton French coaster Marquette has entered shipyards at Lauzon, across the St. Lawrence river from Quebec, after running aground briefly just downriver from the city. The Marquette's captain reported she apparently sprung a leak when she ran aground Tuesday near the island of Orleans. She was able to get off under her own power and headed to the yards for a check. The coaster has been running between lower river ports and the Great Lakes.

White's District

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Jones, Stephen and Debra spent the weekend in Bancroft with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stoneburg.

Mrs. Lawrence Parfoe and her brother, Mr. Earl Meyers of Foxboro, went by plane to Calgary to attend the wedding of their sister, Miss Joan Meyers, to Mr. Mark Shenfield, on Saturday, June 20th. Mrs. Glenn Meyers who flew out a week previous returned with them on Tuesday.

Mrs. Leonard Young accompanied Mr. and Mrs. K. Sadler and Miss Doris Sadler to Algonquin Park, returning by Toronto and Peterborough on Wednesday. They also visited Santa's Village near Bracebridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barr and girls spent last weekend at Maynooth.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Wilson and daughter, of Hamilton, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. George Colten.

Service was held at White's Church with the Rev. Roy Rickard, B.A., speaking on "Canada, and its emblem, the maple leaf". He likened the points on the maple leaf to the church spire, the telescope, the surgeon's knife and the prow of a boat. The stem was individual responsibilities.

Next Sunday will be flower Sunday, when the junior congregation and the junior choir will participate.

Gore

GORE — The ice cream social, under the auspices of Victoria United Church Sunday School, on Tuesday evening, was well attended. The pictures shown by Mr. and Mrs. N. Thompson of Rednersville, of part of their European tour were splendid and much appreciated by those present.

Centre Mission Band, under their leader, Mrs. Floyd Carter, sponsored an ice cream social at Centre Hall on Saturday evening. It, too, was a decided success.

Closing exercises at the schools were featured during the week. Centre pupils and teachers enjoyed a picnic on Thursday. On Friday, Victoria pupils and some of the mothers and ex - pupils enjoyed a pot-luck dinner at the school. This was a farewell gathering for Mrs. Redner following 14 years of faithful services at Victoria. A complimentary address was read and Mrs. Redner was presented with a pin by the pupils in appreciation of her work among them. Mrs. Redner in turn presented each pupil with a remembrance gift.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Redner of Toronto were Tuesday guests of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Fox.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Fox were Sunday callers at the Brickman home.

Mrs. B. Hatfield's many friends are sorry to hear she is a patient in the Belleville hospital.

All were thankful for the fine, quiet rain which fell so generously on this section Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Edgar Matthews held her picnic at Cold Creek school on Thursday, all going to the beach in the afternoon.

Mrs. George Alexander came to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clifford Munroe, by ambulance from Kingston General Hospital, where she had been a patient for some time.

Mr. Jack Taylor is home from Trenton Memorial Hospital, and much improved in health.

MOVE OFFICE

OTTAWA (CP)—The Orillia office of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is to be moved to Barrie. CMHC said the change was to locate offices where National Housing Act operators can be carried out economically without curtailment of services. The Barrie office will be responsible for NHA lending operations in Simcoe, Dufferin and Grey counties and Muskoka district.

Prince Albert Given $70,000 Yearly as Present

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Parliament gave Prince Albert a wedding present of $70,000 a year Wednesday on the eve of his marriage to an Italian princess. The vote kicked up a parliamentary uproar.

The government coalition of Social Christians and Liberal Conservatives cast 114 votes in favor of the annual grant. The Socialists, two Communists and two Social Christians recorded 21 votes against. The Socialists said the constitution makes no provision for such grants.

The unexpected opposition on the eve of Europe's most spectacular royal wedding since Prince Rainier married Grace Kelly in Monaco in 1956 sounded a sour note in a symphony of public acclaim.

Albert, 25, brother of King Baudouin and heir presumptive to the throne, has chosen for his bride the Princess Paola Ruffo di Calabria, a blue-eyed blonde of 21 whose family's title goes back more than 380 years.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT FROM HOUSEHOLD FINANCE
Bigger loans for today's greater needs ...up to $2500

COMPARE HFC SERVICE WITH THAT OF OTHER LENDING INSTITUTIONS...

SURPRISINGLY LOW INTEREST RATES
HFC's charges on loans over $1500 are equivalent to less than 6% per year on 30 and 36 month repayment plans.

NO HIDDEN FEES OR CHARGES
At Household, there are no hidden "extras" on any loan repaid according to schedule. You know—in advance—exactly what you will pay.

LOWER MONTHLY PAYMENTS
Compare the size of HFC payments on bigger loans with what you would be paying elsewhere. HFC's smaller monthly payments fit your budget better.

LIFE INSURANCE ON YOUR LOAN
Low group rate. No medical examination. No age limit.

BANKABLE SECURITY NOT REQUIRED
Unlike many financial institutions, HFC requires no bankable security.

"FASTEST LOAN SERVICE IN CANADA"
Household Finance prides itself on giving the fastest loan service available anywhere in the Dominion.

OFFICES OPEN LATER, LONGER, OFTENER
HFC people work by your clock to serve you better.

SMALLER LOANS, TOO
Whether you borrow $50 ... $100 ... $500 ... or more, you get the same prompt, understanding service that's made HFC Canada's most recommended instalment cash loan company.

ADDITIONAL CASH AVAILABLE
As an HFC customer, you may arrange for extra cash at any time—even though you owe a balance.

INCOME INTERRUPTED? If you can't make a payment, you get helpfulness and understanding. Every day, HFC cheerfully rearranges payments for folks who are temporarily unable to pay on schedule.

BACKED BY 81 YEARS OF EXPERIENCE
Unlike most lending institutions, HFC's only business is making instalment cash loans. That's why HFC is best equipped to serve your immediate wants and needs.

Surprisingly low payments! Take up to 36 months to repay HFC's bigger loans!

Available now! HFC's new bigger loans let you borrow up to $2500 cash and take up to three whole years to repay. This new service is another example of how HFC people understand the needs of modern families.

You'll find the same considerate understanding when you first arrange a loan ... and when you need additional money or time to repay. Understanding—that's the big difference you notice at HFC. No wonder more people borrow at Household Finance each year than from any other company of its kind. It's Canada's largest and most recommended company specializing in making instalment cash loans.

For fast, courteous service on a loan—large or small—phone or visit HFC today. You'll like the warm, friendly atmosphere ... the smoothness and speed of HFC's experienced staff ... the wide choice of sensible repayment plans that fit your budget. You'll wonder why you never came to HFC before.

How much do you need?
Every day HFC makes thousands of loans to help people buy things they need, make home improvements, consolidate bills, pay taxes. See payment table for amount you need. You can choose from a wide variety of loan amounts and repayment plans. For prompt service, phone or drop in at your local HFC office today.

Unsung Syndicated Shows Outdoing Big Network Jobs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody sees Highway Patrol, but nobody writes about it, to paraphrase an old saying about the weather.

And this police action show, one of the most popular, is typical of many others equally unsung. These are syndicated shows that—as opposed to network shows—are sold as a series to individual stations.

Many of these—and there are literally hundreds—are extremely popular with audiences, make lots of money and bring plenty of fame to their producers and stars.

Among the best known are The Silent Service, all about submarine warfare; City Detective, a police series; Sea Hunt a skindiver's adventures; African Patrol, a corps-and-shooters series filmed in Kenya; Sheriff of Cochise, and a raft of other-Cochise, and a raft of others — drama, situation comedy, documentaries, children's shows.

BETTER THE NETWORKS

In many places these quiet little giants often attract larger audiences than the network shows likely to be their local competition.

For instance, in a recent 10-city checkup for variety, a survey gave Highway Patrol a 34 share, more than Garry Moore's Show in one area, Playhouse '90 in another and Desilu Playhouse still another. Sea Hunt in one region did better than Groucho Marx, while 8 pulled more viewers than Pat Boone and Bonanza. Patrol had an edge on Person to Person.

Odds and ends: Jimmy Durante, away from the cameras for three years, will star in an NBC special next season. Milton Berle signed for two of same, will have Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz as guests on one of them. . . .

Person to Person, at first reported cancelled with the defection of Arthur Godfrey as host, will resume on CBS Oct. 2. Meanwhile, everybody in show business, from Jackie Gleason to Eleanor Roosevelt, has been pressed to succeed Godfrey. Reported replacement, Groucho Marx, plans to take back his CBS radio show from pinchhitter Robert Q. Lewis Sept. 28 and Sam Levenson apparently is set permanently in Godfrey's old daily TV morning show spot.

WINNIPEG (CP) — One hundred years after the first steamboat puffed down the Red River to Winnipeg the traffic problem on the waterway is now so bad that the RCMP say it will soon require as much attention as highway traffic.

The steamboats are vanished, but the bustling boom in the last few years has filled the Red and Assiniboine Rivers with pleasure boats during weekends around the junction of the rivers in Winnipeg.

There are hundreds of motor boats, canoes, water craft. Boats and motors of all sizes, water skis and two-man kayaks are in demand.

Water sport fans can even pick up a water bicycle if they want to try something different.

SUPERINTENDENT'S VIEW

RCMP Superintendent Frank Spalding said he feels that the narrow waterway soon will need additional policing.

The Winnipeg Harbor Commission now is responsible for water traffic within the city of Winnipeg, which is only a part of the Greater Winnipeg area through which the rivers run. Corporal William Greenlay heads the RCMP force which must police the remainder of the rivers as well as the entire province of Manitoba and part of Northwestern Ontario.

He has the full-time job of enforcing the Canada Shipping Act, but much of his time is spent in patrolling the Red and the Assiniboine in the Winnipeg area. Last year he made 1,500 checks on boats on the Red River alone—most of them in the metropolitan district.

RCMP records show that the number of boats licensed for Manitoba is increasing by 1,200 or 1,400 each year. This increase counts only boats with motors of 10 horsepower or more.

Winnipeg, almost 60 miles from Lake Winnipeg lies which the Red drains, has a total of 5,900 registered outboards.

The RCMP and the Winnipeg Harbor Commission are directing

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"I did it, may, and I'm sorry, for Sam Jones' sake . . . but I'd call it the same way again."

That's the way the official scorer of the Giants - Dodgers game Tuesday night led off his story about a disputed decision that deprived San Jones of a no-hit, no-run game.

The scorer who made the decision is baseball writer Charlie Park of the Mirror-News.

He ruled that Dodger Junior Gilliam could have beat out an eighth inning bounder to Giant shortstop Andre Rogers' dropped. calling it a single. Jones thought it should have been an error against Rodgers. Manager Bill Rigney, Giant

City Commercial Softball League

Bishop Seeds used a five-run fifth inning to hand the Bobcat Juveniles an 8-4 defeat Tuesday night in a City Commercial softball league game.

Andy Knott and Jack Reid pitched for Bishops, allowing nine hits and fanning three apiece. Knott walked four and Reid a pair.

Sonny Holloway and Lorne Fitzpatrick toiled for the Bobcats, touched for seven hits between them. Holloway fanned four and passed six while Fitzpatrick struck out one and walked one.

Paul Jones and Billy "The Kid" McGuire had a double and single each for the Juveniles. Bob Duggan, Dick Clapp and Stu Muirhead also had two-baggers while John Lewis and Fitzpatrick hit singles.

Mead - Sporismen whitewashed the Texaco Chefs 10-0 behind the one-hit pitching of veteran "Bunk" Young in another Commercial softball tilt Tuesday night.

Young was touched for a single by R. Ray, the third batter in the first inning, for Texaco. After that he was unconscionable, striking out ten batters and walking two.

Don McLean, who arrived just in time to start the game, hurled for Texaco, allowing 13 hits. He whiffed three and walked three.

Mead scored seven runs in the first on as many hits and added three more in the second, scoring in the fourth with three runs.

Bill Muirhead had a brace of doubles while LeRoy McBrien and Ray hit a double and single apiece for the winners. Gary Coupland singled twice, Huck Reeves homered, Russ Vandervoort tripled and Young himself contributed a double. Singles by Warren Snell and Lloyd Worsley brought the total to 13.

Ingemar Named Top Fighter Of the Month

NEW YORK (AP) — Sweden's Ingemar Johansson has been named Ring magazine's "Fighter of the Month" for winning the world heavyweight championship or his third-round knockout of Floyd Patterson.

The Goteborg gunner will be presented with a gold championship belt when he returns to the United States for the first title defence.

Ring editor Nat Fleischer continued to recognize Sugar Ray Robinson as middleweight champion although the National Boxing Association has vacated the title. Ring has Carmen Basilio as No. 1 and Gene Fullmer as No. 2. The two contenders will meet in August for NBA recognition as champion.

Yvon Durelle, Canadian and British empire light heavyweight champion, became leading contender in the 175-pound division.

CUP HERO SIGNS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers have signed the hero of last year's Grey Cup victory but they lost the services of a top-notch American tackle.

Manager Jim Ausley announced Wednesday that quarterback Jim Van Pelt, who scored a record 22 points in Bombers' 35-28 Grey Cup win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats, will be returning for his second year with the WIFU club.

Van Pelt took over when first-stringer Kenny Ploen, WIFU all-star in 1957, was injured. Ploen returned, couldn't beat out Van Pelt, and took over the right half spot.

Mistress of Bluebell Girls Has New Crop for Las Vegas

By BOB THOMAS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Miss Vegas. As Miss Kelly remarked, "you always hear about the fabulous Texas millionaires, but no one ever sees them."

As to behavior, Miss Kelly's instructions are: "You may come and go as you like and have dates—but use discretion."

Miss Bluebell is an attractive, proper Englishwoman named Margaret Kelly, who has been exporting British dancers to the pleasure spots of the world for more than 20 years. She is the mistress of the Bluebell girls, a stunning group of dance precision.

She first brought the troupe to North America a year ago as part of the Lido of Paris show that proved a 12-month sellout at the Stardust. Now she has returned with a new crop of 16 Bluebell girls, plus a dozen models.

"The Bluebell girls do not strip," she informs you firmly.

"The models do — from the waist up. The Bluebells are strictly English, rejects from the ballet schools because they're too tall. The models are mostly French and German; despite the lack reputation of French girls few make the British grade.

MUST RETURN HOME

The ground rules for Bluebell girls are that all must return home after a foreign engagement. Then they may return to the country if they wish.

"The reason is that I feel a responsibility to the parents of the girls," Miss Kelly explained. "Most of the dancers are around the 20-year bracket, and it's often their first time away from home."

Four girls once returned to Brazil after a date there, but nine plans to come back to Las

Fast-Draw Clubs Stress Safety

The effects of "westerns" — motion-picture and TV varieties — are serving up to the rapidly growing sport known, generally, as the fast draw. Briefly, this means the demonstration of the speed and dexterity of an individual as evidenced by the speed with which he or she can draw a hand gun from its holster, cock it, and fire it at a target.

You have seen the TV shows wherein the outlaw or "bad guy" meets the sheriff or a citizen or a customer for the concern for the lightning-speed of the sheriff, marshal or pro "gun slinger" in bringing his Colt 45 into conclusive action. That is what the members of the "Fast-Draw Clubs" are endeavoring to emulate.

Too many people — and this includes children, teen-agers and adults — seem to forget that a hand gun is not a toy. Safe practice and demonstrate, so help me, with guns loaded with live ammunition. The result is what might be expected — an appalling increase in the number of shooting accidents throughout our country.

In California, a 19-year-old was shot in the right thigh when the gun "fired as he drew it from the holster." a bullet went through the calf of the leg and into the shin of a 20-year-old when "the gun went off with a roar as he tugged at the butt"; the leg bone of a 31-year-old was shattered when the "revolver caught in the holster and discharged"; a 20-year-old was the victim of a 31-year-old "discharged while in his holster" in Nevada, a 50-year-old shot himself in the foot "clearing leather."

A man was killed, and others fatally, situation arises when another person is involved. In California, an 18-year-old shot his 17-year-old friend in the face as he showed "how far fast he could draw and cock his .38 caliber pistol"; a man and his 36-year-old wife lost "practicing how fast he could draw." In Oregon, a 18-year-old was wounded during a quick-draw shooting contest with an "unloaded gun." In Colorado, a 23-year-old shot and killed his best friend in a playful fast-draw contest when "he forgot the gun was loaded." In Alabama, a 16-year-old was shot and killed instantly by his brother who was demonstrating his fast-draw. In Pennsylvania, a 16-year-old shot and killed his 12-year-old brother in a "cowboy quick-draw contest." In Illinois, a 29-year-old father of 2 children killed his 16-month-old son who toddled in front of him while he was practicing fast draws from the hip."

GUNS NOT TOYS

One saving grace in this recital is the fact that not one accident so far has been caused by a qualified sportsman, one who knows guns and has been schooled in the use of them. These men know that guns are not toys. They have been trained never to point a gun at anything or anybody unless they wish to kill the pointee. Thus, no accidents.

Just the same, all too often the voice of the uninformed is raised in that familiar cry, "There ought to be a law." The increasing accident rate gives the proponents of measures to prevent ownership of guns new grist for their legislative mills. The answer to this new sportsmen's problem is, of course, a simple one.

The members of the fast-draw clubs must limit their ammunition to wax bullets or merely permission to shoot still would be the use of such hand guns as the Hahn "45" which is, gas operated. The report of this carbon dioxide charge is sufficient to actuate an electric timer. Moreover, the gun itself is an exact duplication of the old Frontier "45" — weight, balance, design, everything.

What the promulgators of the proposals for gun legislation don't seem to realize is the sad but inescapable truth that you can't legislate common sense into people. New gun legislation serves only one purpose — to make it more difficult for honest law-abiding citizens to secure and own guns. Such new laws will cure no ills and accomplish nothing in public safety.

Safety with firearms can be accomplished only in the way it is now being done — through patient and careful instruction in the safe handling of firearms, the teaching being done by qualified individuals and groups; and, equally important, by repeated publication of the rules of gun handling in the public print. It is to be most devoutly hoped that the fast-draw cults will fall in line and go along with the good work that has been and is being done by the sportsmen's groups and the outdoor writers of the nation.

Down in the Florida Keys last winter we ran across a new way new to us, at least — to use two strands of leader material together. Of course, the ordinary usage we employ the barrel knot for blood knots. That is the old tried-and-true knot that is used by the professional tyers when they turn out leaders for the market.

Now and then, however, it seems expedient to tie together two leader strands with widely divergent diameters, say 6X or even 8X plaity. If you have tried doing this job with a barrel know, you know that you encounter difficulties.

The knot is an easy one. Simply lay the ends of the two strands side by side, the ends facing each other, not pointing the same direction. Then make a rather large loop with the overlapped ends and pull the free ends through the loop twice, so that you have actually a double half hitch. Pull it snug, clip off the loose ends, and there you are. We have used this knot many times and have yet to have it slip.

Harness Racing

STRATHROY (CP) — Major Henley, owned and driven by Bob Chatham, scored a neck victory over pace here Wednesday sweeping both heats of the feature Blakes Beer two-year-olds at the roy Dominion Day harness race meet.

Major Henley also stepped the fastest mile of the day in the first heat of the invitation race which carried a purse of $1,500. The Cayuga horse went the distance in 2:09 1-5. The second heat was marred by rain and the time was 2:12.

Carol H. Gratton, owned by Hackney Brothers Stables of Chatham, was second to Major Henley in both heats. Jerry Lee, owned by Mrs. Gledge of Godrich, placed third in the second heat and fourth in the first.

HULL, Que. (CP) — Mary Tulas, a four-year-old bay mare owned by Gilbert Stiles of Aylmer, Wednesday night won the seventh race at Connaught Park. Owned and driven by Orval Stone of Petrolia, she ran first and second in her only other start this year.

The Peterborough horse Ann Scheff won the fifth, a mile pace, with Stan McMillan driving. Time was 2:23 and the horse paid $23.30, $11.20 and $6.70.

Stan Musial On National All-Star Team

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National League team for the all-star game in Pittsburgh July 7 has been completed—and it includes that grand veteran of such contests, Stan Musial.

For the first time in many years Musial was left out of the starting lineup by the National League managers, who selected it by vote. The players didn't even have Musial among their second choices.

But Fred Haney of the Milwaukee club, who chose the other 17 members of the club, saw to it that Stan the Man will be on the squad for the game against the American League team for the 18th year.

In that time, the St. Louis veteran went to bat 54 times, and made 17 hits for a total of 34 bases. He also hit five homers. Each of those figures represent records in all-star competition.

PITCHING STAFF

Haney's pitching staff will consist of Johnny Antonelli, San Francisco; Lew Burdette, Milwaukee; Gene Conley, Philadelphia; Don Drysdale, Los Angeles; Roy Face, Pittsburgh; Willard Hunter, St. Louis and Warren Spahn, Milwaukee.

The starting lineup, as chosen by the players, with the exception of the pitcher — was announced last Sunday as follows:

Orlando Cepeda, San Francisco, 1B; Johnny Temple, Cincinnati, 2B; Ernie Banks, Chicago, SS; Ed Mathews, Milwaukee, 3B; Del Crandall, Milwaukee, C; Wally Moon, Los Angeles, LF; Willie Mays, San Francisco, CF, and Hank Aaron, Milwaukee, RF.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Grey Mist arch set a track record of 1:49 2-5 for a mile and one-eighth in winning the $28,900 Dominion Day Handicap at New Woodbine Wednesday only to be disqualified. The race was run in 1:50 flat.

The stewards, after viewing the film patrol pictures, ruled that Grey Monarch, ridden by Avelino Gomez, had interfered with Bismayne [illegible] two furlongs from the finish.

The foul claim was lodged by Hugo Dittfach, who rode Bismayne. Grey Monarch became second. Grand Canyon was third.

ARREST JOCKEY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jockey Ismael Valenzuela was arrested after a trotter he [illegible] was charged with misdemeanor drunk driving. Racing stewards will hold a hearing after his trial today. They may suspend him.

Gotham Bookies Unconvinced Make Patterson 7-5 Choice

By MURRAY ROSE

The bookies have made the fire-haired blitzed Patterson a 7-5 choice over the Gothenburg gunner.

In setting this early line, the bookies have displayed a lot more boldness than a lot of still smarting, red - faced "experts"—especially this writer.

But on the basis of the information I had and what I had and what I had seen, I feel my pick was justified. I predicted it would be an explosive, bloody battle, I said there was a possibility that Patterson might get stopped but the story could be different. But I said I didn't think it would happen.

MUCH COMPANY

I had plenty of company, too. Of the AP poll of the "experts" 63 of 69 picked Patterson, mostly by a knockout. Four of the seven Sweden writers polled picked Patterson. And practically all of the radio-TV banquion in pro action.

I think I was the only American correspondent to cover the entire boxing tournament at Helsinki in 1952. I saw Johansson win three decisions and then get disqualified for running and not fighting in the final against the late Eddie Sanders of California.

Anyone who saw the handicapped Swede get through his backadaisical workouts in preparing for Patterson had to be influenced by what he saw.

BC All-Stars Defeat Peru Soccer Club

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia all-stars took a second-half lead over touring Independent Club of Lima, Peru and then held on desperately Wednesday for a thrilling 3-2 conquest. Peru victory here before 5,500 fans.

The goal claim was lodged by Hugo Dittfach, who rode Bismayne. Grey Monarch became second. Grand Canyon was third.

Canadian Boat Qualifies for Speed Regatta

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's Gale VI and Canada's Miss Supertest II hit speeds of around 100 miles an hour Wednesday in qualifying the qualifiers for the Detroit Memorial Regatta on the Detroit River July 4.

Gale VI, piloted by Fred Alter, averaged 102.827 m.p.h. Miss Supertest III with Bob Hayward of London, Ont., at the controls, did 4, when he was sent to Cleveland in exchange for outfielder Jim Bilger and cash. Jones, 23, batted .271 last year, but 14 homers and drove in 60 runs. He led the National League in fielding in 1953, 1954, 1955, 1956 and 1958. He was struck on the arm by

Jock Thrilled At Meeting The Queen

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Bobby Ussery, who won the Queen's Plate aboard New Providence, met Woodbine and then shook hands with the Queen, received congratulations from fellow riders upon his return to Belmont Park.

Careful now, this is the hand that shook the hand of the Queen of England," Ussery said. "So, take it easy, don't rub that royalty off."

Asked what he said when he met the Queen in the winner's circle, Ussery replied:

"Well, she congratulated me and asked me if New Providence was going easy. And she asked me if I was from the States. And then I said something about the weather."

Ussery also met Prince Philip.

"He asked me about the other rider and I started to tell him about Arcaro. But I meant Longden."

Eddie Arcaro was prevented from riding in the race because of injuries suffered while riding Nashua in training, because he is under a 10-day suspension.

GET VETERAN BASEMAN

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds have obtained veteran third baseman Willie Jones from Cleveland Indians. Jones was a Philadelphia Phillies' regular third sacker from 1949 until June 15 this year. He batted .271 last year, hit 14 homers and drove in 60 runs. He led the National League in fielding in 1953, 1954, 1955, 1956 and 1958.

Pointers Unleash 20-Hit Barrage In 14-2 Rout of Trenton Garretts

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Point Anne Cementmen unleashed a vicious 20-hit attack in Trenton Tuesday night to down Trenton Garretts 14-2 and turn the Belleville and District softball league pennant race into a three-team affair.

It was the slow-starting Oppointers' third consecutive victory and gives them a second and five record for third place. Cobourg is second with six and three while Bobcats are first in with seven and three. Bobcats are at the Point tonight and play host to Cobourg at CNRA tomorrow evening.

Trenton got off to a bad start Tuesday night when they committed six errors in the first frame. This put two walks and two singles through the centre by Kingston Green. Batchelor and Carkner, gave the Cementmen a 6-0 lead. They kept up their attack throughout, led by Pete Attack throughout, led by Pete Kraa from fellow riders upon his return to Belmont Park.

Careful now, this is the hand that shook the hand of the Queen of England," Ussery said. "So, take it easy, don't rub that royalty off."

Asked what he said when he met the Queen in the winner's circle, Ussery replied:

"Well, she congratulated me and asked me if New Providence was going easy. And she asked me if I was from the States. And then I said something about the weather."

Ussery also met Prince Philip.

He batted .271 last year, hit 14 homers and drove in 60 runs. He led the National League in fielding in 1953, 1954, 1955, 1956 and 1958.

Trenton added one more run in the fourth and three each in the final two frames.

Trenton scored once in the fourth on solid hits knocked by Mitts, Ron Wannamaker and Ralph Defoe. They netted the second in the seventh on a free pass, Drake's single off a close-in Kingston and an error.

That was about all for them as Al Carkner came up with a six hitter for his fourth victory. He set four down on strikes, walked four and had Kingston at his best with men on the paths.

Pete Green had a terrific night at the plate, smashing a single, double and triple and empty in the eighth after having doubled once and singled twice in earlier trips. Carkner served double duty by hammering three hits while Jack Elliott, Johnny Batchelor doubled once and singled twice. Jack Elliott Jr. had a trio of hits. Dean Hull two doubles, Chuck Kingston and Gary Goyer one hit apiece and Dave Jones a two-bagger.

Doug Alexander doubled for Trenton while the other safeties were spread among Roger Drake, Guy Austin, Billy Mitts, Ron Wannamaker and Ralph Defoe.

Howard Cole was the losing groundsman, going three and a third frames, allowing ten hits, fanning one and passing four. He was struck on the arm by

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Forty per cent of the sportswise questions asked this department within the past two or three weeks is "Will the Yankees and Braves repeat for the world series?"

The remaining sixty per cent of the person-to-person question is "Is Belleville going to have a senior hockey club next season?"

Shifting at a straw in the wind and not having the slightest reason for so saying, we told the first "forty" that Belleville would have a club. Strangely they did not press the matter. Their faces lit up with a smile and emitted "Good."

So we decided on a different tack with the remaining "twenty." To their question—and we had no reason for so saying — we answered "No." They fared a bit in some cases, in others acted quietly, but the answer was the same, "Why not?"

As for the Yankees-Braves hassling again in the world series, we told one of our best sports fraternity friends that there might be a possibility of a 1958 repetition. He merely grinned and said, "After your prediction of the Patterson-Johansson scrap I think I'll go bet on the Indians and the Dodgers or Giants hooking up in the fall baseball classic.

Regarding the city having senior "A" hockey representation next winter, one thing is clear. A decision has to be reached by July 7 when the Eastern Ontario senior league convenes in Hull, Quebec, where entries will be finalized.

July 7 is but a few days away. "To be or not to be" is the question which must have an answer by that date. Otherwise, and this was the decision handed down by the Whitby and Ottawa-Hull managements at the Whitby meeting, "It must be a five-team league or we will not enter."

That was the ultimatum handed down to the rest of the league by Whitby's Wren Blair and then Ottawa-Hull's Sammy Pollock. In fact Pollock withdrew his club on the spot pending re-entry only if the league was a five-team affair.

There was another proviso, too. That was if Kingston which was to spend $2,200 in pool dues, paid up its deficit by July 7. Nearly half of this amount is owing to Belleville.

In fact from here it looks as though the survival of the Eastern senior league hinges on whether Belleville will leave an entry. We have in an excellent authority that the Kingston club has been battling desperately trying to raise the funds necessary to pay its pool deficit.

The grapevine has it that Whitby has been flirting with the western Ontario OHA circuit. Another shot from the wide wide Ottawa-Hull has been making eyes—or vice-versas at the northern senior loop.

Meanwhile the western OHA has convened meetings with a view to inducing senior "B" clubs to make the jump to "A" rating. Only a day or so ago news dispatches from the north stated plans were in the making for the merging of the NOHA and the far northern league which includes South Porcupine, Kapuskasing and such squads. No mention was made of Whitby or Hull in either of the despatches.

From the Quebec Hockey League annual meeting came the story that inquiries had been received from Ottawa Hull, Kingston and Cornwall, but Cornwall would not be considered because of lack of certain arena facilities.

The situation here at home is this, or the way we understand it. A certain person or persons have made inquiries of the city regarding the obtaining of the arena for the purpose of operating a senior "A" hockey club.

The city has replied with a rental a/c and a percentage basis proposition—and there the matter rests at the moment. At this writing no word had been received in reply to the city's proposal by the person or persons interested.

One thing is sure. A decision must be reached by, or before July 7. This department covered that meeting in Whitby and we do not think for one moment Blair and Pollock were in jocular mood when they said they would not operate in less than a five-team league. They meant what they said.

So it looks very much like the survival or demise of the Eastern Ontario senior league hinges on what Belleville does on July 7.

The latest fuel on the hockey fire was tossed today when a radio character from Sudbury, the home of the' hockey crystal ball, announced "a very reliable source" told him a new professional league was in the making, involving in the new loop were Sudbury, Kingston, Ottawa-Hull, Sault Ste. Marie, Trois Rivieres Lions and Montreal Royals with the Quebec Aces possible starters.

He added that a definite announcement will be made in the next week or two as officials of the teams involved meet probably in Ottawa.

We'll take that with a grain of salt until something definite comes out of it. But it could be a new pasture field for Kingston and Ottawa should the Eastern League fold.

Indians, Chicago Split Pair And Bombers Hop Into Third; Gene Conley Blanks Pirates

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

If somebody's going to grab the American League pennant from those New York Yankees, the rest of the clubs better stop squabbling over who is to do it.

Take Cleveland and Chicago, the two most likely to succeed. The White Sox dropped the Yankees to fifth last Sunday with a three - game punch. But while they scuffled through two games with the Indians, the Yankees jumped back to third.

The second - place White Sox split the series at Cleveland with a 6-5 victory Wednesday night, cutting the Indians' first place edge to one game. More important, it also trimmed Cleveland's lead to three games while the Yankees, who beat Baltimore 4-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Ralph Terry.

TIGERS, SENATORS WIN

Detroit, the percentage point shy of New York, beat Kansas City 5-4 and Washington nipped Boston 4-3.

The White Sox won on Jim Landis' ninth-inning sacrifice fly and a clutch relief job from Turk Lown. Woody Held's run - scoring single, his 15th, chased Gerry Staley, second Sox pitcher, in the ninth, but Lown then saved it for starter Barry Latman (2-2).

The White Sox, behind 11-6, had taken a 3-2 lead against loser Jim Grant (3-4) when Luis Aparicio hit a two-run triple in the second and came home on Jim Rivera's single. Early Torgeson homered for the Sox.

ONLY ONE WALK

Latman (2-3) walked only one and struck out six for his victory over Cleveland.

Norm Siebern and Gil Mc-Dougald homered for the Yankees, who had eight hits. Siebern's 10th game in the second inning, his first for Boston (5-5) then blanked the champs on one hit until three successive singles made it 2-0 in the seventh.

The Tigers beat Ned Garver (6-6) with a four - run seventh. Eddie Yost's single broke a 1-1 tie, and a double by Harvey Kuenn and singles by Charlie Maxwell and Gus Zernial put it away with Lou Sleater (5-5) reliever Johnny Kucks, Paul Foytack (7-7) allowed only two hits until the ninth, then needed Ray Narleski's save after Ken Hladky and Bob Orv homered for three runs. Niel Chrisley homered for Detroit.

Right-hander Camilo Pascual had Boston blanked on two hits with two out in the ninth. Then singles by Vic Wertz and Frank Malzone unleashed an error for an' unearned run, leaving him with a four-hitter and a (7-7) record. Reliever Jerry Casale (6-6) was the loser.

RELEASE PITCHER

TORONTO (CP)—Pitcher Rudy Minarcin, plagued by shoulder trouble this season, has been given his outright release by Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League. The big right-hander, purchased by Leafs a year ago for a reported $12,500, appeared in only six games and had a 1-0 record.

American League All-Star Team Is Announced

BOSTON (AP)—The American League announced its all - star squad today and the name of Ted Williams was on the roster—for the 15th time.

Williams, now in the elder batsman stage of his illustrious and sometimes controversial career, was not selected by his fellow players on the basis of performance.

But Casey Stengel, who will manage the team, said through Joe Cronin, league president:

"If you hadda look down the bench for someone to hit for, who'd ya like t'have?"

Williams, although oldest in the 1957 and 1958 all-star games, has compiled a .317 average in the 14 years he played on the American League team. He has left four homers and driven in a dozen runs.

He will replace Jim Lemon of Washington in the second line outfield which also includes Mickey Mantle of New York and Harvey Kuenn of Detroit.

Stengel made one other change. He named Gil McDougald of the Yankees as an infielder in place of Rocky Bridges, runner-up for shortstop.

As pitchers, the manager's selections by Stengel selected Jim Bunning of Detroit Tigers, Bud Daley of Kansas City Athletics, Ryne Duren and Whitey Ford of the Yankees, Billy Pierce and Early Wynn of Chicago White Sox, and Hoyt Wilhelm of Baltimore Orioles.

Wynn and Pierce were named for the sixth time, Ford for the fifth time and it is the second time for Bunning and Duren.

PLAYERS' VOICE

The team selected by the players has Bill Skowron of the Yankees at first, Nellie Fox and Luis Aparicio of the White Sox at second and short, Washington's Harmon Killebrew at third, and Rocky Colavito and Minnie Minoso of Cleveland and Al Kaline of the Tigers in the outfield, Gus Triandos of the Orioles as catcher.

Stengel added Yogi Berra of the Yankees and Sherm Lollar of the White Sox as catchers. This will be Yogi's 18th year and Lollar's sixth.

In addition to McDougald, Stengel added as infield Frank Malzone and Pete Runnels of the Boston Red Sox, Reno Bertoia of Detroit Tigers, and Roy Sievers of Washington Senators.

Minor Soccer

Boys interested in minor soccer are requested to call at the office of the Recreation Committee at the Pinnacle Street, and fill in the prescribed forms.

Boys up to 14 years should fill in the forms by Saturday, July 4 while the deadline for youngsters 15 to 19 is April 1st.

PERFECT GAME

TORONTO (CP)—Gord Roche, 21, realized a pitcher's dream early in life Wednesday when he hurled a perfect game in a Parkdale Lions Little League baseball game.

He retired 18 in order in the six-inning game, getting 12 on strikes. Not one ball was hit to the outfield. His team won 5-0.

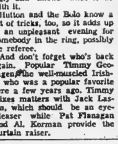
South American Has Eyes on British Open

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP)—Antonio Cerda, a powerful Argentinian, has one big ambition—to become the first South American to win the British Open golf championship.

"And I think this is going to be my year," he said today as he started the second round of the 36-hole championship only one stroke behind the leaders.



"This is my 11th try. I was in eighth place or better from 1951 to 1956. In 1953, I was runner up to Max Faulkner (England). The golf course for this year's championship—Muirfield—is one I like.

"You need to control all your shots. And that's the way I play."

Cerda shot a 73-36—69 Wednesday to finish one stroke behind leaders Fred Bullock and Arnold Stickley; two little known English professionals, who led the field of 90 with 68s.

Bullock, who rarely plays in tournaments, had birdie twos on the fourth, seventh and 13th holes while Stickley hit a hot putting streak on the last nine and sank a 14-footer at the 480-yard 10th hole for an eagle 3.

The Muirfield links vary from easy to tough—according to the wind. Defending champion Peter Thomson of Australia, trying for his fifth title in six years, run into the wind and rain and had to settle for a 76. Another four-time champion, veteran Bobby Locke of South Africa, had a 73.

Rain Cancels Read, Juniors Ball Game

By PETER CARVER

The South Hastings Baseball League game between Belleville Juniors and Read scheduled for the CNRA Park last night, was postponed after four innings of play because of rain.

The Juniors were leading 2-0 at the end of the fourth when the officials decided to call the pastime off.

Gordie St. Louis and Masters of Read were hooked up in a tight mound duel with Masters giving up but one hit in four, while St. Louis yielded a pair.

Earlier in the day the Cuffery Nokes youngsters defeated the Lindsay Juniors 6-1 in an exhibition tilt.

'New Providence' Wins Plate In Colorful Royal Setting

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's modern-day king of breeders and the hottest jockey in the United States teamed up Tuesday to capture the $50,000 added Queen's Plate and the Queen watched with the excited interest of an expert.

And not to be forgotten in this the classic's 100th running, was New Providence, an unpredicted able son of Bull Page and Fair Colleen, who drove to a 1½-length victory over Major Flight and another nose over Winning Shot. The rest of the bulky 20-horse field was spread out as far back as 29 lengths.

New Providence was close to the pace in the early going and opened up a commanding lead leaving the back stretch. He gave Taylor and Ussery the jitters because, they say, he gets lonely in a hot and wants to pull up.

FIFTH WIN

But the three-year-old three off a stretch drive by his challenges and won in the respectable time of 2:04 4-5. It was Taylor's fifth plate triumph since Epic won the event in 1945.

Taylor picked up $51,825 of the gross $77,300 purse, gold coin with the equivalent of 50 guineas, and the Jockey Club gold cup worth $3,000.

Taylor seemed more excited about meeting the Queen than winning the race.

Interviewed after the event, he said:

"The Queen is a truly amazing person. I can't remember what she said to me but I believe it was something to the effect that she had a very enjoyable day. Of course, this has been a very satisfactory day for me too. The Queen showed a keen interest in good lines and racing on this continent."

SMALL CROWD

A disappointing crowd of 19,846 —many couldn't make it because it was a working day—were on hand as the Queen and Philip arrived at the New Woodbine track, 25 miles northwest of downtown Toronto.

In a brief ceremony after the race the Queen presented Taylor with the guineas and Mrs. Taylor with the cup.

The race won't go down as one of the greatest classics. But it went off well considering the size of the field, second largest in plate history.

The only thing close to a pile-up came at the first turn when Sea Page, an entry with New Providence, hit the rail, bounced off and struck Major Flight, owned by Conn Smythe of Toronto. Major Flight in turn banged into Pipe Handy, owned by Miss Vere Armstrong of Toronto. New Providence swung wide and lost about four lengths.

"That proved the colt was a good horse," Taylor said. "He deserved to win."

FAVORITE DISAPPOINTS

Winning Shot, in the stable of John S. Evans of Toronto, was the big disappointment. He was no heavily backed that he opened 11-4.

Leafs Grab Holiday Pair, Out of Cellar

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs celebrated Dominion Day with a double victory over Richmond and escaped from the International League cellar for the first time in over a week.

The Leafs' 5-1 and 4-3 victories before a home-town crowd of 6,325 left them only a half-game out of sixth-place Buffalo. A double loss cost the Virginians second place where they were replaced by Rochester.

Columbus took Toronto's place in the cellar by splitting with Montreal, winning the first 5-3 and losing the nightcap 2-0.

TWO-HITTER FOR NEGRAY

Ron Negray gave the Vees only two hits—one Frank Lajoy's ninth home run—in the opener as he upped his record to 9-7. Joe Ausanmas' double accounted for two Toronto runs, and Bob Wilson drove in another pair with a single. All came off loser Zack Monroe (4-4).

Don Johnson (4-9) got his first victory since May 28 in the nightcap, with Pat Scantlebury's one inning of relief help. The Leafs put it away in the fourth inning on Joe Altobelli's single, Jim King's triple, and Ron Henry's single. Ed Dick (5-4) lost.

Rene Valdes allowed Columbus just two hits in the nightcap after the Jets had scored four runs in the ninth inning to beat Tom Lasorda (9-4) in the opener.

BURGES BRIGHT SPOT

Tim Burgess had both Columbus slugging Valdes didn't argue a walk and struck out three. Bob Lennon (14th home) in the second and Clyde Parris' RBI single following two walks in the fourth gave Montreal runs. Joe Gibbon (7-6) was the loser.

Burgess' 18th home in the top of the ninth with two on brought Columbus and Canadian - born Dick Lines (7-6) the opening-game victory. Clyde Parris' 17th homer had given Montreal a 3-1 lead in the second inning.

Tuesday, Richmond 6 w n ed Toronto 4-2, the identical score by which Montreal defeated Columbus and Buffalo stopped Havana. Miami topped Rochester 4-3.

Horse-Loving Queen, Prince Were In Glory at Woodbine

By JACK VAN DUSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)— There was a silver trumpet flown from England, plumed silver helmets bobbing on blue-coated horsemen, red carpets, cheers and a royal hour with real-life royalty.

The setting was the 100th running of the Queen's Plate, the oldest continually-run horse race in North America.

Queen Elizabeth, lover of horses, was in her glory. Prince Philip, a polo player of renown, looked happy and pleased.

They were at home, relaxed although harried by time.

They arrived late at New Woodbine and there was an air of urgency. They had to catch a plane to Ottawa to continue their cross-Canada tour.

QUEEN LOOKS TIRED

"She looks tired," murmured one spectator as the Queen and Philip walked towards the red, white and blue royal box.

"Atta boy," shouted another at Philip.

Although the Queen at times looked preoccupied, she smiled and chatted brightly with E. P. Taylor, the Toronto sportsman whose horse New Providence later won the race.

Prince Philip chatted with Mrs. Taylor, co-owner with her husband of some of his racing enterprises.

COLOR GALORE

The cerise pink silk coat of the Queen's stood out brightly against the dark grey of the tops of orgazma petals could be seen bobbing behind the rail of the royal box. Philip wore a grey top hat, tails and top hat.

Highlight of the visit was the display by Toronto's Governor-General's Horse Guard. The military unit bedecked in uniforms similar to the Royal Household Guard pranced about on skittish horses borrowed from private owners and police departments.

The guard, the oldest regiment in Canada, paraded the lanudau in which the Queen and Prince arrived. A few of the 61 officers and men had trouble with their horses. The Queen and Philip walked over a red carpet across the track of the $12,000,000 layout to present the guineas to Mr. Taylor, who is also president of the Jockey Club.

Juniors Whip Lindsay Juves By 6-1 Score

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Juniors got strong pitching efforts from Bill Latchford and Glen Dainard at the CNRA Park yesterday afternoon to defeat the Lindsay Juvenilles 6-1 in a seven-inning exhibition tilt.

Neither club managed much work with the sticks as errors contributed the total hits for 6. Both coaches took advantage of the exhibition to send all of their players into the fray at one time or another with Lindsay employing 14 players and Belleville one less.

The Hoakes-Morris nine took a 4-0 lead in the second frame and added singletons in the next two. The visitors plated their lone tally in the sixth.

Billy Latchford buried first ball for the winners over the first four innings. He gave up only a scratch single in his last inning worked, striking out five and walking none. Glen Dainard was just as effective in the last three frames, also giving up a scratch safety, whiffing six and passing one.

Ed Birchard, working a slow curve and a big drop, toiled the first three innings for Lindsay with Richard Grenzie finishing up. Each gave up two hits, Birchard also walked three and walked five while Grenzie had a three and two mark.

The only errors at short with one out in the second cost Lindsay four runs. Birchard walked the batter, then to force in the game's initial run. Duffy Follwell followed with a sharp single to left, the game's first hit, to drive in another pair. Jim Lloyd stole home to make it 4-0.

Another free pass and Mavety's long single to left centre scored a third-frame Belleville marker. Lloyd's single hit, Follwell's sacrifice and an error on the same play made it 6-0.

Belleville lost the shutout bid through no fault of Dainard's in the sixth. Parson's bouncer to second went for an infield single and three errors sent the lone Lindsay run home a short while later.

Lindsay—Jackett, Ashmore, Pearson, Grenzie, Purdy, Birchard, Joyce, McLeash, Wardlaw, Perrin, Presley, Packer, Dawe, Hattrup.

Edmonton Eskys Start Training

The well-liked head coach, who took over only last month after Sam Lyle's surprise resignation, expects to have about 30 players in camp within a week to play their first exhibition July 18 against Calgary Stampeders, an other Western Interprovincial Football Union club.

Three import imports, three new Canadians and seven juniors also will attend camp along with 12 returning imports and 11 returning Canadians. Fullback Normie Kwong and half Oscar Kruger, the only handouts, are expected to sign soon.

TO COACH OTTAWA

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP)—Vito Ragazzo, an assistant football coach at Virginia Military Institute, resigned effective Monday to accept a similar position with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four.

Starry Young Aussie Meets Olmedo for Singles Crown

By RONALD THOMSON

WIMBLEDON Eng. (AP)—Rod Laver, the red-haired sculpnay from down under, was within one step of the peak of the Wimbledon tennis world today after clouting a glorious, unseeded path to the finals of the men's singles championship.

A shy youngster despite his fearsome nickname of Rocket Laver did it with the help of a wristy forehand that finally unsettled America's Barry Mackay in an epic, 87-game semi-final on the centre court.

TO MEET OLMEDO

Laver will meet Alex Olmedo, the favorite from Peru, in the finals Friday, with today's spotlighting to be women's singles semi-finals. In one match American Darlene Hard meets Sandra Reynolds of South Africa and in the other American Sally Moore plays Brazil's Maria Bueno.

The five-foot, eight-inch Aussie took 3½ hours of thrills and spills to defeat the 6-4 Mackay 11-13, 11-9, 10-8, 7-5, 6-3.

Mackay served 25 double-faults in all, a half-dozen in the fifth set when every misplaced shot put him a step near elimination.

Olmedo reached the finals by blasting another Aussie, Roy Emerson, 6-4, 6-0, 6-4. Olmedo, a descendant of the Incas, hardly had a workout against Emerson, a 22-year-old Queenslander from Brisbane. The match lasted exactly an hour.

The Rev. J. Robinson baptized of the infant son, Paul and Mrs. Vincent Pascoe during the morning service on Sunday, June 21. For the children's address, He administered, at the same service, the rite of baptism on the infant daughter: of Mr. and Mrs. Don Macfarlane, (Beatrice Louise).

The Rev. J. P. Robinson conducted his first Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at Melrose Church on Sunday, June 28th. Dealing with this in his evening sermon, having concluded two years' faithful service on the Bloomfield charge.

At this service the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jones received the rite of baptism. A large attendance partook of the Sacrament. Grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Badgley, now of Napanee, and the latter's sister, Mrs. W. W. McCabe, were present.

Flowers were sent to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Macfarlane on the arrival of a baby girl, at the Belleville Hospital, Monday, June 29th.

Miss Beatrice Macfarlane, O.S.D., Belleville, is holidaying with relatives here.

Mrs. Ed Lazier was hostess to the W.I. for their June meeting on June 25th.

GOOD WISHES

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada got good wishes from the Soviet Union on the occasion of Dominion Day. A Soviet Embassy telegram from Premier Nikita Khrushchev to Prime Minister Diefenbaker said: "On the occasion of Dominion Day, the National Holiday of Canada, I send you, Mr. Prime Minister, and the Canadian people, congratulations and best wishes from the Soviet people and from me personally."

MORTGAGE LOANS — NOTICE

MADOC

District Orange Lodge, Locals Attend Service

MADOC — District Orange Lodge No. 2 and the local Madoc Lodge L.O.L. No. 160, attended church service on Sunday afternoon in Trinity United Church, Madoc.

Several members of primary lodges of both L.O.L. and L.O.B.A. from Belleville to Bancroft were in attendance, led by Marshal Bro. Durland Adams and standard bearers Bro. Cam Barr and Bro. John Allore.

The members marched from the Orange Hall to the church where the Rev. W. Milley delivered a stirring sermon taken from the Book of Judges and pertaining to the selected 300. Mrs. Archie Adams rendered a solo during the service.

Following the service the members marched to the cenotaph. Officials forming the honor guard with standard bearers on either side, were Bro Stan Moorcroft, Dist. Master; Bro. E. Embury, Master of L.O.L. 160; Bro. Manly Baumgart, Dep. Master of L.O.L. 160 and Bro. Archie Sinclair, County Master.

Bro. Embury laid a wreath at the cenotaph in memory of fallen men in the world wars. Bro. Sinclair offered prayer and one minute of silence was observed.

Bro. J. Ash directed the brief ceremony, after which the members were headed back to the Orange Hall and later dispersed.

Madoc

MADOC — Mr. and Mrs. W. McCoy, of Diddington, Alta., who have been visiting relatives in Madoc and community left for their home on Tuesday.

Mrs. Harry Jones of Vancouver, B.C., is visiting with Mrs. Walter Whytock this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Bullitt, of Cooper, and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Holland, Madoc, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holland of Port Hope.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown, of Toronto, Mrs. Ross Bateman and Miss Violet Brown, of Belleville, spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Whytock.

Mrs. Lowery of Flinton, is spending a few days with her son, Bryden, Mrs. Lowery, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Hedley Henderson and Miss Donna, of Oakville, spent the weekend with Mrs. Henderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Whytock. Mrs. Henderson and Donna will spend the week with her parents.

Mrs. Frances Latimer, of Petterborough, spent a few days with her brother, Mr. George West.

AMERICAN SPENDERS
LONDON (CP) — 1,000,000 Americans will be visiting Britain each year by 1960, Ralph Reed, president of American Express Company. "Britain could be earning £200,000,000 a year from American travellers."

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and confirmed by doctors' observations.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, July 3, 1959

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — The planets are with you for accomplishing much today, provided you plan your day carefully and then full speed ahead. Don't waste a minute of this glorious day. P.M. is then ideal for having a glorious time. Activity is the keynote.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — A.M. fine for putting all monetary matters in ideal order. Be certain to go into real estate matters with financial adviser, plan improvements to be made, etc. Tonight should be spent with a comrade who has his or her feet on the ground.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Be a real extrovert today. Bring your accomplishments before the right people and state your wishes simply and honestly. This brings immediate results and you can start operating quickly. P.M. relax at favorite pastime.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Concentrated activity in any business or emotional affairs of piling up momentum brings very satisfactory results today. Then take time to brighten the spirits of others. P.M. can then be spent in a quiet, delightful way with closest ones.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — It will be possible to work along with kindred spirits during a.m. and make headway along own line of endeavor. Get full co-operation. Tonight is then very good for getting ahead socially, dining with valued friends, both old and new.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) — A.M. is good for any dealings with general public, civic affairs or furthering your career materially. Complete your plans for weekend. P.M. get in touch with influential persons and get their support. Be loyal and grateful.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Many interesting and fascinating people and outlets are just ahead of you. Pick the most promising and consult with experts for best results. Tonight is fine for travel. Be wide-awake and look where you are going.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — It will be possible to get the vital data you require in both emotional and practical spheres. Put all your labors behind you quickly so that you can have a good deal of spare time to spend with loved ones.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — It would be well to see how you stand with close friends, close ties and particularly anyone whom you consider to be an associate. Cement better relations with all by right attitude. P.M. go out socially and have a good time.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — A day for real fun and frolic. But first be sure you do take treatments or visit beautician so that you are at your very best in appearance. Be magnetic, warm. Then off to the races. Don't waste a moment of this fine day.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Home problems and conditions require much of your time and thought today, and if you must come out in the world of affairs, mentality plan out what should be done, particularly about property. P.M. take it easy at home. Play.

If your child is born today—The lovely child born today will have a sparkling personality if you are a wise disciplinarian, i.e., a fond parent who inculcates the rules of right and wrong early, uses strength of character as guiding post, then gives free reign to gifted youngster. Fine horoscope for the author, lecturer, big business man or women, actress. However, teach perseverance and to complete work started.

School Picnic

UNION 8TH LINE

RYLSTONE — On Wednesday, the teacher, Mrs. Cara Reid and pupils of the Union School, along with their parents and families, enjoyed a picnic lunch at Crowe River bridge picnic grounds. There was no program and the afternoon was spent in the water.

The ninth line school pupils and their teacher, Mrs. Marvin Scott and the parents and families of the pupils held their annual school picnic at Searles Beach, Oak Lake, at 6.30 Thursday evening. A good crowd turned out for supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer gave instrumental and vocal duets, "It's Sweet To Be Remembered," "Falling Star," and "Once More"; puffed wheat game, won by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer, prizes ball point pens; balloon game: 1st, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shortt, 2nd, Mr. and Mrs.—Don Stewart, prizes were pens; three legged race: Rozanne Douglas and Glen Acorne, prizes were a comb and compact; sack race: Michael Fyfe and Ted Reid.

Short speeches were given by Messrs. Percy Reid, Roy Shortt and Don Stewart, all expressing their thanks to Mrs. Scott for her splendid leadership.

Parents and children alike, are sorry to lose Mrs. Scott.

Marilyn Stewart read an address to her teacher and Mrs. Scott was presented with a lovely hammered aluminum tray, in "Pine Cone" pattern, with handles. Mrs. Scott replied thanking all for their gift and their co-operation during her year at the Ninth Line School.

Don't Suffer Indigestion, Sour, Acid, Upset Stomach

Prompt Relief and Enjoy Your Meals by Taking Syntona Herbal Tonic — Sleep Better, Feel Better.

"I surely can recommend Syntona after the way it helped my digestion," said Mrs. T. W. Barnard, 325 Aberdeen Ave, Brantford, Ontario, in a recent report.

"Before I began taking Syntona I suffered from indigestion, constant sour acid rising and upset stomach that even a drink of water gave me trouble. I became subject to dreadful headaches and constipation and my tongue was always a sign that my stomach was out of proper sleep at night. I felt tired all the time.

"A Great Medicine"

"But what a relief since I've been using Syntona. I can eat my meals without discomfort afterwards; indigestion and constipation are now remedied, my tongue is always clean, I sleep soundly all night and I am not always tired as I was before. I found out about this great medicine."

Can Help You Too

Syntona is made from a combination of proven medicinal herbs including 12 of nature's Finest Herbs and Vegetables, Pepsin, Bile Salts, Kidney, liver and bowel aids in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter from the system and promotes better natural digestion. Many people say they feel better after taking Syntona. It is pleasant to take and Syntona acts quickly but.

Far too Busy to Bother Looking Like an Artist

SUCCESSFUL ARTIST IS BUSINESSMAN — Alex von Svoboda, Vienna-born Toronto artist, avoids the popular conception of what an artist should look like but runs a successful business that employs three other artists. Here he works in his downtown studio on one of his many commissions for murals, wall sculpturing and interior designing. Alex, a relative of the Hapsburgs, studied in Europe before coming to Canada. In one respect the mechanical world has been rejected. He and his wife banished their TV set to a basement storage in their suburban home after they decided it was killing conversation. (CP Photo).

Alex von Svoboda, 30, is a successful Toronto sculptor and unconcerned about the popular notion of what a sculptor is supposed to be like.

There have been some hard times in his struggle from poverty to success since he arrived in Canada eight years ago, but Alex is far too busy these days to bother looking like an artist.

Holder of a count's title as a relative of the Hapsburgs, he studied art in Europe before coming from Vienna to Canada. He first did such jobs as ditch-digging and garbage — collecting while striving to establish an artistic foothold.

PROSPEROUS OUTLOOK

Today he owns a suburban home, a downtown studio employs three other artists and has commissions for murals, wall sculpturing, portrait painting and interior designing.

Two of his works — Canada's largest mosaic murals — are in the church of St. John the Baptist at Hamilton and the Burnamthorpe Collegiate in Etobicoke, a Toronto suburb.

Mr. Svoboda explains that most of his commissions are for industrial work.

"It would be ridiculous," he feels, to go around in a beret seeking commissions of this type.

For instance, Mr. von Svoboda and his wife, the former Helen Lonsdale of Toronto, agreed in 1956 that television was killing the art of conversation. Their television set has since been locked in a storage room.

As for the title he never uses, he explained: "I feel I am a Canadian, and I want to live like a Canadian."

Steeper Rents, Potato Prices Put Index Up

Cost of Living Rises Three-Tenths of Point

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian living costs rose in May, largely as a result of higher potato prices and steeper rents, and pushed the consumer price index up by three-tenths of a point to 125.9 on June 1, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The rise, from 125.6 on May 1, was the second monthly increase in a row following a five-month decline in the index. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

Its June 1 level of 125.9 compares with the record high point of 126.3 last Nov. 1, and with 125.1 on June 1 last year.

Food prices rose by one-half of one per cent in May—a jump due almost entirely to a sharp seasonal rise of 35 per cent in potato prices. Fresh vegetables and fruits and pork were up moderately, while prices of beef, coffee and eggs eased.

Higher rents, associated with the traditional May 1 moving date, boosted shelter costs by two-tenths of one per cent.

WAGES RISE

Wages rose slightly in April after a slight dip caused by the Easter holiday in March. The index of average industrial wages and salaries in May 1—latest date for which figures are available—is placed at based on 1949 equalling 100. This was up from 169.1 April 1 and 170.2 March 1.

The index is computed from a survey of firms employing more than 15 persons and covering a wide range of industries, it represents an average of total wages paid.

The bureau said the higher cost of shelter in May was also due in part to a six-per-cent increase in fire insurance rates.

In other fields of expenditure Canadians faced higher prices for a wide range of pharmaceuticals, train fres and inter-urban bus fares.

CBC Loses Money On Most of Live TV Productions

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC loses money on most of its live television productions, a survey of March programs indicates. One show cost taxpayers $36,089.

Figures for the month were unveiled unofficially yesterday by the publicly-owned corporation at the insistence of the Commons broadcasting committee.

The CBC feared disclosure of the figures would prejudice its bargaining position with sponsors. The sponsor of a program on whom the corporation relies for money might insist on a better deal on learning programs of other sponsors are subsidized.

PLEA REFUSED

The document was produced after the committee voted 18 to 4 to stand by its original request that the breakdown of sponsor payments be made public. The CBC had made a last-minute appeal that it change its mind.

The document lists 96 March programs as a sampling of the cost of live television, sponsored and unsponsored. Fifty - seven were on the French-language network and 38 on the English-language.

The taxpayer paid the whole shot on 58 of the 96 and 40 sponsored programs, only 17 showed a profit.

COSTLY PROGRAM

Cross Canada Hit Parade March 2 cost $30,132 to produce, but sponsors paid only $9,678. Musique Sacree March 27 cost $24,971. Because the French - language network, unsponsored, cost $24,971. Because March 1 cost $24,768 to produce, with the sponsor paying $10,217. Sports programmer We Interview consistent money - makers, but profits were small. An NHL broadcast March 7 from Toronto cost $3,944. The sponsor paid $6,246, leaving a profit of $4,302.

The 15-minute King Wynn production Rising Stars of March 8 the sponsor paid $2,449. A Jim Coleman broadcast March 6 netted a profit of $1,911. The CBC made $2,187 on two five-minute Weekend Sports programs March 1 and 7 which together cost $936 to produce.

On the French-language network, 13 of the 57 sample programs made a profit. They included six sports programs and four quiz shows. La Famille Plouffe March 25 cost $1,000 with the sponsor paying $6,423.

Kozlov Master At Being Friendly But -- Says Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP)—First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan's diplomatic role today for a sightseeing mission that will carry him across the United States.

The first Soviet deputy premier, ending a 3½ - day Washington visit, began a cross-country hop to California to start a 2,000-mile swing through half a dozen communities.

Kozlov's diplomatic - pursuits included a White House luncheon reception at the Soviet Embassy. Vice-President Richard Nixon badgered an inch on the subject of the crisis which has deadlocked the Geneva conference of foreign ministers.

Nixon asked Mikoyan if a Soviet-American cross-country hop would not be more private chat with Mr. Visitor.

"He is a master at being friendly," Nixon said afterwards, "but that doesn't mean that there was progress."

Secretary Christian Herter gave a similar account of the hour-long meeting with Kozlov.

Expectant Wife of Keenan Wynn Hit, Kicked to Floor by Actor

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Keenan Wynn, angry because he kicked his wife and tossed her mother to the floor three times, was attacked by the women in return.

The actor was quoted by the police.

"Every woman should be spanked regularly. All I wanted was to get some rest because I'm going to get to work in the morning."

Sheriff's Sgt. Harold E. Warring and deputy George G. Lowrey said Wynn's third wife, the former Sharley Jean Hudson, 26, related:

Wynn, 42, six-foot, 189 - pound actor, returned home from Ed Wynn, was in the bedroom talking by telephone to "one of his ex-wives."

In the conversation the actor, wearing only a beard, moustache, emerged from the bedroom, struck her, dragged her into the bedroom and continued to hit and kick her.

Her mother, Mrs. Blanche Hudson, said Mrs. Wynn is expecting a child.

"I tried to stop the fight. When I attacked my daughter, I stepped in and he knocked me to the floor three times. I had to do something."

Mrs. Hudson drove to the police station and returned to the Wynn house with the two deputies.

The officers made no arrests. They said Mrs. Wynn told them her husband but she took no steps in the direction Thursday.

DEFENCE DEBATE IN PARLIAMENT IS INCONCLUSIVE

Integration With U.S. Chief Topic

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — For seven hours Thursday the Commons debated the pros and cons of Canadian defence integration with the United States.

Result: Inconclusive. The debate on the 1,695,000,000 defence budget continues today.

1. The government will buy the American Lockheed F-104G supersonic strike - reconnaissance aircraft for RCAF air division in Europe.

2. Consideration is being given to providing facilities for American interceptors to operate from Canadian airfields.

3. Progress is being made on an agreement to provide Canadian forces with American nuclear weapons.

4. Canada can't afford to develop its own complete weapons system but could develop components for U.S. weapons.

5. Lockheed Aircraft Corporation of California will let sub-contracts to Canadian manufacturers.

WOULD SPARE CITIES

Opposition Leader Pearson said the government would insist that RCAF interceptors be based as far north in Canada as possible so that any air battle would not be fought over populated Canadian targets.

He said Canada can't take a dog-in-the - manger attitude toward the U.S. on defence installations in this country but the principle should be kept under Canadian political control.

It would be unfair, he said, for the RCAF to move to operate in Canada alongside American squadrons which had superior equipment.

William Benidickson (L—Kenora-Rainy River) said Canada has assumed a role of "me-too-ism" and is riding in the U.S. defence "rumble seat."

He said the government is so lost on defence matters that testimony before U.S. congressional committees by American air defence came as much as a surprise to Ottawa officialdom as to the Canadian people.

FOLLOWS GERMANY

Mr. Benidickson also said the government should not acquire the F-104 only after West Germany has done so.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said Canada should not allow the U.S. to store nuclear weapons on Canadian soil.

NEW RCAF AIRCRAFT — This is the American Lockheed F-104G supersonic fighter aircraft which the Canadian government has decided to buy for the RCAF Air Division in Europe. The airframe and engine will be manufactured in Canada but final details of production and costs won't be announced until later. Basic cost is expected to be about $350,000,000 for some 200 planes. Three Arrested in Connection With Brockville Bond Thefts

CHICAGO (AP) — A story of international high finance was unfolded by the FBI Thursday in the wake of the arrest of three men in connection with the theft of $3,500,000 in Canadian bonds.

The bonds, plus cash and jewelry, were taken May 3, 1958, from the Brockville Trust and Savings Company, Brockville, by a gang of safecrackers using blow torches. Some $8,000,000 in stock certificates also were taken but were recovered.

The F.B.I. announced Thursday all were involved in uncovering all or part of and the loot. One of their schemes, said U.S. Assistant Attorney Jas. B. Parsons, was to try to purchase a European bank as a financial house.

Arrested were three American—among five persons named in a suppressed indictment returned by a federal grand jury in Chicago—and the other two are Canadians who still are being sought.

Apprehended were Sam Mannarino, 33, of New Kensington, Pa.; Rabin, alias Al Gluesipe, 44, of Surfside, Fla., who is under indictment in Pittsburgh for running guns to Cuba; and William Rabin, 52, of Chicago.

Mannarino was arraigned in Pittsburgh and freed on $5,000 bond.

When asked what he thought of the charges he shouted "They're phoney."

Rabin, a business consultant, was free on bond at the time of his arrest in Miami on earlier charges he received $98,000 in stolen bonds.

Still being sought are Rene Robert and Giuseppe Cotroni, both of Montreal. "Three other men were seized last year in connection with the bonds.

The indictment charges that Rabin put up as security more than $138,000 worth of Canadian bonds at a Chicago bank in September and October of 1958. It further charged him with "bilking" the bank by pledging $140,000 in stolen bonds to a Swiss bank.

The others were named as principal offenders in aiding and abetting Rabin.

Parsons said Rabin acted as agent for an international syndicate in which Cotroni, Mannarino and Rothman were members.

The bonds were given to Rabin by the Canadians, Parsons said.

Rabin has denied any knowledge the bonds were stolen.

The break in the case came, Parsons said, when a Swiss bank learned the bonds were stolen, notified police, who tipped the FBI.

"We have only scratched the surface," Parsons said. "This is only the first indictment and further evidence will be submitted to other grand juries."

Prince Philip Cutting Wide Swath of Own on Royal Tour

The following Impression of Prince Philip's impact on Canadians is written by an American reporter assigned to the Associated Press to the Royal Tour.

By RELMAN MORIN

It's a sure of almost mystic feeling embodied in the title Your Majesty of course doesn't understand him or obey the Queen. But popular response seems equally genuine.

In the first place he is a glamorous, virile, slim, blonde and handsome. The ladies often "oh" and "ah" over him even before they get through commenting on Queen Elizabeth.

He contrasts sharply with Queen Elizabeth on many points.

On the public platforms the Queen looks shy and speaks in a high-pitched, girlish voice. The prince gets up and takes charge with his deep voice, assurance and delivers a speech in solid tones.

The Queen's smile often looks artificial, as though laundered and starched in advance. Her husband has an infectious grin reminiscent of his late President Eisenhower's in voltage.

In the receiving line the Queen says little. Her husband stops about every fourth or fifth man for a solicitous talk to women — and evinces interest in them whether he feels it or not.

Reporters may have exaggerated his wit. Still, some of his comments are not dull. Introduced to a provincial minister of health, the prince smiled and said: "How are they?"

Going through industrial plants, he often comes perilously close to stealing the scene. He will pause occasionally, during with workmen while the Queen goes on ahead. When she finds herself too far ahead, she waits for him to catch up.

Durelle-Moore Fight Postponed To July 29

MONTREAL (CP) — Promoter Eddie Quinn's office announced today that the scheduled July 15 light-heavyweight title fight between Archie Moore and Yvon Durelle has officially been postponed until July 29.

The announcement said the U.S. television arrangements have been re-scheduled accordingly.

Durelle suffered a bruised left heel while doing roadwork for his title defence against the late St. Anne, P.Q., fisherman. Moore now was unable to continue his regular road work because of the injury and a postponement of the fight was necessary.

NOWLAN DENIES INTERFERENCE IN CBC AFFAIRS

Minister Put Under Close Questioning

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons committee inquiry into alleged political interference in the CBC apparently has been laid to rest by a denial from Revenue Minister Nowlan that he gave any orders to the publicly-owned corporation.

Mr. Nowlan, under close questioning Thursday before the broadcasting committee over cancellation of the Preview Commentary radio program, said he never gave anything CBC President E. L. Bushnell "any suggestion what I thought he should do."

However, the minister, who reports to Parliament for the CBC, left no doubt that he has made clear to Mr. Bushnell his likes and dislikes about some of the things the CBC has done.

ADMITS CRITICISM

He said that he, and perhaps other MPs, had criticized the CBC but all times criticized the 31st minute morning program, featuring Gordon Sinclair's commentary on happenings by members of the Ottawa Press Gallery. But he said none of this amounted to "representations" to the CBC.

Mr. Nowlan went further. He told of one time he had suggested to Mr. Bushnell that "somebody ought to be fired": to put some discipline in the CBC. He told of criticizing Mr. Bushnell at times for "loose management."

PLAN DUPLICATION

And on a recent occasion, the minister said, the CBC called off a proposed interview of a man it planned to bring from Europe to New York. He told Mr. Bushnell the government would not admit the man to Canada. Yet a CBC producer, "defying the government," planned to pay for an economy passage to get the program anyway.

Mr. Nowlan said the program was shelved after he asked Mr. Bushnell to give the case careful consideration.

Mr. Preview Commentary's cancellation, Mr. Nowlan said he "absolutely" never told Mr. Bushnell he would be fired if the commentary were not cancelled. But he said Mr. Bushnell "explanation whatsoever" of how the $200,000 program was cancelled and the remainder to the International Business Machines which produced it, but he didn't seem to be listless welcome.

Castro's Troops On Move To Meet Threat of Revolt

Counter-Revolutionists Facing Death Sentences

HAVANA (AP) — Widespread troops movements were reported today in Cuba after Fidel Castro's government showing concern over mounting counter-revolutionary activity.

Secret police seized an arms cache in a Havana suburb on Thursday. They arrested eight men in a case they described as having "the most important counter-revolutionary implications."

Troop reinforcements are reported moving into eastern Cuba, where 161 persons have been arrested for acts of sabotage and links with Western Cuba where guerrilla bands are operating in the mountains.

BLAMES TWO EXILES

Behind the plot, police said, were former Sen. Rolando Masferrer now in Miami, Fla., and Jose Pedraza, a former chief who shares Batista's exile in the Dominican Republic.

The upsurge of anti-Castro activity during the last month has brought a number of trials decreeing the death sentence for counter-revolutionary acts.

Revolutionary Air Force Commander Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz and others resigned, charging Communist infiltration of both the armed forces and the government, came under attack on Thursday.

Prime Minister Castro told a television audience that Diaz' resignation was a "certain tactic," timed to coincide with a period of difficult international relations for Cuba.

SEES U.S. INFLUENCE

His lengthy indictment of Diaz was heavily salted with suggestions that the airman was influenced by U.S. officials. Castro said it was curious that American newspapers printed the story of the resignation a day before the Cuban press got it.

He accused Diaz of inefficiency and nepotism claiming he operated the air force for his family's benefit.

Fire Destroys Brain Machines In Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Electric brain machines that cost millions of dollars were the victims of the damage Thursday as a four-hour fire disrupted normal activities in the Pentagon, nerve center of the U.S. armed forces.

Military and government officials said they won't venture an estimate on the fire damage.

The Pentagon Thursday claimed the loss at upward of $50,000,000 but Gen. Thomas D. White, chief of staff, said the figure was premature.

The cause of the fire still wasn't known but there was speculation that it might have been touched off by defective electrical wiring.

Stratford Festival Visit Climax Of Tiring Day for Queen, Prince

STRATFORD (CP) — A day which began in Ottawa — and stormed ended here in a night of glittering splendor for Royal Tour continued its way across Canada.

After leaving Ottawa around midnight, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip were met by Mayor Hamilton Thursday morning, where the Royal broke off for a side trip to London, Ont.

The Queen went on through Brantford, Galt, Guelph, New Kitchener and they joined again Stratford for a command performance of As You Like It at the Shakespearean Festival.

It was a brilliant, especially for the Queen, and started with an accident.

The royal couple was visiting Battlefield House at Stoney Creek, outside Hamilton, when

Queen, Prince Visit London in Scorching Heat

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Queen and Prince Philip kicked off the seventh day of their Royal Tour of Ontario in a scorching sun today. They took this pleasure-packed old city by storm.

Upwards of 60,000 people—some feathery veterans of the Boer War and the Riel Rebellion and many wildly cheering school children—jammed the main arteries and tree-lined boulevards to welcome the royal couple.

The Queen and Prince, who arrived here from Stratford at 9:54 a.m. EDT, spent 21 minutes longer than their scheduled stay of one hour. They departed by royal train for Chatham at 11:15 a.m., 15 minutes late. They had arrived six minutes early.

The Queen, who appeared tired from yesterday's night at whirlwind tour of six Ontario cities, was a striking figure in her cherry-red dress and white hat. Prince Philip as she and the prince drove four miles from the city limits to the Little Memorial Stadium on the sun-bronzed University of Western Ontario campus.

The weather was fit for royalty, Although it was about 86 degrees in the sun, it didn't seem to bother the royal couple at all.

MET BY MAYOR

About 10,000 people crowded around the CNR station in south-central London as the Queen and Philip stepped from the train and met Mayor Allison Hodgson. A 101-gun salute was to be welcomed by Governor-General Major ... A. Johnston. It was Mayor Johnston who welcomed the Queen's mother and father during the Royal Tour in 1939.

EXCHANGE STUDENTS START FOR QUEBEC

A group of students from Belleville and district left by train for Roberval, Quebec, on Thursday afternoon. The students will stay in private homes, where they will speak French and become familiar with French Canadian customs. On July 16, they will return to Belleville, bringing with them their Roberval friends, who will stay with them until the end of the month. This is the first time such a group has made the exchange under the auspices of intercommunity visits. Previous individual visits have been arranged through visiting representatives working in close collaboration with the group organizers.

FIREMEN CALLED TO CITY DUMP

The Belleville Fire Department had two calls yesterday evening. The first alarm, which came at 8.40 p.m. brought the local firefighters out to the city dump to extinguish a blaze which occurred from the burning of some records.

The second alarm came in at 10.43 p.m. Two trucks answered this call as an attempt to save a barn chicken coop belonging to a Mr. Auger near Marsden Park, failed. However, was a total loss and the local firefighters, together with the Trenton Fire Department, stopped the fire from spreading to adjacent buildings.

Theatre Guild Elects Officers

Members gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don MacKinnon, 240 Bleecker Avenue and elected new officers for next season as follows: Lorne Sadler, honorary past president, Don Thomas; vice-president, Harry Mulhall; treasurer, Miss Hilary recording secretary, Helen Sulman; corresponding secretary, Winsome Lewis; members at large, Edna Clinton, Joan Richards, Tom Fraser and Jack Brown.

After the election of officers and other business was concluded, the members enjoyed an outdoor barbecue.

Dr. J. N. Hartt Opens Practice In This City

A former Roslin doctor, Dr. John N. Hartt, opened general practice in Belleville this week.

Dr. Hartt, who was formerly in partnership with Dr. Empson in Roslin for the past seven years, opened his new clinic at 500 Bridge St. East on July 1st.

His office hours are afternoons and evenings except Tuesdays and Sundays.

The Trenton-born general practitioner graduated from Queen's University, Faculty of Medicine in 1951.

Educated in Wooler and Trenton High Schools, Dr. Hartt interned Queen's on a scholarship. His academic career was interrupted during World War II by a one-year hitch in the Army infantry and medical corps. After the war he returned to Queen's University to complete his medical education.

He interned at the Hamilton General Hospital, and was associated with Dr. Empson as an undergraduate and post graduate before opening partnership practice with him in 1952.

Dr. Hartt served as medical officer of health for the township of Thurlow for five or six years. He is an active member of the College of General Practice of Canada. As a veteran he is also a member of the Tweed branch of the Canadian Legion.

He is married to the former Isabelle Jordan, also of Trenton, and they have three children. His family are presently residing in Roslin until their new home on Stanley Park Drive is completed.

18 Playgrounds Start Program, 1,000 Register

The Recreational Committee summer playground program got under way yesterday with over 1,000 children attending the 18 city playgrounds. Registrations will continue throughout the summer and, when all are in, it is expected that the registration will exceed slightly the 4,000 registration of last year.

In all, the city has employed 22 supervisors to look after the playground including five additional ones located in the annexed area at O.S.S. No. 2, Sidney, Prince of Wales School, Hillcrest and Bayview School.

Of the total permits issued 33 were for new residences.

One of the commercial permits issued was to the Belleville Shrine Club where, initial construction for a new addition is underway. The excavation for the addition has already been dug and intentions are to build the basement this summer, the addition to be completed later. Size of the new addition is 30 by 60 feet.

Camera Club Elects Officers

At the general meeting of the Belleville Camera Club, held in the Kiwanis Centre recently, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, John Lewis; vice-president Werner Eisele; secretary, Shirley James; treasurer, Earl Yatesan; program committee, Gordon Savage, Arthur Werner Eisele, John Feiti, I. Knight; house committee, John Hall and the Kiwanis Centre; entry print competition, Frank Alison, John Lewis, John Lewis, Elgar Buchanan; club bulletin, Wallace Kirkpatrick, chairman, Shirley James, reporter, Katharine Mills; Arts and Crafts representative, Joe Wyatt; auditors committee, Werner Eisele, Wallace Kirkpatrick, John Feiti, Bert Fink and Katherine Mills.

The annual reports were read and adopted. The club had had a successful year with much interest being shown in the monthly print competitions and the salon. Three field trips were held last year, one to the Belleville harbor, one to Canniffon and one in the fall to the Skootamatta River area.

President Hedley James then presented the chair to the incoming president, John Lewis, who thanked the members for electing him and informed them that he had plans for the coming year which he hoped would prove successful and helpful. Anyone who is interested in taking up color photography is welcome to attend the meetings which are held the first Tuesday in the month at the Kiwanis Centre. The next meeting will be July 7 at 8 o'clock.

Israeli Lawyer Comes to City For Bond Drive

Mordechai Even-Saphir, noted Israeli lawyer, journalist and author, will arrive in Belleville on Tuesday, July 7th, for meetings with local Jewish community leaders in an effort to raise funds for State of Israel Bond drive here. Former resident of the City of Israel Bond Organization in Brazil and Argentina, Mr. Even-Saphir previously served as Jewish Agency in South America for many years prior to his election to Canada.

A member of the editorial staff of "Habokeer," he was founder of the first B'nai B'rith Lodge in Tel Aviv following creation of the State in 1948. During World War II he served as an officer in the British 8th Army prior to becoming an officer in the Israeli Army.

The State of Israel Bond Organization is the official agency of investment capital for Israel's program of economic development.

DEFENCE DEBATE

Mr. Fearless replied that Canadians want their forces to be as well equipped as those of their allies.

Mr. Pearson suggested oblique ly at one point that the government consider dropping Canada's participation in North American air defence and use the money to increase the strength of NATO forces. He said the government has plans for a completely air-transportable brigade group.

Mr. Pearkes said the army shortly will have an airlift for a 1,800-man battalion. An airlift for a 6,000-man brigade would require 200 planes.

The minister told Mr. Hellyer that the F-104, to be built in Canada, can't be developed as an interceptor for home defence squadrons.

Paul Hellyer (L—Toronto Trinity) asked whether the nine CF-100 squadrons in Canada will be re-equipped.

Mr. Pearkes said there is no provision in the current defence budget for this.

Both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Winch urged more emphasis on conventional forces so that limited wars could be prevented from ballooning into all-out nuclear war.

MURPHY. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Ann Murphy, who passed away July 3rd, 1958.

A token of love, our only thought, A heart that lies beneath the sod, A grave we tend and ever keep, Where lies the one we loved so deep.

And greet her at the door.

And leave you sleeping there.

Yet the best tribute we can make, Is to think when life is done, Of the one we loved and lost, That she'll be standing at the door, To welcome us home.

A wonderful worker, loved and true Is the mother we loved, God knew.

Loved by friends and all you knew, A wonderful Mother, that Mother was you.

Gerald Jenkins Dies at Home On Bridge St.

Gerald Leon Jenkins, well known sports figure and lighter, regarded owner of the Hotel Quinte, died at his home, 144 Bridge, Street East, early this Friday morning following an illness which had extended for some weeks.

Mr. Jenkins was born in this city 73 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Jenkins who had resided in this city all of his life. He was educated in the Separate and High School in this city and as a young man entered the hotel business with his father, the former owner, and had been connected with the business for many years. Besides being well known in the city, Mr. Jenkins enjoyed a wide circle of friends in the hotel business throughout the province. Owner of the Hotel Quinte is one of the oldest in Ontario.

He enjoyed a circle of intimate friends throughout the city and took a keen interest in an active part in municipal and civic life, he was always willing to lend his support to worthwhile projects for the good of his community. He was a member of the Royal Canadian Legion.

A member of St. Michael's Church, he is survived by his wife, the former Ruth Ashley, two sons, Robert H. Jenkins of Toronto, James W. Jenkins, associated with his father in the business, and one daughter Mrs. Fred (Barbara) Hawkins, whose husband is also connected with the business.

Raymond Woods Acquitted on Holdup Charge

Appearing before County Judge J. C. Anderson this morning, Raymond Woods, 20, Belleville, was acquitted of a charge of armed robbery of the Dairy Queen on Dundas East last winter.

Woods was charged with holding up the Cash and Carry Dairy cashier with a sawed-off shotgun and stealing approximately $15 in silver.

The accused was not represented by counsel and declined to question Crown witnesses. He was given a full opportunity to call any witnesses on his behalf, although Crown Attorney John A. Pringle offered to subpoena any witnesses he might wish to call.

Mr. Woods said that under the circumstances he felt it was his duty to go ahead with evidence on behalf of the accused as well as against him.

The holdup at Judge Anderson said he believed the Crown witness, but noted he had had very little time in which to observe the gunman committing the crime. He said the description he had given was quite general, and noted that there had been no identification parade which corroborated that of the witness.

"I cannot bring myself to say that there isn't room for a reasonable doubt and I am going to give the accused the benefit of that doubt," stated Judge Anderson as he acquitted the prisoner.

Judge Anderson said, however, that there was "strong suspicion" that Woods had committed the crime and advised him to stay away somewhere and make a fresh start.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was mixed today in slow morning trading.

The 11 a.m. volume was 531,000 shares, down from Thursday's 868,000 at the same hour.

Off ¼ were Steel Company of Canada, Bank of Commerce and Consolidated Paper. Gaining ¼ were Algoma Steel, CPR and Bell Telephone. A.V. Roe added ⅛ at 11.

In golds Dome added ⅛ at 19 and Kerr-Addison was ahead ⅛ at 21⅛. However Hollinger lost ⅛ at 31¾.

Final volume was 2,685,000 shares, up considerably from Tuesday's 1,946,000. The market was closed Dominion Day.

Among industrials MacMillan and Bloedel B was up 2 at 43½. A proposed merger of MacMillan and Powell River boosted both but Powell River faded and closed off 1⅜ at 38¾bd.

Sixteen industrials hit 1959 highs while gains of better than three points went to Canadian Tire, Dominion Stores, Reichold Chemicals and Hiram Walker Company of Canada. A.V. Roe, Canada, added ⅛ at 10⅛.

International Nickel was up 2¾ at 85¾. Falconbridge, Lake Dore and Noranda added at least 1 point. Consolidated Discovery gained ⅜ at 15c and Algom was up ⅛ at 16⅝.

In golds Hollinger and McIntyre each added ⅛, Calgary and Edmonton, rising ⅜ at 26¾ led western oils.

Industrial Acceptance: 5.67 to 5.63.60; golds .63 to 92.40; base metals 3.75 to 172.58; western oils 1.22 to 121.61.

After Dinner Catch

Mrs. William Cairns, Stirling, waited until she did the dinner dishes, but she is still one up on her husband as she hooked a 28-pound lunge Thursday afternoon in the Trent River opposite their cottage north of Frankford.

Husband Bill hag been out in the boat since dinner without a nibble but when he was joined by the Missus the action started fast.

"I fought him for about 20 minutes until I got so tired I had to turn the line over to Bill who landed him," said the proud fisherwoman. The lunge measured 48½ inches with a girth of 23 inches.

But Bill expects to match his wife's catch before the summer is out. He has caught a dozen or more muskies during his lifetime, some of them bigger than his wife's 28-pounder.

The above lunge held by Mrs. Cairns with the help of husband Bill, is the first really large muskie caught this year in the Trent. On opening day, July 1st, an 18-pounder was caught just south of Frankford.

Bass Scorns Plugs, Frogs, Worms But Takes Fatal Bite at Daisy

Forget your man-made lures, frogs and worms and go pick yourselves a bunch of yellow daisies.

For the largemouth bass in Oak Lake have a yen for the pretty flowers and Allan has a nice 4½-pounder to prove it.

Allan with brother Jim and sister Janet, was lounging around the dock of the family cottage yesterday, when somebody said "there's a big fish under the dock."

Allan looked and there it was lazily moving its fins in the water.

He opened the tackle box and got out the lures. He tried several but Mr. Bass wasn't having any.

So Allan decided to try something new. He went out and picked a large yellow daisy, put it on the hook to let the bass sniff it. Only it didn't sniff. It grabbed the flower with one gulp and the battle was on.

For nearly twenty minutes the smallish youngster and the bass struggled. Two or three times Allan nearly fell off the dock into the water.

Finally the fish gave up and Allan docked it.

What is he going to do with it? "I'm going to have it fixed up and put on a board," he smiled.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Duffin, of the Duffin Funeral Home at Stirling.

Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Slaughter steers, heifers and yearlings traded actively this week at the Ontario public stockyards.

Steers and heifers showed gains of 25 cents a hundredweight and yearling prices were firm. Cow numbers were fairly heavy with the good cows clearing at losses of $1 a hundredweight. Canner and cutter cows were in sufficient demand to sell at barely steady to 50 cents a hundredweight lower rates. Bulls were in fair demand at about steady prices with the few nearbeef bobtcins gaining a premium. Veal calf prices were sharply lower and bogs gained 15 cents a hundredweight. Lamb prices were $1 lower.

Cattle receipts were some 1,100 head less than last week and 2,000 head fewer than the same week in 1958. Western cattle receipts totalled 272 head, an increase over last week of 50 head. Eastern shipments were half those of last week at three loads, and there were no exports to the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers mostly 25-25.50 with sales to 25.75; good 24-25; commercials 22-24; common 20-22; good heifers 23-25.50 with an odd choice at 24-50; mediums 22-23.50; common at 19-21; choice fed yearlings 25-26 with an odd heavy calf to 26.50; good 23-25; good cows 18-18.50 with sales to 19; medium cows 16-17.50; good bulls mostly 21 with odd sales to 21.50; common and medium 18-20.

Stockers: Good stockers 25-27 with some matched lots of 600-700 pound stockers gaining a premium over the 27 mark; good short-keeps 24.50-25; common and medium stockers 20-24; stock calves 28-32 a hundredweight.

Trenton-Based Planes Continue Search in North

TRENTON — Trenton-based Search and Rescue aircraft continued the search today for the second occupant of an RCAF CF-100 which crashed early last Tuesday thirty-five miles north of the Quebec community of La Sarre.

Aboard the jet aircraft were Flying Officer Strasser and Flying Officer Spaulding, pilot and observer, both of RCAF Station North Bay. Air Force officials have not yet indicated which of the two flyers was found dead near the scene of the crash soon after beginning the search.

Condition of the aircraft indicates that it may have exploding in mid-air.

Remnants of a parachute, believed belonging to the dropue about attached to one of the aircraft seats, have been located in the area, but the whereabouts of the second crew member is unknown.

Meanwhile the search master Flight Lieutenant J. H. McLeod of Trenton, has been placed at his disposal from 102 Communications Flight here, is scouring the area for further trace of the vanished man. Also on hand is a No. 4 CFU helicopter for close range spotting operations.

Monthly Report Shows 19 Calls Made by Dept.

TRENTON — Two minor fires with an estimated damage totalling $7,375 were among the 19 calls made by the Fire Department made during the month of June. Fire Chief Elton revealed his monthly report released yesterday.

The two fires causing the damage were the Bo-Peep Restaurant on Dundas Street East and the home of Angelo Fabbri on Dufferin Street.

The breakdown of calls is as follows: service calls, 3; grass fires, 2; chimney fires, 2; truck fires, 2; oil burners, 1; car fires, 2; factory (electrical), 1; restaurant, 1; house, 1; cottage, 1; tractor, 1.

Three members of the department also attended the monthly meeting of Mutual Aid in Bancroft and on many occasions but by the firemen through illness.

On the training program the Chief said, "At our training session this month the entire department was given a refresher course on artificial respiration and the use of the resuscitator. Due to the amount of water which surrounds Trenton a second night is to be devoted to artificial respiration in order to give all members extra training in one of the most vital services rendered by the Fire Department that of saving lives."

In his report, which will go before Council, Fire Chief Elton mentioned the bronze plaque which was presented to the fire department at a special meeting at the fire hall recently.

Unused Chicken Coop Destroyed; Loss Is $2,000

TRENTON — An unused chicken coop, valued at about $2,000, was levelled to the ground last night in a flash fire in around 10:45 p.m.

Harold Auger, R.R. 3, Belleville, and about a mile east of Bayside, said he was just going to bed when one of his sons rushed in hollering "the chicken coop's on fire."

He said he dressed and rushed outside but the building was a mass of flames. "I never saw anything burn so fast," he stated, "then I ran back inside the house to telephone the fire department."

Two fire trucks were sent from Belleville and one from Trenton but by the time they arrived the building was gone and the firemen played the watt on from the booster tanks onto the burning embers to keep them from spreading to nearby buildings.

Mr. Auger said he had no idea what could have caused the building to burn and that there was no electrical wiring in it nor had it been used lately. He said no one in the building that made it burn so quickly could have been the fact that one portion of the building was insulated with shavings and sawdust.

The building had not been used for anything for some time and there was nothing inside at the time of the fire.

Trenton firemen returned to the hall at 12.15 a.m. after they and the Belleville firefighters had been there was no further danger of the fire spreading.

WHOPPER STORY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — That account of a watch in a shark's stomach turns out to be just a watch, not a fish story. The Los Angeles Mirrors-News quotes Joe Desta, an aide to Gov. Pat Brown, as saying: "Well, with the shark active on . . . I cried out to the radio station that we caught a huge shark, cut it open, and found a man's watch in its stomach." He dipped a watch in acid "to make it look more real," he said.

Chubby Power Describes Self As 'Blessed Idiot'

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator C. G. (Chubby) Power told the Senate Thursday how he inadvertently described himself as a "blessed idiot" for devising in the wartime years when he was defence minister the present RCAF policy that allows retirement of its personnel at relatively early ages.

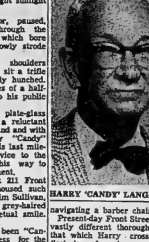
The Quebec Liberal suggested during Senate debate on detailed changes in armed services pension provisions, that the policy should be reconsidered by the government in the light of peacetime conditions.

There are instances, he said, "of men under 50, of men between the ages of 45 and 50, being retired with pensions approximating $6,000 to $7,000 a year, at a time when these men have an opportunity of a very fruitful career before them."

"They might even," he added, "become senators and retire 25 years before them and render very useful service to the community."

He said that recently, "with all the righteousness in my disposal," he was discussing this air force retirement policy, with a friend.

He was "pointing out to him that this practice of retiring men at an early age was a very expensive one, one much to be condemned and I was quite vigorous about it."



"I wanted to know who the blessed idiot was who had brought this policy in."

He said his friend told him: "You had better ask yourself—you are the man who brought in this early retirement policy."

Senator Power said he looked up the record and found that while defence minister he said in the Commons on June 19, 1946, that the RCAF retirement policy was adopted to provide a more dynamic and ensure stagnation didn't set in at the top, to give younger officers an early enough aging young fliers, ensuring there would be plenty of promotion openings at the top.

Today, Senator Power said "the situation has changed." A career in the armed forces generally, especially for officers, usually done by officers, is of "a purely administrative nature."

'Candy' Langabeer, Front St. Barber for 52 Years, Retires

navigating a barber chair)

Present-day Front Street was a vastly different thoroughfare to that which Harry crossed the first day of work over a half century ago.

There were no street-cleaners, automobiles, streetcars, sweepers or parking meters" he smiled. "A half-hour after a rain you were ankle-deep in mud if you crossed the street anywhere but the street crossings."

Those were the days when tough bearded lumberjacks from the log-packs of the Moira came in for clipper and razor treatment. Chip customers had their private shaving mugs adorned with their names. Prices were much lower then than now.

Harry's large clientele is going to miss this smiling-faced man and his pleasant morning greeting. But the fish of his Massassaga cottage are due for a tough time.

An ardent angler since boyhood, Harry seldom had to talk twice to get a fishing yarn away. Rather he was in the position to show the big ones he landed.

"That's what I'm going to do now" he said. "I'm going to my cottage and fish to my heart's content."

Harry sold his business to Mr. Johannes Keuning, who came to Canada from Holland seven years ago, and has been associated with Harry for the past half dozen years.

Reserves Judgment

Judgment was reserved by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city magistrate's court here yesterday on a theft charge against Richard D. Parker, payroll clerk with McFarlane Gendron who is accused of stealing $2,500 from the company's payroll.

Yesterday at an adjourned hearing, character witnesses were called on the accused's behalf by Defence Counsel Robert Fralick. Summary evidence by the Crown was heard last week.

A GATEWAY TO THE FUTURE - - FROM THE PAST!

Out of all the excitement of the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway by Queen Elizabeth and President Eisenhower there comes a gentle rumour (via the front page of the Brantford Expositor), that Queen Elizabeth solicited an invitation to the United States to join the Commonwealth.

If the invitation was made the President of that great nation has shown a surprising lack of alacrity in accepting it. It might be noted that such invitations are extremely rare and are not proffered at the drop of a hat in the political ring, in which many other political personages in the Congress and the House of Representatives have suggested that Canada become another state in the Union.

As a matter of fact we cannot recollect of any other nation which has had this honor extended to it.

To be a member of the British Commonwealth entails some obligation, we feel. It is the guidepost by which a vast empire of an imperial dynasty and an allpowerful government was transformed into a group of independent, self-governing nations, bound together only by a common history and mutual respect. No wars have disturbed the solidarity of this Commonwealth. No exploitation has been made of the weaker by the stronger. All views of the individual members have been allowed to stand and, although they might not be accepted by the other members, they are respected. The Commonwealth is bound together more by moral values and traditions than by countless pacts, documents, alliances, or such and entangling pacts, documents, alliances, or such other instruments of international agreement. No member fears another and, if one member appears to be weakening, the others do their utmost to protect or build up the weaker member without that member having to sacrifice any of its independence.

Our Commonwealth might be compared to a family. We are not content to sheep from time to time and we also have our knights in shining armor. We have our individuality and we have our common ties. We have self-rule and we have our monarchy.

In our Commonwealth we embrace almost every race, creed, and religion present in the world today. Almost every nation of importance is represented in our Commonwealth in a harmonious world-wide community of nations. We may be apprehensive of the conduct of some of our members at times but we do not disown them. Rather we hope for them to solve their problems in the course of time in their own manner. We may offer our assistance or advice to those who need or require the same but we never impose or insist upon it.

With this bacground and these concepts our Commonwealth stands steadfast in the wild winds of international storms and controversy.

This, Mr. Eisenhower, if our good Queen did not offer you the opportunity of her nation coming into the family fold, so to speak, is the heritage which your country and your people would enjoy, yet still maintain your way of life.

It would take a certain amount of humility and quite a bit of fortitude to still the voices of the pettifoggers, the demagogues, still the political hay-makers and spellbinders but it would, we suggest, be well worth it. More than the gateway to the Seaway has been opened. Will America cross the threshold?

MAKE UP YOUR MINDS, BOYS

Weird and wonderful appears to be an accurate description of an Associated Press report out of Washington, published in Tuesday's issue of this paper.

"A record number of Soviet diplomats are reported to have defected to the West in the last week," stated the opening sentence of the report.

The name of one diplomat who defected is known - - Alexander Urevitch Kaznacheev, information officer at the Soviet Embassy in Rangoon, who was granted asylum by the U.S. Embassy in that city on Wednesday of last week and flown to Manila. But from the Washington report it appears there were several others, although "responsible officials . . . declined to reveal the number." Kaznacheev's action is described as "only one of many similar cases."

Many defections in a week! And yet, again from Washington, "authorities cautioned against viewing the stepped-up flow of defections as any sign of deep-rooted restlessness among Soviet diplomats."

What do they want as a sign of "deep-rooted restlessness" - - Gromyko signing up as Herter's aide?

CHUMS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Husband and wife for many years;
And just like children, now
As fond of one another as
The day they took their vows.
Where'er he goes, she goes, hand in hand;
And thus their record runs:
Through all those years of joy and strife
They really have been chums.

Husband and wife!—No, more than that;
For husbands oft are known,
In search of pleasure now and
To journey off alone.

That interest them more Than business plans their husbands make.
When honeymooning o'er.

Not so with them. Through weal or woe,
Through sunshine and Through rain
Together they have journeyed on;
She cheered when all seemed
His greatest joys have always been.
The ones that she could share.
We knew that when we saw the

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

(Article 86 contributed by members of the Hastings County Historical Society).

"THE PAST IS DEAD"

Everyone likes a good tour.

And good tours were the order of the day at the Ontario Historical Society's annual meeting held recently in Belleville.

Despite its having been settled considerably later than Kingston, Quinte area, the Peterborough district is rich in historic lore.

Among the highlights of a Peterborough visited were:

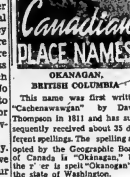
(1) The Court House, a "massive stone building" erected in 1838, the same year that saw the birth of the Hastings County Court House. Like the local building, the Peterborough Court House is picturesquely situated, with terraces leading down to the river.

(2) The Central School, the oldest of the city's publicly schools, the most easterly section having been built exactly a century ago.

(3) The old Hutchinson Home at 270 Brock Street, the first stone house in Peterborough. It was built in 1838 for the father of the Confederationist for Dr. John Hutchinson to keep him from Chemong Lake battlefield.

(4) The Peterborough Lift Lock, the highest hydraulic lift lock in the world, which raises vessels 65 feet in about seven minutes.

(5) St. John's Anglican Church, Hunter Street, where members of Ontario's historical societies attended the unveiling of a plaque in honor of the late historic and beautiful edifice.



All of these are points of interest worth visiting in Peterborough. There are many others as well.

Near Peterborough is the village of Lakefield. Here is the home of Catharine Parr Traill, 19th century authoress of note. And near Lakefield is the site of the home of Susanna Moodie, Catharine's sister and also a writer of distinction, who pioneered in that district in the 1830's, before moving to Belleville, "Roughing It In The Bush" is the story of her stay in the Lakefield area. Although written a century ago, this book is still read by many persons and is considered a classic of Canadian literature.

Until then, the quotation from Mr. Kildare Dobbs' talk at the Peterborough Convention:

"The past is dead. Only through the mind of the historian can it be made to live again."

OKANAGAN,
BRITISH COLUMBIA—

This name was first written Okanagan by David Thompson in 1811 and has subsequently received about 35 different spellings. The spelling adopted by the Geographic Board of Canada is "Okanagan," but the "e" is retained "Okanogan" in the State of Washington.

There are many interpretations of the meaning of the word. The one which enjoys the widest currency is that it means rendezvous and receives this name from the fact that Indians of both sides of the international boundary met there annually for trade. Others state that it is derived from the root "Oke" which means 'chief.' Okanagan Lake and the same root may be found in such Indian names as Okeechobee, Okeechobee and Oklahoma.

The native Indians say Okanagan means "big water," and that is the name of a race to whom the Okanagans owe their many admirable qualities. From the foregoing it may be seen that it is impossible to prove definitely that any one hypothesis is the correct one.

Must Refund Unearned Pay

Fort Erie Letter-Review

Recent ruling of a U.S. federal district court judge will come as a welcome warning to civil servan in that country who loot on the job.

Precedent setting judgment has been handed the U.S. government the right to recover money paid in salary from any public employee who is found not to be duly without good cause. Civil service officials say the decision was found to be spending about half his time away from the office playing golf.

Following dismissal from the service action was instituted against him to recover money paid for work he didn't perform. Section 215 of the Federal Court proceedings came to a tidy $3,128 in salary paid out but never earned.

French Offer Flowery Food

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

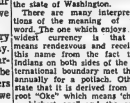
In catering to the tourist trade this year France is making full use of her flowers. Normally flowers are supposed to be admired but a new twist is being given to the enjoyment of flowers by transforming them into gourmet delicacies.

One famous restaurant, for instance, offers a salad featuring tulip stems. Another produces a confection filled with violets. One can even order fritters filled with acacia flowers.

Floral food may appeal to the epicure as interior decoration but for inner satisfaction few items on a menu can beat a juicy steak smothered in onions.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK



The real test of a cook is: can she or he cook liver?

Many a man wearing a tall white hat thinks he is a chef. But liver has him licked. Out-of-the-way places, even in the finest hotels and restaurants, comes a sort of insole. Every place has a name for it around it like a hunting boot checklace. It chews like shoepacks and tastes like it was cooked on it, which most cooks use to try to conceal their failure. You can faintly detect the flavor of liver, but it is a woeful experience altogether.

As for housewives who can cook liver, they are as rare and precious as the whooping crane, which is nearing extinction. Most housewives cut it thick, for the flimsy reason that liver is hard to cut thin. They leave the ducts in, as do many so-called chefs who view it, like it in it butter — flab being a new word I have just coined to describe the condition — or fry it so stiff it curls. The reason most women make a mess of cooking liver is to try to persuade their husbands never to ask for it again. Which, of course, is plain scared of liver.

Liver is for the doit-yourself gourmets, or for that rare wife, fortunate man, the husband of a woman of courage and genius.

Stalin's Pet May Be Right

Montreal Star

Not much has been heard lately about Trofim Lysenko, the Russian geneticist who a few years ago provoked the interfarance of acquired characteristics. In Stalin's time he was top man in his field, president of the All Union academy of Agricultural Science. He fell into disfavor after Stalin died, was relieved of his scientific post. His genetic theories were discredited almost word for word, credited at home. It is now suggested in England that there may be some right on Lysenko's side, that his ideas are not so far off the biological beam.

Lysenko's work has been among plants. He believes, and has tried to show by experiment, that environment is the chief factor in evolution, not natural selection alone as most biologists have contended since Darwin. Lysenko claims to have changed a fall-sown plant into a spring sown by temperature treatment, that he controlling its environment. This is at variance with the Mendelian theory held by most scientists. They believe that each individual, plant or animal, has a fixed genetic constitution which cannot be altered by changes in the environment.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

ALLERGY IS A SENSITIVITY TO SOME SUBSTANCE

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain to me what is allergy. My doctor told me I had allergies in my eyes. He had me to get non-allergenic cosmetics, and now he has me examined for infection go with allergies? Is it a blood disease? Mrs. No, allergy isn't infection. It isn't a blood disease.

Allergy is a sensitivity to some substance which, for most people, is harmless.

Hay fever is a good example of one allergy that is very common. Pollen from ragweed and other certain other plants will have no effect on most of us. But with a hay fever victim — someone who is unduly sensitive to the pollen, or in other words, is allergic to it — the pollen causes the nose and eyes to water. The victim sneezes, may have asthma, and is generally miserable.

Keep in mind that almost anything can prove to be the "wrong" thing for someone. If he or she has an allergy, he has a hard allergy. Also the part of the body that is affected may vary from one person to another. It may be the nose, throat, eyes, skin, mouth, etc.

Some people can't eat certain foods without breaking out in a rash, having their lips swell up, being nauseated, and so on. Some are allergic to milk, or simply a cold. Some can be allergic to germs — they have developed a contract the disease for which the germ is responsible, but they are sensitive to it in the form of the allergic standpoint.

Some are allergic to one kind of soap, but not another. (Generally speaking, if you have such a thing you are better off avoiding the highly scented soaps.)

Some are allergic to every lady whose face was quite badly broken out. It surmised that since it was the area with which she used cosmetics she might be allergic to them. Switching over to not using make-up convinced her. The skin cleared up!

ALLERGY DERMATITIS

That sort of allergy is known as a "contact dermatitis." The trouble appears only in the area in which the body comes in physical contact with the offending material. (There are plenty of cases in which a person has been subject to "contact dermatitis" when touching such seemingly innocent things as the paint on a broom handle, carbon paper, typewriter ribbons, lemons, rubber, and such things. One example of the unhappiest was a woman who was allergic to her girdle.)

Since your trouble is around the eyes, the wise idea is to be suspicious of everything that comes in contact with that region. If avoiding cosmetics doesn't give relief, then avoid shampoos, soap, or anything else that touches the eyes.

One other thing. I hate to be unduly suspicious — but are you sure you have stopped using all cosmetics around the eyes? Mascara? Eye shade? Eye drops? Eyebrow pencil? Powder? Everything that gets in the vicinity of the eyes?

Dear Sir: I had my gallbladder removed several years ago. I am 61 and am taking calcium with vitamin D. Is it possible that stones will develop in the kidneys or bladder? — W. D.

Yes it's possible — but not just because of that. Gall stones and kidney stones are not the same thing. It's like asking whether, because you have calluses on your hands, you are likely to get corns. The two aren't related.

Note to Mrs. B.L.: When the tonsils have been removed, you might as well consider it impossible that anything can be done to let you bear children. I suppose it is possible at utmost cost in money, time and luck, that perhaps a plastic tube could maybe be substituted, but with all of that the chances of success would be very small. I'm sorry — but forget it.

Britain's New Safety Auto

BBC London Letter

Parking difficulties, the cost of repairs and safety on increasingly crowded roads are some of today's motoring problems which look like being answered by the Triplex Safety Auto, soon to be produced by the Standard Motor Company. Speaking about it in the "Science and Industry" program broadcast each week in the BBC's General Overseas Service, Sam Pollock pointed out that it would turn in a circle of only twenty-three feet — considerably less than the space required by a London taxi, generally held to be a model in that respect. "As to cheapness of repairs", he said, "there is unimpeachable evidence that the new car has made a decisive departure from the present 25% per cent on normal premiums. The secret of the Triumph Herald's separate chassis, to which the body panels are bolted. These panels can be removed for repair without extensive dismantling and new ones put in place; and for maintenance the engine has an accessibility formerly only to the front seating cars. The chassis needs no greasing, the Herald will need a change of engine oil every 6,000 miles.

"Other safety features are the telescopic steering column, designed to avoid crash injuries, the bonded fibre structure of the instrument panel, which should not splinter in a crash injuries. With a steering column adjustable for length and a seat adjustable for reach, height, and angle, provision is made for the greater comfort of the driver — so often a factor in the greater safety of himself and his passengers. The rack-and-pinion and road-holding gurlly — again with extra comfort — are attained by independent suspension on all four wheels".

LIFE MUST BE SHARED

"AN who by would win must share it; Happiness was born a twin."

Biologists tell us that cells must grow by division. And through nature there runs the principle that what we give away we keep. What we clutch and hold to for dear life withers and dies. Even in the physical realm we find a seed, decaying, and thus preparing itself to grow first into leaves, then into an abundance of seed. The things in life really worth while cannot be monopolized. Try to monopolize them and they soon deteriorate into something not worth possessing.

"Happiness was born a twin." We can no more imagine a happy man locking himself in an ivory tower and devouring his happiness all alone, than we can imagine a "vampire" locking his pumpkin in a closet and refusing even to take it on a chart forth tales of triumph and exultation. The only way to enjoy happiness is to share it. The only way to keep anything for ourselves is to give it away by doubling it falls to others. The only way to make anything our own is to share it by throwing them away in an utter abandon of good will and helpfulness.

When Christ fed the five thousand, the miracle was not that more occurred as He broke the bread and made ready for its distribution. The only miracle was a parable. Life is made to be shared, not hoarded.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Cycle Conversion by Hydro, Biggest of Kind in World, Will Be Completed July 6

The end sounds simple. Electrical power will be fed into a house in Bowman Lesaide at 60 cycles a second instead of 25 and its lights will no longer flicker. Its lights will no longer flicker.

The publicly owned Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, which embarked on the program 10 years ago, cites an imposing array of statistics to back up its claim that the cycle conversion in a 12,000 - square mile area is the biggest of its kind in the world.

3,500,000 AFFECTED

Hydro estimates it converted 1,025,754 individual homes, business places and factories. Where no other equipment were removed, replaced or rewound, replacement value totalled $368,586 individual adoption of the 60-cycle electrical appliances. Cost is expected to be nearly $500,000,000.

In addition, much of Hydro's own equipment required adjustment for the changeover in central and southwestern Ontario, an area with a population of upwards of 3,500,000 and embracing the province's industrial heartland.

The conversion area takes in Toronto, Hamilton, the Niagara Peninsula, London, Windsor and Sarnia. It stretches from a point just East of Kingston along Lake Ontario and Erie to the Detroit River, Lake St. Clair, St. Clair River, Lake Huron. Its northern boundary is a jagged line from Lake Nipissing north of Goderich, to Dutton, 40 miles north of Toronto on Lake Simcoe.

Also included in the shanty-over were about 20,000 Hydro customers in the Timmins-Kirkland Lake area of Northern Ontario.

With this great area on 25 cycle, Ontario Hydro officials in 1946 realized the time had come to do something. The Georgian Bay region, Eastern and Northern Ontario, most of New York state and the state of Michigan were all on 60 cycle. Should the power supply of the area operating on 25 cycle be cut off, a critical situation would develop.

MANY PROBLEMS

There were other problems. New electrical equipment was being manufactured mainly for 60-cycle users and conversion to 25 - cycle involved expense. Lighter materials could be used on 60-cycle equipment and fuel use it was cheaper. New industries were hesitant to move to the area.

Two firms, and Harold Hobson, a former chairman of the Cornwall Electricity Board of Great Britain, were called upon to survey the situation.

Their conclusion: Conversion was impossible. Big steel and power projects on tap, the decision had to be made whether they should be 25 or 60 cycle. If they were made 25 cycle, the future cost of transforming them would be fantastic.

In 1948, the Ontario government passed the necessary conversion legislation and Hydro, as a first step, created a frequency standardiz a t i o n division which took over organizational and research work. The actual changeover work in homes, farms and factories was delegated to a contractor, Canadian Comstock Company.

A "practice run" was set for May 1949 in a small portion of East York, a Toronto suburb. It went off without a hitch and the following October the work got into full swing beginning with Toronto's eastern suburb of Scarborough township.

Countless problems, ranging from time-saving home economy changes to the inevitable fickleness of some customers, have been overcome since.

POPULATION GROWTH

One problem was an exception ally rapid growth in population and an unexpected increased use of electrical appliances which combined to boost the total cost figure from the original estimate of $191,000,000.

In 1947, the number of Hydro customers was estimated at 764,-500. The figure has since jumped to 1,025,754. In 1953, the first date on estimate of the number of appliances to be converted was set-in-table, Hydro officials counted on 5,227,700. Now it is figured that by July 9 the number will have reached 6,956,596.

Problems were provided by 'do-it - yourself enthusiasts who offered unusual and ingenious devices for conversion. There was the case of a deaf Windsor woman who had rigged to a door bell a device that would pound bolts on the floor, vibrating it enough that she could tell when someone was ringing. The conversion experts worked that one out.

If took an average of two hours to convert appliances for the average domestic household. But most housewives didn't realize it were pretty well decided months ahead what was going to be done with their home.

HOUSEHOLD CHECK

Eight months prior to "cut day," Hydro's term for the change to 60 cycles was made in a specific area, a householder received a list of standard electrical equipment to check off if installed in his house. A month or six weeks later an inventory man took a list of what had to be converted. Two weeks before cut day a further check was made on new equipment or appliances.

On cut day, crews began at 8 a.m. to disconnect all frequency-sensitive appliances in homes to be converted that day—the average number for a crew was 150 daily.

Theoretically not all would be finished on cut-day and clean-up crews took over the same evening if necessary or within the next few days.

In practice, say Hydro officials, customers have been agreeable and co-operative.

Sunday School Picnic

HOLLOWAY UNITED

Last Saturday afternoon the annual Sunday School picnic for Holloway Street United Church took place at Cedardale Park. A large cavalcade of cars carried the goodly number of Sunday school scholars, workers and parents. All present were pleased to see the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. Coleman, who is recovering from a recent operation.

As usual, the first attraction on such occasions was the races, later, and the children participated in various water sports for the first hour or so after lunch. The diverse delegation of the usual races were commenced, under the direction of Sunday School superintendent Mr. Alf Hughes and his willing helpers from the Sunday School staff. Up until this time the weather had been ideal, but ever, about halfway through the program of races a terrific thunderstorm commenced which sent everyone scurrying for cover.

The storm did not apparently dampen the ardor of the young fry who were the best of the adverse conditions. Picnic lunches were eaten in the shelter of buses and cars whilst the Sunday School staff dispensed soft drinks, ice cream and candy to all who attended.

RACES

Winners of the races were as follows:

Girls 4 years and under, Cheryl Hosking, Mary Bailey; boys 4 years and under, Ronnie Denike, Philip Bowers, Trevor King; girls 5 years, Nancy Langabeer, Susan King, Marilyn Hosking; girls 6 years, Helen Clarke, Johnny Meighan; girls 6, Kathryn Ford, Sylvia Dibby, Gail Hosking; boys 6, David Thompson, Freddie Hutchinson; girls 7, Bonnie Cullingham, Marilyn Townsend, Marilyn May; boys 7, Keith Wilson, Keith Hosking, Dennis McCormack; girls 8, Kathryn Kerrich, Marion Crewe, Nancy Van Allen; boys 8, Paul Hutt, Jack Rodier, Bobby Weaver; girls 9, Barbara Young; boys 9, Richard Hughes, Trevor Wilson, Douglas McCormack; girls 10, Linda Lucas and Susan Van Allen (tie), Maxine Wilson, Linda Waters; boys 10, David McCormack, Billy Hutt; girls 11, Linda Fairman, Carol Hughes, Valerie Burnett; boys 11, Rodney Carter, Harold Townsend, Victor Hughes; girls 12, Sally Billings, Darlene Trubridge, Donna Sloss; boys 12, John Rodier, Garry May, Richard May; girls 13-14, Carol Demorest, Linda Sloe, Pat Sloe; boys 13-14, Richard Herring, Jack Thompson.

The remainder of the races were rained out and will have to wait until next year for completion.

Y's Men's Club President From Jerusalem Visits Here

Israel is a growing nation—and a very vigorous one — dedicated to a democratic way of life. This is the impression which one gains from Zeev Ladror, president of the Y's Men's Club of the YMCA in Jerusalem. One also gains the impression that with men of Mr. Ladror's enthusiasm and earnest dedication, the nation's goals will be achieved. The technical adviser in textiles to the Israeli Ministry of Commerce and Planning is the guest of the Belleville YMCA for several days in this city and brings with him a message of confidence in the development of the young nation at the eastern end of the Mediterranean Sea.

Mr. Ladror has recently attended the International Convention of Y's Men's Clubs at Green Lake, Wisconsin, along with 31 other overseas delegates. He is now making a tour of various YMCA's in Ontario and the eastern United States prior to his return home. This is the first visit to the North American continent and many are the impressions which he has received of the Canadian way of life.

"The atmosphere is delightful," stated the English-educated Jew of Czechoslovakian, "less formal than European countries." The greenness of Canada's countryside and also the immense amounts of water particularly impresses this visitor, whose new homeland is fairly arid with a semi-tropical climate. Commenting further on the Canadian scene the guest stated that Canadians have "the knowledge that you are working to live, not living to work" and that this makes for a better society.

IN ISRAEL

Speaking on the activities of the YMCA in Israel, Mr. Ladror stated that it was an all unusual that this organization should exist and be supported in a nation whose population is basically of another faith. The purpose of the visitor's YMCA, as with almost any YMCA or-ganization is "to make good citizens with respect for all religions." Education plays a very strong and vital role in the development of Israel today. It is the major unifying factor in harmonizing the thoughts and ideals of the people who have come to Israel from many different backgrounds. The YMCA plays a "tremendous" part in the educational and cultural activities of the Jewish people and is recognized as one of the leading spiritual influences in the community, stated Mr. Ladror, who also does some writing in his spare time.

The Jerusalem YMCA serves people of four different religious backgrounds — Jewish; and western, eastern and Armenian Christians. This leads to some interesting problems of co-ordination for the secretary of the local YMCA, what with there being three Christmases, and three New Years around which activities have to be filled according to Mr. Ladror. The city of Jerusalem has a population of 149,000 people. During the course of the year the citizens of this city use their YMCA a total of 900,000 times according to the latest statistics.

FIAN NAZARETH "Y"

Currently a drive is on for the provision of a YMCA in Nazareth under the city of buildings "Brotherhood" program of the YMCA's in Canada and the United States. Plans for constructing this "Y" it is hoped that some of the Moslems in Israel will also be served, according to Mr. Ladror. Currently the YMCA is finding it very difficult to provide for new members and has a large waiting list due to its success as a beneficial and needed organization to the new nation and its people.

Speaking again on Canadians and Canada, Mr. Ladror commented that the Israeli people hold Canadians in very high regard because of the exceedingly fine job which the Canadian army was doing in the United Nations police action along the Israel border. The Israeli people will not forget the brave sacrifice of Colonel Flint, who sacrificed his life in an attempt to rescue two wounded Israeli policemen whilst their patrol was under fire on an Arab border patrol, stated Mr. Ladror, adding that his nation went in to mourning over the incident. The people of Israel also look to Canada as an example of a democratic nation and wish to create a similar democracy in their own country.

Following his visit in Belleville (today) he will be the guest of the Jewish people in the community.) Mr. Ladror will be the guest of the Y's Men's Clubs in Watertown, N.Y. and then in Wilmington, Delaware. Prior to coming to Belleville he also visited the "Y" organizations in Sheboygan, Wisconsin (the brother club of the Jerusalem "Y"); Sarnia, who had an informal reception lunch for their guest yesterday noon. In the front row are: Di Diamantides, secretary of the Belleville YMCA (left); Mr. Ladror, and Tony Lepore. In back are: Bill Holway, president of the Belleville Y's Men (left) and Doug Sim.

Thomas Joseph Lally was called to the Bar by the Chief Justice of Ontario last Thursday. Thomas is the son of Mrs. Lally and the late E. B. Lally, of 237 John Street, Belleville.

Mr. Lally is a graduate of St. Michael's High School, Belleville, and obtained his Bachelor of Arts Degree from the University of Toronto. He then entered Osgoode Hall and graduated last June, pass First Class.

Tom was active in local sports, and was a member or football, hockey and Junior baseball championship teams. In University he was the editor of the college newspaper.

Mr. Lally is going to practice law in Belleville with Richard E. Barrett, 27 Campbell St.

Ontario: Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Kitchener, Guelph and Acton.

Following his North American tour, which was made possible by the Bishop's Fund, created to aid overseas delegates to attend YMCA conventions, the father of four children will return to his home via England, Holland and Switzerland.

School Teacher Presented With Wall Clock

2nd. THURLOW—Miss Campbell and pupils entertained the parents on Thursday afternoon for a social get together. Prior to closing of school, games and contests were enjoyed with the pupils conducting several contests. Scrambled words contest, prizes won by Mrs. F. Mitchell on draw with 3; Rose contest, Mr. Douglas Atkins in draw with 4; Animal contest, Margaret King; Scrambled words of a wedding, Mrs. Earl Grille.

A sudden turn in events took place when a surprise was tendered by pupils, parents and friends of S.S. No. 3, with Mrs. Manley Mitchell, calling for order and asking Miss Campbell to take the seat of honor at the front.

On behalf of the pupils, Mary Allen Clapp, read an appropriate address and presented on behalf of pupils and S.S. No. 3 by Marcena and Carolyne Mitchell and Mary Allen Clapp, expressing regret of Miss Campbell's leaving and mentioned the many happy hours spent during the past two year term as teacher of S.S. No. 3 Thurlow, also expressing happiness for her in her approaching marriage, after which Phyllis Askey, presented her with a beautiful dining room electric wall clock. Though completely taken by surprise, Miss Campbell expressed sincere appreciation for the lovely gift which she will always cherish, as a fond and loving memory of her two year term in S.S. No. 3.

Treats with ice cream and soft drinks by mothers and a social time with visitors furnishings of peanut bread, tea, were enjoyed. A social hour was spent and on departing, every one expressed best wishes for her in her future marriage.

Miss Campbell is to be married in July, Marlene Mitchell, Mary Allen Clapp, Carolyne Mackey, will be serving at the wedding luncheon later.

A lovely card with the names of her pupils and their parents and friends on it, for her future memories was presented.

DESERONTO — The annual dinner for the graduating class of the public school was held in the Legion Hall on Thursday night of last week. The meal was supplied by the Home and Education Association which also arranged the program and served the food. This event is fast becoming the school event of the year and is splendid incentive for the children of the school.

The guest speaker this year was Dr. K. Douglas, FRCS, of Belleville, and seated with him at the head table were Mayor and Mrs. Sweetman, Dr. and Mrs. D. C. McVicker, Canon Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Harvey and Mr. Runnalls.

The program opened with the National Anthem after which grace was said by Canon Coleman. The toast to the Queen, was given by Mayor Sweetman. The toast to the children was by A. B. Harvey, chairman of the board, to which Edilda Law and Bob Burkitt replied.

LAMP OF LEARNING

The presentation of the Lamp of Learning was made by Mr. Runnalls to Jane Fothergill and Raymond Bowerman. The graduating class then stood and introduced themselves to the meeting.

The chairman of the board, A. B. Harvey, in a talk briefly to the pupils, Dr. D. C. McVicker introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Douglas who was introduced by Mrs. Edith Therrien of the Board of Education. The thanks to the Home and School were given by Linda Hodges and Evans Sloan.

The chairman for the evening, Dr. D. C. McVicker, thanked the Ladies Auxiliary of the Legion for their assistance; the conveners of the banquet for their splendid effort, and the grade 9 and 10 girls for serving.

An additional feature was the presentation of gifts to Barbara Bell and Peter Dimmell for perfect attendance in grades 7 and 8 during the school year.

In his introduction of Dr. Douglas, Dr. McVicker told the gathering that the speaker had been born in England where he received his education, graduating from the University of Edinborough in 1945. He served in the Royal Navy and came to Canada in 1953 and served in the R.C.A.F. and came to Belleville in 1956.

HAVE DEFINITE OBJECTIVE

Dr. Douglas, in an interesting talk to the pupils, told of his own education in England. He attended prep school which corresponds to public school, and he public school which corresponds to high school. He advised the pupils to work hard and have a definite objective. He referred to the simplicity of the English language and quoted the famous words of Wilson Churchill, who said, "Give us the tools and we'll finish the job," when he could have said, "we will furnish us with the necessary implements we will culminate the objective." He told the children that education is likened to the tempering of steel before a nail will bend a drill resists.

In all, his talk was most delightful and interesting and thoroughly enjoyed by both children and adults present.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Freeman announce the marriage of their daughter Penina, to Mr. Andrew Fresebourger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Fresebourger, Budapest.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Vallean and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Shay, of Halifax, Nova Scotia, also Mr. George Shortt, of Carleton Place, were dinner guests on Tuesday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Vallean, Farley Avenue.

Mrs. S. D. Scripture, Toronto, spent the past few days visiting friends in the city and district.

Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Martin, Peterborough, who have been spending several days with the latter's sister, Mrs. W. S. Fairhead, have returned home.

W.I. Hears Talk on "The Eyes"

WALLBRIDGE — The June meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Everett Phillips with a large number of members and visitors present. The president, Mrs. Ray Shorey, presided and opened the meeting.

Several items of business were discussed and a bus trip to the Health Unit at Kingston, and the T.V. studios in Kingston on September 23rd has been arranged.

Mrs. Ray Shorey introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Walcott, eye specialist, of Picton. Dr. Walcott's interesting and informative talk on the 'eyes' from birth to old age. He explained the normal condition of the eyes as well as the abnormal and diseases which are likely during the different age groups. Almost all infants are born far sighted, this is usually outgrown by the age of 7 or 8.

The pre-school child's eyes should be examined and again in the teens. If found normal they usually remain that way up to the age of 40 to 45 at which time there has a change takes place in the focus and glasses are often needed. This condition tends to worsen up to the age of 55 when it levels off and there is little change up to about 70 years of age. Then a second sight occurs and near sightedness takes place and some people can throw away their glasses as they do not need them any more.

The eyes should be checked every five years after the age of 45. He also explained the most common diseases of the eyes and how they are treated and said, "If nature warns don't put it off, have your eyes examined."

Mrs. Irish thanked Dr. Walcott for coming and speaking to the Institute and presented him with a small token of appreciation.

Mrs. McMullen introduced Mrs. George Tucker, who spoke on the "Hastings County Folk School," which she attended. This also was very interesting as she told about the daily routine as well as some amusing experiences.

The hostess and committee served refreshments and a social half-hour enjoyed by all.

St. Joseph's Parish Holds Annual Picnic

St. Joseph's Parish picnic was held at Presqu'ile on Sunday with approximately 400 children and adults in attendance. The children were all presented with soft drinks, ice cream and candy. The weather was beautiful for the occasion and everyone enjoyed themselves.

Weddings

MARTIN-RICKS

MARMORA — Peterborough Free Methodist Church was the setting for the marriage of Miss Marlene Joan Ricks, and Ralph David Martin on Friday, June 12th. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noble Ricks and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Martin of Marmora.

Given in marriage by her father, she was charming in her ballerina-length gown of white chiffon with bolero and emphasizing with a sweetheart neckline a bustle ba k. A tiara headdress of sheer petals held the chapel-length veil of nylon illusion and she carried a bouquet of red and white roses.

Her twin sister, Miss Margaret Ricks, was her only attendant, dressed in a floor-length chiffon featuring a fitted bodice and skirt with an all-over lacing picture hat and lace gauntlets. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Harvey Martin was his brother's best man and the ushers Messrs. Jack and Robert Hicks, brothers of the bride were ushers.

Mrs. J. Elliott furnished the wedding music and Mrs. Ross Harrington, as soloist, sang, "The Marriage Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

For the reception at Trenton home the bride's mother wore a blue silk shantung dress with pink accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore a floral print in crepe with matching hat and white accessories. They both were corsages of pink and white carnations.

GERELUS — BEDORE

MARMORA — In a double-ring ceremony in Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church, Marmora, on June 20th Miss Gena Bedore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dermont Bedore, of Marmora Township, became the bride of Fred Gerelus, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gerelus, of Winnipeg.

The Rev. W. P. Healey, P.P., performed the ceremony before floral arrangements of pink and white and red peonies.

Mrs. Hugh Brady supplied the wedding music and sang, "Mother At Thy Feet Is Kneeling," "Blessed Be This Night" and "Ave Maria."

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was gowned in a floor-length dress of white organza over taffeta designed with a bodice of imported French lace featuring a scalloped neck line adorned with seed pearls. The long sleeves were "V" pointed over the wrists. The skirt was full with an chapel length train and was hooped crinoline, and enhanced with medallions of seed pearls.

Her veil of silk illusion fell to the finger tips from a tiara of Miss Bedore's mother's wedding white prayer book crested with an orchid and streamers of ribbon bordered with pearls and lace.

Mrs. Leo Bedore was matron of honor for her sister-in-law and the bridesmaids were Mrs. John Gerelus, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Miss Doris Bedore, sister of the bride. All were identical dresses of rose organza over satin in waltz-length, featuring shirred cummerbunds and bows of self material; bouffant skirts, white hats with trimmings of pink roses and pink carnations completed their attire.

The groomsman was Mr. Douglas Bedore, brother of the bride, and the ushers were: Messrs. James Bedore, and Roland Palat.

Mrs. Bedore received the guests in the Parish Hall wearing a medium blue brocade gown with white accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's eldest sister, Miss Christine Gerelus, who wore a floral ensemble with white accessories. Both wore corsages of pink roses.

Following the dinner, the party motored to Marble Point Pavilion, and a social afternoon was enjoyed with an orchestra for dancing.

For their honeymoon through the Northern United States and to Winnipeg, the bride chose a white linen sheath dress with skirt embroidered in mauve to match the

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Lucas N. — She is too ambitious.

Nora N. — He is short-changing our family.

Lucas N. — My wife and I are having a serious disagreement about my future.

I am a schoolteacher and I love my work. During the summer I am an assistant supervisor at a boy's camp — work I also love. My two boys come up to this camp with me and they have a great vacation.

I don't make much money, but I do have quite a bit of fun. Our kids aren't the best dressed around here and our home is pretty shabby, but I feel we have a pretty good family life — that is, we could have a good family life if Nora didn't beef so much. She feels that I can and should make more money, that I lack ambition, drive, etc. That may be true, but we had enough to make up for the two of us. I feel she is overambitious. That doesn't make for a happy life.

Nora N. — Lucas leaves quite a lot out of the picture. For one thing, he mentions our two boys, but not our four daughters. He and the boys have a great time. I'll agree, but when I see our twin 16-year-olds going without the things all the average girls in our community have, I'm just not about ready to blow my top.

I don't think I'm being unreasonable when all I ask is that Lucas have the ordinary ambition that other male schoolteachers have. One writes textbooks, Another is studying to become a principal. Another has a small business on the side. They all do things to supplement their income.

Only Lucas is so big-hearted that he can contribute his time to the scouts and other community activities. He has done more for our town than any other person — all for free.

The Council: If Lucas is really as contented as he claims we don't think there is much point disturbing his peace. He must have many friends and his children surely share in the aura of good feeling that surrounds him.

We have a sneaking surpicion, however, that Lucas must be suffering from a few pangs of conscience. He may think everything would be fine if Nora would just be quiet, but he can't fail to recognize that it must be rather hard for her to keep quiet. She is the one who has to stretch that schoolteacher's salary to feed, clothe and sustain a family of eight. He plunks down the paycheck and leaves the rest to her.

It is possible that Lucas feels so guilty about shortchanging his family that he is forced to run away and bury himself in as much activity as possible. He finds some justification in the fact that he is making a contribution to the community.

Lucas should try to confront his own feelings and way of life as honestly as possible. We think he is likely to decide that he has been a bit too much of a burden on his wife and that it bothers him. He could enjoy his work and his outside activities more if he also felt he was doing the best possible for his family. Too much ambition may be a harmful thing, but the lack of a normal amount can also be corrosive to the personality.

92-Year-Old Artist Has Definite Ideas

Miss Smith, whose flower paintings hang in the homes of men like Prime Minister Diefenbaker and George Drew, Canada's high commissioner in London, says abstract art has little meaning for her.

"For myself," she says, "I don't like this kind of art. I prefer a rose. I like to be able to recognize what I am looking at. After all, it's pretty hard to improve on nature."

"I'm afraid that too many artists who are not really good painters try to hide this fact by turning to abstract," she feels. "And what is worse, they are getting away with it.

HAVE SALES IN MIND

"They know that if they went into traditional work, it wouldn't be good enough to sell. So they turn to non-objective painting in order to make sales. And the public is buying it. Mind you, I don't want you to think that I put all non-objective painters in this category. I don't!"

For this reason, although she will paint "something modern" if a customer wants it, she confines almost all her work to painting flowers and nature as she sees it.

A lot of people seem to agree with Miss Smith. Her paintings of flowers are selling faster than ever now, with pansies the favorite.

"People seem to love pansies," she observes. "I've painted so many of them that I guess I could paint them in my sleep. But, no matter how often I paint a flower, I don't tire of it. Each one has its own individual beauty."

PAINTS FOR HOURS

Starting early, she paints all day. When artificial lights must be turned on, she sketches the flowers she will paint the next day.

In achieving success as a painter, Miss Smith overcame the handicap of double vision from which she has suffered since birth.

"But surprisingly enough," she says, "my vision seems to be improving."

A Toronto greeting-card firm is putting out note-paper featuring Miss Smith's floral designs as well as another set by Emily Sartain of Victoria, B.C.

At present Miss Smith sees no prospect on letting up on her vigorous career. "I hope I'll still be painting when I'm 100," she says firmly.

Main Dish Pizza Pie of Italian Ancestry

by Mary Moore

Sometimes I think working with yeast misbrey is the most satisfactory department of cooking.

When I knead yeast dough, I can punch it and lunge into it and turn it over and slam it down on the board, and while producing a thing of beauty, work out all my frustrations. It is a little like getting rid of your sunplus feelings by scrubbing the kitchen floor on your hands and knees.

Do any of you girls understand me? Want to have a workout making dough into genuine Italian Pizza Pie for Sunday supper or for a midnight lunch for your next party?

ITALIAN-STYLE PIZZA PIE:

1 ½ cups sifted, all-purpose flour, 2 tablespoons skim milk powder, 1 package granular yeast, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup lukewarm water, ¼ cup soft butter.

Sift together flour, salt and powdered milk into mixing bowl. Sprinkle yeast on lukewarm water and stir until dissolved. Add to flour mixture along with butter. Mix thoroughly. Knead about 5 minutes. Drop ball of dough onto a 10-inch pizepan (same pan used later for baking). Cover with tea towel and let stand in warm lace until double in size. Punch down center with fist and spread to ¼-inch thickness over pizepan. Cover with filling.

PIZZA FILLING:

1 tin (8-oz.) tomato sauce, 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese, ½ teaspoon oregano, 1 6-oz. package of Mozzarella or mild Cheddar cheese, sliced or grated, ½ teaspoon Tabasco sauce, 2 tablespoons olive oil, 2 teaspoons chopped parsley.

Mix together tomato sauce, Tabasco, Parmesan cheese, olive oil, oregano and parsley. Spread over pizza dough, leaving ½-inch edge of uncovered dough. Place sliced or grated cheese on tomato mixture. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve into pie wedges immediately. Makes one 10-inch pie.

QUICK SNACK PIZZAS:

2 English muffins or large hamburg buns, 6 slices Mozzarella or mild Cheddar cheese, 4 teaspoons olive oil, ½ cup diced fresh tomatoes, drained, garlic salt, Parmesan cheese, ½ teaspoon Tabasco sauce.

Split in two English muffins or hamburg buns. Toast until lightly browned. Place toasted buns on halves. Top each with a cheese slice. Sprinkle with garlic salt and Parmesan cheese. Combine olive oil and Tabasco sauce, pour 1 teaspoon of the mixture over each "pizza". Bake in hot oven at 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

WHO TAKES CARE OF THE GUEST-BOOK?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Tell us please: Who usually is given the responsibility of the guest-book at the wedding reception? Thank you. — S. R.

There is no definite rule about this. Sometimes this responsibility is given to the best man, sometimes to the maid of honor. I don't at all agree with either judgment, because these two important members of the wedding party have their special social duties which should be keeping them busy. I recommend that the bride-to-be, well before the wedding date, should ask a close friend of hers (not an attendant or, perhaps even better, a woman relative to take on this duty as her only responsibility, being sure about the pen-equipment, and being sure that every guest signs.

ON SENDING PRESENTS "TO MERE ACQUAINTANCES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Lately, my husband and I have been very much surprised to receive formal wedding invitations to ceremony and reception from people we do not know at all well, really more acquaintances than friends. Could we be considered discourteous not to send a present in response to such an invitation? — W. B.

No. There is no obligation whatever to send a wedding present to a mere acquaintance. The only exception to this might be (but need not necessarily be) an invitations from an important business or professional associate of your husband.

Today the reason why we may be receiving wedding invitations from people we don't know very well is because very often only invitations are sent, and not, as formerly, invitations to relatives and friends, and formal announcements to acquaintances. Very often today no announcement are sent.

SHOULD AIRLINE STEWARDESS BE TIPPED?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me this: What is the customary tip to an airline stewardess? I've never heard anyone say, and I can't find out. — M. G.

The airline stewardess is never tipped. (And, incidentally, neither is the driver of the airline bus that drives passengers from the terminal to the airport . . . there is usually a charge for this trip, but no tip is given beyond the trip-charge.)

TODAY'S TIP TO THE BRIDE

The bride who endears herself to you is the one who, as she greets you in the receiving-line at the reception, has the charming grace to remember the wedding present you sent her, remembers to thank you again. Her good memory, her good thought, and her good words show her good manners.

DESERONTO

School Honors Departing Head With Gifts

DESERONTO — Friday, the last day of school for the children of the town, was also the last day for the principal, D. A. Runnalls, at the Public School, here. Mr. Runnalls has accepted a position elsewhere and he will be replaced by his former assistant, Mr. Roach.

Unknown to Mr. Runnalls, the children assisted by their teachers and Mrs. McTavish, their musical instructor, had arranged a presentation to show their appreciation for his work while in Deseronto. The amplifying system had been set up at the entrance to the school and shortly after the classes convened for the afternoon the pupils all filed out and formed a square at the school entrance.

To remind him of his forthcoming marriage, Mr. Runnalls was escorted to the place of honor by a wedding party represented by Heather Punchard as the bride, Michael Sherman as the bridegroom and Peter Thelman as the best minister. Then a pupil from each room in turn spoke briefly to Mr. Runnalls of their disappointment at losing him, and thanked him for all he had done for them. Those speaking for their classmates were: Lynnette Thompson; Ronnie Claus; David Thompson; Gordon Gray; Bobbie Beecher; Don Armitage; Margaret Harvey; David Neal, and Geoffrey Batt. Dorothy Crabbe spoke on behalf of the classes, who had worked under the guidance of Mr. Runnalls, and Jane Fotbergill, on behalf of Grade 8 of this year.

A choral group composed of a number from each class sang a song composed by grades 3, 6, 7 and 8 and sung to the music of Norwegian Dance No. 2. Then Mr. Runnalls was presented with a lounge chair and a pair of slippers on behalf of the students. He had previously been presented with a wallet from the Home and School Association, and a set of luggage by the teachers.

Mr. Runnalls briefly thanked the students and spoke of the pleasure of working with such a fine group. He said his association with both pupils and parents had been most pleasant during the five years he had been in Deseronto, and he intended to keep in touch with his many friends even though he would no longer be associated with the town.

DESERONTO

Indians Take Major Step In Own Affairs

DESERONTO—In a brief ceremony, impressive in its simplicity, the Indians of Tyendinaga Reserve turned another page in their already long and colorful history. On Thursday of last week Chief Isaac Hill, on behalf of the Band Council, presented the first cheque to be issued by the Mohawk Council, from their own band funds. The cheque was presented to Fire Chief James McVicker of the town of Deseronto in payment for fire fighting services rendered by the town on the Reserve.

The fire last occurred at the farm of Russell Brant and the cost of the fire department was not provided for by the insurance so the band assumed the responsibility.

Assisting in the ceremony was Mrs. Phyllis Green, recently appointed by the band council as treasurer, and also in attendance were Bennett Brant and Cedric Maracle, two of the councillors.

Since the granting of the right to handle their own funds, the Band of Tyendinaga Reserve has been setting up the necessary procedures for this purpose. The Band is now functioning much the same as a municipal council. Accounts are presented to the council and, if found correct, are ordered paid by motion of the council. This is a major step in the program to turn over to the Indians the management of their own affairs.

HUNGER STRIKE ENDS

PARIS (Reuters) — A hunger strike by 700 Algerians in French jails who demand to be recognized as political prisoners ended yesterday. Lawyers negotiating the prisoners' case the Justice ministry was studying "measures aimed at recognition of their status as political detainees" and that they had been assured that these measures would shortly be applied in all French prisons.

TO VISIT KHRUSHCHEV

LONDON (Reuters) — Labor Party Leader Hugh Gaitskell plans to visit Moscow for talks with Premier Nikita Khrushchev and other Kremlin leaders Aug. 29, it was authoritatively learned Thursday night. Gaitskell will take with him Aneurin Bevan, the Labor party treasurer and foreign affairs spokesman, and ATTENTION PREMIUM GAS BUYERS!

HERE'S HOW TO FIND OUT!

Next time you need gas, drive up to the Sunoco Custom Blending pump. Ask the attendant which of the Sunoco blends is recommended for your car by the selector chart. Chances are it will be a blend priced from 4¢ to 6¢ a gallon less than you've been paying elsewhere for "premium". Try a tankful. If it gives performance just as smooth, powerful and knock-free as you're accustomed to—you know you've been wasting money on unused octane!

American Sweep Races at English Henly

By RALPH DALY

HENLEY-ON – THAMES, Eng. (Reuter) — American oarsmen Thursday swept the River Thames in five out of six races for their second day of victory in the annual Henley regatta.

Only Princeton University's Cottage Club four failed to beat their English rivals, losing a bishop 100 yards from the finish line.

Star performer of the day was Navy Lieutenant Harry Parker of Philadelphia, winning in the Diamond Sculls the symbol of world supremacy for single oarsmen he won comfortably over English champion Jim Russell. But Parker's time was a slow eight minutes 54 seconds for the one-mile, 550-yard course.

Harvard University's Varsity eight, the favorites to win the Grand Challenge Cup, trounced the London Rowing Club with a superb display of controlled power.

DEFENDING CHAMPS

Harvard's lightweight crew holders of the Thames Cup for eights, turned on the steam to beat Oriel College, Oxford.

The Union Boat Club of Boston, also in the Thames Cup, had to work harder to beat England's Vesta University by a half a length in one of the day's closest races.

Belmont Hill School of Boston won its heat for the Wyfold Cup for fours against London's Imperial College by 1¼ lengths.

The Princeton four lost a heartbreaking struggle to London's St. Thomas hospital when bow man A. McGowan's oar slipped in lock as the two crews approached the finish line. St. Thomas shot past to an easy win.

SNOWY JULY 1

DENVER (AP) — Early morning temperatures plunged to below freezing in parts of Colorado and Wyoming Wednesday. The lowest trading was 23 degrees at Fraser High in the Colorado Rockies, 73 miles west of here.

Ezzard Charles Fights Cop For $300 Purse

CINCINNATI (AP) — Old Ezzard Charles, a tired and somewhat blubbery former heavyweight champion who says he still has the fire of a fighter in his heart, enters the ring again tonight against a lumbering 255-pound policeman.

Charles, who as a challenger and as a champion participated in three of the largest money bouts in ring history, will meet Dave Ashley, a cop in suburban Lockland, Ohio.

They will box 10 rounds or less in a high school gymnasium and Charles, who attracted $1,101,116 in three fights between 1950 and 1952, will get a few hundred bucks.

Charles, now 37, says this will be the start of another comeback. He believes he is in fine physical condition.

Woman Beats Salmon in Wrestling Bout

AMHERST, N. S. (CP)— Town councillor Earl of Lower King hooked a salmon in River Philip. Using a three-ounce glass spinning rod with 100 feet of line, he played the fish for three hours.

Then, in a last - minute dash for glory, the salmon snapped the line.

King's wife jumped into the stream without a lifejacket and grabbed the salmon by the gills and wrestled it to shore. It weighed 20 pounds, was 38 inches long and 18 inches around.

"Mrs. King hooked another large one in the same pool a couple of days later," Mr. King said in a footnote. "But it got away."

Eastern "Shots" Did Not Place

EDMONTON (CP) — Three shotgunners from Western Canada and Tom Oliver of Toronto were the only shooters to run 100 straight as the Canadian trapshooting championships Class A singles competition reached the quarter-way mark Thursday.

Eastern gunners did not place in Class B singles in the Donalson championships which continue until Sunday.

Besides Mr. Oliver, president of the Canadian Trapshooting Association, George Cemerovic of Saskatoon, H. C. Bower of Calgary, and Eugene H. Cuker of Nelson, B.C., rounded out the quarter of 100 straight. Cemerovic is a former Olympic team trapshooter.

CANCEL SEARCH

LEAMINGTON (CP) — Mersea Township police said Wednesday night the search for a Leamington woman missing from her home since Monday has been called off today on the basis of information indicating the woman took her own life. They said submarine and shore searches for Mrs. Roy Bavidge, 37, were found near her husband's car at the southern tip of Point Pelee National Park.

AT THE BELLE — If you enjoy a good hearty laugh, make sure you clear the decks for Jerry Lewis' new, fast-paced laugh hit, "Don't Give Up the Ship", playing tonight and Saturday, at the Air Conditioned Belle Theatre. Dina Merrill, Mickey Shaughnessy and Diana Spencer has co-starring roles.

Ingy Surprised At Odds on Second Fight

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson of Sweden expressed surprise Thursday at the early 7-5 odds against him in his rematch Friday night with Floyd Patterson.

"I don't understand such things but I'm not worrying about it," he said at a press conference. "We haven't any betting in Sweden."

Johansson said he will "fight to conquer."

The 26-year - old champ remarked his battle with Patterson wasn't his toughest fight. He recorded that distinction to a bout in Germany with Joe Bygraves four years ago. Ingo won it on points.

Movie Column

Roman Epic Wackiest Film Project in Recent Times

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Strange things were happening on the Spartacus set—Tony Curtis in a London club reciting poetry to a jazz background.

This served to confirm my suspicions that the Roman epic is one of the wackiest film projects in recent times.

Production started in January, and there's a question if it will ever stop. "Sir," Curtis confessed an aside. "They're planning a combination finish — a picture and Christmas party."

Not so, said Kirk Douglas, whose company is making Spartacus for Universal-International.

"But we're talking in terms of seasons now, not months," he said. "We will shoot through the summer and finish in the autumn."

ANIMALS RUN TOO

The actors seem the least bit concerned that the movie runs on and on. Nor did Marlon Brando, whose One-Eyed Jacks finally finished after six months. Average for a big production is six to eight weeks. As one wag put it, this is what happens when the animals start running the show.

He defended the lengthy shooting schedule by saying it was a monumental chore to arrange schedules for such stars as Laurence Olivier, Charles Laughton, Peter Ustinov, Jean Simmons and Tony Curtis.

The picture had resumed after a 10-day layoff because of illnesses of Douglas, Curtis and Simmons. They were shooting a campfire scene in which Curtis was doing some entertainment.

They performed some sleight-of-hand tricks over from his role as The Great Houdini. Then he was called upon to recite poetry. Taking a tip from the beatniks, he did it to a jazz record. He'll redo the sound later for the sound track with more appropriate mood music.

Will Telecast 28 Games Also Grey Cup

TORONTO (CP)—The CBC announced Thursday it will telecast 21 Big Four and seven Western Interprovincial Football Union games during the 1959 season, plus playoff contests and the Grey Cup finals Nov. 28.

Big Four games will be available from the Lakehead to St. John's, Nfld., over both English and French networks. Western games will be seen by fans from Winnipeg to the Pacific.

The CBC said there was a possibility that WIFU and Big Four playoff games will be seen coast-to-coast if the dates of the games do not conflict.

Blackout restrictions, imposed at the request of the leagues, will be in effect within a 50-mile radius of the city where the game is played. Transmissions of games being played outside the 50-mile radius can still be seen, however.

The CBC several weeks ago was reported to have paid nearly $315,000 for the TV rights to the Big Four games and more than $100,000 for the WIFU TV rights.

Officials Send Wire to Prince Philip

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two members of a committee managing Canada's Pan-American Games trials here sent a telegram to Prince Philip Thursday saying that cancellation of an equestrian test at Rio de Janeiro by the queen and her husband indicated a failure on the part of the federal government to encourage national physical fitness.

Dr. Frank Selkirk, chairman and Philip G. Nutter, invitations chairman, said their message was prompted by a speech the prince made in Toronto this week in which he told Canadians are not as fit as they could be.

Prince Philip told the Canadian Medical Association Tuesday that participation in physical exercise should be subsidized and more recreational facilities provided.

Lacrosse

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Peterborough Mercurys won their 11th straight junior Lacrosse Association senior game Thursday night as they defeated Weltand - Crowland Switsons 15-13. Mercurys now hold a 12-point lead over second-place Oshawa Reps.

Bob Allan and Bobby Curtis each had four for the winners. Cyril Coombs and Lou Nickel added two apiece while Paul Forbes, Lou Ferguson and Jackie Farley had singles.

District Soccer Leagues Results

Northern Electric racked up a 6-2 victory over Batawa last night to remain undefeated in soccer league match at Batawa.

The visitors opened the scoring with a pair of goals in the first half of the game by F. Evenden and Isaenc.

Batawa came back strongly after half-time to even the score on goals by Cazzar and Vajda. Northern sewed up the win however with Fancey booting a pair of goals for the final 4-2 score.

Elroy Face Named Player Of the Month

CINCINNATI (AP) — Elroy Face, brilliant relief pitcher for Pittsburgh Pirates was announced Thursday as winner of the National League's "player of the month" award for June.

Face, who made 14 relief appearances, won five games to run his season record to 12-0, and posted an exceptional earned run average of 0.37 in 23 2-3 innings. He fanned 18 and walked only three batters.

He received the greatest number of votes a player has received from the committee of baseball writers and broadcasters who select the winner each month. Face got 30 votes out of a possible 40.

Second place went to another Pirate—Dick Stuart, the valuable first baseman with the home run bat. Stuart, who got 4½ votes, hit .327 in June and drove in 22 runs in 26 games. He also hit 10 homers.

One of those home runs, made on June 3; was the first ever to clear the center field fence at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh.

Ken Boyer, third baseman for the St. Louis Cards got 2½ votes for third place and Sandy Koufax got two. Don Newcombe, Cincinnati, got one vote.

Large Field In Canadian Track, Field

ST. LAMBERT, Que. (CP)—A total of 330 entries from Nova Scotia to Saskatchewan compete today and Saturday in the Canadian track and field championships.

Championship ranking will be at stake in the open classifications for youngsters, but there are heavy entries in only the senior men's and women's divisions. There are entries also for the bantam girls—under-14 —a class which does not carry official championship recognition.

Titles will be at stake in the midget, juvenile and junior divisions for boys and midget and juvenile for girls.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WELLINGTON:—Anyone for eels?

If you like these water-borne retiers you can get your fill in this bronze-coated home of Ole Smoke Reyelds.

Just grab a fishing pole and any kind of bait, dangle your feet off the dock at the eastern end of the village, and in a jiffy you've got yourself three or four feet of slithering, squirming, animated rope.

They will take anything from a dangling big toe to a ham-on-rye sandwich.

There are so many of them, one of the youngsters on the dock told us, that after looking at the repelling whoppers, half the boys around town have sworn off ginger ale.

In fact young Dennie Ogilvy, a blood relation of this department, who is not only an ardent angler, but the Whitey Ford and Bill Skowron of the village peewee softball team rolled into one, swears he booked the same eel six times in one afternoon.

He should know because every time he lands one he cuts a notch in his tall. Sunday he caught one that had more rear-end rashes than the gun of Billy the Kid.

They're not the most appetizing sight in the world when you pull one of these over-quivering, nautical dew worms out of the water, but there's a lot of people who eat them—and like it.

We recall in Ole Lennon when we were working for a $1.19 a day (fifteen francs in the field) you could get a big mess of worms from the slaughter of the "horrers." You could procure them "potied" or "stewed."

One girl we knew whose father liked eels and Canadians, invited us to her home in Finchley where he had eel pie. It tasted rather good—after the second beaker of mild and bitter.

If memory serves us correctly they rated the Londoners eating popularity with "'ot baked spuds," a "sneaand-one" of fish-and-chips; the pin-pricked periwinkles, blood pudding, sausage-and-mash, cockles and mussels, and forgetting the welks and others of the tasty tidbits Harry and 'Arriet liked.

There was tripe and onions, too, but you generally got this in the out-of-the-way places after you had taken the English sweetbread in the Strand Corner House with the six French pastry (and you counted 'em) and sipped a spot of tea.

But England's potted and stewed variety had somewhat of a different flavor to their Canadian counterparts. Years ago our fishing party hooked one in Buckhaul Lake. It was a bulgish brute and an eel-wise member of the gang knew what to do.

He nailed that slithering slippery thing to a tree with a spike through the head. Then he cut the skin circular-wise around the head and pulled off the hide like he would peel a banana. He broiled it over hot coals, in an old fashioned toaster after he had cut it in chunks two or three inches long, crosswise, to boot.

More "juice" dripped from those eel-steaks than out of a weeping willi at full blast. When the "cook" served it. It tasted good to hungry fishermen, but it would never take the place of a golden-browned trout or pickerel or even a medium-rare T-bone steak.

ON-THE-HOUSE DEPT.

Tonight's the night the two-man beef trust hook up with a couple of arch-villains of the mat trade. Yessir, Leo Jonathan and Yukon Eric and they will hurl a quarter-tone of live "beef" at Dick Hutton and the Great Bolo, an odorous duo to say the least. And don't miss Timmy Gephagen, a real brute of a wrestler who dishes with Jack Laskin . . . Lovers of harness racing are in for a real treat at the Fair Grounds tomorrow night when the brand new Quinte Riding and Driving Club holds its inaugural race meet and the card's three races should be thrillers. Starts at 6.45.

Belleville District Softball managers are reminded not to forget the special meeting called for the CNRA Park ticket office Monday night to discuss the loop's playoff arrangements. It's important that all the boss-men be on hand, and park your guns in the CNRA Canara . . . Tonight the Bobcats and Cobourg hook up in what should be a tense battle at the CNRA Park, with Sleepy Dawe and company anxious to square matters with Cobourg's Peterboro. It could be Sleepy and Bobby Green going to the mound, but the boss-men have made no statements as to starting pitchers. Game time is 8.45 . . . And tomorrow night Trenton's Junior Jaycees journey to Latta in a South Hastings Baseball League fixture. The Eastern Senior A Hockey League meeting will be held in Belleville, Tuesday, July 7, instead, of Hull, Quebec.

Tigers Claw A's; Yankees Slip; Braves Hanging On

Detroit Hobbles Back to 3rd As Bombers Drop to Fifth; Giants Blow Chance for Top

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Detroit's injured Tigers have hobbled back into third place, just two games short of the American League lead. Manager Charlie Maxwell's bat has been their crutch.

Maxwell ripped a two - run homer as Detroit returned to the first division by beating Baltimore last Sunday. Tuesday he hit a home run and scored twice as the Tigers beat Kansas City. Wednesday he had two hits and scored the winning run in a 5-4 decision over the As.

And Thursday night he scored twice and hit the accidental Chicago White Sox 9-7 with his 18th home run, a grand-slam in the eighth inning.

ORIOLES BEAT YANKS

That White Sox loss left first place Cleveland with a one-game lead despite a 6-4 defeat at Kansas City. The Detroit closed in as Baltimore took fourth place by skidding New York from third to fifth, trailing the Yankees 3-1.

Last-place Boston, with manager Billy Jurges back in the dugout the way out, lost its fifth in a row, 6-3, at Washington in 10 innings.

Maxwell's homer, off reliever Turk Lown, gave the Tigers a 3-2 lead that was just enough. The White Sox chased winner Joe Monzt (7-3) in the seventh and triggered by Al Smith's grandslam, Detroit's fourth hit. It started with three runs in the third against loser Bob Shaw (4-5), scoring on Neil Chrisley's home run.

One of four Cleveland errors gave Kansas City the clincher in a two-run fifth when Bill Tuttle left on Bill Renna's double. Relieved on Jim Bazes' relay error, Joe Demestrit singled home Renna. Ned Garver (5-7) won it with Ray Herbert (5-7) won it with Johnny Kucks' relief help. Gary Bell (6-8) was the loser. Woody Held homered for the Indians.

LARSEN FLOPS

The Orioles beat Don Larsen (6-3) although they managed only five hits. They scored all their runs on three hits in the first two innings. Bob Nieman followed Gene Woodling's two-out single with his ninth home run in the first, and winning pitcher Jerry Walker (6-3) drove in the other with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the second. Walker gave up six hits, scoring his shutout in the fifth on Ken Lopez' homer.

Jim Lemon doubled home the tying run in the eighth for Washington, then broke it up with a three-run homer in the 10th off reliever Leo Kiely (2-2). It was Lemon's 19th homer and gave reliever Dick Hyde his first victory. Reliever Bob Allison hit his first homer for the Nats, while Harry Bkough and Ken Aspromonte homered for the Red Sox runs.

Bisons Dump Toronto 9-2; Royals Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo now has its biggest first-place lead in the International League season with a 4½-game margin over Rochester. The Bisons owe most of it to its "cousins" from Columbus and Toronto.

The Bisons knocked off Toronto for the seventh time in 10 games clashes with a 9-2 triumph Thursday night. Against Columbus the Bisons had an 11-3 mark. That is 18 of their 47 victories.

Columbus ended a one-day stay in the cellar by a 9-4 victory over Havana as Toronto tumbled into fourth place. Rochester, Montreal defeated Rochester 5-2. Richmond and Miami were rained out.

THIRD FOR MAHAFFEY

Art Mahaffey won his third in a row and his 7th overall for Toronto, which had four pitchers combine on the hit. Included was a three-run homer by Joe Leonett that severed a four-run shutout bid. Pat Scantlebury, the third Toronto pitcher, also homered. Toronto starter George Susce (1-3) was the loser while Mahaffey's record is 3-2.

Columbus gained a two-percentage point spread over Toronto as Ryan Lovergood notched his record at 9-4, with relief help from Bobby Shantz, allowed four hits in nine innings. The Jets scored three runs in the first, sixth and seventh innings off starter Jim Brosnan sixth by Havana. Cubans' starter Ted Wieand was the loser.

Mike Goliat's three-run homer in the seventh capped a four-run inning off loser Howie Nunn (2-3) and relievers Hilario Valdespino and Jose Santiago.

Amores in the fourth inning when Amores relinquished his leg. It was Goliat's seventh homer of the season and gave Ed Rakow his eighth victory in 14 decisions. He was lifted in the fifth inning for a pinchhitter and Paul Lapalme saved it for him. Bob Lennard hit his 14th homer for the Royals.

Three Tied For Top in Flint Open

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Monte Hebert, a little-known Texas golfer playing his first year on the professional circuit, shot 68 Thursday to tie Bob Rosburg and Lionel Thursday for the first-round lead in the $52,000 Flint Open golf tournament. They were four under par with 68.

Bradley, 28, of Joplin, Mo., had the lead all to himself until Jay Hebert ruined it with a swing breaking 32 on the back side which earned him a 68.

Defending champion Bill Casper, Jr. threw strokes off the pace with 33-38—71.

Among the top 50 scorers were Al Balding of Magham, Ont., 37-36—73 and Jerry Magee of Toronto 36-36—74.

Plane Loses Tooth In "Mike" Assault

STURGEON FALLS (CP)—Goalie Claude Plante of the Montreal Canadiens, who never lost a tooth during his seven National Hockey League seasons, lost one Wednesday night.

Plante got the tooth in the face with a microphone. The incident brought an apology Thursday from Mayor Jean Marleau.

Plante was appearing for a Montreal team at a walkaway celebrations here and singing a few selections from his repertoire of French-Canadian hits.

When a man tried to scale his platform, Plante went into his goal-crease crouch and offered him a hand.

Plante took the microphone as the man jumped back into the crowd and said he was unaware he could insult anyone with a song. He apologized and left the platform.

Police seized Leo-Paul Renaud of Sturgeon Falls and charged him with disorderly conduct when he refused to lay assault charges.

TIGERS GIVE BONUS

DETROIT (AP) — Patrick Edward Robson, a 17-year - old pitcher from Depew, N.Y., has been signed by Detroit Tigers for a bonus of more than $30,000.

Ed Katalinas, who directs Tiger scouting, said Dobson accepted a 1960 contract with Detroit organization Thursday night.

Dobson won 19 of 20 starts in two seasons with Lancaster, N.Y., High School. The 6-foot-3, 190-pound righthander pitched no-hitters.

Briton Sets Amateur Record, Takes Lead in British Open

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (CP)—Reid Jack, 34 - year - old former British amateur champion from Scotland, set an amateur record on Muirfield today with 32-35-67 and moved into the early lead in the British open golf championship with a three-round total of 214.

Jack's score broke the record of 68 set by Americans Lawson Little and Capt. R. C. Ringsley in 1946 and the great round moved him into strong contention for the title. The last amateur to win the British Open was Bobby Jones in 1930, the year of Jones' famous grand slam.

THOMSON IMPROVES

Peter Thomson, the defending champion from Australia who just qualified with 148, shot a 72 today in sunny but windy conditions. Thomson now totals 220 for the 54 holes played and has little hope of winning his fifth British title.

Gary Player of South Africa had a 37-33-70 for a total of 216. Wolf Wolmenhelms, B r i t i s h Walker Cupper, had a 73 for a three round total of 221.

Players with three-round totals of 220 and better after the early play were Thomson, Bernard Hunt of England, who had a 71 for an aggregate of 213; Christy O'Connor of Ireland, who had 72 for 219, Harry Bradshaw of England, 72 for 219; Nial Coles of England, 71 for 217; Player, Jack and Lois Ruiz of Argentina, 68 for 215.

Ron Howell "Holds Out" On Tiger-Cats

HAMILTON (CP)—Ron Howell, star halfback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats last year, wants more loot before he will put his signature to a new contract with the Big Four club.

No exact figures were issued in the dollar dickering disclosed today but Howell privately is not interested in the reported $3,000 to $5,000 increase being offered by the Tiger-Cats.

Howell, who scored three touchdowns in a losing cause against Winnipeg in the Grey Cup game last year was asked by a reporter whether he would go for $7,500. He now makes a reported $5,000.

"No!" snapped the rugged pass-catcher who scored eight touchdowns in 1958.

How about $8,000, he was asked.

"Yes, in that neighborhood," he replied.

PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Howell, named Canadian player of the year last season, said he "should be paid on a par with other top Canadians."

He and Ticat president J. G. (Jake) Gaudaur will discuss his contract again next week.

Howell has been asked to try out with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, an offer he may accept if football doesn't pay what he is asking.

Bevan, 33, and Scotti, 33, are almost perennial all-stars.

Soccer Pools Will "Split" With Leagues

LONDON (CP)—The promoters of Britain's football pools, who take in an estimated £30,000,000 annually, have agreed to cut in the English and Scottish football leagues for a slice of the profits.

The two leagues, whose 129 teams provide the punters with the basis for their weekly speculations, won a high court decision last May permitting them to copyright their schedules, which the pools use to compile their lists.

The agreements terms were not disclosed.

Three Jockeys Are Suspended At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's two leading jockeys, Avelino Gomez and Alfonso Coy, have received 10 - day suspensions for careless riding Wednesday at Nw Woodbine.

Steward's Thursday also suspended jockey Sam Cosentino for 10 days.

Gomez won the $25,000 Dominion Day Handicap on Grey Monarch Wednesday but the horse was placed second. It was the second 10-day suspension for Gomez.

Coy rode Clean Break in Wednesday's fifth race and finished first but the horse was placed last.

Cosentino received his third suspension of the season for careless riding.

The Halifax Plate, was won Thursday by Rootsman, owned by Mrs. R. C. Dick of Kitchener. It was the third successive victory for the Kitchener stable which paid $4.10, $2.90 and $2.20. Hot Ice was second and Black Satin was third. The winner ran six furlongs in 1:12 3-5 over a slow track.

18 Canadians To Try Out With Alouettes

MONTREAL (CP) — Eighteen Canadian rookies who drilled for four days this week with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four league have been invited to continue with the regular squad.

They include Derrick Marentette and Ed Mitchell from Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Rugby Football Union and Bob Miller, draft choice from the University of Western Ontario.

Harness Racing

MONTREAL (CP) — Homestead Dan, four-year-old black gelding from Cobourg, Thursday night covered the mile in 2:06 3-5 to win the $5,500 2:14 Stake Trot at Blue Bonnets Raceway.

With Jack Gordon in the sulky, Dan paid $3.10, $2.60, $2.60.

FEATURED BY TOURS

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Soccer Association, perhaps at the number of foreign teams invading Canada for tours, is to conduct a full review of tour promoters when it meets in September at either Winnipeg or Toronto, the association sponsors only one tour a year. This year it was England's West Bromwich Albion.

RECORD MARLIN

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) A blue marlin weighing 780½ pounds was caught near here Wednesday, erasing the listed world record of 756 pounds which had stood for two years. Eric (John) Widowson, a British resident of the Dominican Republic, hooked the fugu marlin and fought him for an hour and 45 minutes before landing it on a 24-thread line.

Olmedo, top seeded in the tourney, lost only one service and dispatched Emerson 6-4, 6-0, 8-4, to gain the final round.

McFarland, Arena Board To Discuss Hockey Club

Operation of a senior "A" hockey club in Belleville next winter hinges on the result of a special meeting being held in Picton tomorrow (Saturday) morning at 10.30.

On one side of the discussion table will be His Honor Mayor Harvey J. McFarland of Picton. On the other side the Belleville Arena Commission.

The meeting is being held at the express invitation of Mayor McFarland who requested that all members of the arena commission be present. It is being held in the office of the Picton chief magistrate.

The discussion stems from an earlier proposition to the arena commission to operate the hockey club by Mayor McFarland, and subsequent counter - propositions by the commission.

The crux of the discussion is financial arrangements regarding the use of Memorial Arena.

Mayor Hyde stated a few days ago that a proposition regarding the operation of the hockey team, and the use of the arena had been received from Mayor McFarland.

This had been considered by commission members and a counter - proposal sent to Mr. McFarland. Details were released.

Something of a definite nature must come out of the meeting if Belleville is to be represented again in the Eastern Ontario senior "A" League since the loop has set July 7 as the deadline for entries of a five-team circuit.

The special meeting of the league, originally scheduled for Hull, Quebec, will be held in the city hall here on Tuesday evening.

Mayor McFarland's interest in "his boys" of the world champion Belleville McFarlands has never slackened.

He stated at the Kinsmen luncheon given in their honor some time ago: "They are still my boys — and I have not lessened my faith in them. I have backed and supported sport for many years and will continue to do so."

His appreciation of their efforts will be made in tangible form in the not too distant future when he will present them with gold rings.

Belleville Rooster Club officials contacted today stated they will be behind any sponsor of the senior "A" club, regardless of personality, 100 per cent.

Gonsalves Meets Matthews Tonight

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Lightweight contender Johnny Gonsalves, who was fighting pro when Lennie Matthews was in grade school, tests the young Philadelphia slugger in a 10-round television fight tonight.

Although Gonsalves is ranked fourth by ring and sixth by the NBA, the unranked Matthews has been established the 8-to-5 favorite.

Matthews's record is 17-3-1, including 13 knockouts.

Gonsalves, 28, has a 32-15-3 record; including eight knockouts.

British Readers Told Queen Gets Torrid Welcome

LONDON (CP) — Britain's national newspapers, shrunken to half their size in an effort to preserve their strike-curtailed ink supply, still find space to tell their readers the Queen is getting a torrid welcome in Canada.

Ordeal in the Heat for the Queen, read the headline in The Times, telling of the royal visit to Toronto. The Daily Herald described the heat as "blistering."

The Herald's reporter, Peter Masefield, gives an equally blistering account of the Queen's speech Monday night when she arrived in the Ontario capital. He says it brought hoots of derisive laughter from a shirt - sleeved crowd of 5,000.

Her address, which Don Iddon of The Daily Express called "the best yet," left Canadian Broadhead because of its timing. It mentioned her arrival "a few short hours ago" and said that the Queen had seen "some of the ambitious plans for the development of Toronto" when she had been in the city 90 minutes and had only seen the airport and reception.

"It was obvious that the Queen had not been able to read her prepared address beforehand," said Masefield, adding it is clear that the Queen and Prince Philip promptly gave orders that "such mistakes must not be repeated."

Three Eskimos Meet Queen at Drama Festival

STRATFORD (CP) — Three Eskimos, two of whom speak no English, met the Queen and Prince Philip here Friday night.

The leader was Abraham Ospik (Hooting Owl), 30, from a Baffin Island, and Engeyoglipik (Glittering Eye) 28, a colleague from the same area, centre of the best Eskimo carving.

Said Kiawak after the brief meeting with the Royal couple just before they boarded the royal train to leave this Shakespearean festival city: "Stop talking."

Said Engeyoglik: "Heart was beating too fast. Stopped now."

The encounter was arranged at the last minute. An exhibit of Eskimo carving is part of the Stratford festival this year.

Columnist Files Slander Suit Against Actor

The suit was based on Grant's purported denial that Hyams interviewed Grant for a series of articles written for the New York Herald Tribune syndicate.

Hyams' complaint said Grant had caused reports to be published that Hyams had represented that he had not been interviewed by Hyams and had not seen him for two years before the articles were published.

The articles related Grant had been to a psychiatrist and his opinion about the alleged experience.

Hyams said he had seen Grant at the Grant home and based his articles, obtained his permission to use material obtained by him and obtained Grant's help in picture taken with the actor.

Grant said he had no comment on the suit.

WAS NAVAL HERO

LONDON (Reuter) — Admiral Sir Robert Lindsay Burnett, 71, a Second World War British naval hero, was found dead in bed Thursday. Burnett became famous for his exploits in guiding convoys to Russia during the war. He was knighted for his part in the successful attack on Tirpitz to destroy the German battleship Scharnhorst in 1943.

Rawdon

RAWDON — Mr. Ray Williams has sold Mr farm, home, and sales berns to Mr. Hickson of Lindsay, Ont. On Monday evening Mr. Williams said farewell to all his many customers who have travelled far and near to sell their livestock. The new owner has been highly recommended to this district.

On Sunday afternoon the hydro service in this area was interrupted for a three hour period to allow essential work to be done.

On Friday evening a farewell party was held at Hoards for Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Wilson and daughters prior to their departure to Stirling. They were presented with a space saver, occasional chair, and bookdisc lamps.

A good program was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Miss Evelyn Bailey, Peterborough, spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bailey and family.

Mr. Fred King is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dayman and daughter Dorothy were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Morton on Sunday evening.

Several public schools enjoyed picnics at Oak Lake on Thursday. These included the Allan School and Williams School at Mount Pleasant, Rawdon and the Scarr School of Rawdon.

The Sine Public School spent the day at Glen Allan Park.

Rev. W. G. Fletcher of Hawdon circuit is spending this week at Quin-Mo-Lac camp.

Mrs. Frank Smith, Madoc Junction, was a guest of Mrs. Blake Sharpe on Thursday.

Mrs. Harry McAdam and Mrs. Robert Merrick of Mount Pleasant attended divine service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tamlin, Woodville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hoard.

Mount Pleasant Hawdon Women's Missionary Society will entertain the Mission Band of Baby Band at the church hall on July 8th at 2 p.m. The guest speaker will be Miss Doris Dunham who ahs just completed two years of special training in Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Potts are visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Sam Craig, Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sharpe and family were recent guests of Mr and Mrs. A. Pollock, Washer.

Born at Belleville General Hospital on Sunday, June 28th to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoard (Miss Tamlin), a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sharpe family entertained Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tanner, Edna and Clare, Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Allen Kenmore, N.Y., ahve been ha daying with Mr. and Mrs. Geo Watson and other relatives Rawdon.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, July 4, 1959

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — A.M. is fine time to attend any civic affairs and to give expression to your ingenious ideas. However, spend the evening at home devotedly taking care of problems and kin there. Be of good cheer and have fun, too.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Morning would be excellent time to meditate on putting in operation those plans you have been formulating for some time that will extend far into the future. Put abode in good order, be kind to kin. P.M. avoid inclination to extravagance in matters of pleasure.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — A day for thinking in terms of self-advancement. The right channel for best expression will be open to you, and you can bring your appearance up to its very peak of perfection. P.M. follow orthodox regulations. Retire early.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Here is the ideal day to confide in bigwigs just what your desires are and get their support. Also to have real happiness in a quiet and charming manner. P.M. will then bring about openly the fruition of one of your cherished dreams.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You have only to be together with compatibles today in order to start operating soon in efficient and grandiose fashion as most suits you. Take care they are real topnotchers. However, tonight is time for more quiet and restful activity.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — All sort of participation in civic affairs is excellent today, whether it be marching along with fellow citizens or less obvious service. P.M. take part in group meetings and you will meet the right people who help you to advance.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Spend A.M. in study of the loftier things in life, so that you may grow in wisdom and intellect. See that you take in some recreation during the day, too. P.M. be especially careful with those in power over you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — It would be the height of wisdom to play your hunches now and plan your activities with partners accordingly. Then you get the results you want. P.M. is best spent in study or talking over subjects about which you know little.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Now is the time to expand your consciousness so that you know better how to handle all others, particularly associates. Reach a point of real understanding. New thought occurs in P.M. You'll be happier with mate. Follow hunch.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Don't be afraid to do all those civic duties you are called upon to perform today, since you will make great strides in this way in your career. Your country means much to you. Show this proudly. P.M pisces anxious mate.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Another day for fun and frolic, but do not mix business with pleasure. Dress in good style, wear your best smile and then wow 'em with your brilliance and fine personality. P.M. retire early and rest your faithful feet.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Make this a productive holiday by doing all those things around your home that will add beauty and value. Fix those leaks, water the garden, and be a good neighbor, an ideal homebody. P.M. step out for quiet pleasure.

If your child is born today — The wonderful child born today is the rare type who will have a great attachment to kin, pride of country and phenomenal loyalty to duty. Understand your priceless youngster and let him or her be early appreciated by all others about. A gifted child such as this can reach the greatest heights in connection with governments especially, especially. Teach the finest Truths and ethics early.

Sunday School Lesson

Law of Cause and Effect

By Rev. L. Smith

It was Karl Marx' boast that he had reduced history to an exact science, and that he had discovered a system of economic law which was not only final and authoritative, but also strictly logical. He pinned his confidence to reason, and believed there was nothing beyond it.

DO NOT EXPLAIN

Of all the sciences there is none that is more strictly reasonable than mathematics. It is impossible to get very far in it if you try to bluff, cover-up, allibi, or evade. But mathematics has its strict limitations.

It is one of the strange facts of history, for example, that some of the smallest nations have left the most impressive marks on history. The little land of Greece, for example, was one of the smallest among the ancients, and the territory the Greeks occupied was of no particular significance. But Greek culture will affect the life of humankind until the end of time.

In our own time the English represented one of the small nations of Europe, but the British built an empire that girdled the globe; the same nearly all over the world a universal language and than any other people ever did; and their colonies have set the standard throughout the earth.

And there is a third miracle to be considered in this connection. The total number of Jews throughout the world counting even those in far countries like China and Ethiopia, will not exceed 15,000,000. Who can estimate their influence, or their influence, through their Old Testament have given a body of literature to the world that has influenced the building of every modern state. Mathematically speaking, they are no more than one in two thousand, but like the molecule of penicillin among the blood corpuscles, their influence is highly determinative.

There is an old proverb to the effect that figures do not lie. Perhaps it should better be said that sometimes they do not even count.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

There is a scientific law known as cause and effect, which operates everywhere in life. It can be seen in chemistry, biology, agriculture, electronics, nuclear science, physiology, psychology, and spirituality.

Once that we know the law we can predict the results with absolute assurance and complete finality. This principle holds true in every aspect of life, and every area of this universe. It should not surprise us, therefore, that it should also hold true in the realm of the human spirit.

The Old Testament prophets were not scientists in the modern sense of the word, but they believed in this principle and very bluntly warned the little nations of Israel and Judah that they could not break the laws of God and live, those laws being the basic principles of living.

Just as man's understanding of physical laws was incomplete during the millenia of his infancy, so also his understanding of spiritual laws was imperfect. To the Old Testament bears also the testimony to the fact that there has been a marked growth in such understanding during the past. But there has been no growth beyond this simple principle — "keep the laws of God and you will live." It is the law of cause and effect is applied to the moral and spiritual world.

WE CANNOT GO IT ALONE

The scripture of this week's Sunday School lesson was put into its present form by a generation of prophetic Jews who believed profoundly in the spiritual law of cause and effect. They were very sure that the salvation of a nation's life with the divine principles of justice, mercy, truth, and love would insure that nation's stability.

It is better that a nation be just, and that it feel justly with all men, than that it be armed with atomic weapons. It is better that a people be fortified with righteousness than with nuclear powers.

Any nation which decides it can go it alone, and does not need the co-operation of God, may enjoy some measure of success for a period of time — perhaps for a century — but in the end it is doomed in exactly the same way that an architect would be doomed if he ignored the law of gravity.

SAYS WORK SAME

STRATFORD (CP)—Dr. A. W. Trueman, director of the Canada Council, on Tuesday both the council and the Stratford Festival are engaged in basically the same work. While opening the festival art exhibition, he said that "we hope you will not lose sight of the more important fact that we are simply trying to bring them (the arts) increasingly before the public where they will be enjoyed and loved for their own sake."

THE PONY WASN'T BASHFUL — A pony, presented as a gift to Queen Elizabeth, sniffs her royal bouquet as the Royal Couple prepare to board their yacht at Windsor. Man at left is not identified. 4,000 Small Craft Accompany Royal Yacht On Voyage up Detroit and St. Clair Rivers

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SARNIA (CP)—The Queen and Prince Philip today completed a sweep through Southwestern Ontario with a 60-mile river voyage to this industrial city.

At least 4,000 small craft accompanied the Britannia and her three grey naval escorts along the Detroit and St. Clair rivers to Sarnia, manoeuvring with excellent control.

Vessels of all sizes, including grimy freighters meticulously maintained in the marine traditions, dipped their colors to the yacht.

Prince Philip in naval whites handled the docking here of the royal yacht Britannia—the third time he has done so since the Queen began her 12-day cruise in her in at dusk amid the trek of flashes and the glare of flare-pot fires from a riverside oil refinery.

The call here capped visits to London, Chatham and Windsor. It was another hot summer day with a dry wind and temperatures in the 80s. Crowds estimated at 15,000 greeted the royal couple's arrival by train at London and their motorcade to Chatham before moving on to Windsor where 24 hours and 200,000 persons in the auto city had the event.

Today, the royal yacht pushed into Lake Huron and Georgian Bay. The Queen and Prince Philip were to leave the Britannia at Penetanguishene and begin a tour by train through the mainland to Lake Superior. The Queen has a day's holiday Sunday aboard the yacht en route to Chicago.

The Britannia slid away from Windsor at 4 p.m after a twohour visit, while the lofty skyline of Detroit stood out across the river and scores of small power boats skittered about.

But before the departure, crowds of some 30,000 saw Windsor backtrack in its decision taken 10 months ago not to give Queen a gift. Mayor Michael Patrick, reversing the city's stand, handed over a beige Appaloosa pony, typically dappled, called Chief Tecumseh. The Queen, a lover of horseflesh, was clearly delighted.

The chief won't go to Britain but another like him will be shipped for joint observing chiefs at Windsor, England.

"What breed is he?" the Queen asked. "I've never seen one like this before." The prince wanted to know whether the Chief was coming aboard.

Crowds were gay at London—Industrial tools the day off after working the holiday July 1—when the royal train arrived. There was a brief stop at Chatham and then a 10-mile drive through the streets of Windsor, where the royal couple shook 143 hands and appeared on three platforms during the 10-mile drive.

The beige sun parasol made a brief appearance as the royal figures bobbing it over the Queen, who wore a vivid flaming-colored dress topped a hat by a mink stole.

Presented at Windsor were American dignitaries including Governor Mennen Williams of Michigan. Both the Queen and the prince lingered longest with a number of high school youngsters, selected for the honor of being presented on the basis of scholastic ability.

Two Drowned, Four Missing In Collision

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — A cabin cruiser on a moonlight pleasure trip and a Great Lakes car ferry collided in darkness early today on Lake Michigan.

Two persons were drowned and four others were missing and feared to have been drowned. Two were rescued. All were occupants of the cruiser.

At daylight, boats of the U.S. Coast Guard swept the area in a search for the missing persons.

The cruiser, a 24-footer, was smashed and sank to the bottom in 18 feet of water not far offshore following the 2:45 a.m. collision. The two craft just outside the Muskegon channel connecting inland Muskegon Lake with Lake Michigan.

Drowned were Alvin Kenney, 49, Muskegon businessman and owner of the cruiser, and his wife, Dorothy, 43.

The missing included Ila Kenney's son, Robert, about 21, and their son-in-law, Richard Schaub, 29, of Chassetown, Ont. Also missing were two friends of Robert, Norman Burr, 24, Muskegon, and William Stong, 21, Muskegon.

RESCUE WOMEN

Mrs. Donna Schaub, the Kenneys' daughter, was rescued along with Mrs. Nancy Beardsley, 19, Muskegon — the only apparent survivors of the eight aboard the cruiser.

Both young women were injured and taken to hospital here.

Engineer Joseph J. Grisakoska jumped overboard from a coast guard rescue boat to rescue Mrs. Schaub, who could not swim. Mrs Beardsley was rescued when she clung to pieces of cruiser wreckage.

Witness Says Ex-Reeve Asked For Contribution for Permit

TORONTO (CP)—The judicial inquiry into suburban York Township's land and financial dealings adjourned abruptly Friday after a witness accused a former township reeve of asking for a "fund" contribution.

Neel J. May, president of Carlisle Tool Company Limited, testified that early in 1956 he was told by Fred Hall, then township reeve, that he could get a building permit more quickly "if you would contribute something to the our little fund."

Mr. Hall now is a magistrate and chairman of the metropolitan licensing commission. He was given the title of magistrate because of provisions of the act setting up Metropolitan Toronto.

Mr. May testified he was desperate to get a building permit because of his plans for a commercial establishments. He said that when he told Mr. Hall this the reeve said there was an attractive piece of property and added that "it was expensive to be in a developer or a builder."

He said Mr. Hall then told him York Township Councillor Harold Linden would explain it further, and after a telephone call a meeting was arranged with Mr. Linden. Mr. May said he went to the councillor's office and there Mr. Linden told him a building permit could be held up indefinitely and many things could happen. Mr. Linden asked if a few hundred would make any difference now.

Mr. May testified,

"I was waiting for him to pull out a book of tickets or something." said Mr. May. "I explained that I was not prepared to make a large payment and that I did not even have a cheque with me."

"We don't take cheques," he quoted Mr. Linden as saying. Mr. May said the councillor told him that what was wanted were hundred dollar bills.

He added: "I said that I understood and would do my best to cooperate."

Mr. May said he then went to see his own lawyer and told him the story. His lawyer took him to the office of Crown Attorney J. P. Galbraith at city hall, where he told the story again.

When the crown attorney brought in a stenographer, Mr. May said he decided to visit Reeve Hall again to see if he could get the building permit.

"I did not want to be the person to have their heads chopped off," he testified.

Mr. Hall said that on his second visit to Mr. Hall the reeve pointed to his car in a parking lot outside the window and told him that whatever had been arranged with Mr. Linden should be in the glove compartment.

He assured Mr. May that his permit would be forthcoming.

And Mr. May called his lawyer and the crown attorney, telling them to forget the whole thing.

As it turned out, he said, "I never paid anyone a nickel. I had my permit."

Under Mr. May's testimony counsel asked for time to study the evidence and Mr. Justice Leopen Judge Joseph Sweet will reopen Monday.

Kozlov Lays Heavy Stress On U.S. Trade Expansion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Kremlin's current travelling showcase, Vice-Premier Frol Kozlov, bid today for expansion of Soviet-United States trade. He will meet informally and in private with a number of west coast business leaders.

Kozlov said he wanted rest from questions. But it was possible that he also sought a defense from pressure by his American hosts.

The man who one day may succeed Nikita Khrushchev as premier of the Soviet Union had a heavy round of talks upon his arrival in California.

In an exchange with Democratic Governor Edmund G. Brown, Kozlov noted that Brown was the first day he arrived in the United States and said the chances for a increase in Soviet trade might then be improved.

This high opinion the Russians seem to have of Brown may be based on the earlier July talks. Decided to visit Sacramento, a city although by First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan on a similar tour earlier this year.

Kozlov was to meet some business leaders at a yachting club on San Francisco harbor and at a barbecue at the home of Cyril Magnin, chairman of the San Francisco Port Authority and a prominent merchant.

Brazil Star Wins Singles Tennis Crown

WIMBLEDON, England (CP)—Maria Bueno of Brazil broke the United States' domination of women's tennis singles here today by whipping chubby Darlene Hard 6-4, 6-3 in the 1959 finals. It was the second straight for the representative had failed to win the women's title in the last 16 competitions.

The attractive, 19-year-old daughter of a Sao Paulo veterinarian, completed a South American sweep of the five coveted singles titles. Alex Olmedo of Peru won the men's crown Friday, beating Rod Laver of Australia in the finals.

The dusky Brazilian kept Miss Hard off balance with her booming service and dominated the volleys at the net.—

The 23-year-old California medical student never displayed the form that carried her to a straight-sets win over Sandra Reynolds of South Africa in the semi-finals Thursday.

Time and again she netted her first service and Miss Bueno was able to return the second handily with her forehand.

It was Miss Hard's second bid for the big crown. She reached the finals in 1957 only to lose straight sets to Althea Gibson.

This year's victory made it a clean sweep for castanets at the Wimbledon victory dance, the glittering social affair that winds up the tournament.

The leading couple will be Latin Americans.

The Bueno-Hard match was the last major event in the England tennis championships.

U.S. Jet Aircraft On 'Strip Alert' Along Wide Front

By VERN HAUGLAND

NAPLES (AP) — All the way from southern France to the eastern border of Turkey, along a 2,000-mile arc facing the iron Curtain, U.S. jet aircraft are on "strip alert."

This means that the planes—including supersonic F-100D sircraft capable of speeds exceeding 1,000 mph—are ready to take off within five minutes of an alarm signal. The strip alerts have been in effect for about a year.

Lt.-Gen. Richard C. Lindsay, commander of Allied Air Forces Southern Europe, known as Airsouth, said 1 per cent of the air force is kept on five-minute alert. Another 25 per cent of pilots and aircraft are on 15-minute alert. This means more than one-third of Airsouth's resources could be ready for action within a quarter of an hour.

Lindsay has about 1,000 jet aircraft in his command. Among them are 300 F-100Ds and three F-100Ds, two of them in Italy and one in Turkey. Turkey will represent Airsouth's primary atomic force.

The NATO powers are gulping in atomic capability. Lindsay said that all three of the new southern NATO members — Italy, Turkey and Greece — will possess atomic capability.

Lindsay said Soviet aircraft are massing along the line facing Italy, Greece and Turkey has increased considerably in the last year.

The Reds also have brought in more modern aircraft and are doing a great deal of all-weather and night flying.

PARLEY UNLIKELY TO GET MORE FOR PROVINCES

Ottawa Conference Will Open Monday

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A novel series of talks on financial relations between the federal and provincial governments opens here Monday. But Ottawa has made clear it has no immediate plans to open the federal treasury's door any wider to the provinces.

Five provincial premiers are expected to attend what was originally billed as a conference of provincial treasurers with Finance Minister Fleming.

No decisions will be made on the controversial question of how much more he can be among the 11 governments—federal and provincial. The meeting isn't intended to get that far. Anyway, agreements dividing up the pie were already in effect, lasting until March 31, 1962.

TO CHART A STUDY

Mr. Fleming's plan is that the two days of closed-doors meetings the premiers and ministers will chart the lines of a thorough-going study into the whole tax picture.

Then the conference will hand over the job of carrying out the study to a committee of deputy finance ministers and deputy treasurers from the governments.

The job of the committee, Mr. Fleming's words, is "to prepare the ground for subsequent negotiations."

Thus the conference will be merely a preliminary to the actual war fiscal conferences—the last was in November, 1957—all of which will be concerned with reaching tax-sharing agreements. Those conferences were attended by the prime minister and the provincial premiers.

Three premiers are coming here next week in their capacities as provincial treasurers: Premiers Stanfield of Nova Scotia, Robarts of Ontario and Bennett of British Columbia.

But interest has been raised because premiers Duplessis of Quebec and Manhson of Prince Edward Island will be present in their capacities as the provincial treasurers of those provinces.

Premier Duplessis, who didn't formally advise Mr. Fleming he would attend, has been the federal government of encroaching on the tax rights of the provinces. In 1957 he got a promise from Ottawa that the federal government would collect personal income tax only to the extent of taxable corporation income and 50 per cent of inheritance taxes. The arrangement provides that in Quebec federal taxes are increased correspondingly to compensate for the province's own tax collection!.

Prime Minister To Join Queen

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker will join Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip here for their visit to Chicago.

Mr. Diefenbaker will fly to Gravenhurst, and motor to Parry Sound to board the royal yacht Britannia. On Saturday he will attend the Queen during her visit to Chicago. He will return to Ottawa by air when she leaves Chicago.

Fabulously Rich Saarland Again Becomes German Territory Sunday

BONN (AP) — The fabulously rich Saar industrial region—twice torn from the Germans after world wars—goes back under their complete control at midnight Saturday.

The French and West German governments have announced that the territory's 1,000-square-mile territory will be economically integrated with West Germany months ahead of schedule in a gesture of the friendly relations existing between the two countries.

The wealthy industrial valley became politically part of Germany on Jan. 1, 1957, but the economic integration was delayed to allow financial adjustments to be made due to take place until 1960.

At midnight Sunday, French posts on the East frontier of the German-speaking territory will be moved west to the French-Saar border.

Fulfilment of the French-German pact means that the area brings to an end a long period of dispute.

Just after world wars the French occupied the region. Twice the 1,000,000 people inhabiting Saarlanders voted to go back to Germany.

In 1955 they rejected in a plebiscite a plan to make it an autonomous region under guardianship of the West European Union.

The Saar's coal mines produce about 17,000,000 tons annually and its blast furnaces turn out more than 3,000,000 tons of raw iron and about 3,500,000 tons of raw steel yearly.

The coming of the Atlantic pact and the European Coal and Steel Community took much of the bitterness out of the earlier feelings of hostility.

Hellyer Asserts Lockheed Plane Worst Possible

Says Airframe Unstable, Fatality Rate Very High

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A slashing attack on the government's choice of the American Lockheed F-104 plane for the RCAF Air Division in Europe was made Friday night in the Commons by Paul Hellyer, former associate defence minister.

The Liberal MP for Toronto Trinity said the fatality rate on the plane is "unusually high—double that of other U.S. fighters." The airframe was unstable and the J-79 General Electric engine unreliable.

Mr. Hellyer's charges fell like a bomb into an otherwise quiet defence debate scheduled to continue today, first Saturday sitting of this session. Defence Minister Pearkes made no immediate reply, possibly because Mr. Hellyer spoke just 15 minutes before the 10 p.m. adjournment.

"WORTH PLAN," POSSIBLE?

Mr. Hellyer, an aeronautical engineer before he w'ent into business in Toronto, said the government used "incredibly bad judgment" in picking the worst plane possible to replace the CF-100 Canuck as the standard interceptor of Sabre jets in the air division.

The U.S. Air Force had picked the Republic F-105 for its strike attack plane to replace the Lockheed F-104, he said.

The F-104 had not even been designed as a strike plane though Mr. Pearkes had said this would be its primary role in the RCAF division.

If the plane chosen by the Canadian government is no ruddy good for the strike role," Mr. Hellyer said,

"Why?"

His attack was the most severe on an item of Canadian military equipment since Hon. George Drew, then Progressive Conservative leader, criticized the RCAF North Star transport in 1948.

STABILITY SACRIFICED

Mr. Hellyer said the F-104 holds the world speed and altitude records but that airframe stability had been sacrificed in design to attain these records. The plane was "a real bitch to handle."

The F-104 had been grounded two years ago by the U.S. Air Force because of problems with power trim settings and the afterburner, he added.

Why had not the government ordered the Grumman Super Tiger F-11F, both as a better and cheaper planes, Mr. Hellyer demanded?

The F105 would have been able to use the Canadian Iroquois engine and parts of the Canadian car production program could have been carried out in Canada.

POOR ENGINE RECORD

Mr. Hellyer read testimony given by the U.S. Air Force before a U.S. congressional committee this year that its engines in service have a satisfactory life of 100 to 1,200 hours before major overhaul was required, "sometimes time for the J-79 was 100 hours or less.

"Those are not you know," Mr. Hellyer said with heavy sarcasm—that of the U.S. engines in the U.S. Air Force the Canadian government would choose the one with the least satisfactory life.

One F-105 could do the work of two F-104s, he said, and would be the Canadian government in the long run. The F-105 could carry 500 times the weapon load

Liquor Laws Old-Fashioned Says Philip

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Prince Philip, like many a tourist visiting Ontario, has commented on the province's liquor laws.

"You're one of those government fellows," he said Friday to Harry Allen, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Middlesex South, as the MPP was presented.

"When are you going to change these obsolete and old-fashioned liquor laws?" Philip asked.

"It's his a command!" asked Mr. Allen.

"Well, what are you going to do about it?" the prince asked again.

It was reported at that Prince Philip's comment was prompted by a incident in Stratford Thursday night when police ordered bars at the Stratford Shakespearean Festival closed at 11:30 p.m., shortening the evening by an hour which followed the royal couple's visit to the theatre.

It was understood festival officials were warned charges would be laid unless the rule was adhered to.

Diamond Sculls Won by Aussie For Third Time

Mackenzie covered the course in 8:30 to the same home stretch six lengths ahead of the struggling oarsman from Philadelphia. Mackenzie was ahead from start to finish.

Mackenzie's specialty in his terrific spurting. He put on a demonstration immediately in front of the enclosure lining the banks of the Thames shortly before the finish.

Within 100 yards of the finish, he stood stopped rowing and paddled confidently in slow motion across the line.

Mackenzie, winner of the Diamond Sculls for the third straight year, ranks as the world's leading sculler. But he was never been highly popular with the crowds.

He tries stunts now and then and he slowed perceptibly in the finish line was greeted by jeers and some cheers.

But the situation in complete control Mackenzie chose not to take the customary victory lap for minutes flat.

Parker put everything into the race and appeared to be spent at the end. He slumped in his shell, panting.

Parker said later: "I would have liked to have started off faster but that didn't seem to be the way the tactics worked.

"I did the best I could and my next race will be in the American nationals. Then I will try to qualify for the Pan American Games in Chicago in August."

Mackenzie's ultimate aim is next year's Olympics in Rome.

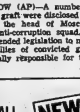
Father Killed, Two Tots Found Walking on Road

A Kingston father of two small children was instantly killed Friday evening when he got out control of the half-ton truck he was driving, the vehicle rolling over into the ditch.

The two small children, age five and two years, were found later walking on the township road, apparently uninjured. Killed was Michael John Clark, aged 33, of 12 Grier St., Kingston.

The accident occurred shortly before eight o'clock on the Washburn Mills Road, north of Kingston. Clarke apparently lost control on a curve where loose gravel caused the vehicle to roll over.



The driver was thrown from the truck. The two children were either thrown from the truck or climbed from the overturned vehicle and were found later walking a little distance away.

Mrs. Langabeer Will Enjoy Retirement, Too

Harry "Candy" Langabeer who retired after 53 years of active service as a barber the other day, said today that Mrs Langabeer is also looking forward to spending a lot of years in restful retirement.

Mrs. Langabeer, who is the former Frances "Fanny" Hamilton, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rodkin of this city.

We have had a wonderful life together," Harry said today, "and both of us are looking forward to a long holiday."

College Street Site of New School Building

The proposed new administration building for the Bay of Quinte District High School Board will be built on College Street, it has been voted by members of the board. The decision was made at the adjourned June meeting of the board held this week.

The meeting appointed a special committee to have plans and specifications for a proposed new building drawn and to call for tenders for construction. The tenders would be opened at a full meeting of the board. Plans will be drawn by the firm of Wiegand, architects.

Crowded quarters at the present administrative building on John Street was a motion passed earlier in the year for construction of a new building but the pending signal was delayed site. selection of a suitable

Both the 226 at the present site at 224-226 Bridge Street and the Alexander property on College Street have been considered as possibilities with the final decision favoring the College St. site which had been considered most suitable by the board. The site is on the south side of College Street between Quinte Secondary School and the dry cleaning plant at the corner of Dundas and North Front St.

There was differing opinion on the part of board members as to both the site and also whether to proceed with construction this year.

One objection to the present College Street site was the fact that construction of the new building would require tearing down two properties estimated worth in the neighborhood of $9,000 each. This, it was felt by some members, would be a waste in view of the fact that a vacant site was available on property already owned by the Board on College St.

Body Identified

LEAMINGTON (CP) — Provincial police said early night identified a body washed onto a shoal about six miles southeast of here as that of Ivan Ray, 20, of Roy Bavidge, 27, of Leamington, who had been missing from her home since Monday.

An autopsy has been ordered.

Rehearse Plans For Welcome In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago rehearsed Friday the royal welcome it plans for the Queen Monday. Although there were a number of untoward incidents it was called a success.

The unforeseen developments:

A park worker riding a power lawn mower got mixed up in the royal doings at the most solemn moment—while the captain of the guard of honor was conducting the stand - in Queen past the troops. The mower chugged up in front of the military units then stopped dead. Its driver bewildered, Police hustled the intruder back onto the grass.

A field artillery unit, due to fire a salute, could not get its guns past a tangle of photographers' cars.

A Skid Road character with a dog which had a cap pistol in its harness got as close to the reviewing cast that the "queen" almost tripped over the gun-packing canine.

Three Members Toronto Family Killed in Crash

LINDSAY (CP) — Three members of a Toronto family were killed Friday when their car struck a truck-trailer loaded with grain at the intersection of Highways 7 and 35, two miles south of here. A fourth is in hospital with serious injuries.

Dead are Henry George Gilbert, 40, of Scarborough; his wife Agnes, and a son, Paul, 6. A second son, Dean, 3, suffered a broken arm, broken leg, multiple lacerations and abrasions.

Ross O'Halloran, of Campbellford, driver of the truck, escaped injury. Police said the impact of the accident sent the truck 19 yards down the road. It overturned in a ditch and burst into flames.

Total of 83 Charges Heard in Brighton Court

TRENTON — A total of 83 charges were read in Brighton's magistrate court on Thursday with 34 of them being juvenile and in a closed court. Ruling on the case was Magistrate Don Barnes. Crown Attorney and Dave Dayman, Q.C., acted for the crown.

J. P. Divizio, 37, of Downsview was found guilty of driving a car carelessly on a public highway and fined $25 and ordered to pay court costs of $3. Constable J. Graham of the Brighton OPP gave evidence and told the court of the accident on May 29 which left Divizio's car damaged and the accused but that no other traffic was involved.

In testifying on his own behalf, Mr. Divizio said he had been on the way back from Belleville where he had visited his ailing father and was near Brighton at about 2:30 a.m. when he fell asleep, having trouble with the car overheating and because of this had been keeping a close eye on the heat gauge of the vehicle.

He said that the accident he said he had looked at the gauge and when he did so the steering car was on the shoulder of the road and too close to a pole to stop the car in time. He stated that the front end of the car had been damaged to the extent of over $300 and that he was alone in the car at the time. He presented evidence with a photo-program as proof of his father's illness and that he had been called to Montreal.

In finding the accused guilty the magistrate told the court that motorists should keep their eyes on the road at all times and there is too much traffic today and if it necessary to check gauges on the car, to pull over to the side of the road and stop to check the gauges carefully.

He said he also found it hard to believe that that much damage could be done to the front of the car if it had only been going 30 m.p.h. Crown Attorney Dayman argued as proof of his father's illness and that he had been called to Montreal.

CHARGE DISMISSED

A charge of assault occasioning bodily harm against James Loveless of Brighton was dismissed when Mrs. Loveless' girl involved refused to give evidence and tell the court what had happened on the night concerned The girl had apparently been struck by her father, Marvin Cooney, who testified that he came home about 12 midnight and found the girl with her jaw bruised and swollen and a cut over one of her head. He told the court he had left the broken window key bottle on the couch inside the front door.

Dr. Elliott of Brighton told of treating the young girl when brought to his office after midnight on that night and described the injuries he had treated on her. He said they were all superficial and would take from one to six weeks before completely heal.

Gordon Kempf of Brighton told of giving Loveless a ride from Trenton to Brighton and letting him out on the main street of Brighton. He said the accused had a bottle with him at the time.

Guide Leaders Will Use Centre On September 14

TRENTON — At a recent meeting of the Trenton Community Services Commission the use of the Gardens on Saturday, September 19th, was donated to the Girl Guides.

On that date Guides will hold a leadership training school for Guide leaders from Napanee in the east to Peterborough in the west to Bancroft in the north and through Prince Edward County in the south.

About seventy-five Guide leaders are expected to attend to further their knowledge of Brownie and Guide training.

The school will be under the direction of Mrs. Theone W. Spear, of Trenton, Area Girl Guide Commissioner, and Mrs. A. E. Johnston of Marmora, Chairman of Girl Guide training for the Trenton area.

The Community Gardens Commission welcomes the opportunity of being able to offer such a worthy organization as the Girl Guides the use of a site that, as many of the Guide leaders will be from the Trenton area, is ideally situated and is again serving the purpose for which it was intended.

Harry Baker of Trenton, a part-time employee of the liquor store in Brighton, identified the slip from the store dated April 3rd and signed by James Lovejoy for the purchase of a quart of whiskey.

Following Mr. Baker's testimony the young girl was called to the stand but stated that she would not answer the questions of the crown or the magistrate. Because of this the case was dismissed. The accused man was represented by Ron Case of Belleville.

A charge of failing to give way and yield over to the right and make half the highway available to traffic was dismissed against transport driver Gilbert McQuade of Toronto was also dismissed. The accident was represented by Ron Case of Belleville who argued that the driver was charged under the wrong sub-section and it was now too late to bring a charge under the proper one. Magistrate Barnes agreed with the counsel and dismissed the case.

J. F. Abbott of 146 Dundas Street East, in Trenton was found guilty on a break and entry charge laid by officers of the Trent Valley Sand and Gravel on June 29.

The remainder of the charges heard in the court consisted of various ones under the Highway Traffic Act and the Liquor Control Act.

The court opened at 10 a.m. and adjourned about 3 p.m. Proceedings in the juvenile cases were heard.

Around Town With Al

TRENTON — Boards, it doesn't matter if they are elected by the people or appointed by council, certainly have a tough time carrying out the responsibilities placed on them when people are always criticizing or finding fault. But when virtuous rumors or one-sided stories are started around about the board members or their decisions it makes it twice as rough for them.

Such is the current case with the present Board of Education in Trenton. A board with members elected by the people and who get no remuneration for their work.

I sat in a small restaurant the other day and listened to a friend of mine tell me a story or two on the troubles the school board was having. He stated discussions a member of the board and one of the teachers had several times that week made a good story. As a matter of fact he said he was glad that I phoned the chairman of the School Board, Stan Ketcheson, and requested information on what I had heard.

He told me it was all new to him that the board was having troubles between the board and the teachers, nor did he have any knowledge of unusual problems facing the board.

Yesterday I sat in the same restaurant with a member of the school board and he took the trouble to tell me more on the entire situation. He asked me not to print anything that he told me and I feel that is unfortunate, because he is an honest business man and his statements at any time can be taken down as facts and if published would not clear away many of the rumors now circulating around town about the board.

When he had finished talking and left he left me with the problem of deciding if there is a problem facing the board and the members cannot handle in an effective manner.

He also left me with the thought that it would be so much easier for everyone concerned if people would take the time to ask members of the school board about things they hear rather than sit back on them, when telling someone else. Board members will be happy to discuss their work with anyone — even members of the press.

Charge Man With Assault On Girl, 11

A 36-year-old-Belleville man, married with a small family, has been charged in Belleville city police for a serious offence in connection with an 11-year-old Kingston girl visiting in the city.

Charged with assault of a female, Section 136 of the Criminal Code, is Lloyd Spencer, of 43 Grove Street. The offence is alleged to have taken place on Thursday.

Police said the young Kingston girl came to Belleville on July 1st to visit with her aunt in the Hillcrest area of the city.

Spencer appeared before justice of the peace yesterday and was remanded until Thursday July 7th for court appearance.

IN MEMORIAM

MARACLE. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Maracle, who passed away two years ago, July 4th, 1957.

Two years have come and gone since the day
We little thought the end was so near;
And those who have lost can only say
The path of parting without fare-well.
More each day we miss you, father,
Friends may think we've ceased to grieve;
But little they know the sorrow,
That lies within our hearts for-ever.
—Sadly missed and remembered by daughter Frances and son-in-law Raymond Bailey.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to thank relatives, friends and doctors for their kindness during our recent bereavement.

F105 MORE VERSATILE

The F-104 was just a day fighter whereas the F-105 had an all-weather capability and could have been used in Canada as well as in Europe.

Mr. Hellyer said the F-105 is in full operational service and production orders to 1963 have been placed. The U.S. did not plan to withdraw the F-104 once in service and "the high attrition rate will accelerate their phasing out."

Harold Winch (CCF — Vancouver East) said that in the matter of equipping the forces there is "no unification, no chain of authority, no chain of command." Senior RCAF officers were "stupified and frustrated by lack of authority to do anything."

Earlier, Opposition Leader Pearson asked if the build-up in Canadian air defence commitments and increased emphasis on missiles.

It was essential that NATO countries in Europe develop a defence against a limited attack without, the West having to depend for massive nuclear retaliation by the U.S. Air force.

"The question is not that we have an elephant gun and may not want to use it, but a small gun and we have to use it because we have not got a .22," Mr. Pearson said.

Mrs. C. D. Ashley Being Admitted To High Order

A St. John Ambulance member in Belleville since 1941 and since May, 1957, provincial officer for cadets (Nursing), Mrs. C. D. Ashley, 37 Benjamin St., is being admitted to the Order of St. John of Jerusalem with the rank of Serving Sister.

MRS. C. D. ASHLEY

Mrs. Ashley received her first aid certificate and her home nursing certificate in 1941 and from then until 1945 organized both home nursing and first aid classes in the city. She joined the Belleville nursing division in 1945 and was appointed superintendent of the Belleville cadet nursing division the same year.

For valuable assistance rendered in the furtherance of the work in connection with the Priory in Canada she received the Priory Vote of Thanks (Churchwomen) 1950 and in October of that year became a qualified first aid instructor.

In addition to her work with the St. John Ambulance, Mrs. Ashley has trained hundreds of Belleville Girl Guides and Boy Scouts in first aid work.

Woodworkers Still Maintain Picket Lines

By IAN MACDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The International Woodworkers of America is in Newfoundland to stay, say officials of the loggers' union and the supporting Canadian Labor Congress.

"We're still maintaining picket lines," Hank Skinner, IWA organizer in Bishop's Falls, said in an interview. "They'll stay on until we have a contract from the Anglo - Newfoundland Development Company."

The dispute between the big woods union and one of Newfoundland's two pulp and paper companies began with an IWA strike against the A.N.D. in Grand Falls Dec. 31. The union asked for higher wages and shorter work hours for 1,300 company loggers.

It has become one of the most bitter fights in the modern annals of Canadian labor history. It resulted in identification of the two IWA locals in the province by the Newfoundland legislature, the death of a policeman in a fight between police and pickets at Badger, Nfld., and the major test of Premier Joseph Smallwood's political strength in the province he brought into Confederation only 10 years ago.

Skinner said token picket lines may be seen today in central Newfoundland, at Millertown, Bishop's Falls and Badger, scene of the March 10 clash in which Const. William Moss of the Newfoundland constabulary was fatally injured.

Earle Ronald Laing, 35-year-old Independent contractor from Lomond in western Newfoundland, was acquitted by the Supreme Court here last week on a charge of murder after Moss' death.

Despite this and other troubles, Skinner claims "the total number of men who would rather be under an IWA contract is just as high now, or higher, than it has been in the last two years."

Canada Stepping up Drive To Create Mars for Uranium

By JOHN E. RIND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada is stepping up a drive to create future world markets for its huge uranium reserves but this isn't going to help producers overcome the expected loss of their biggest customer — the United States—in mid-1962.

The latest move was the signing of an agreement Thursday with Japan for co-operation in the development of atomic energy for peaceful uses. It is similar to one signed with Pakistan May 14 and others negotiated earlier with West Germany and Switzerland.

The government hopes that by helping these countries to develop their atomic programs, especially in the electric power field, they will buy Canadian uranium to fuel their atomic generating plants.

However, none of these countries will have any great number of atomic stations operating until the early 1970s. Consequently, they will not require large quantities of uranium until then.

CONTRACTS EXPIRE

In mid - 1962 contracts expire with the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission for the purchase of Canadian uranium. There is every indication the commission will not renew these contracts and Canadian producers will face a serious situation.

Canadian mines will be at peak production capacity with their best market gone. They will have to wait about 10 years until the demand for uranium for power plants catches up to productive capacity.

The federal government has attempted—without success—to persuade the U.S. to continue buying Canadian uranium on a large scale after 1962. However, American producers oppose any big expansion in imports at this time on grounds the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission should buy only domestic uranium.

VARIOUS PROPOSALS

Canada takes the position that the U.S. has a moral obligation to continue buying from this country because Canadian producers responded to the U.S. need for uranium when there was very little American production. This does not seem to have impressed Washington.

A number of proposals have been made to assist the industry in the event there is no large American market from mid-1962 until the early 1970s.

One is that the government provide assistance during this period of the kind extended to the gold mining industry. Another is that the government buy uranium from producers and store it for sale in the future.

Harlow H. Wright of Toronto, director of Lorado Uranium Mines Limited, recently proposed a uranium company financed by the banks and financial institutions.

Accident May Help Youngster To Talk

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. (AP) Two months ago four-year-old J. Byron Patterson dashed into the street, was hit by a car and knocked off feet.

A leg and ribs were broken. He underwent four-hour brain surgery for multiple head injuries.

Yet his mother says: "For his sake, it's the best thing that has ever happened."

Since the accident the boy, already deaf since birth, has begun to hear.

J. Byron—the J doesn't stand for anything—is a handsome, healthy - looking youngster who has been trying to figure out or trying to understand the words family members speak to him.

He wore a hearing aid before the accident, but he couldn't hear well enough to learn to talk.

The boy's doctors say there have been other instances when defects were righted by head injuries. They think the head injury may have alleviated a blood deficiency.

SWEDISH ORE

Sweden exports about 90 per cent of its average annual production of 20,000,000 tons of iron ore.

Report Card Agony Time Here Again

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The annual agony of report cards is going on all over Canada now as school days give way to summer.

But the universality of this small happening, centring around a little piece of paper that may throw a family into wild joy or darkest gloom, is qualified by the variety of ways in which Canadian schools present the news.

Methods of recording Johnny's scholastic progress vary from British Columbia's five - letter system including O for outstanding and U for unsatisfactory to the widespread percentage system used in many provinces.

ONTARIO SYSTEM

Ontario elementary schools both public and separate, generally use a letter grading system in the first three grades of school and a percentage system from then on. But the matter is up to local school boards.

In Quebec, Roman Catholic schools all use percentages. Protestant schools use letters to grade four and percentages after that.

In the Atlantic Provinces both letter and percentages systems are used.

In Alberta, separate schools use a five-letter system with E for honors heading the list. Public schools use both letters and percentages, but all final marks are percentages.

In Saskatchewan a letter system is used.

In Manitoba various systems are used, but urban schools generally use letters and rural schools percentages.

Swedes Ready "Red Carpet" For Ingemar

From Arvidsvalla Airport, he will be taken to Ulevi open-air stadium by helicopter.

A capacity crowd of 52,000 fans will greet him and celebrate his victory over Floyd Patterson in Yankee Stadium June 26.

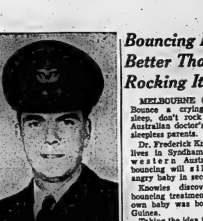
Meanwhile in Stockholm, Sweden's fans cheered and booed Friday at the first showing here of the movies of Johansson's third-round victory over Patterson. The fight was by-conscious Swedish fans objected to the way Ingemar knocked Patterson down the second time.



After Patterson was floored by Ingemar's left to the jaw of Patterson, whose back was almost turned to Johansson, and then followed with a right to the back of the neck.

But everything else the Swedish idol did earned a big hand from his countrymen.

RECOUNT STARTS MONDAY

KENORA (CP) — Judge J. L. McLennan announced Friday a recount of voting in the Kenora riding in the June 8 Ontario general election will be started Monday. The recount was requested by Progressive Conservative candidate Howard Keffer who lost by 34 votes to Liberal Albert Wren, according to the official results announced June 25.

F/O JOHN D. LAFFERTY

Parading the RCAF Colors with the 100-man Guard of Honor for H.M. the Queen when she departs from Victoria for Terrace, B.C., on July 18th, will be F/O John D. Lafferty, 24; son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Lafferty, 123A Front St., Belleville, Ont. A radio officer with 407 Maritime Patrol Squadron based at RCAF Station Comox on Vancouver Island, F/O Lafferty has been in the RCAF since 1955. He was educated at Belleville Collegiate Institute prior to enlisting. The honor guard and color party will be reviewed by the Queen before her departure by the air for the interior of British Columbia. RCAF planes will only be minutes away from the Royal aircraft as they carry out escort duties during the flight.

Long Tours Not Advocated Say Officials

SARNIA (CP) — Senior officials with the Royal Tour are saying that this will be the last in the grand monarchial mould as regards length is concerned.

Their view, which they indicate is shared by the Queen, is that the long tour—44 days in the case of the current one which began June 18—is too long and too complicated for this day and age.

The alternative, using swifter means of communication now available, would be shorter visits for specific events in Canada.

One source points out that Prince Philip at Quebec City during a reception said he had made it plain that he felt the lengthy tour these days is an anachronism that fails to take advantage of air travel. It is most likely that the subject had been discussed between the Queen and Philip, it is suggested, and that she agrees.

If Canada invited the Queen again for a long tour, she might accept, officials say. But they feel there is little chance of that.

Three Killed

ST. HYACINTHE, Que. (CP) — Three young men died Friday night in the crushed wreckage of their convertible after it ran out of control and rammed the back of a trailer truck.

They were identified as Simon Joyal, 21, his brother, Andre, 19, and Andre Provencher, 21, all of La Providence, Que., a small community about 30 miles east of Montreal.

The accident happened on a highway some nine miles from here.

Bouncing Baby Better Than Rocking It

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Bounce a crying baby to sleep, don't rock it, is an Australian doctor's advice to sleepless parents.

Dr. Frederick Knowles, who lives in Syndham in northwestern Australia, says bouncing will silence an angry baby in seconds.

Knowles discovered the bouncing treatment when his own baby was born in New Guinea.

Taking the idea from native women, he bounced the baby in a string bag until it went to sleep.

The quick result, he says in an article in the current Medical Journal of Australia, prompted him to experiment and discover that the technique worked as well in a canvas bag.

Survivors Fight Sharks After Freighter Burns

CRISTOBAL, Panama Canal Zone (AP)—Survivors of the Colombian freighter Rio Atrato which caught fire and sank in a burst of explosions in the Caribbean told today of fighting off sharks before being rescued. Two of the known dead were believed eaten by the big fish.

The German freighter Essen arrived here with 29 barefooted men, women and children picked up after the gasoline-laden South American ship went down Friday 25 miles off Cartagena, Colombia.

Still missing were from seven to 19 persons, including at least six passengers. Capt. Orestes Howard of the Rio Atrato said the persons were aboard: purser Gabriel Farah listed 49.

It Takes A TOTAL Selling Medium To Push A Sales Curve UP! . . .

Today's market for almost anything you can name is rich, responsive, rewarding . . . BUT highly competitive! To keep sales mounting under such conditions calls for a TOTAL selling effort. In particular, it calls for the use of the TOTAL selling medium, the newspaper.

No other medium covers the advertiser's TOTAL market so thoroughly . . . no other medium delivers his message with such powerful selling impact as the newspaper. Most shoppers check the ads in their newspaper, last thing before setting forth to buy. This gives the newspaper advertiser the opportunity to put in that all-important last word for himself, the word that pays off so handsomely in SALES.

CHOOSE CANADA FOR HOT-WEATHER TESTS

Vickers-Armstrong (Aircraft) Ltd. of Weybridge, England, has a new big sister for the Viscount, the turbo-prop plane which has become so familiar to air travellers in Canada by reason of its fast, efficient service on relatively short trips. The new baby is the Vanguard and the second production model of this big plane recently arrived in Montreal. For what? For hot weather tests, if you please. We hope that this news gets the widest possible circulation in England and even in the U.S. "Our Lady of the Snows" wears a different face in summer, as this Vanguard excursion should prove to sceptics in other lands.

Incidentally, the Weatherman co-operated magnificently. When the Vanguard touched down in Montreal after a ten-hour trip across the Atlantic, the thermometer read 81 on the shade.

Sir George Edwards, managing-director of Vickers-Armstrong, said that he was interested in the performance of the Vanguard's Rolls-Royce engines in hot weather - - "of course we know all these things in theory."

The Vanguard which flew here is destined for service eventually with British European Airways, but the TCA has placed an order for twenty Vanguards at a cost of more than $67,000,000. It is likely, therefore, that at some time before the TCA gets delivery of its first Vanguard in the fall of next year Sir George will be interested in the way the Vanguard's engines perform in cold weather, too.

What better place to make the tests than in Canada - - but not in July.

Incidentally, the interest displayed in the way the plane's engines perform in hot weather suggests to the layman that firms which provide aircraft for TCA may have an unusual problem, designing engines which are efficient in weather which varies widely.

The TCA will use the Vanguards on its medium-haul flights, taking over in time from the Viscounts and the old North Stars on all routes except the trans-Atlantic jobs. The Vanguard, with a range of 2,310 miles, flies at 415 miles an hour and can carry 96 passengers as well as ten tons of cargo. It is the only plane designed to carry both passengers and freight simultaneously with any re-arrangement of the passenger-carrying capacity.

THIS MAKES SENSE

The House of Commons had a difficult case before it the other day.

It was discussing the pension of L. H. Nicholson, RCMP Commissioner who resigned when he found himself in disagreement with Hon. Davie Fulton, Minister of Justice, regarding the sending of RCMP reinforcements to Newfoundland during the recent loggers' strike in that province.

Mr. Nicholson had served Canada in the RCMP for 34 years. Had he remained another year he would have been entitled to full pension. Because of his resignation, on a question of principle, he is legally entitled to only 80 per cent of the pension he would otherwise have received.

Leon Crestohl, Liberal member for Montreal Cartier, suggested that provision should be made for members of the force who quit shortly before their full term.

Now we think it is obvious that it would be shabby treatment if Mr. Nicholson were deprived of a fifth of his pension because his principles prevented him from serving one thirty-fifth of the time necessary to qualify for such a pension.

We think, though, that Mr. Fulton was correct when he said that general legislation covering such cases is not desirable. If such legislation existed, there might be others who would resign for less worthy motives, merely serving their own desires without thought to the disruption to the organization, secure in the knowledge that they would not be penalized in any way with respect to their pension.

Mr. Fulton, we suggest, provided the necessary solution when he offered to recommend to the Cabinet that Mr. Nicholson be granted the full pension. This recommendation will be fitting tribute to the man who makes it, as well as to the man on whose behalf it is made. It will show that it is still possible for men of goodwill to differ in their opinions without this difference creating ill-will between them.

MY DUTY

By EDGAR A. GUEST

To serve my country and my state
And do my share to make them great,
To be a patriot through and through,
In everything I say or do;
To realize that I am one
That good old flag's depending on.

I must not leave to others here
The task of holding freedom dear
Nor trust to them to keep from
The banner that we all acclaim;
For, stripped of sentiment and sham,
That flag depends on what I am.

One traitor blights a nation's pride;
If only one shall step aside
That's where the name American
His shame is borne by all his clan.
My duty then it is to see
That no disgrace shall come

Swedes Go Underground

Milwaukee Journal

Watch your step when you go out for a walk in Sweden. The whole country is reformed or honeycombed with caves and bases, garages, factories and oil stores.

For thousands of years the Swedes have realized the enormous advantages hidden in their country's solid mountains. They were looked upon merely as a hindrance to agriculture and communication.

But when the air warfare was developed to unexpected perfection in World War II, it was suddenly understood that mountains could safeguard the blood for air shelters. Now the big Swedish towns have shelters which can house all their inhabitants.

The large public shelters, started out in the city and silent depths of the primary rock, have peacetime uses, too.

In Goteborg you won't find a single parking garage. But when you travel through the quiet churchyard on the top of the Johannes mountain, you would never guess that some ten yards beneath you there is a large garage with parking space and a service station.

Stockholm's biggest establishment of this kind is a three decked car park in the Katarin mountain. It has room for 500 automobile, or in case of need, houses 20,000 people.

The rock of granite is 60 feet thick. Sharp angles in the tunnel leading to the shelter are designed to stop pressure waves. The air conditioning can clean the establishment of radioactivity.

But the Swedes not only want to be sheltered in their mountain caves if the war breaks out. They also would like to keep the enemy from the borders of their country.

So, in order to protect the east coast navy from air raids, one of Europe's major naval bases is hidden in the heart of the Stockholm sea labyrinth. A solid granite roof — sometimes more than 50 yards thick — and giant shock absorbing doors make the base A-bomb-proof.

Included in this underground base is one of the country's biggest naval repair yards.

Bases of that kind are defended against an attacking enemy by medium range guided missiles launched from the depths of the rocks.

The elaborate coast defence system consists of a network of fortifications, submarine pens and underground harbors into which destroyers can sail. Many of the top secret air bases all around Sweden are hidden inside rocks too.

About 150 miles south of Stockholm, the Saab airplane factory is buried under 100 feet of solid low land surface with workshops and accommodations for several hundred workers, including dining rooms.

Air conditioning, a very essential thing due to the heat from machines, gives the air constant temperature and humidity.

At Saab, the planes are put together inside the mountain and taken out through a long slightly sloping tunnel. Several other big Swedish companies have established themselves into the mountain. They all report good results.

Portuguese Dictatorship

New York Times

Dictatorships on this side of the line, like Curtain grow scarcer. In Europe two are outstanding, that of Franco in Spain and Salazar in Portugal. The Portuguese survival of fascism under the control of Dr. Salazar, who is now 70 years old, is the gentler of the two. There was confidence in Portugal to an archy when Dr. Salazar took office as Premier three decades ago, but those days are long since passed. Unlike Generalissimo Franco, Premier Salazar did not derive power from the sorrow of his countrymen. Unlike Generalissimo Franco, he did not take a barbarous revenge on enemies.

Portugal, under this regime, has not, indeed, been a free country. Dr. Salazar is on record in his own words as saying that political democracy, in its parliamentary and party form, has long ago entered upon a decline of which it is in dire disintegration." The laborer is protected with health laws in Portugal, but he has no right to strike. The economy of the little nation is firmly controlled in a way that what old-fashioned way, but certain things have been accomplished. The death rate has dropped dramatically since the days of Salazar. Illiteracy has been cut from over 60 per cent to 20 per cent, the production of electricity in this land of burro power and of women carrying loads on their heads has multiplied six times; most significant of all, the Portuguese currency has remained stable. The essential thing is the fifth of his pension because his principles prevented him from serving one thirty-fifth of the time necessary to qualify for such a pension.

We think, though, that Mr. Fulton was correct when he said that general legislation covering such cases is not desirable. If such legislation existed, there might be others who would resign for less worthy motives, merely serving their own desires without thought to the disruption to the organization, secure in the knowledge that they would not be penalized in any way with respect to their pension.

Mr. Fulton, we suggest, provided the necessary solution when he offered to recommend to the Cabinet that Mr. Nicholson be granted the full pension. This recommendation will be fitting tribute to the man who makes it, as well as to the man on whose behalf it is made. It will show that it is still possible for men of goodwill to differ in their opinions without this difference creating ill-will between them.

Souvenirs Are Trash

The Times of London

Ideally no doubt the mementos and souvenirs which visitors from overseas take back with them after visiting this United Kingdom should be things made here which are characteristic, "local," and not too easily and highly esteemed.

But it is natural that in practice people prefer to take away with them articles which in some slight way remind them of call places they have seen — souvenir spoons or ash trays, for example, with pictures of arms or pictures of buildings or beauty spots.

Most of the articles produced for this trade are trash, and the Council of Industrial Design does well in its journal Design to say so frankly. The business has expanded with great energy in recent years; "some might say" (to quote the journal) "that never before has so much rubbishness acumen and activity been so wasted upon so little."

The council, however, is not primarily concerned with destructive criticism. It is looking for ways in which it can help to raise the standard of design in the trade and of stirrings in the industries concerned —some firms have been interested in the ways of getting better designs, and the British Travel and Holidays Association is working with it.

Wholesalers and shopkeepers who sell these goods must be persuaded that there is a discriminating market for souvenirs and that better products would sell well. Manufacturers often argue that it is the trade buyer more than the final buyer who resists improved designs.

The council is expanding a section of its "design index" for well designed souvenirs.

CLIPPINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 4th, 1939

For over twenty years, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Lieberman of St. Louis, Miss., have been making a regular summer pilgrimage to Canada and to this part of Ontario. This morning the welcome visitors called in the front office of the Chamber of Commerce to renew friendships gained through their years of regular visiting.

The Fourth of July, anniversary of the signing of the American Declaration of Independence, 163 years ago, was celebrated last evening as two small rockets churned up the bay in the direction of the Murray Canal. They enlivened the quiet scene on the smooth waters by indulging in a pyrotechnic display of Roman candles and sky rockets which flared and shone briefly in the darkness.

Mrs. Scott Cockburn and daughters, Dorothy and Lois, of Toronto, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goudy, Forest Avenue.

Miss Doris Juby, Alexander Street, is spending a couple of weeks' holidays in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. William Reddick, Mrs. W. Murray, Mrs. F. Williamson and Keith, of Oshawa, spent the weekend here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Metcalfe of Toronto are spending a week with the latter's aunt, Mrs. E. M. Juby, Alexander Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Martin and Mrs. Grace Edison spent the holidays in Montreal.

Mr. Earl Whitmarsh, Miss Mabel Whitmarsh, Miss Marion Thompson and Mr. Wendell Chantry of Binghampton, N.Y., spent the week-end at Mr. and Mrs. David Joss, Colborne Street.

30 YEARS AGO

July 4th, 1929

Mrs. Robert Wallace has returned to her home here after visiting friends in Fred Wallace in Port Arthur, Ont., for the past six months.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker Phillips of Detroit, Mich., formerly of Belleville, are visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cornell and Bertram Sallsbury have returned from a pleasant wedding a vacation camping at Conneton Lake.

The contractor for the addition to John Street Church has begun the work of the installation of Oshawa. The contract price is said to be about $14,-000.

Mrs. Ben Burley of Toronto is visiting friends here.

40 YEARS AGO

July 4th, 1919

In a Junior League baseball game between the Red Sox and the Tigers, played on the Ann Street School grounds, the former team won by a score being 7 to 5. The following composed the teams: Red Sox, Baldwin, Kelsey, Myles, Latchford, Marsakes, Jess, Herlity and Ashley; Tigers, Kemp, Ashley, Starke, Carson, Lowe, Barrigo, Mahoney and Bunbury.

The East Belleville playgrounds are now open for the season. Two hundred children were present at the opening on Monday.

The farmers are busy harvesting the hay crop.

Mr. Draycott of the Intelligencer bindery department wants a young man or youth to learn the trade.

Mr. Frank Burton of St. Johnsberry, Vt., is home on a visit to his parents.

Miss Ida Sullivan, an old Belleville boy, is spending a few days in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shea are spending a few weeks in Nova Scotia.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. L. Kelso of Chicago, Ill., are spending a few days in the city and are stopping at the Hotel Quinte. Mrs. Kelso is a daughter of the late Dr. B. S. Wilson of this city.

Inflation Has a Virtue

Milwaukee Sunday Journal

Scientists long have been saying that the chemicals in the human body are worth only $1.67. This has always had a deflating influence on man's ego.

And for a long time we can remember, most economists have been saying that inflation was a bad thing. But now a Texas college chemist has figured out that because of inflation the chemicals in a man's body are worth $17. So inflation has at least added that essential worth.

For longer than we can remember, doctors have warned about overweight. But that can have good points, too. The man down the street, who has added 40 pounds in the last several years, can now claim that because of inflation and overweight, he's worth more than he used to be. He figures his chemical value at something like $1.67.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Smaller cars are a move in the right direction. But my wife wants to know why cars have to be three people wide. What we need, she says, are narrower cars, one person wide, long, narrow cars, in which people sit single file, one behind the other. Then how many cars would be wedding up the highways in such vehicles. It would be like the old days when we did things. On the throughways, we could drive our abreast.

I think how easy it would be to park them, double parked, all lined along the streets.

"How about getting out," I answered against the curb with two cars outside you?"

"Oh, you could snake out," she assured me.

There is no reason why people should sit side by side. The one in the middle would be far more comfortable in a single-file car. Since 98 per cent of all cars in America have only one person in them, the normal driver-to-be-wife car would be a two-passenger. Then there could be a lot of extra equipment, a two-seater single-trailer to hook on the back.

"Yes," I agreed, "you'd have to have a joint in the middle for going around curves."

The more you think of it, the sillier and more probable it

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

EUGENICS SOMETIMES RUNS CONTRARY TO LOVE

"Dear Dr. Molner: My brother, 32, is engaged to a nervous type and heavy-smoking girl of 21. Her mother was also the nervous type and she died of cancer in her 40's.

"My mother does not want him to marry this girl, as she will likely inherit cancer, too, and bring a lot of unhappiness and maybe leave some little children for us to take care of.

"Should not young people investigate the health of the parents and relatives of the ones they plan to marry? Making ends meet is hard enough without medical expenses.

"My mother had a friend who went against her parents' wishes and married a lonesome cousin. Their whole life was supposed to be cured. He took promotions and died, leaving three little ones her family had to raise. Her father told her not to marry him, to look for a healthy, husky guy, but she was hard-headed and went away.

"Any advice you can give these people in this important matter might save many a heartbreak later on. — Mrs. B. K."

Madam, you've flung at me a problem that is beyond my feeble talents. To answer this question to the satisfaction of everybody concerned, I would have to be a preacher, psychologist, diplomat and first-class lawyer. I don't know that I'm any of these.

NOT ALWAYS HEREDITARY

As the case is before me today, you don't tell me what kind of cancer the girl's mother died of. Nor what kind of cancer you have decided the girl will die of. Cancer you see, isn't always hereditary.

As to the cured tubercular patients who died of tuberculosis well, I know of a man who recovered from smallpox and he also died of diabetes, and also of a man who recovered from a gunshot wound and also died of drowning run over by a car driven by a young woman who wouldn't wear her glasses, even while driving.

In short, what's the connection?

HOW RACE BETTERMENT

I'll agree with you to this extent: It would be a good thing for the world, in the future, if the healthiest men would marry the healthiest girls. And also the smartest.

That's from the standpoint of getting your own (or daughter) to enhance the family forum. It would be transferred. If girls married the boss's sons, and the boys married the boss's daughters.

But this sometimes runs contrary to Love.

Yes, I know it's been said that "it's just as easy to fall in love with a rich girl as a poor one," but I don't believe it.

By the same token, it's just as easy to fall in love with a girl whose ancestors all lived to a ripe old age — or not.

And anyway, somebody who is destined to die at 40 may be able to crowd 100 years of affection and good-will into a short lifetime.

That doesn't mean that I think it's wise to choose a mate who is of the nervous jittery type. It probably isn't. But I really don't think I or you can do one solitary thing about choosing young love, I believe in eugenics, but I respectfully decline the nomination to be Cupid to Decide Things.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that the calcium in milk is transformed by the chocolate in chocolate milk into a form unusable by the human body? — E. W."

No. This is the second time in a very short period that I've encountered this question in my mail, and I wonder who is trying to stir up such a rumor.

Note to E. G.: There are so many people like you who get worried over one particular thing. In your case, it's your teeth, and you know they are all right, yet you worry a little about them. I think a few visits to a psychiatrist might do a lot to iron out this little quirk.

Attention all women! For my new pamphlet, "The Pre-Menstrual Blues," write to me in care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling. This pamphlet may help you!

McMURRAY, ALBERTA

This name, of course, instantly calls to mind the famous tar sands in the district, believed to contain millions of barrels of oil, but originally it was a stopping place between Fort Chipewyan on Lake Athabasca and Lac la Biche in Saskatchewan. After a couple of disastrous fires, Fort Mac was the trading post destroyed, a Hudson's Bay Co. inspector, J. D. McMurray, responded to the need of Indians and he caused to be dismantled the large building and floated the timber down the river to the present site. A Mr. Moberley, another Hudson's Bay agent, founded the place Fort McMurray, but in later years the Fort was dropped.

Liberty gives us the opportunity to learn — to grow up.

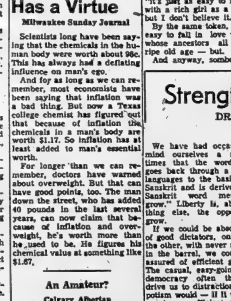
Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GROWING UP

We have had occasion to remind ourselves a number of times that the word "liberty" goes back through a number of languages to the basic language Sanskrit and is derived from a Sanskrit word meaning "to grow." Liberty is, above everything else, the opportunity to grow.

If we could be absolutely sure that good citizens were those who, the other, with never a bad apple in the barrel, we could also be assured of effective government. The casual, easy-going ways of democracy often combine to drive us to distraction. Yes, despotism would — if it were honest — give us efficient government. But it would never give us the opportunity to grow. A thousand years from now people living under despotism would still be the stunted, little intellectual and moral midget they were to begin with. At best they would be the innocent victims of following the command of a stern parent.



We make plenty of mistakes with democracy, but in the process we learn to grow. Even with toddling, staggering, bumping into chairs and falling down that the child learns to walk.

It is by making many mistakes, picking ourselves up and starting over again that we learn how to conduct government.

Liberty gives us the opportunity to learn — to grow up.

Stories of Famous Hymns

YOUR MISSION

If you cannot, on the ocean
Sail among the swiftest fleet,
Rocking on the highest billows,
Laughing at the storms you meet,
You can stand among the sailors
Anchored yet within the bay,
You can lend a hand to help them
As they launch their boats away.

If you are too weak to journey
Up the mountain, steep and high,
You can stand within the valley
While the multitudes go by!
You can chant in happy measure
As they slowly pass along,
Though they may forget the singer,
They will not forget the song.

If you have not gold and silver
Ever ready to command,
If you cannot toward the needy
Reach an ever open hand,
You can visit the afflicted,
O'er the erring you can weep,
With the Savior's true disciples
You a tireless watch may keep.

Some of the world's most precious hymns have been written in quiet studies; others have been dashed off on trains and stage-coaches, and on steamships in mid-ocean.

Mrs. Ellen Huntington Gates was standing at a window watching a snow storm one afternoon in the winter of 1860 when the verses of her hymn, "Your Mission", began taking form in her mind.

"The hymn wrote itself", she said, recalling the incident in after years, "I knew then, as I know now, that the poem was only a simple thing but somehow I had a presentiment that it had wings and would fly into sorrowful hearts, up-lifting and strengthening them."

As the stanzas came along, one after another, they were set down on a slate and, when her poem was finished, it is said that Mrs. Gates knelt where she was writing and prayed that the new hymn might prove precious and helpful to teh cause of Christ. The hymnist, whose home in latter years was in New York, was living in Elizabeth, New Jersey at the time she wrote "Your Mission". The hymn was given general circulation when it was published, a little later, by secular and religious papers.

Mrs. Gates wrote many very beautiful and popular poems and "The Home Of The Soul" was in wide use for years.

A Lift for Living

Go Upward Toward Security

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

On every national holiday the first question asked is: "How many people will be killed?" The Fourth of July celebration costs America hundreds of lives.

The signers of the Declaration of Independence risked their lives for a high cause; too many of us risk our lives only for high speed. I am told that even on ordinary days in New York City one person is injured every two minutes and one person is killed every two hours by accidents, most of which could be prevented by carelessness. Thank God, many people are now becoming more safety minded.

And certainly we are more security conscious than any preceding generation. The perils of the international situation make military security overshadow all other items in our national budget. Economic security is the goal for which we work and save and sacrifice and insure ourselves. And how eagerly we are concerned over securing our health.

But in our search for security, which direction are we taking, down or up? The shelter signs around our cities usually point to cellars and caves. This is symbolic. With too many of us the sense of danger is driving us to seek shelter by going down rather than up.

When the psalmist sought security he cried, "Lord, lead me to the rock that is higher than I." Instead of rising above ourselves we tend to draw into ourselves. Many seek peace of mind in self-centered withdrawal from the rugged concerns of living. Feeling that the world is filled with hostility, they will expose themselves as little as possible. They, button up their better natures, pull down their mental vizors and view the world with low, suspicious gaze.

Drawing into themselves, they are descend into their lower natures. Their thoughts dwell in the cellars of their minds, down among the stored grudges and the preserved bitterness. We are all caught in the current trend. We are prone to assume the worst in others. Thus the dangers of our day turn our thoughts from the best in men to the beast in men.

We live on the defensive. Mistrust begets distrust. In short, our search for security is driving us more and more toward the cave man attitude of shelter.

In contrast to all this, why not try taking an upward direction to security? High thinking lifts us above the hysteria and propagands of the demagogue to the sanity of sober leadership, above blind partisanship to broad statesmanship. High-mindedness lifts us above the attacks of petty insults and the ravages of little worries and personal grudges.

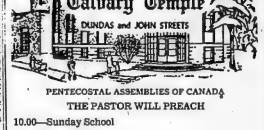
In the early days of the Confederacy, Gen. Robert E. Lee was severely criticized by General Whiting. It might have been expected that Lee would wait for a time when he could get even. A day came when President Jefferson Davis wanted to know what Lee thought of General Whiting. Without hesitation Lee commended Whiting in high terms. An officer present motioned Lee aside to suggest that he must not know what unkind things Whiting had been saying about him. Lee answered that he understood that the President desired to know my opinion of Whiting, not Whiting's opinion of me."

A person whose mind travels on a high level like Lee's does not collide with a lower-minded person who may be travelling at cross purposes.

The conference of foreign ministers at Geneva is now in recess, the prospect is dark. It would be as futile and as fatal to try to appease Khrushchev at Geneva as it was to appease Hitler at Munich. But we should distinguish between appeasement and conciliation. When we try to appease, we appeal to the greed of an opponent. When we try to conciliate, we appeal to the good and generous impulses of our opponent.

Certainly there are some good intiments among the Russians. And even dictators have to consider public opinion. With modern means of communication public opinion cannot be confined by iron curtains.

Therefore, if we cannot have a summit conference with unscrupulous dictators, let us have more conferences at the base. Let us cultivate more exchanges between citizens through the Iron Curtain, between doctors, artists, actors, students and ministers.



Certainly we who believe in the free life are not afraid to trust freedom in the open forum of public opinion. Surely we who believe in God are confident the Cross can hold its own against the Kremlin.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON
EVADING DETECTION

Tropically colored birds are so uncommon in Canada east of the Rockies that we would surely spot them were they not extremely wary. Scarlet tanagers have various ways of evading the curious.

Considerably larger than the English sparrow, the brilliant scarlet male with black wings and tail passes through settled Canada during the last two weeks of May, before the leaves are out. His preference is for mature woodland, but to evade detection he must keep to the tree tops, where he finds plenty of leaf-eating insects to satisfy his appetite. So, as you may well imagine, looking for scarlet tanagers is a neck-breaking sport.

The mother bird in her yellow-ish green dress is next to invisible among the foliage, her dusky wings and tail blending into the shadows on the leaves. Her shallow nest of loose twigs, stems, and grasses is built well out on a horizontal branch, often 40 or 50 feet up in a shade tree. The three or four greenish eggs, almost an inch long, are spotted with brown at the large end, giving them effective protection.

All this time the tanager's robin-like song may be heard. His voice, however, is hoarse, giving us the clue to his identity. Even after nesting he continues to sing, but from such a height that we still have great difficulty in seeing him. Both he and his wife have a distinctive, low chuckey call, "chip-churr" the best identification once the singing period has passed.

CLOWN COSTUME

Later on, Mr. Scarlet Tanager dons a clown's costume to avoid notice. Moulting his gorgeous red feathers in patches, he takes on a peculiar, pied appearance as green feathers grow in their place. This is perfect camouflage. By autumn he has acquired a suit of yellow green, similar to his wife's dress, but his wings and tail remain black.

Juveniles just out of the nest resemble their mother, but are more dull while underneath, and two yellowish green stripes on the wings act as further camouflage. Soon they lose this baby plumage. Then the little girls get to look even more like the mother bird. The little boys are differentiated by black shoulders, and will not change to their father's bright red with black accessories until their second year. By that time nature will have endowed them with the caution of adults to keep their conspicuous scarlet and black plumage as far as possible from all curious eyes.

CENTENARIAN RECOVERS

LONDON (CP)—A woman of 103 is recovering in London hospital from an operation which doctors think would not have been attempted on anyone more than 40 up to about 20 years ago. A chief pain and headache were inserted in her broken leg.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

One day this week we happened to be shopping in one of Belleville's large stores when we realized, as we hadn't before, that summer holidays are here again, that school is out, and that mother's daily work is cut out for her. There was a woman with four drawsome in tow. Each machine was "converting mechanical into electric energy." The dictionary explains to us that energy is exerted out by "rotating coils of copper wire in magnetic fields." T and T knows nothing about electrical engineering but, believe us, you never saw brighter coils of anything rotating more energetically, and it may be assumed that the large power provided a magnetic field strong enough to attract from every direction. One wanted to go one way, another wanted to go another way, still a third wanted mother to buy "some of this," whilst the baby made a point to fly off in all directions at once.

Some of these fourth human events and scenes deserve more attention than they receive. Since we are talking about machines, we may just as well be consistent by expressing our opinion that human machines like our mother and her four children would provide a study in what "makes the wheels go 'round." Some publicity hunter should get busy and find out exactly how long he or she can stay sane; write more than 40 letters for air and gallons of letter's ink are used to tell the news quickly to the earth's spirit. What's so unusual about a mother and four rambunctious children? T & T offers no argument because there are hundreds of thousands of mothers plus four times as many drawsomes to thousands of stores and parks and countless places, minute in and minute out, doing something like the old adage about far away places looking greener, and pain and credit for seeing the human interest. A friend pointed it out and suggested that such scenes should be recorded.

Anyway let's get back to the store, the mother with her four little dynamos. Mother, as we guess, suggested three at least might have been at school a while. Then she ran into controls the speed of the rotating coil of human wire, which is called an operator, we don't know, but certainly no operator is born with a single-digit-giggledy bunch of high tension wires. Mother's patience plate were inserted in her broken leg.

Sacrifice-The Shaping of the Soul

By Alma Mason

The other day I again came across the inspiring story regarding the origin of Albrecht Durer's beautiful painting the "Praying Hands." It would like to renew and refresh it in memory.

The dry paint etching, so well known to us all, is a pair of gnarled workmen hands raised in supplication. So many, gazing upon the etching, must have wondered why Durer, with a multitude of perfect models to choose from, should have focused his search the hands of some elderly workman. Let us review, in part, the events leading up to the creating of the "Praying Hands."

When Albrecht Durer was young, he and another artist were inseparable friends. They shared the little of this world's goods they had. Finally, in deplorable circumstances, they agreed that one should engage in manual labor while the other continued the study of art. They were of equal talent and friendship. It was the elder and he insisted that Albrecht continue his artistic career. Durer eventually made a name for himself in the world of brilliant artists. He found himself in a position to give his devoted friend splendid training for a similar career. When the friend returned to resume his art studies, a heart breaking discovery was made. His years of rough labor had severely damaged his hands, leaving the joints swollen and the fingers stiff. He could no longer make the fine, intricate brush strokes required of an artist. With a sorrowful heart, he relinquished his long treasured dream.

Albrecht Durer grieved over the plight of his friend. He could never forget that the other's great sacrifice had made his own wonderful success possible. Inspired with gratitude — he placed the hands of his dear friends—the bent fingers and protroding veins telling their own story of the hard years of unselfish labor given in the cause of friendship. He drew the hands as he had so often seen them, raised in persistent prayer for his own success. The words "Greater Love Hath No Man Than This" were whispered and re-echoed through the sad corridors of his heart and mind as he etched the magnificent sacrifice on canvas. Necessity to say the "Praying Hands" is considered by many Durer's greatest masterpiece.

Cradled in the glowing core of every brilliant career there is usually to be unearthed a ruby red rose of sacrifice. There are millions of unsung heroes and heroines who have patiently supported the feet of fame for a dear one, only to slip into obscurity themselves. Man is not often aware of these stepping stones that lead to life who seen and knows all has chronicled such devoted and magnificent self effacement on the path stretching to eternity.

I gave my gift to you, dear,
I watched it thrive and grow;
Then, through my own unselfish love
I learned to truly know
That God sees each man's earthly dream,
Sees each poor, haunting goal
And bends the will to sacrifice
To mold and shape the soul.

to differ. Serenely and authoritatively, the jumping, wiggling and wriggle of desires were kept under control and, when mother reached for a can of this or a package of that to add to her shopping cart.

We expect it is rather trite to devote a column to such mundane events, but it was a scene to set in motion a chain of thoughts out over the wires of everyday life. There should be no end to it. Mothers, children, teachers, school, youth, young women, women, new mothers and fathers, simply life and the operators who direct, control and build all this latent energy, are the most fundamental facets of what makes up society and a civilization. Every day is mother's day. We are glad our friend was more observant than we and we thank an unknown mother for her happy, a-nonchalance a hilarious scene on the everyday common stage of life. Herein lies the true power and energy to turn the wheels that make the world great in integrity and faith. Walter Landor gives us our reverend thought, and Carpenter a reminder.

"Children are what the men would be.
No fondest father's fondest dream
Can fashion so the infant heart."

We are reminded too that "Miracle Stalks After all, woman's great and incomparable work."

It's probably quite true that mothers more than all others pray for peace and hate war. Another mother's justified in wondering about the startling fact that Canada's minister who is responsible to the citizenry for defence has only about half the number of bombs we presently need to ponder, to reflect, to represent us when he reports to the nation? When such words as fear, as buffer state, as nuclear extermination are used, haven't we the right to demand that our safety be at least served by more than a part time or slightly representative without honorable and justifiable reason for absence? This indifference is frightening, too.

KEEPING TAB

LONDON (CP) — Marjorie Green parked her car outside Victoria Station and took a boat train to the Continent. An observant policeman noted the time and date. She returned from East Germany exactly seven days, eight hours and 40 minutes later to drive the car home. At Dover, the officials counted her — she was fined £2 for a parking offence.

Meal Planning Can Become Bore But Salad Week Ahead

By EDNA BLAKELY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Meal planning can become a bore, but some rules which help to simplify the chore are passed along by the consumer section of the federal agriculture department.

First of all, they urge to keep Canada's food rules in mind in planning meals. Milk, fruit, vegetables, cereals and bread, meat and fish all are a necessary part of the menu. Eggs and cheese should each be eaten at least three times a week.

To simplify cooking, and shopping too, write out menus for a day or at a time, if possible for a whole week. This saves both time and money. A roast, for example, may be served hot, then cold, and the remainder used in a casserole or meat pie.

CONTRASTS IN FLAVOR

Imagine each food as you jot it down. In this way you will vary the flavors of your meals. Sweet and tart dishes and spicy and bland dishes will appear at the same meal.

Keep meals flexible enough to take advantage of special food buys. Leftovers may be utilized also.

Also, of course, your food budget must be observed.

Meals attractive in colors and contrasting textures is always more appetizing. Hearty dishes, and light foods, are good combinations, so that a rich dessert makes a fine finish for a light main course.

SWISH SALADS

Right now is the time for salads, and the week of July 27-31 has been designated as "salad week" to put the final emphasis on the importance of this accessories.

Salads, of course, are tasty as well as nutritional.

Leafy green vegetables are not the only ones that make delicious eating. Spinach and cauliflower now appear in an attractive green and white tossed salad. The suggested blue cheese may be substituted for another type or left out altogether according to your taste.

One package (10 ounces) spinach; one cup chopped cauliflower; two to three tbsp. crumbled blue cheese; one-half cup French dressing.

Wash and drain spinach well, removing any coarse stems and yellow leaves. Break up and put into salad bowl along with cauliflower and cheese.

Just before serving, pour French dressing over salad and toss lightly to coat vegetables. Makes six servings.

Cut bacon into small pieces, fry until crisp and drain on absorbent paper. Add cooled bacon pieces to any biscuit mix, pour in liquid and combine to make a soft dough. Toss on floured board, roll, cut out and bake. This is good whether used in your own regular biscuit recipe or a commercial mix.

Perenial Favorite

By VERA WINSTON

Can't keep a good thing down! So here again is that perennial favorite, the shirt-waist dress. This time, it is glorified in black silk brocade cloth. The pleats are clustered on each side of the front and the frock is worn over a full petticoat. Shown here with a short bucket hat, it also can be dressed down by substituting a black leather belt.

Stirling W.I. Enjoys Talk On 'Hands'

The July meeting of the Stirling W. I. was held at the home of the president, Mrs. B. Reid, on Wednesday afternoon with five visitors present.

Mrs. Reid opened the meeting with the usual procedure and welcomed the visitors and members into her home.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. E. Foster carried out these duties for the day.

Correspondence included a letter from Stirling Horticultural Society; also a lengthy letter from Scott Home Mission, calling for help for the needy in that area; baby food and milk were two of the necessities at this Mission. Five hundred men are fed daily; unclean homes; find children the same, this too is the charge of the Home Mission and a housekeeper make their tours to these homes to make their living better.

The Stirling W. I. sent an abundance of clothing last year to the Scott Mission but at present the great need is food for babies.

A donation of $10 was voted to send to them for the babies, and will later send more clothing with which the Stirling community is always generous in helping.

"Home and Country," the Women's Institute motto, is always a pleasure to help those in need, regardless what that need may be. It is surprising how all these women's hands of comfort can and will reach out to help others.

Mrs. S. McMurray was celebrating a Dominion Day-birthday; all singing "Happy Birthday" to her.

The August meeting will be omitted this year, but the September meeting will be held at Mrs. Doug Acker's, John Street, and will be in the form of a lawn party.

Mrs. E. Foster was chairman for the program which included singing "The Maple Leaf Forever;" Mrs. G. McMurray gave a splendid reading entitled "Land of Our Birth," stating how wonderful it is to live in Canada. "Father of our land has given our country wealth and to provide for my family."

Canada has all good things to offer: freedom, wealth, opportunities for lasting happiness and security for old age. And at sunset of life's peace and contentment, what more could a Dominion land offer?

"HANDS"

"Hands" was the chosen topic given by Mrs. Packman. Little nuties is taken of hands, for what a special and useful place they hold in this universe. Surgeon's hands to save the lives of others; women's hands, that sew, knit, cook and wash; then there are unclean hands, that washing cannot clean; hands, too, that reach out to help others.

It is worth one's while to study just the importance of "hands". Then there are mentions of mother's hands, wrinkled with age, from toiling and tender loving practice — God bless her!

Using our hands, we can bring joy to others by doing and giving little things.

The speaker stressed the great need of visiting the sick, cheering —chatting things sparkle to their eyes and gives a better outlook on life. Be on the alert to help others; learn how to lend, if not, you will surely break.

"Put your hand in mine, the need there is a service,"

Mrs. Luella Bronson voiced appreciation to Mrs. Packman for this outstanding talk.

An invitation was extended to the Women's Institute (members) to come to the meetings. Everyone welcomed.

INSPIRATIONAL READING

Mrs. E. Foster gave an inspirational reading entitled "I will be room in heaven."

Judge not others. Rules and tastes will vanish and fade, like vanity a mere coverage, but the kindly humble person that walks faithfully with God, is on a surer road that leads to heaven.

Mrs. G. Mumby spoke briefly, referring to the former readings given. Doing small things will total greatly in the long run in life. Chat with the older folks, there was stime meant for this work, see how much better you, too, will feel from such a visit.

Mrs. E. Foster slaged a flora contest, which was appro-

Going Places

Touring Country With Children Just Takes a Little Planning

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Well, we're off again: kids, sacks, husbands and wives.

This time we're tearing up the timetables and tickets (we almost said reservations too, but it's no longer possible to travel as carefree as that) and piling all sorts of things into the car for the American version of "Le Grand Tour," coast to coast by car.

It won't be like flying the Atlantic by jet, but neither will it be like leaving the kids with someone and worrying about them. There'll be more diapers than damask, more meals at White Towers than Tour d'Argent, and beach sandals will replace evening sandals in our luggage.

And like the owl and the pussycat, we'll take some honey and plenty of money, in travellers' cheques, of course.

We encourage all consist of three assorted children: Claudia, 9½; Jonathan, 6, and Jo, the maiden voyage, Hillary, 3, who will be shot full of tetanus, smallpox and polio vaccine.

Six years ago, when we first tried it, we were told it couldn't be done. We've been doing it regularly ever since and hope to prove again that it's more than possible.

One thing about touring that hasn't changed since we started in this business seven years ago is the fact that it takes planning — more than most of us are no longer trusting to luck that we'll find a place to put up at night.

RESERVATIONS NECESSARY

We don't like the idea of binding ourselves to reservations on a leisurely-motor trip any more than you do, but with 85 per cent of the North American travelling for public entertaining the same itinerary that we've started in ideal of stopping where and when we feel like it no longer is feasible — not with a car full of kids. The proof is that we've already had a few refusals on reservations.

The easiest way to avoid being left out in the cold is through an auto club such as the AA. For a few yearly payments it's geared for highway travellers. If you don't belong to one you should — not only for the protection service, but for recommendations of good, clean, stay and eat, free emergency road service and allied fringe benefits.

Most motels, because of their limited number of rooms, require deposits as a guarantee against an admitted nuisance. But by the same token, this requirement is your assurance of a place to stay in crowded areas, so long as you're willing and able to stick to a schedule.

A compromise method of buying peace of mind and insurance is by or your room in advance night or night as you go through the facilities of the motel organizations that maintains free reservation service.

Most notable among these, is a key for its dependable standard of accommodation, Quality Courts United and its Best-Of-The-Mississippi counterpart, Best Western Motels. You'll find representatives of this group in thousands of communities across the United States and Canada.

The only trouble is that reservations may not always be available one night in advance. And most of them, as well as most auto club-approved accommodations, are more expensive than other motels. Generally, though, they are more comfortable than unapproved places.

We've assembled a variety of equipment for our trip. Before you lay out a lot of money for items such as these, we'd like to point out that many of them were "paid for" by trading stamps, which you probably collect like everybody else these days.

Among our traveller's aids:

TRAVELLER'S AIDS

An ice chest for storing milk, sandwich wrappings, fresh fruit, water and the other things that spoil without but which add up to considerable expense if you must buy them in restaurants. A few staples in the pantry of the home, such as coffee and butter, will save you a few dollars, meals we expect to hit that have kitchenettes. More savings there, and home cooking, too, without too much shopping.

A tent-trailer for the car. These vary in price from $250 to $350, depending on where you shop. They're efficient but also more draft-prone) than factory-installed units we've seen and less expensive. It is also transferable at moderate cost to the next one.

Obviously, this is optional. Regardless, whether you can afford it and whether you're going to such hot climates as we are (Washington, Florida), it will make travelling less enervating. Especially for the wild ones.

Paper diapers. At about 10 cents each with moisture-proof outer plastic liners, they will, we feel, be worth their cost in eliminating the inconvenience and cost of storing and having to launder soiled diapers en route.

A collapsible stroller for baby.

Also helpful — and free — will be a few pointers on how and joy of knowing that our family will go together and having fun. You might take that along too.

Wife Preserver

If you travel often or like to escape for week ends on the spur of the moment, keeping your clothes essentials like cords and brush and comb in pins, deodorant, medicine and powder, makeup and tissues.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a social worker and two mothers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Mrs. M. S. — The things I found in Sheila's room . . . !

Sheila S. — She had no right to snoop!

Mrs. M. S. — I am so upset about my 15-year-old daughter, Sheila. I hardly know what to do. I am a widow so I don't have anyone to share my problems.

Not long ago, while cleaning in Sheila's room, I came across some material that shocked the life out of me. It was filthy drawings and writing Sheila and her friends had exchanged. Most of it had been done by Sheila herself. She is very talented in art work, but I had no idea she was throwing away her ability like that.

It is doubly shocking because Sheila is a model girl in many ways. She does well in school and looks and acts like a perfect lady. I might expect things like this from a boy — but Sheila!

Sheila S. — In the first place, it's all a lie! I didn't do any of those drawings or writing. The girl at school did them and showed them to me just for fun. We didn't think anything by it. It was just a laugh.

In the second place, Mother couldn't have just "come across" those things. She must have been snooping all over the place to find them. I always take care of my private things. I keep my drawers straighten out my own desk and bureau drawers. Mother has had a fearless attitude around there.

Mother wouldn't believe my story when I explained how it happened to have this stuff, but I can't believe here about how she "happened" to find it. She says I'm fresh, but I think it's kind of fresh of her to go through my things.

The Council: A parent who pries and spies, and then confronts a child with certain evidence can expect just about the reaction Mrs. M. S. has gotten — as often lying or brazen defense as honest admission. Sometimes other possible reaction is cringing shame and guilt. In both cases there will probably be a deepening rather than a lessening of the problem that gave rise to concealed actions.

Just to set the record straight, it is not especially unusual for adolescent girls to give in to an interest in obscenity. But girls may suffer a greater sense of shame about it because their sex has set themselves bound up with certain standards of purity which they feel obliged to pride themselves on knowledge and bravado in the sexual area.

Mrs. M. S. is also suffering from shame and humiliation even though her mother found her out. Yet she felt compelled to do these things. It could have been a momentary compulsion — and it could be more. If Sheila is living a happy life at school and outside, it is just possible that her indulgence in obscenity was a passing thing, having something to do with curiosity and a desire to keep up with some other girls.

But if Sheila is meeting frustrations in her schools or social relations and other outside activities, then her drawings may represent an attempt to find some sort of expression for her feelings. Sheila, cannot succeed doing good things among decent people, may be driven to find at outlet hitting out against the world in which she feels helpless.

Mrs. M. S. should not be forced Sheila to account for the papers she never should have found. In the future, she would be far wiser to observe her daughter without prying. She should encourage the girl to use her talent in recognition among her peers in school and guide her toward more artistic forms of giving vent to her groups of girls and boys in her community.

Sunday School Picnic

ST. JOHN'S B.S. POINT ANNE

Readers' Saturday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . a potted meat loaf for two loaf pans or 1 dish pan full Mrs. B. M. D. L.

ANSWER:

JELLIED VEAL LOAF.

One whole veal shank, 2 lb. piece fresh shoulder pork, and 2 pkgs. pork hock. Wash and cover in deep pot with 12 cups cold water, 1 bay leaf and ½ teaspoon pepper. No salt as pork has salt for curing. Simmer covered for 5 hours. Cool. Then meat out to a large tray and discard bones. Leave soft gristle and skin in. Strain the liquid and chill it; then remove the fat. Measure 8 cups (boiling down to evaporate off the surplus if desired). Soak 4 tablespoons plain gelatin in 1 cup cold water then stir over boiling water until dissolved. Put all of the meat, skin and gristle through the ¾" blade of food grinder. Mix in with the gelatine and the meat liquid, stirring well. Taste to see if more salt is needed. Pack into moulds and chill. There will be approximately 8 cups of jellied meat.

This Jellied Meat is lovely served with mustard pickles on salad plates along with potato salad and garnished as you wish. Keep refrigerated at all times.

You also asked for Grandma's Old-Fashioned Soft Molasses Ginger Cookies — about 5 dozen soft Ginger Cookies.

COOKIE CROCK MOLASSES COOKIES:

1 cup molasses, ½ cup shortening, 1 teaspoon soda, 2½ cups sifted flour, 1½ teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoon ginger.

Heat molasses to boiling point, then remove from heat. Stir in shortening and soda. Sift together sifted flour, baking powder, salt and ginger and stir in. Chill dough. Roll out 1-16" thickness.

Cut into desired shapes. Place on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 5 to 7 minutes. Do not overbake. Makes about 6 dozen 2½" cookies.

LEMON COOKIES:

2½ cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup soft butter, ½ cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg and 2 yolks, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Sift dry measure, resift 3 times with baking powder and salt. Cream butter and shortening until smooth, add sugar, creaming well. Beat in egg and egg yolks, stir in lemon juice and rind. Stir in flour well. Shape dough into 1" balls between palms. Place 3" apart on buttered cookie sheet. Press with bottom of tumbler to ¼" thickness. Carefully sprinkle with sugar if desired. Bake 6 to 8 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. just until edges are lightly browned. Remove immediately to racks to cool. Makes 4 dozen.

Women's Institute

MELROSE W.I.

The June meeting of Melrose W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. E. Lazier with a splendid attendance of members and several visitors.

After the opening exercises, the president, Mrs. K. McMechan thanked the hostess and presided over the business period during which it was decided to purchase a community first aid kit for the Boy Scouts and to hold a shower of kitchen and housewares for the June bride, required for a family whose home was destroyed by fire recently.

Mrs. Jean Stratton, convener of citizenship took charge of the program and all joined heartily in singing the W.I. carol after which she gave a paper on "Famous Women in History by Opening the Seaway in 1959". She traced the development of the seaway and told of its great importance and described the Royal yacht" Britannia". Miss Pat Lazier and Miss Prince Philip will use extensively on their visit in Canada. While on tour the Queen will receive no personal gifts but instead the Queen Elizabeth Fund for research into children's diseases has been set up.

Mrs. A. Fox gave a timely poem entitled "Did You" and Mrs. Jean Clarke followed with an informative paper on Civil Defence", giving its definition and pointing out importance of being prepared for sudden emergencies.

Mrs. L. Gnaedinger gave a most enlightening talk on "Social Work", which is no longer meant for families in the lower income bracket. She resumed her remarks on "Settlement Work", which is one phase in which Melrose W.I. has been having been a member on the staff at Central Neighborhood House in Toronto and later taking her degree at university, she became a social group worker and was associated with the "East End Day Nursery", located in the older part of Toronto close to the Don River. This school opened in one room of the Settlement House in 1892 to care for children while their mothers gained employment. In reviewing the history of the nursery one finds that the WCTU organized a "Band of Hope" in 1909 which taught the principles of temperance and proper living with the children. The nursery soon outgrew its facilities and in 1924 the property on Simcoe St. was purchased. The attendance rapidly grew and in 1923 over 30,000 were cared for, the cost per day at that date being about 25 cents. In 1939 "Interest Groups" were formed which consisted of various activities such as: dramatic classes, handicraft, music lessons, cooking, sewing and knitting for teenage girls and a canteen while the playground was open every afternoon for boys and girls of 5 years and under. As the need arose the Board enlarged their policy to include groups for men and women came into operation and a mass program was developed for young people between the ages of 16 and 20. In 1953 the children were divided into age groups and a new Canadian club was formed and English lessons were given. The Parents Council made their influence felt in better neighborhood relations and urging the Regent Park Housing be extended. Progress has at last been made in the East End Day Nursery and Settlement and last week the house closed its doors for the last time as the house has been bought by a nearby factory. New playgrounds, clubs and a nursery are being formed within a new housing estate but the memories of this particular nursery will live on in the hearts of many and much good will remain as a living memorial. A social hour with refreshments was conducted by Mrs. S. Lazier and the National Anthem brought to a most profit able and enjoyable gathering after which lunch was served.

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP: ON YOUR CONVERSATION

Don't be a one-topic conversationalist. Be alert to sense when your listener had heard enough (or, alas, too much!) about your children and or your grandchildren, your work and or your co-workers, your sports enthusiasms, your bridge technique, your travels, your garden, your knowledge of interior decoration, your club or organization activities, your stamp or coin or other collections.

ONE INVITATION, CHURCH CEREMONY AND RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it considered correct to add the invitation to the wedding reception at the end of the formal invitation to the church ceremony, when all our guests are to be invited to both the church and the reception?

2. If so, what is the correct form of the invitation?

— Grateful reader

1. Yes, this is a correct form, and quite often used.

2 This is the form:

ON ANSWERING BUSINESS TELEPHONE IN HOME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband has a business of his own and, as he doesn't have an office, we have a business telephone in our home. How should I answer the telephone, inasmuch as it is a business telephone as well as our home telephone? — Reader

Since you would not know whether the incoming call is a business or a social call, I suggest you answer the telephone by giving the number (very distinctly): "Main 1-6788." Or it might be most important to your husband for you to give his business name during the usual business hours: "The Thompson Service Company." (Your friends will understand your answering in this businesslike procedure, because they will undoubtedly know of the combination business-social telephone.)

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

"Music, when soft voices die, vibrates in the memory" — Percy Bysshe Shelley.

When her gracious Majesty, Queen Elizabeth spoke at the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway, she mentioned that her grandfather had attended the opening of Victoria Bridge in Montreal nearly a century ago.

During the ceremony at that opening, a very young girl sang for the Prince of Wales who was charmed by her voice. What because of the little singer? Did she go on with the training of her voice? If not, why not?

The mystery of the little singer's career was revealed by a very dear and lovely Montreal lady the singer's daughter.

"My mother was a girl of great talent. A talent that promised to make a name for herself" she said. "For she had a voice, which even as a young girl, held everyone spell-bound. Just think. When she was but fifteen, she sang for the Prince of Wales at the Opening of Victoria Bridge in 1860; but she wasn't allowed to go to the Ball.

"When she was eighteen, her parents planned to send her to Italy to sing. But she had other plans. She Wanted to marry — a very distinguished. Englishman. He was served noticed by her parents that he could not marry their daughter. So — they planned to escape.

"My mother's sister helped her pack. The plan was that my mother would visit a sick friend. She wore as many clothes as possible when she made the visit. From her friend's home she sent word to her parents that she had a dreadful ear ache and would stay all night and meet her mother at a Church affair the next day. Then she arranged to be driven to the corner of Dorchester and Guy Streets to meet her sister — and future husband.

"The three of them drove to St. Henri for a train and went to a small town in New York state near the border, and were married by a minister at the Hotel."

What excitement. Did the newlyweds come back to Montreal?

"Well — of course, they were afraid to come home at first. The mother was a true matriarch; everyone was terrified of her. When her mother finally went home for her clothes, my grandmother took one look at her slipper and slapped her daughter's shoulders. She never forgave them, until their child was born — it was the infant.

"However she came to like and respect her determined son-in-law. And my mother not only bore nearly a dozen children, but she kept up her music and wrote poetry as well.

"And she used to tell her children about her elopement!

The daughter shared her mother's love for the arts and held an incredible doors at home; open to all artists. She was a beloved Montreal hostess. Though she may never have visited Belleville, many here met her when he attended local activities, as Chief Commander of the Canadian Power Squadron — Edward T. Renouf.

Belleviensite: Dr. Harold B. Burnham of the Textile Department of the Royal Ontario Museum, has written to say he feels that the coverlet collection which he had seen in Belleville, "fully justifies a further visit . . . unless something else intervenes I will be possible to do full examination sometime in the autumn," We hope to keep you posted about this matter which is of interest to all coverlet owners and lovers.

La Plus Belle de Ceans Show Recently Produced by CBC Created Furore Not Yet Dead

MONTREAL (CP)—Few incidents in recent times have stirred Quebec so profoundly as an early-May CBC television program, La Plus Belle de Ceans.

The Bonjinnie drama, expected to commemorate a proud chapter in the province's history — the beatification of Marie Therese de Marguerite d'Youville in Rome Sunday, May 3—instead created a furore which had not subsided weeks later.

La Plus Belle de Ceans (The Fairest of All) was one of the most expensively - mounted, extensively - publicized and expectantly - awaited programs presented on the CBC's French-language television network. Altogether 15 persons figured in the show that cost $4,454.

INTEREST WIDESPREAD

Though it began at 10 p.m., in many households younger children were allowed to stay up to watch. In convents, members of religious orders had permission to deviate from their usual strict routine to see the program.

Mother d'Youville is a symbol of two prime elements in the culture and life of most French-language Canadians—deep religious feeling and profound sense of ancestry and heritage.

She was the first "Canadienne" to be inscribed on the Church's roll of the beatified, a dignity in second only to sainthood.

Born at Varennes, 15 miles from Montreal in 1701, she lived and worked in Montreal and founded the Grey Nuns order devoted to the poor and underprivileged.

Rev. Emile Legault, editor of the Holy Cross Fathers' magazine, noted in a Montreal newspaper the day before the beatification and the TV program that Mother d'Youville was a child of the Canadian church for whom Quebec's French - speaking Roman Catholics have special devotion.

EXPECTED THEME

It was expected La Plus de Ceans would concentrate on this deep religious and national feeling, in view of the ceremonies in Rome the same day.

Instead, as many of the first shocked letters in French - language newspapers said afterwards, it was "une grande deception" which offended and, some declared, deliberately questioned those very emotions.

The program dwelt on Marguerite d'Youville's unhappy marriage and the infidelities and carousings of her husband. Worse still, others complained, the TV show did not present her spiritual qualities, but depicted her instead as a coquette.

One shocked viewer even wrote that Marguerite d'Youville was shown as a "fille de joie" who "threw herself at the head of" Francois d'Youville," displayed herself in "cut gowns and watched his prolonged death agonies, after a debauch, without forgiveness or pity.

All this happened on the day when at St. Peter's in Rome, solemn ceremonies installed Mother d'Youville on the list of the beatified after a long investigation the church started when the cause first was introduced in 1890.

FLOOD OF PROTESTS

Before the show was over, a flood of protesting phone calls to CBC Montreal studios started. Soon after came the first of a deluge of letters to French - language newspapers.

These letters, from clergy, laity and Roman Catholic organizations, contained such phrases as: "an insult to the memory of the blessed woman and the Christian feelings of the audience . . . a monstrosity . . . a disgusting spectacle . . . an unbelievable fiasco. . . .

By a ratio of about 30-to-one the letters condemned the show.

Louis - Philippe Roy, editor-in-chief of L'Action Catholique, semi-official organ of the Church in Quebec, wrote that the program was a "fiasco . . . lacking a complete lack of taste and an astrophy of the sense of fitness."

On May 7, the CBC made public an apology written to the Grey Nuns for the program. In the House of Commons, there was a statement by Revenue Minister Nowlan who reports for the publicly-owned CBC.

PUNISHMENT URGED

By this time, there were demands that those responsible for the program be punished.

Statements by three of the principals involved in the program—the author, producer and leading lady—were published.

Charlotte Savary whose script for the TV show was adapted from four half - hour radio programs she had written last fall, blamed producer Charles Dumas.

She said he had changed the script without her permission, refused to include church scenes on the ground of expense and agreed to show a crucifix in Francois d'Youville's deathbed scene only after he protested.

Mr. Dumas, while taking some of the responsibility, said Miss Savary had appeared satisfied with the production. Any faults in the show were due partly to the fact rehearsals had to be hurried.

STAR'S VIEWS

Leading Lady Dyne Mousso critics of the show might have paid attention to the dramatic qualities. Her use of the term "deadpan" according to critiasm brought more protesting letters.

Later there were charges by Quebec figures in provincial and federal politics that the CBC's French - language network was controlled with "socialists" as needed a thorough housecleaning.

In the statements of Mr. Dumas and Miss Mousso, students of Quebec affairs felt there was evidence of a widening gap of thought between the younger French - language "intellectuals" and "artists" and the rest of French-Canada. The split was held to represent in many cases a complete difference of standards and outlook.

Only such a divergence, they felt, could have resulted in the "attempt to do something really original," as the CBC apology described La Plus Belle de Ceans.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. De-Clerq and children motored to Bath to spend Sunday with their friend, Miss Peggy Ham.

Dick Clement, Jr. accompanied his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dunlop, to Sea Island Vancouver, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Hart spent Saturday evening with their mother, Mrs. Grace Blackman of Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock were callers of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Vera Sine and Mrs. Morris Stickle spent the weekend in Toronto.

Mrs. Ed. Brummell passed away on Monday. Mrs. Alva Dunn went to her home on Monday evening to lock up for the night for her as usual, and found her in a chair at rough sleep. She had had a heart attack.

GOOD MUSIC

The traditional composition of a string quartet is a first and second violin, viola and 'cello.

Allan School Teacher, Pupils Produce Journal

RAWDON — Mrs. G. L. Morton, teacher of the Allan Public School, S.S. No. 3, Rawdon, and the pupils of the school, have completed an interesting journal of six hectograph sheets which have been passed around to the parents in the section.

A list of the pupils and their grades makes an interesting front-piece.

The Department of Education says, "The schools of Ontario exist for the purpose of preparing children to live in a democratic society which bases its way of life upon the Christian ideal."

Each child who had attended school during the 1958-59 term contributed a piece of language work to help make the paper a valuable momento of the school year.

Judy Cooney wrote an article on "England's System of Voting" which was along the lines of an editorial. She also wrote a letter which Francis Drake might have sent about 1579 to his Queen. Her third contribution was a poem entitled, "Our Trip to Toronto."

Short articles, poems and drawings were contributed by Gordon Hoard, Janet Scott, Jim Scott, Doreen Hubble, Calvin Sharp, Kenneth Smith, Barbara Williams, Brenda Campbell, Shirley Potts and Glen Spencer.

A note of appreciation to the various folks who had contributed to the success of the school was written by Larry Jeffs.

The financial statement of the Junior Red Cross was on the last page and showed receipts and expenditures. Various collections, prize money and donations amounted to approximately $35. Money was spent for Red Cross work films, games, medicine chest, leaving a small balance on hand.

The activities included concerts at Hallowe'en and Valentine's Day, competition at Silver Tea Fair, a joint Christmas concert at the church hall, a science trip to the orchard, and on June 3rd, grades 6, 7 and 8 enjoyed a bus trip to Toronto. Four student teachers from Peterborough Teachers' College were given special instruction at the school. Judy Cooney represented the Allan School in the public speaking contest. On Arbor Day the Allan School entertained the teacher and pupils of the Williams School. A game of ball was played and the visitors were the winners.

The closing message was given by the teacher, Mrs. G. L. Morton, and expressed the wish that each and everyone enjoy a pleasant summer holiday.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Perhaps You Can Organize Agency To Keep Alert Minds Busy at 65

By THOMAS COLLINS

Today comes a man who is worrying the question that many alert minds worry as they reach 65:

"How," he asks, "can you organize all the 65-year-old talent that is being retired to Miami and sell it back to business and industry?"

His basis eye primarily on executives. He is quite sure some of the best executive brains in the country are now on the retired list and are doing nothing more important than deciding whether carrots or pumpkins should be planted in Pop's corner of the backyard vegetable garden.

He visualizes an organization called "The Executive Pool" or something similar. In it would be a banker, a mining engineer, a newspaper editor, a sales chief, a retail merchandiser, in all about 15 executives representing 15 different businesses.

"In every city there are hundreds of these men. Some of them have made up to $20,000 a year. They are smart. But they are over 65 and can't get a job. Nobody wants to do and are miserable. They would welcome advice on consulting work for the businesses they know so well. Certainly business should welcome their knowhow and be willing to pay a fee for it. The only question is how do you get the men and the businesses together?"

Hardly a month goes by that somebody doesn't come up with a similar idea. And to me it is logical. How, indeed, do you get the two together?

Here are the problems and the opportunities as I have come to know them. Apply them to your own situation and to your own community and see what you can come up with.

1. Retired executives are hard-er to get into action than greased pigs are. They're individualized and rugged. That's why they were executives. They don't take kindly to organizers. Bored with retirement or not, they resist anybody giving them the directions they will have to take, if anybody is to set up an "Executive Pool."

2. Retired executives are usually not hungry. But if they are hungry for money or recognition, they are hungry in varying degrees. So, if they are approached as a consulting organization, the engineer might eagerly jump at a call to report at 8 A.M. tomorrow for a job while the banker might just decide he'd rather go fishing. It's difficult to run a railroad on that basis.

3. How should the executive be paid? Two plans have been tried at one time or another. One is to let the executive set his own fee, then pay the organization a percentage of the other in for the organization to set the fee, then "rent" out the executive. Neither, so far as I know, has met in a common treasury. Then once a month or often a quarter the executives divide up the profits. The latter plan seems to work better. It gives a sense of comradeship among the executives and makes for a closely-knit organization in which any one executive is not so likely to go off flirting with some corporation for a permanent job.

4. If an organizer were smart enough to set up an "Executive Pool" and make it go (I suspect he would take a patient and dedicated minister to do it) the dividends could be handsome. There would be profit, of course. But such an organization could be one of the most delightful private clubs in the land, with something to do, always somewhere to go and associates to argue with.

5. A pool of retired sub-executives, or foremen, or even row-boat office workers would be easier to organize and operate than executives. And any organizer who has been bitten by the bug and wants to capitalize on retired talent might consider this. Men and women who were experts on some type of job, and who are willing to work instead of consult, would be much easier to place in jobs during summer vacations, in the Christmas rush season, when big orders hit a factory or when too many of the regular hired help stayed home sick.

Anybody who successfully sets up an organization to utilize retired talent will be a hero of sorts and can expect some favorable publicity at the start. After that would come extensive job research, much secretarial work, and selling, which, naturally, other retired talent would be brought in to do.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — The rain that fell on Friday night was sure welcomed by farmers and gardeners as the land was dry, also help the pea harvest which was drying up and the canning factory was delayed with its work.

School is out and the children were seen going home happy as they will be enjoying two months' vacation. Congratulations to all children who passed their examinations.

Mr. and Mrs. Mellory and family, who have resided in this village during the past nine months, have moved to their new home in Belleville.

Mr. Sherman has purchased a lot from Mrs. A. Clare and is busy preparing to build their new home.

Mr. Harry Latta, who has been spending the past two weeks with his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cole, has returned to his home.

Miss Laura Ann Woods returned home on Wednesday from Batavia, N.Y. where she has been attending High School. Congratulations to Laura Ann on receiving her diploma.

DIRTY TRAINS

LONDON (CP) — Businessmen have given their main reason for disliking rail travel in Britain—dirty trains. They answered a questionnaire sent out by F. M. Katz, an industrial psychologist, and complained that: Carriages are dirty, washing and toilet facilities are deplorable and passengers' clothes often dirty after journey.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE FOR YOU

NATURALLY, GAS DOES MORE...

and costs so little

Natural Gas is CLEAN
The only remnants of burning gas are carbon dioxide, nitrogen and water vapor — all of which are present in the air. And there are no ashes or fuel vapors to deposit grimy film throughout your home. A home heated with natural gas is a CLEANER, HEALTHIER home.

FREE 24-HOUR SERVICE

Natural Gas is ECONOMICAL
The initial cost of purchasing and installing a gas furnace is relatively low, as is the cost of the fuel itself. Maintenance costs are almost zero, since Lakeland provides FREE service . . . no more costly service-call charges. You SAVE MONEY by heating with natural gas.

CONVERT TO GAS FOR as little as $1.55 per week

Natural Gas is EFFICIENT
Natural gas is best for home-heating because you have INSTANT heat, automatically controlled heat or clean-burning problems. In water heating with gas, even a small unit can produce 20-25 gals. of hot water an hour. No other fuel does so much, so well.

NO PAYMENTS NECESSARY 'TIL SEPTEMBER

Natural Gas is SAFE
Natural gas is non-poisonous. Another of the assuring features of modern gas appliances is the 100% shut-off when pilot-light is extinguished. And natural gas has the LOWEST FIRE LOSS RECORD of all fuels. Thousands of Canadians enjoy natural gas in complete safety — SO CAN YOU!

Expect Franco's Austerity Plans To Create Crisis

MADRID (AP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco is to launch a sweeping program of economic reform and austerity shortly. Dangerous social unrest is expected to follow.

Reliable political informants said the austerity measures will be announced within the next two weeks and will hit both workers and business.

A new law of public order is being pushed through the Cortes (parliament) to reinforce the regime's power to put down unrest.

NEED FOREIGN CREDIT

The Franco regime is forced to begin the austerity program because of vital need for foreign credit just when foreign countries are losing interest in loaning money on past terms. Spain's present dollar holdings are said to be less than $5,000,000.

Spain has been seeking help from international organizations, the International Monetary Fund, the Organization for European Economic Cooperation and the United States.

They demanded that Spain put its financial house in order. After months of negotiation, Spain agreed and a memorandum of understanding was initialled in Madrid June 26, reliable sources said. They added that final agreement will be reached in Paris within two weeks, making Spain a full-fledged member of the OEC.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Gary Bowerman, son and heir to the Steve-Jey Bowerman estates, is one of the Bay of Quinte Country Club's most promising young golfers.

The blondish, good-looking, eighteen-year-old has a golfing will of his one, one which refuses to bow to a gremlin that has perched on his clubs for the past two seasons when playing in the qualifying rounds for the Ontario Golf Association's junior championships.

During the past two years, this fire-breathing jinx has blown the flame of ill-luck on the Bowerman clubs. It tried again yesterday. Gary met it, battled it and overcame it, to go on and win the junior honors from a field of twenty young district hopefuls. He carded a neat two-over-par 74.

The gremlin rode his driver on the first tee-off. The ball carried out-of-bounds and Gary was forced to tee off again with automatic penalty of two strokes against him. Probably resenting this unwelcome intrusion, Gary squared his shoulders, toed off again, chipped to the green and putted for a first-hole five.

He did not know it at the time, but the gremlin was beaten on the spot although it tried a comeback on the eighth hole and the back nine when the ball hit a tree. Gary shot seven pars, a birdie and a bogie for a neat 36 on the first nine.

He shook off the gremlin's weak effort on that eighth hole on the second nine when his ball hit the tree and he had to settle for a five. He came in in 38 for a low score of 74, shaking off the challenge of John Kindred of the Peterborough Golf Club, last year's winner, who carded a 75.

The three remaining Bay of Quinte youngsters made creditable showings, too. Sonny MacDonald shot an 89 after a bad back nine; Clyde MacFarlane carded an 85, while Brian McKenzie shot an 86. Sonny, with his adrenaline under Dennis Lee's direction, is a terrific links stare, cheering him on, shot a first-nine forty but ran into trouble coming in. The sad part is, all three failed to qualify.

These youngsters, some 43 of them from Port Hope, Cobourg, Colborne, Brighton, Trenton, Peterborough and Belleville, take their golf seriously from the four-foot bantams to the long and rangy junior types.

Their calibre of golf was good and veteran links observers at the qualifying rounds, thought they noticed some good potential in not a few of these beardless rangers of the fairways.

It seemed to this observer that it was a bit regrettable that the Bay of Quinte Club did not have a larger representation than four good junior players. The Trent Road club had no entries in the juvenile and bantam classes. The Peterborough Golf Club and the Cobourg Golf Club sent 12 youngsters to play in the three classifications.

Is it because of lack of playing time and facilities at Quinte or is there a lack of interest in the game on the part of the youngster?

We asked^a small pint-sized Peterborough moppet, whose golf bag was as big as himself, if he played much at home.

"Oh, yes sir," the freckle-faced grinned. "Every Tuesday the club pro takes twenty of us out for a free lesson—and we get to play quite a bit too."

We believed the youngster, especially after scanning the final results and noting that the Peterborough club qualified five of the seven who will represent the district at the junior championships at the Islington Golf Club next Friday.

The young fellows exhibited a keen interest in the ground, the game and the scores. They crowded around the scoreboard where "secretary" Steve Bowerman was Mr. Tabulator, eyes shining and whistpering as the results came in.

When it was over they paused briefly to gorge a hot dog and a soft drink, waited around until T. A. Carruthers, OGA coujneer, distributed the handsome prizes, then grabbed their clubs and went a-golfing again.

To Gary Bowerman, who led the junior pack with his fine 74 and with John Kindred and Bill Weese, both of Peterborough Algonquin will play in the junior championships next week, our sincere congratulations, and may the goddess of good luck hide their woods and irons throughout.

South African Gary Player Wins Coveted British Open

By JOHN FARROW

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP)—South Africa's Gary Player, the youngest golfer to win the British open championship in 31 years today handed a lot of credit for his success to the North American professional circuit.

"I played there for the last three years," the 23-year - old Player said, "and competing on the circuit has taught me a lot."

"It has given me a better temperament for big-time golf. And it also has improved my swing."

Player won the British Open Friday over the Muirfield course with a 72-hole total of 75-71-70-68—284. That was two strokes better than Fred Bullock, 49-year - old little known English pro, and Flory van Donck, the 47-year-old Belgian who regularly finishes in the top five but never wins the title.

EUROPEANS FOLLOW

Bullock had 68-70-74-74—286 and van Donck 70-70-73-73—286. Syd Scott of England was fourth with 287 and four other players—Christy O'Connor of Ireland, Scottish amateur Reid Jack, John Fallon of Ireland and Sam King of England—were bracketed at 288.

Player won first prize of £1,000 ($2,800) and a great deal more in added preferrements which he himself said is worth about £20,000 ($56,000).

The South African said he now plans his first rest from golf in five years.

"I'm going to play one or two European tournaments and then I'm going home to my small farm in Johannesburg," he added.

Player is the youngest winner since Scotland's fabled Tom Morris Jr., who was only 18 when he won in 1868. He's the youngest of all since the competition was extended to 72 holes in 1892.

Australia's Peter Thomson had a miserable time in losing for his fifth title and finished 22rd with 76-74-73-72—294.

The formula is still workin, for Milwaukee's Braves — send a problem to the minors for a short stay and bring him back a winner.

They did it with outfielder Wes Covington in 1957 and he came back to be one of the Braves' big guys in a drive to the world championship. Now they've done it with Juan Pizarro, and he's kept them in the National League lead, pitching a two-hit shutout and striking out 11 Friday night for a 5-0 victory over Pittsburgh.

Pizarro, 13-3, a southpaw, has permitted just one run and has a 4-hitting streak dating after his complete - game victories since returning from a rather splendid 17-day stay at Louisville. All he did with the American Association club was pitch a no-hitter and a two-hit shutout while winning three of four.

DIMINE SHINE

It was a great day for lefties in the NL. Johnny Antonelli pitched a five-hit shutout to gave/San Francisco a 4-0 victory over Cincinnati Reds and kept the Giants within a half-game of the Braves. Southpaw rookie Marshall Bridges of St. Louis had a three-hit shutout for eight innings as the Cards beat Los Angeles 3-2. And rookie Jim O'Toole won his first in the majors—as Cincinnati defeated Philadelphia 6-1.

Bob Skinner singled for both Pirate runs in the second and fifth, off Pizarro, who walked two and was backed by Bob Skinner two-run shot by Hank Aaron in the eighth inning.

Antonelli, headed for Tuesday's all-star game, became the leading winner among starting pitchers in the majors with a 12-4 record. He struck out five while giving up five. Willie Kirkland hit his 14th home run in the first, off loser Don Hillman (3-7), and Orlando Cepeda socked his 17th against reliefer Bill Henry.

PERFECT RELIEF

Bridges (3-0), who walked two and struck out one, relieved Lindy McDaniel's perfect relief for the last two outs after the Dodgers scored in the ninth on doubles by Junior Gilliam and Gil Hodges, a single by Charlie Neal and Don Demeter's sacrifice fly. Sandy Koufax (5-3), another lefty, got the victory. The Cards got a run in the first and in every succeeding inning after Gilliam led the eighth on a two-run single by ex-Dodger Gino Cimoli.

The Reds made it with three unearned runs in the seventh after being blanked on three hits by Jim Owens (4-7), who fanned eight. Ed Bailey added a two-run homer in the eighth and tied Cubs pitcher Glen Labine in the eighth on a two-run single by ex-Dodger Gino Cimoli.

Bisons Dump Toronto 7-2, Royals Edged

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The stampede's on in the International League — and Buffalo Bisons are riding herd over all opposition.

The Bisons, who have opened a 4½-game lead in the pennant race, won their seventh game in succession Friday night when they dropped Toronto 7-2 with second baseman Lou Vassie provided the batting punch.

Raising his average 14 points with a 4-for-4 night, Vassie drove in four runs and scored three. Wesley Stock had two doubles and a walk in five tips to the plate.

Second-place Rochester moved to the runner-up spot with a 7-6 victory over Montreal. Miami dropped Richmond 9-7 and Atlanta moved by defeating the Vees 7-2 behind Columbus whacked Havana 10-2.

League-leader Frank Herrera had 3 singles, a double, support of Warren Hacker's pitching as the Buffalo Bisons posted their eighth triumph in nine games with the last-place Leafs. Charlie Rabe (5-5) was the loser.

McCLAIN STARS

Relief pitcher Joe McClain of the Red Wings won his own game with a two-run homer and a 4-3 decision over Toronto's loseless ball. Luke Easter, George Wilson and Steve Ridzik also homered for Rochester. Bob Lennon hit his 16th for Montreal. Loser was lefty Bill George, who relieved Billy O'Dell is back in business and the Baltimore Orioles are sitting pretty again in the game of musical chair: for third place in the American League.

The young left-hander, who had a tough time getting started this season, pitched the Birds back to third with 6 1-3 innings of one-hit shutout relief Friday night for a 6-1 victory over Boston.

O'Dell allowed only two base runners—one on his own error, the other on Jackie Jensen's seventh inning double — and struck out five while winning his third straight for a 5-6 record.

SCORE STRIKES OUT 11

The victory kept the Birds within 2½ games of first-place Cleveland and ended a one-day stay in third by the Chicago White Sox, who succeeded New York Thursday. The Indians beat Kansas City 8-4 for their 43rd. Score's 14 strikeouts and retained a one-game edge over the Chicago White Sox, who beat the Tigers 6-5 in 10 innings. The Baltimore pitching staff's league percentage point ahead of Detroit, by beating Washington 4-3 in 12 innings, now has a 3-game strikeout relief job over the last three days.

Score (9-5) gave up a-grandslam home run by Bob Cerv in the first inning, but settled down to a five-hitter while matching Chicago's Early Wynn for the most strikeouts registered in the league this season. The Indians staked Wynn to five runs in the top of the first, two on Jim Baxes' homer. Howard Reed (0-2) lost it.

At Smith's home run finally broke it up for the Orioles first after Red Wilson's homer had tied it 5-all for the Tigers in the bottom of the ninth. Gus Zernial hit a three-run homer in the sixth and Sherm Lollar, who earlier had homered, scored all the way from first on Earl Torgeson's two-run double in the seventh inning. Turk Lown (4-3) was the winner and Tom Morgan (2-3) lost.

Tony Kubek's two - out single broke a 3-3 tie for the Yankees in the sixth against loser Russ Kemmerer (5-7) and Duren then went to work to save it for Whitey Ford (8-5).

Brooks Lawrence came through with three innings of perfect relief.

Olmedo Wins Singles Crown, Over Australian Rod Laver

By GARVEN HUDSON

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—This figures to be a great year for castanets at the Wimbledon victory dance.

The glittering social affair winds up the 1959 Wimbledon tennis tournament tonight and its leading couple may be Latin Americans.

Alex Olmedo, 23-year-old Peruvian student at the University of Southern California, won the Wimbledon men's singles title Friday over Australia's Rod Laver 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Will his partner tonight be Brazil's 19-year-old Maria Bueno?

Or will she be California's blonde net-ruler Darlene Hard?

DECIDE TODAY.

The answer depends on who wins the women's final today between the two girls who play like pros.

The Bueno-Hard match is the last major event on this year's all-England tennis championships at the famous tennis ground.

Miss Hard, a 23-year-old onetime waitress, will be going for a triple Friday, playing in the women's singles, women's double and mixed doubles finals.

With Jessie Ann of St. Paul, Minn., she will meet Beverly Baker Fleitz of Long Beach, Calif., and Britain's Christine Truman in women's doubles. In Darlene George (5) and Fred; Miller, McClain (5) and Green. Urania and Miss Bueno.

29,000 FANS A DAY

Officials say an average of 20,000 fans a day have poured through the gates during the last two weeks.

The most sensational thing they have seen this year is Olmedo in action. His victory over Laver crowned a year of achievement in which he has won the Australian men's title, the U.S. indoor championship and given a mighty assist in the U.S Davis Cup victory over Australia.

Only two opponents were set from him at Wimbledon, Ramanathan Krishnan of India won one set in the third round before Luis Ayala took another in the fifth round.

WILL REMAIN AMATEUR

Olmedo says he has no thought of joining Jack Kramer's touring professionals.

After receiving the silver trophy from the Duchess of Kent, Olmedo said: "I am thinking only of playing for the U.S Davis Cup team. I would like to come back to Wimbledon next year."

Kramer, who has signed the last three Wimbledon winners to lucrative contracts, already has announced he is ready to offer Olmedo $100,000 if he can add the U.S title and lead American Davis Cuppers to another victory in late summer.

Also, there are unconfirmed reports of another offer, possibly as much as $150,000, from a group wishing to sponsor a new tour featuring Olmedo and women's star Althea Gibson.

Gary Bowerman Leads Field In OGA Qualifying Round

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Playing brilliantly under a slightly sour, Gary Bowerman, son of Quinte junior golfing ace, led a field of 43 youngsters in the district qualifying round of the Ontario Junior Championships here yesterday.

Bowerman, who is five-foot-two and 7½, the shaded John Kindred, Peterborough Kawartha, by a stroke and finished two ahead of third place Bill Weese of the same club. Twenty played in the junior division.

Bob Jamieson, Peterborough Golf Club, led the 13-player juvenile division with a 77, with club-mate Martin Winslow next with an 86.

Topping the ten-player bantam division was Gary Costello, Napanee Golf Club, with a 93. A stroke behind was George Triggs of the Peterborough Golf Club.

SEVEN QUALIFY

Under OGA regulations, only seven players for each eight entries in the junior and juvenile divisions may be allowed to qualify, and one for every six in the bantam divisions. This permitting three juniors, two juveniles and two bantams to qualify from each district.

The joint Peterborough-Kawartha Golf Clubs captured five of the seven qualifying honors, the others going to the Bay Quinte and the Napanee Golf Club.

The Peterborough Golf Club's Bob Jamieson (77) and Martin Winslow finished well ahead of the pack and were never in any danger.

The bantam fight was closer. Gary Costhup, Napanee (93) and George Trigg, Peterborough (97) had to fight off the challenge of Cobourg's Ralph Kent and Doug Day and Peterborough's Gary Redfride, all of whom carded 100's.

The juniors staged a close battle across the Quinte Exhibition course with Bowerman carding a 36 and Kindred and Weese 37's. Bowerman and Kindred shot 38's on the back nine but Gary's first-nine 39 proved the margin of victory.

From then on he was consistently under par. He finished with a birdie and a bogie on the first nine and five pars, three bogies and a birdie on the second.

Following the tournament, prizes to the top three in each division were presented by OGA convener T. A. Carruthers, in the clubhouse.

The seven qualifying youngsters will take part in the Ontario junior championships scheduled at the Lambton Golf Club, Toronto, on Friday next.

Harvard Crew Unbeaten in Royal Henley

HENLEY-on - THAMES, Eng. (CP) — Two unbeaten Harvard University eights, lightweight and heavyweight crews, battled British and American crews today on the final day of the Royal Henley Regatta.

The heavyweight Harvard crew met the Leander Club of London in the final of the Grand Challenge Cup, premier competition of this great meeting of oarsmen.

The Harvard lightweights competed for the Thames Challenge Cup. In the Thames competition semi-finals on Friday, the crews rowed on the last day.

The Grand Challenge—symbol of world supremacy for single oarsmen—Stuart Mackenzie, the six-foot-two Australian who has won the event the last two years, met American Jack Baker, 21-year-old navy lieutenant, in the finals.

BEAT BRITONS

Mackenzie toyed with English-man R. A. Wills in the slow time of nine minutes, 12 seconds Friday while Baker defeated British Olympic sculler Sidney Rand by three-quarters of a length in 8:48 in the second heat.

The outstanding race of the day was Harvard's heavyweight win over Oxford University's Varsity eight to enter the finals for the Grand Challenge Cup.

But the Harvard heavyweights had to pull themselves to hold off a strong Oxford challenge after they recorded the fastest time for an eight in the regatta as far —seven minutes, one second. Harvard's lightweight crew did only three seconds slower against another great Oxford University crew to snatch victory by a slight margin and enter the semi-finals for the Thames Cup.

Wall Leads Packed Field In Flint Open

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—A tightly packed field led by easy-going Art Wall moved into the third round of the Flint Open golf tournament today.

The rugged Detroit Hills layout was giving the touring delegation such a severe whipping that scores were worn out of a starting field of 132 posted subpar scores after 36 holes.

Wall, Masters champion and leading money winner with nearly $30,000 this year, tied the course record with a five-under-par 67 Friday. So did Frank Bellezy, an unknown 22-year-old professional from Canton, Ohio. Wall had a six-under-par 136 at the halfway mark.

Jerry Magee of Toronto and Al Balding of Markham had 140. Magee carded a 72 Friday and Balding his second 72.

Cricket

LEEDS, England (Reuters)—An unbeaten century by Colin Cowdrey and two partnerships of over 100 helped M.C.C. England in reach of another rapid victory over India after the second day of the third cricket test match Friday.

England scored 408 runs for the loss of only four wickets—a first-innings lead of 87 runs with six wickets in hand.

Cowdrey was 146 at 5:40 p.m. when play ended. His fourth-wicket stand with Ken Barrington produced 180 runs in 165 minutes.

The other three-figure stand was the opening partnership of 146 between Gilbert Parkhouse (78) and Geoff Pullar (75).

Harness Racing Bits

By Phil Stewart

Belleville trained horses had rather a full schedule of racing in the past week and made an excellent showing picking up a total of 3 wins, 2 seconds, 1 third and 1 fourth and five starts, 3 seconds and 3 eights.

Monkey Wrench made the most starts racing four horses at Colborne Centennial on Saturday so as easy win and a new personal record of 2.16 2/5. "Monkey" Mac Abigail rode "H.M.S." and Betty Abigail". "Jay" making his first start was sixth in the first heat but paced very well to be second in the second mile. "Bonnie Jay" was the only Belleville put record on the head end the whole second heat to coast to an easy win and a new personal record of 2.16 2/5. "Monkey" Mac Abigail rode "H.M.S." and while Bernard Hunt's "H.B. Billy Gratton" was twice fourth and Jack Lee with "Gay Scott" and "Mr. Grift" in the "Bonnie Jay" stable will be racing here tonight.

"Mighty Classy" also made its start at Kingston on July 1st placing 4th and 2nd while "H.H. Jay" was fifth and sixth. Both are performer on the card winning both heats of his race eased up, by the mile judges. "H.H. Jay" is a

Other local horses starting at Kingston were "Lucky Rhumba Mags" who was 4th and 3rd, Nesta's "Springtime Gail" was third and fifth and his both heats but finished very well in the second. "Spencer C. Hanover" and driven by Mike Colton from Picton and trained at Belleville was fourth and fifth in his race sixth and seventh. Jack Weeks' "John Hanover" was fifth and 6th in his heat but paced very well making a good stretch drive to finish 4th in the second heat. Bill "John's" best showing yet and was his first start at Kingston. Trained by by Ken Weeks who was driving under a slight handicap having had four stitches over the left eye, the result of a kick received in the barn earlier in the day afternoon.

The classes for tonight's Quinte Driving & Riding Club meet at the Fairgrounds are pretty well filled and four stands will be. Such horses as "Gus Scott" owned by Harold Hooey of Orono and "George Dolley's "Mr. Grift" from Port Hope, in the fast class. Basil Hanover owned by May Grattan who has won 6 out of her last seven starts, as well as Ken Weeks' Bonnie Jay horses should put on quite a show. And "Lucky Rhumba Gratton" who was bred and raised by Roy Boyce at Canniffton and is owned trained by Trevor Orser of Kingston will help to make two fine classified horses work for their purses.

If you're a harness fan come up to the park tonight and you'll be the fun. If you've never seen a harness race come up anyway and bring the family for a good evening's entertainment watching America's fastest growing sport.

Yukon Eric, Jonathan Rally To Defeat Hutton, Kulaski

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Take Bunny Dunlop, Don Leo Jonathon and Jerry Dunlop, intelligible, familiar with Dick Hutton and Karl Kulaski sauces and you have a fight bad enough to make you forget food on any menu.

Hutton and Kulaski were the dean of the villains of the piece and like any comic opera heavies got their just desserts from the heavily - punished but still handsome heroes.

The Yuke and Don emerged victorious but not until they had been given the works, 10-per-sail and blind-stagger treatment from the bloodthirsty Hutton-Kulaski duo.

Nor did Bunny escape scathing. The ex-pugilist-performer who forgot his white stick, was punched, pushed and shoved, socked all over the ring at times. Even in the semi-final when Jerry Dunlop and Jack Leslie after shaking hands re-smiled "the referee" and "Bunny" out of the ring.

But Bunny did not take it all lying down. Once he elbow-smashed Hutton and Kulaski because the pushed Jerry when speaking to him.

Eric underwent a ferocious two-on-one attack singlehanded in the first fall when Dunlop appeared to have had enough. Eric won, however, by a disqualification in the second heat but paced very well making a good stretch drive to finish 4th in the second heat. Bill "John's" best showing yet and was his first start at Kingston. Trained by by Ken Weeks who was driving under a slight handicap having had four stitches over the left eye, the result of a kick received in the barn earlier in the day afternoon.

Basil Hanover owned by May Grattan who has won 6 out of her last seven starts, as well as Ken Weeks' Bonnie Jay horses should put on quite a show. And "Lucky Rhumba Gratton" who was bred and raised by Roy Boyce at Canniffton and is owned trained by Trevor Orser of Kingston will help to make two fine classified horses work for their purses.

If you're a harness fan come up to the park tonight and you'll be the fun. If you've never seen a harness race come up anyway and bring the family for a good evening's entertainment watching America's fastest growing sport.

Replaces Higgins

Red Sox No Basement Squad Says Beantowners' New Boss

BALTIMORE (AP) — Billy Jurges, an aggressive shortstop who led the National League for 11 seasons, says he'll expect the Boston Red Sox from the Boston Red Sox when he takes over as manager.

"We'll do the best we can and we'll hustle like hell," Jurges said Friday after the Red Sox parent mired in the American League cellar, 19½ games off their league leader, Boston's new eighth-place team — and they're not going to be.

The 51-year-old Jurges, a coach with Washington Senators since 1956, was hired Friday to replace the ousted Mike Higgins. The Sox are 31-42 since manager Higgins and lost again Friday night, under the temporary leadership of coach Del Baker.

Higgins was in his fifth season as manager. His team's best finish was third and were fourth on two occasions.

HITTING MAY BE KEY

Jurges said he thought the Red Sox might be a better hitting club than they have shown thus far. But he said he'll have to wait for him to be recommending any turns.

General Manager Bucky Harris declined to disclose the length of Jurges' contract with the club.

Jurges indicated he was immune to the usual managerial firing. "I'm too old to worry," he said, "and you've got to get some fun. But I'll do the best I can — can do is give it your best."

It will be the 4th appearance Jurges will crack the managerial job in the majors. He first inherited that job in mid-season of the Three-I League in 1950 and second with Hagerstown in the Piedmont League in 1953.

Archie's Heel Not Serious

MONTREAL (CP) — Archie Moore has been reassured his bruised left heel won't be his Achilles' heel in his light-heavyweight championship fight with Canada's Yvon Durelle.

Dr. Jerry Williams, Montreal chiropractor, said Friday the injury "is not as serious as it looks." Nonetheless these things are of only a day or so duration. But Judge Moore said he feels he won't be bothering the champion in the ring, fight promoter Frank Quinn announced after a good deal of scrambling—to have the fight postponed. It's now set for Wednesday, July 29, from July 15.

Durelle, the Bale Ste. Anne, N.B., brawler who will meet Moore for the world title on Dec. 10 fight, was a bit disgruntled over Friday's postponement but he doesn't plan to let it upset him. He'll continue heavy training.

Moore was downed four times in the Dec. 10 fight before he scored an 11th-round knockout.

WINS POLE POST

REIMS, France (AP) — Tony Brooks, Britain, driving a Ferrari, Friday won the pole position for the Grand Prize of Europe automobile race. At the end of three days of trials Brooks had a total for one lap of the 5.56-mile course was the best of the 23 entrants.

Anything Goes In "Craziest Race of Year"

LONDON (AP)—Anything that moves on wheels, wings or water will eligible for the craziest race of the year. The course runs from Marble Arch, London to the Arc de Triomphe, Paris. Either direction will do. But you mustn't get there by too far speeding.

When entries closed, 163 men, women and children had signed up for the race. Most of them are British but there are 23 from France, 15 from Germany and one each from Belgium and the United States.

The idea is to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Frenchman Louis Blériot's flight in a £10,000 pounds (28,000) in prizes and £5,000 (14,000) for the winner. Blériot should have waited. He got only £1,000 but it was worth about $5,000 in those days.

TRAVEL MANY WAYS

Competitors plan to use all types of transport, including the latest jet. There even is a replica of Blériot's craft. In the others they plan to use helicopters, bicycles, scooters, rather than motorcycles and even roller skates. To say nothing of taxis, buses, trains, boats and hovercraft.

Among the contestants are auto racers Stirling Moss of Britain and Maurice Trintignant of France.

The winner will be the one who does the fastest time between the two points without being booked for breaking any traffic law. The entries can run the course together in groups of six on any of 11 days starting July 13.

Nobody is going to try to swim it.

WILL DEFEND TITLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Edmonton's Henry Martell will defend his Canadian junior golf title at Lakeview Association title at the Rivermead Golf Club, in nearby Hull, Que., July 23-28, the CPGA said Friday. Approximately 80 golfers are expected to compete for the $2,500 in prizes.

Matthews Wins Over Gonsalves

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Lightweight Sonny Matthews joined the thousands of other holiday visitors here for the Fourth of July holiday at this seaside resort today with happy memories of August television fight date in Madison Square Garden.

This came about after the unranked Philadelphian won a 10-round decision over Johnny Gonsalves of Oakland, Calif., Friday night.

Promoter Teddy Brenner of the Garden told Matthews it would be a natural for television he would try to line up Art Scanlon or Paul Armstrong for a title bout in New York.

A 5-3-2 decision by referee Joe Mollica gave Matthews the victory. The referee is the sole judge under New Jersey rules.

FIGHT DEFINITE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Carmen Basilio and Gene Fullmer will fight in the Cow Palace August 28 for the National Boxing Association version of the world middleweight title.

The 10-round bout became definite Friday with announcement that the California State Athletic Commission has approved the application of Norman Rothschild of Syracuse, N.Y., as co-promoter. The other promoter will be the San Francisco Boxing Club.

Bobcats, Merchants Play 4-4 Tie Game Is Called End of Ninth

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Bobcats clung to their half-game lead in the Quinte and district softball league last night although they blew a two-run lead in the ninth inning and were forced to settle for a tie with the Cobourg Merchants.

Cobourg will have a chance to gain a first-place tie when they entertain Trenton visits the Lakeshore town tonight for another scheduled game at eight o'clock.

Temple's Tabbie, held a 4-2 lead going into the ninth inning last night at CNRA Park but a pair of singles, Gerry Clarey's double and ball doubled him home to tie the score. An error by shortstop-made in 2-1 for the homesters. Hull made it 3-1 in the third when he walked, advanced on Lockwood's sacrifice and a wild pitch and raced home on Bobby Hull's short single. Trevor" Brown singled home another four after two walks in the fifth.

Meanwhile, Cobourg kept the Bobcats batting distance with a fifth-inning run. Dawe doubled and rode home on Clarey's base hit over the left fielder.

Clarey's three singles made the game interesting but Brown's two had a double with Dick Turpin, Leo O'Brien, Clarke Marsden, Bobby Cornwall and Lloyd Brandy also hitting safely.

Bobby Hull, who topped two starts for the Bobcats while "Wiener" Brown singled and Bobby Hull doubled.

Coach Bob Temple caught four games in three years for the leaders and came up with a strong performance in Earl Lockwood's absence.

Lineups:

Cobourg: Turpin, c; O'Brien, 3b; Dawe, p; Clarey, rf; Marsden, lf; Cornwall, ss; Hart, 2b; Campbell, ss; Hendry, cf.

Over 100 Golf Youngsters Qualify for Title Tourney

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A total of 106 finalists in the Ontario junior golf championship will head for Toronto's Lambton Golf Club July 28 after qualifying rounds involving 600 entries worked up in the nine district tryouts.

Forty-four young shooters have qualified for the championship's junior division for 16-18 years of age. The Ontario title holder of two years, has 42 contenders and 22 reserves selected in qualifying round at the Smith Falls Golf Club.

Bill Robinson of Collingwood shot a four-over-par 76 to lead the Georgian Bay district qualifiers and Sarnia district's Larry Johnson was low qualifier in the Sweet Home district at 77.

The four low scorers in the 36-hole final championship will represent Ontario in the junior interprovincial matches at Montreal's Kanawake Golf Club July 28.

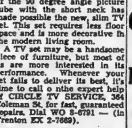
TIPS



by JOHN WETTLAUFER

Modern television sets are not only more efficient than older models, but they are more compact in design.

For example, the development of the 90 degree angle picture tube with the short neck has made possible the new, slim TV set. This set requires less floor space and is more decorative in the modern living room.

A TV set may be a handsome piece of furniture, but most of us are more interested in its performance. Whenever your set fails to deliver its best, it's time to call a nine expert help of CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St. for fast, guaranteed repairs. Dial WO 8-6791 — (In Trenton EX 2-7869).

Old TV Stars Never Die, They Just Play Las Vegas

By BOB THOMAS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Old TV stars never die, they simply come to play Las Vegas.

With the town booking bigger than ever, the demand is strong for names to draw crowds into the night clubs and, hence, to the casinos.

"We're getting 10,000,000 people here this year—700,000 more than last year," an operator told me. "We need attractions. We have to draw a mass audience, and that means television names. TV is rather have stars from TV than from movies. They're better known and they usually can put on a better show."

These stars are performing the routines they made familiar on the home screens. Phil Silvers pointed out the folly of doing otherwise.

FEEL FAST

After he made his hit as Sgt. Bilko on TV, Silvers returned to Las Vegas and had the curious army-type comedy to play his nightclub routines. Audiences were disappointed and the date was a bomb. Nothing travels so fast here as the news of a bum show.

Later, Silvers returned for another engagement. This time he brought with him some of the characters from his TV show. Results: Happy audiences, hit show. . . .

Red Skelton was enjoying George Burns' show at the Sahara before settling down to his own month's run at the Riviera. Red explained that once he starts his twice - nightly appearances (thrice on Friday and Saturday), he is virtually a prisoner in the hotel. He never sets outside, day or night.

This year he'll be making a record album with Lionel Hampton and preparing new material for his TV series. Red will also play Japan and Korea before he goes back on the air but his wife, Georgia, thinks he should rest.

Faux pas of the year: George Burns introducing Mrs. Georgia Skelton to the audience as Edna, Red's first wife.

Cop Bopped By Charles

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ezzard Charles, former heavyweight champion of the world, Friday night lumbered and flailed his way to a technical knockout in the seventh round over Dave Ashley, a policeman in nearby Lockland.

Ashley, weighing 261 pounds and very fat around the stomach, ran out of gas after the second round and was an easy target for Charles the rest of the way.

Charles, who weighed 204, showed little of the foot-speed and punching ability which carried him to the heavyweight title in 1950. He was flat-footed most of the way and fought cautiously until he had the lumbering Ashley so tired that he could barely hold up his glove.

Ashley, the foot-is, used his weight in the first two rounds and made Charles blink with several hard punches to the chin.

Extra! Mats. 4 p.m.— Kartune Funnies — See Them! Last Day—JERRY LEWIS "Don't Give Up the Ship"

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday, July 5

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — This day is best spent rounding out home chores or loose ends of patriotic duties. Plan to have the most excellent and harmonious order at abode. P. M. give a quiet little party and have satisfying fun.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Don't neglect your privilege of having inspired man of God today, for here is the key to opening up own consciousness so that you live a fuller and richer life. Then go about visiting, renewing old acquaintances. Good will come of this.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — A fine day to concentrate on the words by which you were taught and to add to these the excellent philosophy you have picked up along the years. Then by combining both, you can plan for a brighter future, beginning tomorrow.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) — There is nothing wrong in subjecting yourself to another day if it means clearing up long standing matters and clearing the slate. Also, attend worship so you learn how to live closer to God. P. M. look into health and beauty matters.

Leo (July 24 to Aug. 21) — A day for serious reflection, whether at services or in own boudoir. Get all of your problems and plans thought out intelligently, find peace of mind. P. M. dash about assisting those who are in need. Schedule new work properly.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — To make it easier to be with admirer and associates today, you can find a better way to reach your goals and far more easily, at that. But be certain you know what you really want. That is the first step to success.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — You realize the number of important things you have forgotten to do now. Devote a good part of this day, after attending worship to putting such tasks behind you. Labor so that you insure basic security.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — It is to your best interests now to place yourself among those persons of, excellent mind and moral character who will help you to envision the finest future for yourself. Then begin to take steps in the right direction.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — You will receive a wonderful inspiration today which will help you materially with your career in the early future, so you need not sacrifice any ethics. P. M. you also know how to please loved one better.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) — By giving others the benefit of your knowledge so that they can become more successful in life will soon bring fine rewards your way, too. Tonight, attend to any civic affairs that need your attention.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Think out how you can be more co-operative with fellow workers during the coming week and also more helpful to your dependents. Put abode in the nicest order possible, especially for future entertaining. Get vacation plans completed.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — If living according to your astrological chart, you should feel very happy and pleased with yourself today. Let this feeling of peace and happiness be infectious so that others capitalize, too. Good day for anything creative, too. Be joyful.

If your child is born today ... The fine child born today will be either a born salesman or a great business mind. Give as comprehensive an education as pocketbook allows, filling your child's mentality with all the practical knowledge possible, without neglecting the spiritual attainments. Then the overcreativity in this chart is dispelled. There is great success possible here if your progeny has your guidance and love.

Monday, July 6

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Look into the most fundamental affairs today. However, let your viewpoint be objective and you get far better results, particularly in home affairs. P. M. spend time with kin, either entertaining or having quiet family fun.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Now you can go out and purchase just the pieces you have been searching for unsuccessfully before. Good day, too, for meetings, gatherings, sales, merchandising, etc. Be sure to get together with partners and make concrete plans.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Monetary affairs are of prime importance on the agenda today. So be sure you contact all financiers, advisors, key people who can assist you to have greater abundance and insure present security. Confer with Big Boss in P. M.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Get out of that shell now and let others be aware of the dynamic personality beneath that stoic mien. You know what you desire out of life. Step out and get it! Tonight you can further your ambitions socially, too.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Reach those decisions easily and quickly by conferring with competent, far-seeing friends. Be sure you take treatments that will enhance your appearance, too. Change the way you dress your hair, P. M. go about doing charitable deeds.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Today make it your business to ask pointed questions of progressive colleagues, you will know how to advance in your career by more swiftly. P. M. be out and about at gatherings for enjoyment as well as to increase circle of knowledge.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Now there is every opportunity to confer with higher ups and get the approval and support you will have in important sphere of your life. Do the necessary work that will spell success.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Many excellent, inspiring, constructive thoughts occur to you today. Be certain you jot them down on paper for later use, those that you cannot utilize immediately. Then, full speed ahead. Meet the right people.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Be sure you look into insurance and financial matters that will spell comfort for you now and long into the future. P. M. you are of a very affectionate nature. Let loved ones be aware of this in some positive action.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) — Conferences with those who will be vital to your well-being can be arranged with ease today. Discuss matters intelligently, briefly. Come to the point. Better relations are quickly cemented, plans formulated.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — All material properties can be put in pink of condition today and with relative ease. Get busy early. Assess fellow workers and higher ups with your remarkable ability, varied talents and fine drive.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — If you are properly attuned astrologically, you will arise feeling most happy and at peace with the world. Attend to duties first, then off for a delightful day of fun and creative accomplishment. Be joyful.

If your child is born today ... The delightful child born today will be extremely sensitive and the artistic type. Is very astute, deep. Greatest expression comes from doing things that will be beneficial to the masses. Yours is the duty, however, to see that ego does not grow into egotism, since true genius is inherently humble. Then the success here can be very great. Be a good kind person, above all.

Marsh Hill

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Finkle and Linda attended the memorial service Sunday afternoon at Burnbrae Church.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Finkle spent the weekend in Toronto with relatives.

The children are enjoying their summer holidays and congratulations are extended to all who were successful in their examinations.

Raymond Finkle and Bruce Coulter went on the bus trip Saturday, sponsored by the 4-H Club.

Communion service was observed Sunday morning at Marsh Hall United Church.

Carolyn Finkle is visiting her cousins, Kathy and Bill Dier, of Belleville.

GUARANTEED HEARING

OUR SPECIAL GUARANTEE!

Offers you the use of our fitted hearing instrument for three months, with a special money-back guarantee. Here is how the MAICO guarantee works.

After wearing the instrument for three months according to our instructions, have your own ear specialist or physician check its operation. If he is not completely satisfied with the results you have obtained, and we are unable to adjust it to meet his requirements, we will reimburse you the full purchase price, less only the original cost of the ear insert made especially for you.

All various types of hearing instruments fitted are based on a "FREE" audiometric test made by certified hearing aid audiologists. An appointment may be made without any obligation on your part.

Shannonville

SHANNONVILLE — The annual meeting of Shannonville Home and School was held in the school on June 24 with Mrs. Al Ryckman presiding.

The secretary, Mrs. Boyce Cook, read the minutes of the annual meeting, also of previous meeting. The treasurer, Mrs. Bert Spencer, gave a good report for the past year.

All members holding offices went back in by acclamation for the year 1959-60, except the treasurer, and that position was filled by Mrs. Ken Fritz. Also, Mrs. Willis Wilson is a new member on the executive committee.

Mr. Alvin McKenzie was acting chairman for the program, assisted by the senior room.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS

The principal, Mrs. Reese, gave the names of pupils in Grade VIII to receive scholarships donated by the Home and School — Margaret Ann Ryckman to Richard Cook $25, Gordon Guity $15 and Bob Brant $10.

Mrs. Reese personally donated a $10 voucher to the most eager child in her class, this going to Verna May Hagerman.

Several of the pupils had a debate on comic books.

A solo was given by Gordon Guity; Bob Brant gave a short reading on "When the Last Red Indians First Came To This Country"; Richard Cook gave a report on their trip to Ottawa, going through the Parliament Buildings, the mint and also viewing RCMP drill.

Mrs. Ryckman thanked Mrs. Reese and her senior room pupils for the program.

TRANSFER POLICE POWERS

PORT - OF - SPAIN, Trinidad (Reuters) — The Trinidad government announced Friday that Britain has agreed to the transfer of police powers in Trinidad subject to certain safeguards. Responsibility for police will be taken over by a Trinidad minister as soon as a police service commission has been established and other legal and administrative arrangements completed.

Frankford

FRANKFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Cummings, of Belleville, spent Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cummings.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rowe and family were weekend guests with Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Sinclair, and family, at Sharbot Lake.

Mr. Denton Spencer, of Toronto, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Spencer.

Sympathy of the community is extended to the Lester family on the loss of a dear husband and father.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Harding and daughter, Sylvia, of Toronto, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Andrews and family.

PRESENTS FAREWELL GIFTS

On the afternoon of June 26th, in Frankford Public School, Mrs. K. Hopkins, Grade 1 teacher was the guest of honour, as she leaves to take up teaching duties in Oshawa, Ontario.

The teachers and school staff gave Mrs. Hopkins a black leather purse and lucite umbrella. These gifts were presented by Darlene Lohnes and Gary Herbert.

Grade 1 pupils gave her a lovely vase and Linda and Sharon Wannamaker presented her with bone china cup and saucer.

Mrs. Hopkins expressed her appreciative thanks to the other teachers and the school for the lovely gifts and their kindness to her during the years she has been a teacher in Frankford Public School.

She will be missed from the community.

Arden

ARDEN — Mr. Patrick Loyst and children, Richard Loyst of Oshawa, spent the weekend with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hopkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Steele of Wednesday visited their daughter, Mrs. Robert Weese at Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wormworth of Kingston, are spending their holidays at the Islands here.

Mr. Eugene Thompson, Oshawa, spent the weekend with Mr. George Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferrier, of Kingston, spent a few days this week at their cottage at Big Clear Lake.

Mr. Albert Hornbeck, Kingston, spent a few days recently at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Tibbs called on friends in Perth on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Loyst called on friends in Tweed and Belleville last week.

The memorial service held on Sunday at Arden cemetery was well attended.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Charlotte Godfrey, who passed away in Kingston hospital on Monday, was held in the Standard Church Wednesday. Interment was in Arden cemetery.

Your Car

Give Your Car's Finish Special Summer Care

By EUGENE MILMOE

During summer months, car finishes come under heavy attack from such things as sun, salt spray, sand, road tar, dew, tree sap, insects, etc.

The first step toward protecting your car is to start the season with a really good wax job. Then give it an occasional helping hand. "If the finish is well waxed, a hard water wash or dusting is often sufficient when it's dusty or rain-streaked, or when it has been exposed to sand or salt spray.

Tree sap and insect stains are easily removed with a mild detergent and water solution. Kerosene or naphtha will take care of tar spots which are picked up when the hot asphalt is on the road.

And, when rain showers or early morning dew deposit water drops on the car, wipe them down promptly. They can be classified by the sun, damage the wax coat and, possibly, the car finish.

C. M. asks: "When replacing a cracked boiled muffler, is it also necessary to put in new exhaust pipes?"

(A) Only if the exhaust, tail pipe or both are shot, too. And quite often this will be the case.

From R. T.: "When my engine is running at 20 mph or less, it's pretty rough, and if I take my foot off the gas to let it idle, the car usually stalls."

(A) A carburetor or manifold air leak will cause this.

D. C. writes: "Within the past week, my engine has failed twice in traffic. It acts like the fuel pump is stopped or not pumping enough gas through. After sitting for a while, though, it starts and runs all right."

(A) In hot weather with high engine temperatures, vaporized fuel bubbles form and the effect is similar to pump failure or a clogged line. Known as vapor lock, it is due to excessive heat striking the fuel lines, pump or both.

C. F. asks: "When my front wheels hit a hole or mound in the road, the steering kickback is really strong. Steering system plus springs and shocks have been checked over and are O.K."

(A) This trouble can also be caused by too much air in the tire or by loose front wheel bearings.

NEEDLESS WORRY

LOWESTOFT, England (CP)—People buying tinned Japanese salmon in this East Anglian town don't need to worry about slivers of what appeared to be glass in the tins. The medical officer says they are crystals of magnesium ammonium phosphate, completely harmless. The crystals form naturally in certain tinned salmon.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cleave entertained at a family dinner on Tuesday evening. The occasion was a farewell for their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Ike of Leicester, Eng.land.

Mr. and Mrs. Ike have been visiting many relatives here for the past three weeks. They have also been in Toronto, North Bay, Montreal and New York. Tuesday was also the 16th birthday of Miss Rhonda Cleave. The guests at the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Percy Cleave, Mr. and Mrs. William Wight, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cleave, Mr. and Mrs. Borden Cleave and Eileen, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Cleave and Debbie and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Cleave.

Mrs. William Crawford, Lathan, New York, has arrived to spend the summer at her summer home here.

En route from Ottawa to their their home in London, Mr. John Bell and two daughters stopped in Wellington on Sunday to visit his mother, Mrs. Mabel Bell, at Wellington Manor. Sunday callers of Mrs. Bell were Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Babbitt, Amelia.sburg.

Brenda and Nigel Maybee, of Hollands Landing, are spending a couple of weeks with their grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Thomson.

Mrs. Lewis, of Monta Farm; Mr. and Mrs. William A. Dafoe; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cleave, and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Parks were invited to attend the ceremonies at Old Fort Henry during the Queen's visit on Sunday. Miss Carley Cleave, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cleave, was one of the ushers there.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilton McCartney of Picton; Dr. and Mrs. Mackey McCartney and family of Wooster, Ohio, were Wednesday evening dinner guests of Mrs. W. H. Tuskey and Mr. William Wiggins.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Maybee and family of Carleton Place, are at their cottage on Lake Shore Road, where they will spend the summer. In September Mr. Maybee and family will move to Peterbrough where he has a position on the staff of Kenner Collegiate and Vocational School.

Miss Gladys Lumb spent the weekend in Bowmanville, visiting relatives there.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wilson and sons, Roger and Douglas, of Elmira, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Wilson. They also visited Mr. and Mrs. Don Mercer and family at their cottage at Consecon Lake. Roger is remaining for a while with his grandparents.

Mrs. E. A. Maybee is spending a few days this week with relatives in Smithfield.

Miss Carol Marvin left on Friday for Oshawa. She will be swimming instructress at the "Little Buckhorn Ranch," for the summer.

Mrs. Earl Marvin spent the weekend in Toronto, guest of her aunt, Miss Mabel McKnight.

The Anglican W.A. held a successful homemade food sale on Mrs. W. A. Davern's lawn on Saturday. The tables were filled about 3 p.m. and in no time everything was sold.

Mr. Lanny Huff is spending this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Huff.

Miss Marjorie Blakely is spending a few days this week with her friend, Miss Dorothy Taylor, in Toronto.

Mrs. Gordon Cahoon, Toronto, is now at her summer home for the summer months. Miss Margaret Cahoon spent the weekend with her mother.

A number from Wellington enjoyed a trip to Kingston on Sunday where they watched the Queen and Prince Philip motor along the gaily decorated streets, and also enjoyed seeing the Queen's boat, the "Britannia," and her escorts arrive at the docks.

Mrs. Inez Ingram has returned home after a six weeks' holiday with relatives in Saskatchewan.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Harrison of London, and Mr. Pat Van-Duzen, and friend of Toronto, spent the weekend with Mr. Len VanDuzen and Eddy.

Miss Helen Guernsey, Reg. N., and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jackson and family of Toronto, were weekend guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Guernsey.

Miss Joan Campbell was the guest of Thursday and Friday of her friend, Mrs. Don Hough, Burrs, and attended the Burr's school picnic held in Wellington Park on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mowatt and son daughter, Leslie, Port Arthur, are guests of his mother, Mrs. Walter Nind, and Mr. Nind.

Mr. and Mrs. William Adams spent the weekend in Toronto, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hubble.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Mrs. Annie Christy who passed away on Monday afternoon, June 29th, at her late residence.

Mrs. Keith Tripp and baby daughter, of Halifax, arrived at Malton airport on Monday to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Clapper, of Bellville, and with Mr. Tripp's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Tripp, Wellington. Mrs. Keith Tripp was accompanied by Mrs. S. Tripp, motored to Toronto and met them at the airport. A/S. Keith Tripp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Tripp, has the honor of being on "H.M.C.S. Cattaraqui," which is one of the escorts of the Queen's yacht, "Britannia."

On Friday morning, the last day of school, Mrs. Sam Tripp, president of the Wellington Women's Institute, and Mrs. James Calihoo, secretary of the W.I., presented the Institute awards to the boy and girl with the highest marks, Nigel Sivell and Carol Allison were the students who received the awards.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — Mr. and Mrs. Antell, of Oshawa, were Monday night guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bridges.

Misses Isabelle and Dianne Pratt enjoyed a trip to Ottawa by bus, and visited many important places in the capital.

The teacher, Mrs. Bert Reids, pupils of Eggleton School, S. S. No. 3 Sidney; a few pre-school age children, also Mrs. Milton McMullen; Mrs. Maurice Clancy; Mrs. R. Dunford; Mrs. Thomas Kovach, and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett, were among those who attended the annual Field Day, held at the O.S.P. grounds in Belleville, on Tuesday, for the schools of Sidney township. Several of the pupils took part in the various games, and a few won prizes.

Friends calling to visit with Mrs. A. Andrews this past week were: Mrs. W. Bray, Miss Sarah Wilson and Mr. Arthur Wilson, of West Huntingdon.A The Rev and Mrs.' A. Packman of Stirling; Mrs. Clancy; Mrs. Fitchett; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Stapley of Stirling.

Mrs. Hiram Ashley spent Thursday in Belleville and visited at the home of her aunt, Mrs. C. McGuire.

Her many friends in the neighborhood here, wish to extend congratulations to Miss Grace Clarke, who was successful in passing the final examination at the Peterborough Teathers' College. Miss Clarke has been engaged as teacher in one of the Belleville schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kovach, Brian, Terry and Wayne accompanied Mr. Kovach's brother on a motor trip to Western Canada, where they will visit with relatives in various parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reid and tiny daughter, of Ottawa, are visiting at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Reid.

The bake sale held in Stirling on Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Eggleton Mission Band, was a decided success and the nice sum of $27, was added to the Mission Band treasury.

Communion service was observed at Eggleton United Church on Sunday morning.

Mrs. M. Clancy, Mission Band president for the Belleville Presbyterial, attended the Mission Band meeting at Stone Church on Sidney, where she had been invited to speak on Friday afternoon.

A splendid program with a lovely worship service, readings, piano solos, songs, piano duets, was presented by the Mission Band members after which the Leader, Mrs. Phillips, introduced Mrs. Clancy, who gave an interesting talk.

BACKWARD STEP

WOODSTOCK, N.B. (CP)—On the grounds it would be a backward step in conservation, the local branch of the New Brunswick fish and game association rejected a recommendation by the Edmundston, N. B., branch that Sunday hunting be legalized.

Rail Union Head Asks PM Clarify Freeze Of Rates

Ought Not to Interfere With Wage Boost, Claim

TORONTO (CP) — William J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), today called on Prime Minister Diefenbaker to clarify his statement on the freezing of railway freight rates "so that no one will be able to becloud the issues in the coming railway negotiations."

In an address to the union's joint protective committee meeting here, he said "the freight rate freeze must not be permitted to interfere with the wage increases to which railway workers are legitimately entitled." The committee opened a five-day policy meeting today.

The federal government has appointed a royal commission to investigate freight rates and other problem facing the railways. The prime minister has announced that freight rates will be frozen during the period of this study.

Mr. Diefenbaker can clarify his announcement "by simply stating that no wage freeze was contemplated in his announcement," Mr. Smith said.

WOULD BE BAD FAITH

He warned the railways that "any attempt at this late date to link the questions of wages and freight rates will be interpreted by us as an indication of bad faith."

Mr. Smith told the 260 delegates from locals of the 40,000 member non - operating railway union, Canada's largest national union, that "increased costs of any description place on the shoulders of railway management the burden of finding increased revenues."

"However, in a rigidly controlled industry such as the railways, this is an issue between the government and the board of transport commissioners on the one hand, and the railways on the other."

"Clearly, railway workers should not be asked to bear either the effects of a policy designed to benefit the nation as a whole."

NEWSPAPER "HOSTILITY"

Mr. Smith said the railways "can be expected, once again, to resist any and all wage improvements." As important as this "is the hostility we will meet from most of the country's newspapers."

While "bias is clearly evident in some cases," Mr. Smith said, "what disturbs me most is the appalling ignorance of many of our editorial writers who, despite their ignorance, still seek to inform others."

He asked the press "to honestly assess the merits of the railway workers' case."

Mr. Smith said that perhaps even more important than any was the problem of job security facing railway workers.

More than $3,000,000,000 had been used to modernize Canada's two major railways in the last 10 years, posing the possibility of a drastic reduction in the railway labor force.

TORONTO (CP) — The joint protective board of the 40,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) today recommended that the union maintain its relationship with other non-operating unions on the joint negotiating committee.

The board's report was read by Secretary Stanley S. Eighteen of Moncton to the triennial meeting of the joint protective committee. The delegates from each of the 260 locals of Canada's largest national union was presented at the convention and its five-day national policy meeting.

In advocating that the brotherhood continue to negotiate with the railways in association with 12 other union non-operating unions, the board, full-time executive of the committee, said in its report:

"In the last negotiations, the joint negotiating committee represented 40,000 members while 27,000 were members of the brotherhood. Should we be withdraw the railways would treat us as they have treated other unions which bargain separately. They would grant us precisely the same increase as was won by the non-operating group. This co-operation undoubtedly considerably weaker as a result of our withdrawal."

In reply to those who suggest withdrawal from the committee—representing in this city will be heard—the report said they would not assume that the railways would bargain with the brotherhood as a group.

The railways could insist, the report said, that each of a number of agreements be negotiated separately.

"Thus our strength at negotiations would drop from 130,000 at present to less than 1,000 in the case of carmen and not more than 3,000 in the case of the sleeping and dining car department."

In negotiations which start late in the year, "the railways will proceed all its strength to protect its standards and to gain something for itself," the report said. "Our board is convinced that this strength is only possible through unity."

A spokesman for the brotherhood said earlier that the committee's decision on the matter will be final. It does not have to be referred back to members.

The text of the committee's report was released in the press in advance of delivery.

Railway Union Wins Control Of Canal Labor

OTTAWA (CP)—A tough fight for control of canal labor on the Canadian side of the St. Lawrence Seaway has been won by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

In a representation vote held Friday and Saturday, the brotherhood smeared the hard-boiled Seafarers' International Union, which was trying to horn in on the seaway workers.

MOST OPERATORS TO LOCK PUMPS EARLY TUESDAY

Metro Area Will Be Hardest Hit

TORONTO (CP) — Gasoline is expected to be scarce here Tuesday.

Most of the metropolitan area's 1,200 service station operators have agreed to lock up their pumps to protest the gas price war. And any who don't lock up will be picketed by other operators, the Ontario Retail Gasoline and Automotive Service Association said Sunday night.

Kenneth Langdon, field manager for the association, said midnight Sunday was the deadline for 10 major oil companies to agree to negotiate with the association in an effort to stop the war. Tokheim-Ware sent in all companies early Friday asking for a meeting but the association received only four replies, all negative.

In Hamilton, 96 per cent of the city's 285 stations agreed last week to a proposed lockup to stop the fight against a gas war there. Dealers in both cities claim the oil companies have kept the war alive.

Mr. Langdon said it probably will be another week before a lockup date is announced for Hamilton because dealers there were late in establishing the mechanics of the protest move.

The association says that oil companies stop discrimination. There is particular price selling gas to unbranded dealers at prices lower than offered to other dealers, Mr. Langdon said.

NOT ILLEGAL

Oil companies were sent to the companies after a delegation from the association was old by the association's lawyers that such a meeting would not be illegal. Earlier the companies had claimed it would be.

Most of Metropolitan Toronto's 1,200 service stations are scheduled to lock up to protest the

Canal Traffic Resumed After Tug Sinks, Captain Drowned

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Two-way traffic on the Welland Canal resumed at 4 a.m. EDT today after derricks hauled a sunken tug out of Lock 4.

The tug Grand Bank sank late Saturday when it overturned in the upbound section of the twin lock near Merriton. Capt. Ernest Plaider, 62, of North Sydney, N.S., was drowned when the tug's bulwark was pushed into the water and sucked him down.

Despite the bottleneck, canal workers managed to avoid a major pileup of shipping by moving vessels both ways through the remaining section of the twin lock.

Seaway officials said there is no delay expected for the shipping. The tug was hauling a large boom at the time, bound for Leamington on Lake Erie. The towing lines parted as the tug went down and the boom stayed afloat.

Early reports of an explosion aboard the 55-ton vessel were discounted. A blast heard at the tug sank was believed to have been caused by the stove exploding as it was engulfed by the cold water.

Three members of the crew, including assistant captain John Gallop, 47, of North Sydney, jumped into the construction crew alongside the 90-foot tug. Mr. Gallop said the tug sank "because the water came into the hold too fast."

Capt. Plaider managed to jump clear of the sinking tug and was seen on the surface twice before the current created by the inrushing water pulled him down. His body was recovered Sunday.

At dawn today 18 lake ships and 16 ocean vessels were lined up at the Lake Ontario entrance of the canal awaiting passage. There were three lake ships and three ocean ships at the Lake Erie entrance.

One canal official said the situation was "no worse than before the sinking." Sunday 20 ships moved through the canal, which has been running about 24 hours behind the heavy traffic flow for almost a month.

Algerian Rebel Team Takes Two Monks, One a Doctor

ALGIERS (AP)—The chant of Salve Regina echoed through the cloisters of the Trinitarian Trappist monastery during evening vespers when a five-man rebel team entered the gate which never closes.

The men — wearing French paratrooper uniforms—asked to see the father superior.

"We have an unpleasant mission," the leader told Father Jean-Marie. "We have to take you and two other monks with us."

"My duty is to guard my spiritual community," replied the superior, "I would rather die than abandon it."

The rebels did not insist. But the other monks—Father Denis and Brother Luc — packed their belongings and followed the rebels into the night.

"Don't worry," the rebels told the superior. "We will do your monks no harm."

Outside the monastery one group was waiting. It had 12 other guerrilla fighters. Together they hijacked seven trucks.

The incident occurred last Wednesday night. It was not until the following morning that the next superior notified the French military authorities at Medea, some 50 miles south of Algiers.

A pursuit was ordered in the Ouzellaguen mountains but the French Army said it was 12 hours behind the rebels and the chances of finding the group were dim.

For more than 20 years, the Thibaribine monastery of Notre Dame de l'Atlas has served as a haven for the area's impoverished Moslem population.

Since the nationalist rebellion broke out 4½ years ago, rebel terrorism never touched the monastery property.

The monks refused a French army garrison for protection.

"We trust in God," they told French officials.

At this stage, it could not be determined why the rebels took the two Trappists, whom they declared themselves.

One is a physician, and it is possible the rebels needed him for sick care of their wounded.

The rebels say they have nothing against clergymen and that Algerian moslems treat all churchmen with respect.

LOCKHEED JET DESCRIBED AS 'PIG IN POKE'

Estimates Passed Despite Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — The plane chosen to re-equip the RCAF air division in Europe has run into heavy opposition strafing in the Commons.

"You are asking us to buy a pig in a poke," Paul Heliyer told Defence Minister Pearkes Saturday, after the minister said the American Lockheed F-104G has not yet been tested.

Mr. Heliyer, MP for Toronto Trinity and former Liberal association defence minister, led a 3½-hour criticism of the government's choice of a plane to carry out a new air division role of ground attack and reconnaissance.

Mr. Pearkes, near the close of a stiff period of questioning and criticism, said the F-104G is an improved version of the F-104C—a model the RCAF has flown. It would have improvements, including strengthened wings, to enable it to fly at high speed at low levels.

BUDGET APPROVED

The dispute provided a last-minute flurry as the $1,536,000,000 defence debate which ended with approval of the $1,085,000,000 defence budget for the current fiscal year which began April 1.

The new plane is expected to cost some $250,000,000 for 200 aircraft—the contract has not yet been signed—and Mr. Pearkes said the RCAF will receive the first of them 18 to 20 months after the contract has been signed. Delivery is expected to be completed within a new goal ahead of it for conclusion of the long expansion, which began Jan. 15. External Affairs Minister Green, government house leader, said Saturday the government hopes the session will end July 18.

Mr. Heliyer launched the debate on the F-104 Friday night, charging that it wasn't designed for its intended role, that its aircraft is unstable at low speed, unreliable, and that the fatality

'Cured' by Evangelist Oral Roberts, Woman Throws Away Insulin, Dies

DETROIT (AP) — A woman diabetic who said she threw away her insulin in the belief she had been cured by faith died Sunday in a Detroit hospital.

A medical examiner's hearing was scheduled today to determine whether Mrs. Wanda Beach, 37, of Manton, Mich., died from insulin withdrawal or other causes.

The woman, a diabetic since infancy, came here Friday to attend services of evangelist Oral Roberts. She called her parents Friday night and told them she was completely cured.

Relatives said Mrs. Beach had to have daily insulin shots to keep the diabetes under control.

Motel manager William McKee said Mrs. Beach attended the evangelist's services Friday and Saturday night. Afterwards, she told McKee and other motel residents she felt so good that I wouldn't need insulin.

Mrs. Beach became ill Sunday and was taken to Mount Carmel Mercy Hospital, where a doctor reported she was in a diabetic coma. She died before emergency treatment.

Roberts is conducting a weeklong crusade in Detroit. A member of his party, R. F. DeWeese, said: "This is a tragic case. We constantly advise people never to do a thing like this. We advise them to go to their own doctors and get a medical examination and clearance before stopping medical treatment."

Thousands Greet Queen And Philip On Chicago Visit

Britannia Steams Past 6,000 Welcoming Ships

CHICAGO (CP)—Queen Elizabeth stepped ashore in Chicago today amid the thunder of army artillery, roaring ships' whistles, and the cheers of thousands of spectators massed at the landing site.

A cordon of police struggled to hold back other thousands trying to approach the reviewing stand on the dock.

The royal yacht Britannia's barge brought Elizabeth and Prince Philip ashore promptly at 11 a.m. EDT. The yacht was moored outside the breakwater.

A 21-gun salute began as the launch started toward shore. In close formation, flight of jet fighter planes soared low over the scene. Hundreds of small pleasure craft followed the barge.

So began the Queen's 13-hour day in Chicago.

She was wearing a short-sleeved summer dress, showing length white gloves, a flowered hat and a string of pearls.

LOOKS RESTED

She was smiling and looked rested after spending all day Saturday on the voyage from Parry Sound to Chicago.

Wiley Buchanan, U.S. chief of protocol, greeted Elizabeth and Philip officially.

The royal couple, followed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker who accompanied them aboard the yacht, then passed down a long line of officials, including the ambassadors to the United States from the United Kingdom and six Commonwealth nations.

A guard of honor, of soldiers, sailors and marines stood stiffly at attention while the band assailed Elizabeth with God Save the Queen. It followed with the Star Spangled Banner.

Philip stood beside Prime Minister Diefenbaker during the playing of the anthems.

ESCORT QUEENS

Governor William G. Stratton of Illinois and Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago escorted the Queen as she reviewed the guard.

With prows pointed toward shore, 28 U.S. warships — the greatest concentration in Lake Michigan since the war — were lined up in tight formation during the ceremonies. The whites of their dress uniforms dotted each deck, standing at attention.

The Britannia steamed past an estimated 6,000 ships of all sizes on Lake Michigan as it neared Chicago.

Crowds started gathering at the Navy Pier long before the arrival of Queen's arrival.

The U.S. Coast Guard flagship Mackinaw met the Britannia at dawn to escort her to the mooring.

CLEARS A LANE

The Mackinaw cleared a lane through the fleet of yachts, pleasure craft and fireboats that greeted the royal couple aboard the yacht. A helicopter hovered overhead, in radio contact with the Mackinaw, to keep the lane clear of craft on the lake.

Scores of small boats—among them a Chinese junk — massed around the Britannia when the yacht dropped its anchor in the outer harbor, about 30 minutes before the Queen's arrival.

Firehosis sent up fountains of water in a traditional greeting. Ship's whistles roared a welcome.

The mayor wished the royal couple "a pleasant visit and a happy stay" in the city.

Replying, the Queen said, "My husband and I are very glad to be here. "You will find us very keen and inquisitive sightseers."

Four Red MiGs Shot Down By Nationalists

TAIPEI, Formosa (Reuters)—Chinese Nationalist F-86 sabre jets shot down four Chinese Communist MiG-17 fighters Sunday in an air battle south of the Nationalist - defended Matsu Island group in the Formosa Strait, the Nationalist defence ministry announced.

The ministry said another MiG-17 jet was downed by anti-aircraft guns while strafing Nationalist-held Tungchuan Island, about 12 miles southeast of the Matsus.

The Nationalists said their planes suffered no losses.

A defence ministry communique said the air battle began when eight Nationalist Sabre jets on a routine patrol were intercepted by 12 Communist MiGs.

The communique said the Sabre jets shot down four MiGs and damaged another in a 10-minute dogfight.

While the air battle was going on the communique added, another group of Communist MiG - 17s were making strafing passes at Tungchuan Island.

One MiG-17 was hit by anti-aircraft fire and was seen plunging into the sea in flames.

This was the first air clash over the strait separating the Nationalist-held Matsus 10 miles from Chinese mainland since Oct. 10 when four Communist MIG - 17s were claimed to have been shot down by Nationalist Sabre jets.

Two Army Fliers Killed at Air Show at Perth

PERTH, Ont. (CP)—Two army reconnaissance fliers were killed here Saturday when their Cessna L-19 aircraft failed to pull out of a dive and crashed from about 1,000 spectators at the third annual Perth air show.

Killed were Lieut. William H. Pylypow, 28, of Glasiyn, Man., and Lieut. Gerald Gallant, 26, of Clarence Gallant, 28, of Charlottetown. They were stationed at Camp Petawawa.

The two were nearing the end of a flying performance designed to demonstrate the manoeuvrability of the aircraft when it crashed. Both men were killed instantly.

Observers said the pilot appeared to put the aircraft into a dive at a height of about 1,200 feet and to have been unable to regain control.

GALLANT SPOTTING FLAME

Pylypow is survived by his wife Phyllis of Camp Petawawa, and a son Matthew, 14 months. Mrs. Pylypow is expecting a second child.

Gallant is survived by his wife Phyllis and four children, two sons, Charles, 5, and Gary, 3 months. There are also two brothers in the army.

An army board of inquiry has been convened to investigate the crash.

Man Saves Four Before Drowning With Daughters

CORINTH, N.Y. (AP) — A father and his two daughters and another man were drowned Sunday when a homemade outboard motorboat capsized. Four survivors, the father saved four children, including his own.

The accident occurred about 50 yards offshore in Ethner Lake, in the lower Adirondacks, where the group was picnicking.

The victims were Richard Hustis, 49, his daughters, Myrtle, 5, and Lucy, 7, and Jay Dorsett, 36, builder of the 12-foot craft.

State police said Hustis swam back and forth to shore and pulled his two sons, six and nine years old, and two other children to safety. He died as he tried to return for his two daughters.

Queen and Philip Get Day of Rest Aboard Ship After Muskoka Visit

PARRY SOUND (CP)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip had a Sunday to themselves aboard the royal yacht Britannia en route to Chicago after their whirlwind tour from here following a six - hour tour of this Georgian Bay resort area.

They had their first complete day off since they started their 43-day tour June 18 in Newfoundland. The royal yacht steamed all its way through upper Lake Huron and Lake Michigan to what promised to be a whirlwind welcome today in the Windy City.

Saturday's visit to the Georgian Bay and Muskoka Lakes region was highlighted by informality. There were no speeches and the royal couple saw Canada on holiday with vacationers in shorts and swimming suits.

The Queen, wearing a pale blue silk shantung dress and small white hat with a draped organdy crown, and Philip, in a grey suit and carrying his brown hat, enjoyed the sun and the summer weather with the temperature in the mid-80s.

Their first stop was shortly after 3 p.m. at the predominantly Ukrainian community of Penetanguishene. Travelling by car or train on a 100-mile swing they made stops at Midland, Orillia, Washago, Gravenhurst and Torrance on the way here.

On arrival here they were met by Prime Minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker who flew from Ottawa to join the royal party on the Britannia for the trip to Chicago.

Road Washed Out, Barn Burned In Severe Storm Over District

Torrential rain accompanied by a severe electrical storm swept through the city and district Sunday night, causing destruction of a barn in Thurlow township, flooding downtown intersections in the city and washing out at least one road in Prince Edward county.

The barn of Lyle Vandewater, 5th concession of Thurlow township between Fairfield's Bridge and Honeywell's Corners was struck and burned by lightning. Belleville firemen answered the call for assistance but could do nothing to save the structure.

Only a small amount of hay was said in the barn which was completely destroyed.

As a result of the storm which dumped more than two and a half inches of rain on the district, the city public works department put in a busy time with 15 calls for flooding conditions being received up until eight o'clock this morning.

Seven manhole covers in the city blew off with the pressure of water from storm drains while traffic on Dundas Street, Front near the bus terminal was slowed as the sewers were clogged by the intensity of the storm.

All but two of the calls for flooding, one on Dundas East, and the other on Evans Street, were conditions remedied as soon as the heaviest of the storm let over.

The basement at the Corby Public Library was reported flooded by the storm.

In Prince Edward county at Roblin Lake a road leading to one end of the lake was washed out with cottagers this morning being unable to get to their respective jobs in the city and elsewhere.

The storm which sprung suddenly as black clouds rolled in from the west, started shortly before 8:30 but its intensity was not reached until after 10:30 when the rain literally came down in sheets.

Between peals of rainfall there were lulls the storm then breaking again with intense severity. The sky being filled with flashes of lightning and almost continuous rolls of thunder.

Throughout the storm there were brief interruptions of hydro when the rain first started shortly on several occasions. However there were no serious interruptions of power.

City Firemen Kept Quite Busy Over Weekend

City firemen had a busy weekend with the alarm being called out on half a dozen or more instances since Saturday.

Biggest blaze was on the 5th concession of Thurlow township where the barn of Lyle Vandewater was burned when struck by lightning shortly before midnight Sunday night.

Other calls were for a grass fire in the Cooney orchard on the 1st concession of Thurlow; in the East Hill playgrounds where a stump was afire, to Starling Street for a small blaze on the exterior of a house.

Other calls were to Dundas Street East where the reels stood by after a car slammed into a centre boulevard warning light standard near the No. 1 firehall, and for a smoke investigation at 62 Benjamin Street.

Also during last night's storm a run was made to 296 Coleman Street where the electric fuse box was apparently stuck by lightning.

ESCAPEE INJURED

BELLEVILLE (CP) — A 16-year-old escapee from Bowmanville training school was injured Sunday on the highway 35 miles northeast of here when a stolen truck went out of control. Police said the youth escaped Saturday before 6 p.m. at Orono. He suffered a broken shoulder and possible internal injuries.

White Cane Club Enjoys Picnic At Zwick's Island

Perfect weather favored the White Cane Club when they held their annual picnic on Saturday afternoon. This was the first time the picnic had been held at Zwick's Island and it proved an ideal place with plenty of space for the games. Transportation and games were arranged by the executive of the White Cane club with the assistance of Mrs. H. Rollins and Mrs. J. Maitle.

The first game was an elimination contest passing a rubber ball from hand to hand with the last one left the winner. This was won by Pat Baverstock. The ball driving contest was won by Mrs. Towner for the men and Mrs. Stevens of Napanee for the women. A contest to guess the measurements of a board was won by Mrs. Cecil Trenton, and Arlie Scott who tied. The spool race was won by the team of Mrs. Waite and Clarence Morris; the paper bag relay contest by the team of Arlie Scott; the shoe kicking contest by Ted Rowe of Trenton was the winner and Mrs. Stevens for the women. Arlie Scott was the winner of the ballon blowing contest and also guessing the number of jelly beans in a bag. Mrs. Waite won a prize for having the birthday nearest to July 4th; and Geiger Stevens was winner for the twenty foot walk.

A singsong was enjoyed with Leonard Scott playing the guitar and Arlie Scott the violin.

A picnic lunch of sandwiches, cookies, fruit, ice cream, cake, hot and cold drinks was greatly enjoyed by all present, and the club members had a chance to visit and discuss summer plans before leaving for home.

Pupils, Parents Honor Teacher

Mr. Bruce Bedell, a teacher at Wilberforce public school for the past two years, was honored by his pupils and their parents at a presentation ceremony last week.

Mr. Bedell, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bedell, R.R. 2, Belleville, is leaving his teaching position temporarily to attend teachers' college at Peterborough.

Wilberforce is north of Peterborough.

Mrs. Kellett, a fellow teacher, the pupils and their parents thanked Mr. Bedell for his fine work during the past years. Mrs. Kellett and the pupils presented him with a leather brief case, while the parents presented him with a wallet and a sum of money.

Hope was expressed that Mr. Bedell will return to the Wilberforce staff following the completion of his course at Peterborough.

New P-C Convention Favored For Hastings-Frontenace

Because some dissatisfaction with the operation of the Hastings-Frontenac Conservative nominating meeting held at Madoc June 26th, a new convention for the riding is being asked by certain party members.

At the meeting held in Madoc to choose candidates for the provincial by-election expected this fall, 26-year-old Rod Wells, Norwood cattle and electrical contractor, won the nomination by a slim eleven-vote margin over Vern McMurray, Gilmour general merchant.

The riding seat was left vacant by the sudden death last spring of Hon. Sidney Smith Ex-ternal Affairs Minister.

Madoc district party members who asked to remain anonymous claim they didn't like the way the June 26th convention was run. They say extra ballots were obtained from the riding secretary by local association presidents and also that it was not determined how many eligible delegates were present at the convention.

They say a second "odd" ballot could have cast in the three ballots varied by as many as 37 votes. On the second ballot there were 421 ballots cast. On the second ballot with three candidates still in the race there were 384 votes and on the third ballot there were 440.

Party members who think a new convention should be held, claim it is odd that the same votes were cast on the second and third ballots than on the first ballot when the delegates would be fewer ballots as some supporters could be expected to leave the hall as the voting progressed.

On the other hand riding association officials state the increased vote in the second and balloting progressed could be explained by the fact some delegates were late in arriving at the convention.

Riding Association secretary Alf Northey of Northbrook says that "possibly 50" additional ballots were handed out at the convention when local association presidents reported they were short.

OLD LISTS USED

He said the lists used for determining the number of eligible delegates were old ones but he has no way of challenging the request for additional ballots when they were asked for at the convention. He said the number of delegates actually attending the convention had not been determined.

Mr. Northey said party regulations allow one delegate for each 75 party members.

"If there is a new convention—and there well might be—there would have to be a complete revision of lists to determine the actual number of eligible delegates," he said.

Scrutineers officiating at the convention said there were 1,000 number of eligible delegates, but one was heard to say, however, that there may be a few more ballots were counted the second time than the first.

Previous to the convention, Association secretary Northey had advised local riding organizations that three votes per delegates they were entitled to and asked to be advised if there were any changes. He had received no replies.

Pending decision on whether a new convention will be held balloting cast at the last convention has been placed in a bank vault at Madoc for safe keeping. Any decision reached to hold or not hold a new convention would have to be made at a full meeting of the riding association executive at the operating executive.

So far, it is reported, no executive members have requested a full meeting of the executive.

Award Contract For New Hangar And Pump House

A contract for the construction of a new airplane hangar and pump house with reservoir at the Trenton RCAF Station has been approved by the Federal Government, it was announced which comes to $3,898,660, without the fee which has been awarded to the Carter Construction Co. Ltd. of Toronto and construction is expected to start late in the year.

Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings-South, has advised this paper that the Minister of Defence Production has given the assurance that local labor is to be used wherever possible and available.

Ben-Gurion Quits But Expected To Form New Gov't.

JERUSALEM (AP) — David Ben-Gurion was expected to begin forming a new government today after his resignation as prime minister climaxed a crisis over an Israeli secret service, the Lavon affair.

The 15-member coalition government which quit Sunday night stayed on as a caretaker regime until a new one is formed. But Ben-Gurion said he will "have nothing to do" with the four ministers from the left-wing Achdut Avodah and Mapam parties.

These four boycotted the Cabinet the government's fall by voting against the sale of $450,000 gyroscope throwers to West Germany. Most of them already have been delivered to the Bonn government.

The only persons dressed up for the day were those who met the royal visitors and those lined up at the seats set up around welcoming platforms. The remainder were casually garbed.

BARRIE BAND PLAYS

At Gravenhurst's Gull Lake Park, where the Barrie Collegiate Band conducted by Dr. Leslie Bell of Toronto entertained from an off-shore barge, the local tour committee had the Queen and Philip ferried ashore on a Scotland Yard detectives helped children photograph the Queen and Philip who both smiled and waved obligingly.

In Midland the Queen signed the visitor's book while sitting in a chair used by her late father's mother, Queen Mary, when as Duchess of York she attended such a concert in Toronto in 1910.

The Queen was presented with a copy of Stephen Leacock's Sunshine Sketches — at Couchiching Park for Orillia, a short way from the late humorist's home.

At Parry Sound, the Queen received a bouquet from Teresa Pegbmagabow, a six - year - old Ojibway Indian girl.

Prince Philip delayed the departure of the royal barge when he stopped here to chat briefly with Charlie Carow, an 86 - year-old Great Lakes veteran of military career.

Thousands of spectators were in Mackinac, Mich., Sunday to view the Britannia as she sailed under the Straits of Mackinac bridge just after noon and right on schedule. The weather was slightly foggy but many Canadians from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., met the 36-mile trip for a look at the yacht.

war which has dropped prices from the normal 42.9 cents a gallon to as low as 27.9 cents a gallon.

Mr. Langdon said at least 80 per cent of the 204 Gas stations will close despite a newspaper advertisement by Imperial Oil Limited claiming that most of its stations have said they do not wish to lock up. Imperial has the area's largest dealer organization.

PROFITS DOWN

He agreed with comments by oil company spokesmen that gasoline prices were not to blame for oil refinery profits.

Mr. Langdon said three companies in particular started price discrimination among cobranded dealers to take business away from their competitors while hoping the industry would "let them get away with it."

But other companies have been fighting back by subsidizing their own branded dealers.

Executive branch of the Retail Service Association said its stations will not close Tuesday but dealers would probably decide this week on a specific date to lock up their pumps.

rate is "unusually high."

Replying Saturday, Mr. Pearkes said that the Arrow performance entered into the government decision announced Thursday. He said the plane was the most suitable now available.

Mr. Pearkes said the anti-aircraft and its accident rate was not abnormal.

Opposition Leader Pearson said he couldn't believe the government would decide to build the plane without carrying out RCAF test flights.

He said with sarcasm that it is clear the RCAF tried out the F-104C and found it unsatisfactory, so the government decided to buy the F-104G which hadn't been flown.

Mr. Pearkes said the decision was made on the basis of all operational considerations.

Mr. Heliper said the U.S. Air Force had cut its original order for the plane by 150 from 750 and if it were ordering again it would have nothing to do with the aircraft.

Mr. Pearkey said the reduction in the U.S. order was principally in the interceptor version.

Mr. Pearson said he would be more convinced if I knew whether the RCAF had flown it." Despite the minister's statement that a thorough examination had been made of some 20 planes for possible use in the U.S. air force the government hadn't even bothered to have test flights made of the U.S. Air Force's chief strike plane, the Republic F-105.

U.S. GAVE DATA

Mr. Pearkes said it isn't necessary to have a plane flown to get information about it. The United States provided Canada with full information on the capabilities of its aircraft.

The minister declined to say what plane had been recommended by the chiefs of staff committee. He said such disclosure was contrary to long-standing policy.

Mr. Pearson replied that Prime Minister Diefenbaker had had no hesitation earlier this year in saying the chiefs had recommended cancellation of the Avro Arrow.

Traffic School Completes Two Safety Courses

TRENTON — Under the direction of Sergeant Gordon Steenburg, the Trenton Police Traffic Training School has finished two complete classes and tonight will begin the third.

The course is made up of two nights of lectures, slides, films and tests on various machines and a written examination. Each class lasts for about two hours, with a 15 minute break.

The school is sponsored by the Trenton Rotary Club and those taking the course do so at their own request. There will be students who will be ordered to attend the training school when they appear in Magistrate's Court on traffic violations. Teen-agers will be required to attend the Traffic Training School before they will be given a beginners licence for driving.

The school does not train individuals to drive but rather teaches them to drive safely and acquaints them with the rules of the road and of safety measures every motorist should take when in charge of a motor vehicle.

During the first classes those attending the course a kit of pamphlets on various driving hints and films which are on recording by Magistrate T. V. Wills on the purpose of the classes and the schooling. Meetings by theresident of the Rotary Club and the Chief of Police are also played.

LECTURES GIVEN

They then receive the first lecture from Sgt. Gordon Steenburg, Trenton's Safety Officer, in which he explains the various licences and the reason some are issued. He also explains the value of having insurance on cars before they are taken out on the highways. He also covers the "Rules of the Road" and says a driving examinment it is necessary to have on and why.

Following th lecture, slides and a film are shown and then the students are introduced to the machines which test for reaction, depth perception, eyesight check, hearing and recovery from glaring headlights under night driving conditions.

On the second night of classes the same participants are given another lecture by Sgt. Steenburg, dealing chiefly with traffic laws, but also emphasizing the importance of obeying road signs. Courtesy on the road is also emphasized by the Safety Officer.

Following the lecture more slides and another film are shown. Then the students are requested to complete a question and answer examination.

When this has been completed and marked the students are given a driving circle and card to show they have completed the course and from the results of the various tests Sgt. Steenburg informs each student of defects, if any, in driving ability.

PRAISES CLASS

One student said, following the course: "I have been driving for the past 22 years and I find this course has brought out things I was doing wrong and I wasn't even aware of them. I'll watch it from now on. I was also pleased to find I was average in my reactions with the exception of depth perception. In the future I'll take a little more care when parking my car.

"I think the course is exceptionally good and I most certainly agree with Magistrate Wills' statement that the community owe the Rotarians in Trenton a vote of thanks for sponsoring the traffic safety classes.

"Sgt. Steenburg has the school well organized I really think it is unfortunate that he has to be burdened with other police duties. Traffic safety among children and adults should be his full-time work on the Trenton Police Department. The work he could do would save lives which he may save through teaching safer driving could be unlimited."

HARRIMAN REPORTS

BONN, Germany (AP) — W. Averell Harriman says Soviet Premier Khrushchev is ill - informed about the West's firm position on Berlin. Harriman, a former ambassador to Moscow, came here Friday after a six-week visit to the Soviet Union. He conferred twice with Khrushchev.

Some Streets Flooded as Rainfall Heavy

TRENTON — Lightning and thunderstorms rumbled over Trenton all last night and more than over two inches of rain in what has been described as one of the worst storms for the past number of years.

The first rain fell about 10 p.m. last night and by 2 a.m. the weather office at the RCAF Station in Trenton reported 1.87 inches of rain. At 8 a.m. today the office reported 2.38 inches had fallen and predicted clearing skies this afternoon.

Early this morning there was considerable damage done by lightning in Trenton, but some streets were reported to have flooded following the heavy deluge of rain.

Flooding was reported at Elgin Street in front of Weaver Motors and at the intersection of Wilkins and Rufferin, where storm sewers were unable to handle the heavy rain.

Firemen reported no calls during the night and police officials report all was quiet.

One heavy flash of lightning plunged in and turned darkness when it knocked the Hydro out but the lights came back on again in a few minutes.

The storm brought to an end the three days of hot weather.

Swing Bridge Nearly Delays Fire Truck

TRENTON — The swing portion of the town bridge closed with only 5 seconds to spare Saturday morning and prevented one of the town's fire trucks rushing to a call on the east side of the river.

The driver of the truck said he just missed the car operated by Mark Tripp's Cigar Store when he noted the gates on the west side of the bridge were down and at the corner of Front and Dundas Streets. He was unable to stop the east side of the swing bridge lifted. He said: "If I had been one minute sooner I would have been forced to wait and if I had been one minute later I would have been tied up in the traffic."

The fire call had come from the home of Elmer Bonter, 115 Dundas Street. Flames and smudge fire was burning under the back of the house. Two of the bedrooms on the outside of the house were burned and the all the furniture in the two residents had the fire nearly out when the firemen arrived, and the fire was very slight.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis, who investigated the call, said he was not sure of the cause of the blaze but commenting on the same he could not say definitely stated that it is certainly possible to have a serious fire on the east side of the river and have the truck stalled by an opened swing bridge.

Girl on Tricycle Runs Into Auto

TRENTON—Four-year-old Pat Ann Brown of 40 Mount Street in Trenton suffered bruises to the head and body Saturday afternoon when she ran into the side of a car while coasting on a tricycle.

John Quinn, driver of the car, was not charged following his run out of his laneway at 97 Shuter Street when the little girl ran into the side of his car.

She was taken to the Trenton Memorial Hospital where she was treated and released.

On Sunday afternoon R. L. Sharp of 97 McGill Street told police he was proceeding south on Lorne Street and on reaching Mount Street saw a truck, had a blowout and went out of control, hitting a hydro pole on the opposite side of the road. Both vehicles were operated by men from Toronto addresses as Toronto. The second accident concerned a car backing out of the driveway at 45 Dundas Street, into another car parked across the road.

Damage in all accidents was light.

Minor Baseball

The Tigers scored in every inning except the second on their way to an easy 23-4 victory over the Yanks in the Peewee league baseball tilt played Saturday afternoon.

The winning pitcher was Soule, who fired strong two-hit ball while striking out seven batters. Black toiled for the Giants, tagged for 15 hits.

Soule slammed a grand-slam home run for the Tigers in the fourth frame when they scored eight rbns. Rowbotham also homered for the Tigers in the seventh inning.

Yanks	501	841	6—23	15 3

Seven Persons Injured in Two Mishaps

Seven persons were admitted to Belleville General Hospital over the weekend as result of two separate motor vehicle accidents, one in Belleville and the other near Deseronto.

A third accident occurring during last night's electrical storm saw cars collide at the corner of Bleecker and Victoria Avenue, causing about $1,000 in property damage.

Suffering head and facial cuts when their car went out of control on Dundas Street, East, and slammed into the concrete standard of a warning light on a centre boulevard were Vernon Watts, of Shannonville, and Mrs. Lillian Foley of Belleville. Their eastbound car went out of control as it entered the four - lane roadway in the east part of the city and slammed into the concrete light standard. City firemen were called and stood by to avoid any outbreak of fire from the wrecked car.

Near Marysville five persons were injured when their car went out of control and overturned in the ditch on No. 2 highway.

Injured and taken to Belleville General Hospital were Clarwice Johnston, 31, James Watson, 34, and Ronald Hamilton, 25, all of Belleville, and Mary Miller, 19 and Emil Machin, 21, both of Toronto and are reported in good condition.

During last night's electrical storm cars driven by Keith Norman Cooney, 12 West Moira St., and William Edward Mason of Bleecker Ave., collided at the corner of Victoria and Bleecker.

Police said the Cooney car eastbound on Victoria failed to stop for the stop sign and collided with the northbound auto driven by Mason. Both cars skidded through a hedge and on to the lawn of Norman Cathers at 1 Bleecker Ave. Total damage was estimated at about $1,000, mostly to the two vehicles involved.

Little Girl -- Big Fish

Nine-year-old Viola Deline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Deline of Rossmore, is shown with her daddy after catching this 17-lb lunge in Stoco Lake Sunday. Casting from a boat close to shore, Viola hooked the big fellow on a spinner and, after a battle, then turned the line over to Dad for him to land. Mr. Deline has caught many lunge but none as big as his daughter's.

Missing Yacht Arrives Back At Home Port

Search for a 30-foot yacht, "Hilary Ann," missing in Lake Ontario was called off this morning by United States Coastguard after the boat was located in Rochester.

The missing yacht, owned by Albert Hartsaig of Rochester, had taken part in a yacht race from Rochester to Presqu'ile and started back across the lake yesterday morning. After its occupants stayed overnight at Presqu'ile.

The RCMP and RCAF Search and Rescue had been notified of the missing boat and this morning were preparing to continue the search when Belleville OPP headquarters were notified by the United States Coastguard that the yacht had been located at Rochester.

57 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Holiday accidents in Canada took at least 57 lives during the weekend as 21 persons died in traffic mishaps, 24 were drowned.

The remaining deaths included one through fire in Nova Scotia and 11 from other causes, including two RCAF airmen killed Saturday when their light aircraft failed to pull out of a spin at the Perth airshow.

Not included in the toll, compiled by the Canadian Press Survey from 6 p.m. local time Friday until midnight Sunday, were the drownings of two men when their tug overturned at the mouth of the Nipigon River in northwestern Ontario and the drowning of a tug captain when his vessel overturned in the Welland Canal. Although accidents in their deaths were associated with their jobs and not with summer weekend activities.

Ontario and Quebec led the toll with 22 deaths each. Ontario had nine traffic deaths, eight drownings and five others, and Quebec had eight traffic deaths, 10 drownings and four others.

The toll included deaths in traffic, boating and swimming activities and other violent deaths associated with the summer weekend.

TRUCK FLIPPED OVER

The Ontario dead:

Michael John Clark of Kingston was killed when his light truck flipped over on a gravel road near Kingston Friday night.

Lawrence Thomas Connesky, 18, of Detroit was killed Saturday when a stolen car went out of control near Windsor and crashed into a ditch.

Brent Edward Trewills, 28, of Toronto died in hospital Sunday after a car crash near Bells Corners Saturday. Two Toronto and other RCMP- officers were injured.

Lieut. William A. Pippow, 28, of Glasgow, Mass., and Sgt. Clarence Gallant, 36, of Charlottetown died Saturday when their light aircraft crashed at the Perth air show.

BUFFALO TRIO DROWN

Priscilla Marsden, 43, Esther Gould, 46, and an unidentified man, all of Buffalo, N.Y., were drowned in Georgian Bay Saturday when their boat capsized near Midland. Herman Sandy, 37, operator of the boat, and a fourth passenger, Hazel Anderson, 30, also of Buffalo, were rescued by Fred Barrett of Severn Bridge.

Police said they believe one of the women stood up in the boat, causing it to tip and capsize and turn over.

Robert Barr, 7, of Hamilton was drowned in Lake Erie near Simcoe early Sunday.

Brent Edward, 18, was drowned in the Niagara River near Fort Erie Saturday night after he was believed pulled under by a strong current.

Brighton Family Left Homeless By Flash Fire

TRENTON — Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Genereaux of nearby Brighton, and their seven children were left homeless when a fire of unknown origin their house at 3.30 p.m. Saturday.

The family has been housed in the Brighton Town Hall and a campaign has been started to get clothing for the children and another house for the family to live in. The house, which burned was being rented by the family.

Churchworkers in the area have rounded up some clothing and other necessities but the housing problem is still outstanding. Mr. Genereaux is employed by the Canadian Cooperator by the McFarland Construction Co.

Before the fire was noticed most of the members of the family were out in front of the house trying to get a car started and three of the children were upstairs in the house. One of the children was sent to the well for some water and when he got to the back of the house he noticed it was all on fire.

Mr. Genereaux rushed into the house and brought the three children out and then the family managed to get some clothing and furniture out of the house and pull it up near the burning building. However, the grass caught fire from the house and carried the flames to the pile of clothing and furniture and destroyed it all.

Firemen and police from Brighton were called to the scene but the frame building was a mass of flames by the time they arrived and there was little they could do.

The cause of the fire is unknown and it is also not known if there was any fire insurance on the property.

THIS COULD BE INTERESTING

It will be interesting to see what happens if the planned lockup of service stations in Toronto becomes a fact this week.

Service station operators appear confident of a quick victory in their drive to compel oil companies to abandon selling gasoline to some dealers at a lower price than that charged others. Don Gibson ,one service station operator whose customers enquired about means by which they could lay in a stock of gasoline, is reported to have told them "the lockup would only last that long." He might be wrong, though, if the oil companies are stubborn, and if Toronto motorists are as resourceful as they could be.

Being resourceful does not mean that a man has to buy a real storage tank or engage in the dangerous practice of storing gasoline in a number of small and unsuitable containers. All the motorist needs is enough gasoline in his car's tank to get to the nearest open service station — that and money. Even the largest cars and trucks would consume considerably less than a tankful of gasoline in getting to an open gas pump and back to Toronto. The big oil companies, far from suffering, might find their sales leaping as Toronto's car-owners made a nightly exodus from the city in search of sufficient gasoline to drive to work and back the next day.

Then, too, oil companies own oil trucks which fill up the tanks of service stations, which then fill up the tanks of car owners. The diminishing stream might increase, rather than decrease, expenses in this case, but it should be feasible.

Maybe, if the strike lasts long enough, the gasoline-man will call with the milkman every morning, or at least a couple of mornings a week.

This could be a fine time for Fiat or Isetta and use the family Cadillac as a tank car for the duration, driving the Caddy to the nearest open service station and then siphoning the Caddy's gas into the baby car for around-town trips.

More extreme solutions are also possible. We recollect seeing a picture of one car, we think in a French city, which was powered by charcoal. Which should make the owners of barbecues happy. Cars have been run with propane gas and, if the lockup lasted long enough, the Trans-Canada Pipe Line could be supplying the motive power from natural gas.

And, of course, there is always the possibility that Toronto motorists will discover the joys of public transportation systems and that the TTC will rise to the emergency and, operating on streets freed of a mass of private automobiles, will prove that under the right conditions it is not only fun to ride the bus but also jolly to travel by trolley.

ACCIDENTS INCREASE AGAIN

Sceptics, who refused to arise and cheer with the majority when Ontario's new demerit point system for automobile drivers was claimed to have produced a spectacular decline in the accident rate in April, have been proven sadly correct.

Figures for May, and including March of this year there was an average monthly increase over 1958 of 13.7 per cent in the number of accidents, with the number for March being 28.8 per cent above that for the same month the previous year. Small wonder, therefore, that when the introduction of the demerit system was first followed by an 11.5 per cent decline in the number of accidents in April, compared with the same month a year earlier, and when the number of fatalities declined by 33 per cent, from 88 in 1958 to 59 in 1959, some observers should have credited the trend to the new system.

Unfortunately, though, if this were true, the impact of the system seemed to lessen sharply during May. The number of accidents in that month was less than half of one per cent lower than for May of 1958, while the number of fatalities jumped from 68 a-year ago to 95 in May this year.

The demerit system should help rid the roads of careless or incompetent drivers, but it is clearly no cure-all.

OPEN SPACES

Canadian mayors, on tour of Europe, have been tremendously impressed by the large open spaces and parks in Berlin and Vienna. This same reaction probably applies to Paris and several major cities of Europe.

We moderns are apt to think those who lived generations ago were stupid by comparison with ourselves. But, in fact, they were smarter in many ways than we have proved to be.

Beautiful parks, beautiful buildings, etc., were created by them centuries ago to a much greater degree than we have done in many of our modern cities.

A BASEBALL REFLECTION

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The fans who quit a while ago
Are in the stands again;
The men who've swelled the baseball throng
Have dropped a game or two,
They've talked about and dashed
Like any peasant
They have a chance!

The Tigers have a chance to win.
There is no doubt of that;
A while ago 'twas rather thin;
The fans all thought it flat.
And now I wonder as I see
The men that cheer each ball
How great the Tigers' chance would be
If they had also quit!

Letters, Old and New

New York Times

By that curious juxtaposition found so often in the daily newspaper, a matter of only days recently separated news stories describing the old and the newest in man's writings. First was read of the discovery of a unique Sumerian tablet on which a romantic love song, written 3,200 years ago inscribed what appears to be a message to a lover. So small is it, in fact, that scholars probably will be some years deciphering the words was put down in so little space. And the attention, that was lavished on the worship must have been necessary to inspire this acute effort. In all love-letter writing the goddesses (and are not all love letters prayers to one kind of goddesses?), there may be no greater literary supplication.

It is an omen, perhaps, that that 3,200-year-old tablet was discovered so closely in time to the launching of missile mail. The latter, with a short 600 miles an hour, took far less time to bring its message of 1,000 miles than it took the Sumerian to write his tablet. Postmaster General Summerfield has stated that the flight portends "that the scientific achievements of our people shall be used as a rich legacy for the progress of mankind." The latter, however, certainly, but an understatement of the achievement is to be put in terms of personal human value. In the final analysis, the means by which it is transported is the end. What difference does it make if a love letter goes 600 miles an hour, another at the comparatively snail's pace of a turnpike?

Both are expressions of the human heart, transmitted to a sympathetic soul a distance away, which is precisely the purpose of ing them not only a life equal to that of the physical materials on which they are written but also the stamp of personal care and attention. Both equally demonstrated the personal touch by the mere display of the effort to write a love letter in cuneiform tablet. The modern demonstrates this same touch by writing in a small and legible hand upon any number of today's selection of fashionable personal letter paper. But the saddest was not dust overlayed at receiving his message than is the modern's despairing sage of having a wonderful time him.

Modern man, applying science to civilization, has merely added conveniences. Fountain pen to paper certainly is more convenient than sharp stylus to clay tablet. Considering the low degree of literacy of that age, the difficulty of pressing the stick into the clay to make meaningful if arduous letters, the weight of a tablet containing any message of consequence, and the impossibility of effective of transportation, it is a wonder that anyone wrote a letter at all. But the ancient did. To write a brief note to a friend must have taken days. To send a stone tablet letter must have cost the equivalent of thousands of dollars by today's standards. Today only moments are required to take a selection of stamps from a selection so wide that even your note paper can be selected. Then, with a modern pen and dash off a personal expression of news, affection, query, explanation, distress or greeting.

It should be noted that mail-carrying missile was launched from a submarine. Of all modern transportation shrinks the size of the world, so does it spread the knowledge of mankind and the world's corners. And, as the event of the missile launching has proved to us, the distance is not only horizontal but vertical too. By the time that the world's first interplanetary mail service is announced it will be old hat. Man and equipment will be used to the notion of the personal-message transportation by distances of distance. Caesar, as large as his empire was, had no friends who lived farther away than those of today's average citizen. When Caesar would have given for a fountain pen, a modern paper upon which to write and a cent stamp, he spent his life a letter-writer as he is known to have been he might have chalked up a record. Perhaps, than any single one of his many victories and conquests. Caesar for a mere 4 cents.

Singapore's Language

Far Eastern Diary

Lee Kuan Yew, Singapore's new left-wing Prime Minister, once described the colonial imposition of English education and culture on his people here by pointing out that they learned about daffodils and buttercups — flowers most of them would never see in their lives.

Now the anti-colonialist People's Action Party newspaper Petir nevertheless describes the grant of self-government to Singapore and the election victory of the party as "a new era dawning upon us. The dark stormy nights of winter are passing away. The sun has been scent of spring begins to fill the air."

Here is the authentic nationalist heart-cry of the population of an island which has no winter and where it was followed by an it is unchanging and night falls like a cloak at 7 o'clock and dawn like the year round. The English-speaking leaders of the PAP are themselves the prisoners of their own education.

Petir published how absurd were the lengths to which the former Western colonial Powers went in order to graft on these lands their alien cultures when it came to the choice between "Malayan Songs for Malayan Children." The first song in the book was "I've Lost My Doll Pet" — not one line of which could possibly mean anything to any child in this country.

In Singapore's multi-racial community, Chinese, Indian and Malayans are constantly using phrases like "I am sowed under," or "as solid as oak." There is no oak here, any more than there is snow.

It is easy to understand why men like Lee Kuan Yew, capable of establishing a purely Malayan culture, reoiled in the experience of universities in Britain, but meanwhile the American example has driven the English speakers from India to Hong Kong to develop the language and their own ideas, and thus don grammar and convention the better to express their own ideas feelings and thought processes.

Here is a recent description of an accident in a Singapore newspaper: "Then, bang, one car coming to a halt." Ramayah side fit the poor woman with mudguard and the woman fell spinning in the middle of road. We stop, but the other dirty dog he's only stopped to look at the distance. The woman makes no sound and no more."

This is a fine piece of narrative writing although it contains a mistake in grammar. Doubters may compare it with an example of contemporary English literature, recently received from a local European publicity writer: "His wife is ill in bed and with a big new piece of news. Under the aegis of the old scribe new comers may a self evident story, the Federation of Malaya is a mistake."

Both are fine, and many (as they still insist on saying here) and take your choice.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR WORK

All useful work is important, no matter what it happens to be. First it must be useful. And if that work makes you happy, the rest doesn't count. Work should so stimulate as to make the worker happy and proud of his selection.

We do top service only when we work at something in which we are greatly interested. We must be like golfers that silently give out both beauty and perfume. Work does its best when it is dedicated to practice originated in the soul. We must be units of inspiration, not inspirers. Then we will constantly be giving out dividends. The physical and spiritual become as one great project.

Work keeps revealing something new to us about ourselves. We are stirred to new enlistment, or "as solid as oak." There is no oak here, any more than there is snow.

It is easy to understand why men like Lee Kuan Yew, capable of establishing a purely Malayan culture, reoiled in the experience of universities in Britain, but meanwhile the American example has driven the English speakers from India to Hong Kong to develop the language and their own ideas, and thus don grammar and convention the better to express their own ideas feelings and thought processes.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 6th, 1939.

W. D. Wyman, manager of Eaton's Quinte Dairy, has received his life's biggest thrill yesterday, when he landed a fine 5-pound speckled trout while fishing in Stoco Lake. Mr. Wyman was trolling along with Don Dalrymple, also of Zellers when the big "muskie" struck. Residents of Stoco Lake said that the 'lunge' was the largest caught thus far this season in those waters.

Miss Rita Colllp who took a course in Toronto source last term at the University of Toronto, is holidaying with her mother, Mrs. J. D. Collip, Charles Street.

Messrs. H. Worley and A. Glover accompanied by the two sisters of the latter, Norma and Anne, spent the holiday in Niagara Falls and Buffalo. Mrs. Glover and Anne remained with them for a two weeks' holiday.

Mrs. Mossman and Mrs. Shunack of Chicago and Mrs. Burns of Lindsay, are spending a few days in the city, calling on relatives and renewing acquaintances.

Harvey E. Carleton left today for Ottawa where he will spend the summer at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Mrs. John Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. H. Goldthai, Miss Rose and Mrs. Edward Walsh of Detroit, Mich., spent the week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walsh, John Street.

30 YEARS AGO

July 6th, 1929.

Mrs. M. D. Denton and her two sons Harry and Scott, are visiting relatives in Toronto.

Mr. William Keyes of Gananoque, formerly of Belleville, is visiting in the city.

Mr. George Sprague of this city is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Orser in Gananoque.

The Rev. L. M. Sharpe of Flint, Mich., is visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Orr of Windsor, Ont., are spending their vacation here.

Mr. Lawrence A. Kells of London, Ont., who has been assistant principal at one of the public schools in that city, has been appointed principal of King George Public School here to succeed Mr. C. P. Somerville.

Mr. James M. Irwin, assistant in the Belleville Collegiate School has accepted the position of principal of Madoc Public School.

40 YEARS AGO

JULY 8, 1919.

In a game of baseball played last evening at the Fair Grounds between the Red Sox and the Giants of the City Junior league, the Red Sox won, the score being 9 to 3. The Giants defeated the Red Sox in a previous game 7 to 6. The following comprised the teams: Red Sox: Creiney, Moxan, Baldree, Myles, Marshall, Lee, Hardy, Ashley, and Clarke; Giants: Hurley, Anderson, Leigh, Winn, Harns, Jefferies, Watts, Bibbard and Miles. The umpires were Mr. Cox and Anderson.

The total number of fish fry distributed from the fish hatchery in Thurlow township during the season amounted to 134,000-plus.

Farmers are busy at this season and the attendance on the market today was not large. Butter sold at 58 cents in tubs and rolls. Potatoes were priced at 45 to 46 cents per dozen; 25 to 30 cents for strawberries sold at thirty cents per box, and raspberries at thirty-five cents per box. Green peas sold at 35 cents to 40 cents per peck. Chickens brought $2.35 to $3.00 per pair.

50 YEARS AGO

JULY 6, 1909.

Mr. Ingram of the D. and D. Institute is spending some time in Guelph.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ketcheson left today for Toronto after having visited with their cousin, Mrs. Adams, Forin St.

The steamer North King carried a large excursion from here to Rochester.

Miss Clara V. Rogers, elocutionist, of this city, and the Sherlock Quartet of Toronto, gave a very successful entertainment at Haydon on July 1st. The proceeds amounted to $300.00.

Mr. H. Corby accompanied by his brother, Mr. Charles Corby of New York City, and Messrs. Jenkins, Manson, Walker, and Dr. Clinton arrived in the local harbor this afternoon on Mr. Corby's new steam yacht, the "Vaqui." This is the first appearance of the yacht here and she was much admired as she came into port.

In reply to a correspondent: Belleville was incorporated as a city on July 1st, 1878.

Canadian PLACE NAMES

ETOBICOKE, ONTARIO

This thriving suburb of Toronto, now boasting a population of 125,000, has probably more argument concerning the correct pronounciation than any other name in Canada. It is an Indian word meaning the "place where alders grow" and originally was given to the creek which runs through the area. The correct spelling of the Indian word is said to be "Wahdo-bi-co-ke" but with down through the years has been changed to its present spelling.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

WHAT TO DO IN CASE YOU GET POISON IVY

"Dear Dr. Molner: I've been bothered by ivy poison every summer the last several years. It hampers my work and makes life miserable in general. I have spent the last several summers laboring in the hot boilions, anything that was recommended. I understand there is now something new that can be taken orally.—H.V."

You're not alone, Bul, H. Y., you didn't say whether your work forces you into the fields where poison ivy abounds or not, or whether you get out in the country for some other purpose. Are you a scoutmaster, mushroom hunter, botanist, telephone lineman or what?

Anyway, the majority of us are more-or less sensitive to poison ivy. A few are immune. And for the sensitive ones, the best solution is to make sure you know what poison ivy looks like, and then go the other way as soon as you see any.

If you touch any, or are exposed to it, a thorough washing with laundry soap, as soon as possible, is the best answer. The trouble is you don't know that when you've been exposed. A dog or cat may get contaminated on ivy patch and pick up enough of the poison on its fur so that it rubs off on you. Burning the smoke from a bonfire in which poison ivy is burning can carry the poison. Either fresh, green ivy leaves or old ones can do the damage.

MEDICATIONS BY MOUTH

As to the new medications taken by mouth to prevent ivy poisoning, I have received many reports, and my conclusion is that they are not entirely safe or effective for some people but may not be the answer for all. So, right up to the time research, my counsel is:

1. If you are sensitive, avoid ivy.

2. If you do get a rash, various creams and lotions with antihistamines are good for mild cases, and those with cortisone are especially effective. In severe cases, you'll want to get help from your doctor, who sometimes uses Burrow's solution or dilute permanganate solution to reduce the swelling and itch. Steroid drugs may be needed in very severe cases.

3. Around your cottage, home, or other place where you spend any time, use chemicals to kill off poison ivy if it is present. Many garden supply stores can furnish suitable sprays for this.

4. In any case, prevention is better than cure. Avoid ivy. If you touch it, wash promptly with a plentiful lather of laundry soap as soon as you can.

5. And as for prevention by medical means: This may be very effective in the future, but can't guarantee success for every individual.

In any event, to be properly effective, it must be done before exposure, or before the "ivy season." Likewise, the protection lasts for only a few months. So must be repeated yearly.

The "oral preventives" are good, but the idea isn't as new as some think — since the Indians used it long before the first purpose. Doubtless it helped some Indians, and made others miserable.

As a final suggestion, and not the least important, going to an allergist for injections of dilute extracts of the ivy poison is a very good method. The principle is precisely the same for hay fever sufferers who have preventive shots every year, in the late fall or winter, to protect against the next summer's trouble.

Guelph Sets Fine Example

London Free Press

We can now look forward to more regular visits and not to once in a lifetime news item regarding the visit of Royalty which was our attitude in the past. This should provide a more mature approach to such occasions. Queen Elizabeth is also Queen of Canada, and we should come to regard her presence with much the same feeling that people in the United Kingdom do.

The city of Guelph has set a good precedent in this respect. It has cut down the number of functionaries to be presented to their sovereign to the bare minimum to enable more of the people of the city and the surrounding district to have the opportunity of seeing her. This relieves Her Majesty of a considerable burden, and at the same time contributes to the real effectiveness of her visit.

We would go well to remember that the purpose of the visit is to preside at the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway and to confer on Her Majesty and Prince Philip to see as much of Canada and the people as can be seen by as many Canadians as possible.

The visit is for the people, not merely for the top brass in the government and vicinity. It is the people's welcome that Her Majesty should remember.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

HOW DO WE CHECK UP?

"I'll be seeing you."

Of course, he will never see anyone. He has been blind now for forty years. I heard him say this to a clerk. This blind man is supposed one of the brightest men in our village. When he comes to a curb, there are always hands ready to help him across to the other side of the street. And he talks merrily to the people as they help him and thanks them when he gets to the other side.

Blind? Yes, physically so. Yet many a person with 20-20 vision does not have the sight and insight often possessed by many blind people. It was the blind man Matheson who wrote the hymn, "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go." Science and learning are full of inspiring biographies of men and women who could not see as you and I can and yet who saw more clearly and deeper than any of us will ever see with our eyes. Helen Keller is not only the great modern example of this inspiring reality in the whole of history.

How much, as actual reality, do you and I really see? How deep does our wisdom go? How lovingly can we look into the heart and see its needs?

"I'll be seeing you," said the blind man — or was he blind?

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

An old college chum of mine turned out to be an aristocrat, though of limited means. He was explaining one of the execrable bad manners of the motoring public.

"You see," he said, "the mass of mankind was never on wheels until the last two or three generations. Only people of means, the nobility and gentry, had the privilege of being carried. Mankind, you might say, had been pedestrian for thousands of years. And they don't know how to behave when they are suddenly borne portable. With their feet off the ground, they lose all sense of social responsibility. Consider the motor traffic today is that it suffers from delusions of grandeur. All kinds of red-necked peasants are carried away by their new sense of importance. . ."

I was driving him home, since he has no car. And I was able to point out to him a curious thing. The only rude drivers we encountered were old dilapidated jobs, only ones who chivvied us out of line, or rabbit-jumped us on the intersections, were occupied by higher priced cars, and consequently lordly bearing.

The only guy who stopped and waved us across a crowded crossing was a battered old jalopy driver who looked as if he had a lunch bucket on the floor at his feet.

"Sir," I said to my old college chum, "I think we've mobbed and gentry are as mean as ever."

NORTHWEST PASSAGE — A regular west-to-east shipping route across the Canadian Arctic may become a possibility. The federal government is investigating it.

Ships using the proposed route would sail from the open water in the western Arctic through Coronation Gulf and Dease Strait which separate Victoria Island from the Canadian mainland. They would then sail up through Victoria Strait and Fury and Hecla Strait and on into the Atlantic or down into Hudson Bay.

Transport Minister Hees told a meeting in Ottawa there is reason to believe that under certain conditions this long-dreamed-of Arctic route over the north of Canada could be used and that its use would facilitate economic development of the north.

The proposed route would be almost the same as that followed by the Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen in 1905. Later an RCMP officer, Supt. Henry A. Larsen, took the vessel St. Roch through the northwest passage in both directions. (CP Newsmap.)

Weddings

WILLIAMS — HAZZARD

Calvary Temple was the setting on Saturday, June 27th, at 2.00 p.m. for a very pretty wedding when the Rev. C. M. Hazzard, father of the bride, of Camden, New Jersey, U.S.A., united in marriage Shirley June Hazzard, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert A. Hazzard, of Belleville, and Lloyd Edward Williams, son of Mrs. J. Williams, Belleville. She was escorted by the Rev. Laurie Price and the Rev. Hope Smith.

The church was beautifully decorated with shades of blue delphiniums and white Shasta daisies. The guest pews were designated by white satin bows.

Mr. Mervin Saunders, organist, provided the wedding music and accompanied Mr. George H. Kilarby, (uncle of the bride) who sang, "O Perfect Love," before the ceremony, and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Wilbert A. Hazzard, the bride was charming in her floor-length bridal gown of chantilly lace over satin, fashioned with fitted bodice having a ruffled neckline outlined with pearl sequins and long sleeves, lily-pointed over the wrists. The full skirt of net at the back was enhanced with seven rows of net and chantilly lace with front panel of net and scalloped lace. Her shoulder length veil of French tulle illusion was held by a crown effect headdress studded with pearl sequins and she carried a cascade bouquet of red Sweetheart roses mingled with feathered carnation.

Miss Audrey Dulmage, of Belleville, as her maid of honor, and Miss Margaret Lott of Belleville as bridesmaid, wore waltz-length gowns. The former in blue organza over taffeta and the latetr in pink organza over taffeta with matching headdress accessories. They both carried bouquets of pink roses and baby white 'mums.

Miss Pamela Foster (niece of the bridegroom) acted as flower girl, demure and pretty in her floor length white organdy with blue rosebud headdress. She carried a basket of pink roses to match her gown.

Mr. Lyle Williams, (brother of the bridegroom) was groomsman while Messrs. Joseph Solenthaler and Ernest Foster, brother-in-law of the bridegroom were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride where the bride's mother received in a floor length blue embroidered sheath dress with white accessories and corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a blue printed dress and pink accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table was appointed with white lace over blue, a three-tiered, all-white wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom inside a white wedding bell beneath a heart-shaped arch of "love-of-the-valley."

For travelling, the bride wore a navy and navy embroidered sheath with matching duster, white accessories and corsage of red roses. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Williams will reside in Belleville.

McILWAINE — BATEMAN

BONARLAW — A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage on Thursday evening, June 11th when the Rev. H. A. Beare united in marriage, Shirley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Bateman, and Sam McIlwaine, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McIlwaine of Ballymena, Ireland. Only immediate relatives were present.

The bride was lovely in a white nylon dress printed with pale blue velva-ray flowers with matching jacket, wore a blue feathered hat, while accessories and a yellow corsage.

Mrs. Jack Spencer, Ryistone, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a green wool-lar in design to the bride's, printed with yellow velva-ray flowers. White accessories and a blue corsage completed the costume.

Mr. Jack Spencer, Ryistone, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served at Long's Hotel, Stirling.

The young couple will take up residence in Toronto.

RAY — SWAN

St. Andrew's Gilead United Church was the scene of a very pretty double-ring summer wedding on Saturday, June 13th, at high noon when Reverend R. J. McCrae officiated at his first marriage ceremony after ordination as he united in marriage, Mona Bernice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Swan of Corbyville and James Phillip Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Ray, R.R. 5 Belleville.

The church was tastefully decorated with bouquets of white and rose peonies and the altar banked with large ferns.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride looked charming, dressed in her floor-length gown of embroidered organza which featured a Sweetheart neckline, small sleeves and buttoned skirt. Her waist-length veil was held by a dainty crown displaying seed pearl and silver sequins and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and fern showered with narrow satin ribbons, with rosebuds enhancing the long white satin streamers.

The bride's attendants were her three sisters, Miss Beryl Swan, of Peterborough as maid of honor, gowned in an orchid chiffon, three-quarter length dress with ballerina skirt, with matching headdress and shoes and carrying a cascade of pink roses and white baby 'mums.

Miss Audrey Swan, as bridesmaid, wore a lime green chiffon ballerina length dress with matching headdress and shoes, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and 'mums.

Miss Blanche Swan, as junior bridesmaid, was attired in orchid chiffon matching the maid of honor's, with similar headdress and shoes.

Little Miss Gail Martin, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and attractively frocked in lime green taffeta with overlay of white organza, displaying a daintily rose-embroidered bodice with headdress and bouquet of pink roses to match.

Mr. Bruce Hunt of Belleville, acted as groomsman while Mr. Ralph Swan, brother of the bride, and Mr. Barry Parsons, cousin of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Before the ceremony, accordion music was rendered by Master Bruce Swan, brother of the bride, who also, accompanied the soloist, Mrs. J. McCrea as she sang "O Perfect Love" before the ceremony and "Happy Day" following the signing of the register. The Wedding March from Wagner's "Lohengrin" was used during the procession.

The reception dinner was held at Gilead United Church Hall where the tables were attractively arranged and decorated for the occasion. The members of the Gilead Grieshdip Guild catered for the tasty wedding banquet.

The guests were received at the reception hall by the bride's mother, dressed in a floral orchid gown of pure sheer with white accessories and corsage of white 'mums. Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother, attired in a pale blue sheath gown of shantung with waist-length jacket and hat to match, and corsage of pink roses.

Honored guests at the ceremony and reception were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Swan, aged grandparents of the bride and Mrs. C. Hick, and Mrs. James Ray, grandmother of the bridegroom; also Mrs. McCrea, Sr. of Ireland. Other guests were present from Peterborough, Lindsay, Ottawa, Kingston, Belleville, Foxboro and Plainfield.

For travelling the bride wore a sheath dress of floral blue with overlay of blue organza, white picture hat and accessories.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and best wishes for a motor honeymoon around the Great Lakes.

Since their return Mr. and Mrs. Ray are residing in Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower by the ladies' staff of Loblaw's at the home of Mrs. Ray Lapsley. Later at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Ivan Clare, Foxboro, with Miss B. Snider as the hostess.

The staff at Loblaw's, Pinnacle St., presented the bride with a beautiful silver satin bedspread.

A community shower was held at St. Greenary United Church on Friday evening in honor of the bride and bridegroom when they were presented with a rose colored Kroehler platform rocker and arm chair. They were also presented with a walnut coffee table, picture mirror and various gifts at a community shower at the bride's home later.

Ribbon Industry One of British Post-War Success Stories

LONDON (Reuters) — Ribbon is one of British industry's post-war success stories.

When the war ended the industry was virtually non - existant. While Britain and her Allies were concentrating all their energies on defence, ribbon — except for medal ribbons — became a luxury. Even to find a length suitable to renew a woman's watch band became a real feat.

Starting from scratch after the war, with new machinery and equipment, manufacturers now have not only caught up with all competitors but in some ways are leading them.

70 USES

Today the only embarrassment is one of choice.

There are ribbons wide and narrow, in pure silk, nylon and practically every man - made fibre. There are jacquard ribbons and ribbons woven with lurex, a popular non-tarnishable metallic thread. There are, in fact, ribbons to suit every taste and more than that.

Some of the latest ways of using ribbon were demonstrated at a fashion review recently in display of ribbons and their uses.

This showed ribbons used on such unlikely articles as table cloths and dwin's sports jackets. A man's play shirt was trimmed with ribbon. So were men's pyjamas.

RIBBON SKIRT

There were hats made entirely of ribbon and a dog's leash with matching collar and even a ribbon skirt, designed by one of London's leading fashion designers.

There were practical devonstrations of the use of ribbon in hair-dos and on an inexpensive blouse—making it "look different" from the other thousands like it.

Nor are the uses of ribbon confined to clothes and the home. Thousands and yards of it are used every year by packaging specialists.

And 1,000 miles of it go every year into Christmas and Other greeting cards.

The future of ribbon is particularly bright today in the largest trade. A new slotting machine that coming into use threads ribbon ribbon into the skirts or tops of petticoats, nighties or any other garment where it is required. This is a great stride forward not only towards full automation but also towards prettier-than-ever underwear.

Add a handful of mothballs to the last rinse when you launder blankets prior to storing them.

WMS Hears Discourse on 'Immigration'

MELROSE — The regular meeting of Melrose W. M. S. was held on July 2nd, at the home of Mrs. Grant McLaren, with seven present.

The president, Mrs. J. Milligan, was in the chair and conducted the worship service, the theme of which was "Discovering Neighborhood."

The Scripture reading, John 17: 1-11, 17-21, was read by Mrs. G. McLaren. Mrs. Milligan gave a short talk on the theme and an interesting discussion followed.

An anecdote re the Queen's visit was given by the president. A new Canadian said as religion holds people together, so the Queen binds all her subjects together.

The members engaged in prayer.

A short business meeting was held.

The treasurer reported that the sum of $157.80 had been raised in 1959. It was decided to donate a quilt to a family suffering from a disastrous fire.

The August meeting will be held at Melrose church. Serving for the bazaar was given out.

The group leader, Miss M. E. Bailey, took charge of the meeting. She said that the topic, "The Problem of Immigration," while being of more interest to the city dweller than to the rural, nevertheless affects rural residents also.

Mrs. Jack Ingliah read a poem, "Too Tired to Pray." Mrs. H. MacFarlane read one called "Living With Others," and Mrs. E. Empey an article on "New Canadians".

IMMIGRATION PROBLEM

Miss Bailey discussed the problem of immigration. She said in part that considerable opposition to it has been raised, but all realized that they were the descendants of immigrants, they might view the situation differently.

At present there are many political and religious agencies in welcome newcomers, but when my parents came to Manitoba, they received a cold welcome from the Canadians.

"To total immigration from the end of World War II up to September 1957 was 1,829,176. Many advantages come from a larger population and these new Canadians bring money as well as arts from their home lands.

"In order to accept and love these people we need to realize that we are all brothers and sisters, since God is Our Father and Christ our Elder-Brother, we must not be such slaves to tradi'on that we cannot accept new ideas. If we learned to work together in harmony we could build a Canada of which we would be proud."

In conclusion, she quoted part of James Russell Lowell's "Once in every generation."

The hostess served refreshments and a very pleasant social time was enjoyed by all.

Women's Institutes

MOIRA W. I.

The Moira W. I. held its meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Milton Vandewater with an attendance of eight members and several children.

The secretary-treasurer read some business was discussed and a report of the strawberry ice cream social held on June 25 given. A decoration is to be held Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, July the 26th, at the cemetery.

In the absence of the convener, the president, took charge of the program as follows: a reading was given by Mrs. W. Collins; "Before the Meeting," by Mrs. Milton Vandewater; "The Sick Doctor," by Mrs. John Farrell; "When Mother was the Doctor," by Linda Wait; "One Life," by Mrs. Clayton Vandewater.

After the meeting was closed, refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Jean Thompson.

ST. ALBANS, England (CP)—Hertfordshire county council has sent a 16-page booklet to all its school cleaners, including a paragraph on mopping floors. It says: "Proper application of polish begins with a clean floor," and adds: "Polish can be applied with a mop or soft cloth."

Gift of Money Presented to Pastor, Wife

FRANKFORD—At the closing of the Frankford United Church recent Bible and prayer meeting, a goodly attendance retired to the Rose Lowery Hall where a decorated rose basket, containing a gift of money, was presented to the Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Riddall, for which both graciously responded. "God be With You 'Til We Meet Again" was sung.

The ladies served dainty refreshments.

Blinkers On

By TRACY ADRIAN

Here is an entirely new type of sun glasses, called "Blinkers". They were designed by Alice Richardson, a gal who knows all about sunshine.

Made of acetate sheeting, the glasses are attached to a plastic headband with swivels so that they can be worn as pictured or pushed back on the forehead to form a visor. Perfect protection against both wind and glare, they are ideal for fishing trips as well as shore fun.

Barbecuer's Delight

by Mary Moore

The statistics claim 150,000 Canadians are travelling ... to Europe this year.

From our readers I have first-hand news that swarms of others are going to be travelling to North, West, East or South by car and many of them with camping equipment and supplies.

Then there are the stay-at-homes who have their summer recreation in their own back gardens over a simple or elaborate barbecue.

Today's little offering is for travellers from side door to the bottom of the garden, who still have a little gypsy blood in their veins but not enough to leave home territory.

BEEF KEBABS:

¾ cup each vinegar and water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 3 firm tomatoes, cut into ¾'s or 1-4's depending on size, 6 slices bacon cut into thirds, 2 bay leaves, plus 54 whole black pepper berries, 1½ lbs. top round or sirloin, cut into 1-inch cubes, 18 small mushrooms.

Combine water, vinegar, bay leaves, whole peppers, salt and sugar and bring to a boil; then simmer for 5 minutes. Cool and pour over beef in large bowl. Marinate (soak) for 24 hours. Drain, reserving marinade. Arrange meat, tomato wedges, mushrooms and bacon slices alternately on 6 long skewers.

Dinner Menus

MONDAY

Broiled Chicken Livers on Noodles; Shredded New Beets in Orange Sauce; Tomato Salad on Garden Lettuce with Homemade Mayonnaise; Stewed Rhubarb with Ground Dates or Orange; Molasses Cookies (see Saturday, July 4th); Coffee.

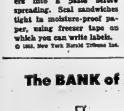
Broil 15 minutes 3-to 4-inches from heat. Turn frequently basting with reserve marinade.

CHICK-N-CUE:

(Barbecued Chicken with an Orange sauce for Sunking). 3 broiler-fryer chickens, halved or quartered, ¼ cup oil, 1 teaspoon MSG, salt and pepper.

Sprinkle each piece of chicken with MSG, salt and pepper because as follows: Place chicken pieces, skin side up, on foil covered grate, set 6 to 12-inches from heat. Brush chicken with oil. Allow 1 to 1½ hours total cooking time, cooking slowly and turning and basting occasionally. To test for doneness, leg should twist easily out of thigh joint, and pieces should be fork tender.

ORANGE DUNKING SAUCE:



1 cup orange marmalade, ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon Tabasco sauce, 1-3 cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons molasses, 1 teaspoon curry powder, ¼ teaspoon ginger.

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Place over medium heat, bring to a boil. Turn heat down and simmer for 2 minutes, stirring constantly, until marmalade is melted and all ingredients are melted.

NOTE:

When serving and eating this finger-food you will need a good supply of heavy paper napkins or a small woolly dog to pass among you as Alexander Woollcot once suggested.

Mother's Helper

SAVE yourself time by freezing a good supply of sandwiches for picnic lunches and picnics. That perennial child-favorite, peanut butter and jelly, can be successfully frozen if you mix the two fillers into a paste before spreading. Seal sandwiches tight in moisture-proof paper, using freezer tape on which you can write labels.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

SPECIAL THANKS FOR SPECIAL HOSPITALITY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Six months ago my husband's brother, who lived in Florida, passed away suddenly. My husband and I flew there for the funeral. My husband's two sisters had arrived there ahead of us. Because of insufficient sleeping accommodations, my husband and I slept for the three nights we were there at a neighbor's home next door, of course taking our meals in nearby restaurants.

When we were leaving we did not have the opportunity to thank this couple personally, because they had both left for their places of business. So I left a nice thank-you note, and, since they had told us that they were planning to make a trip to our city this summer, we invited them to visit with us during their stay here. Our plan was to take them to various places of interest, in return for their hospitality.

Last evening my sister-in-law (she lives here) told my husband and me that my sister-in-law in Florida had written her that her neighbors with whom we had stayed had started on their vacation as planned, to our city. I replied I was looking forward to entertaining them, whereupon she said, "Oh, by proper, you should have sent them a thank-you note when you arrived home." I explained to her we had left a thank-you note when we were leaving. However, she insisted that another thank-you note should have been sent when we arrived home. Please tell me who is right about this.

— Reader

I certainly agree with what I am sure is your sister-in-law's point of view: that your expression of appreciation for the exceptionally kind and generous hospitality given you by the next-door neighbors was inadequate, far too casual. For such neighborly hospitality it would, I should think, be natural to make some immediate follow-up gesture . . . a letter assuring them again of your and your husband's deep appreciation of such thoughtful hospitality, and enthusiastically repeating your invitation to them. It would of course have been a very good idea to have sent this couple a well-chosen present as a suitable token of your gratitude. The fact that there has been this long silence, and that they didn't get in touch with you directly about coming, seems to be to bear out your sister-in-law's point of view.

GIRL SHOULD WRITE "SENTIMENTAL" MESSAGE ON PHOTOGRAPH?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have promised to give one of my graduation photographs to a fellow, and he has asked me to sign it "sentimentally." I have given out on quite a few dates with this fellow, I like him very much, but I'm not serious about him. Would you please suggest what would be correct for me to write on the photograph?

— Janet

Please, Janet, don't be persuaded to write a "sentimental" message on your photograph . . . this wouldn't be good taste or better-balanced procession.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and one writer. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Margaret J. — My husband is a boor.

Gerald J. — She makes me feel as though I'm in a schoolroom.

* * *

Margaret J. — My husband and I have been married for eight months and I am beginning to wonder whether our marriage will last out the year.

The problem is that my husband is a boor and I am losing all my old friends because of this. Most of my friends are well educated and refined. My husband is not. He picks his mouth off on subjects about which he knows nothing. I try to apologize and cover up for him, but it does no good.

* * *

Gerald J. — Ever since we've been married I have been feeling as if I'm in a schoolroom. If my wife isn't correcting my English it's my table manners or the way I'm sitting or standing. She is killing all the love I had for her.

It's true I haven't had as much education as Maggie and her friends, but that doesn't mean I haven't a right to a few opinions of my own. If I wanted to please my wife I'd just have to go and stand in a corner.

The Council: Was this marriage forced upon Margaret?

She is a free citizen in a free country and we assume she knew Gerald before she married — good sense. And it wouldn't be nice, because you'll have to take a chance that your photograph will be shown and the message commented on (and how!). If you feel you must write something on the photograph (of course it isn't at all necessary), my suggestion is that you write only the names: "To Bob, from Janet" or "Greetings to Bob, from Janet."

BRIDESMAIDS TO WALK SINGLY OR IN PAIRS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In our wedding party will be three bridesmaids, one junior bridesmaid, and a matron of honor. What is the correct order for the processional? Would you advise that the two bridesmaids walk together or separately? — Edith

The Processional: two ushers, walking together, followed by the one usher (perhaps the tallest); next, the junior bridesmaid, alone; next, the two bridesmaids, together; then the matron of honor, alone; and last, you and your father or whoever is to escort you up the aisle.

I certainly would suggest that the two bridesmaids walk together, alone, there are several in the Processional who must walk alone — the junior bridesmaid, the matron of honor). This plan would make a better-balanced procession.

Walking Suit

By VERA WINSTON

The Empire look is expertly achieved in this walking suit prepared to decorate the spring scene. The fabric is striped, corded rayon and cotton in beige tones. The self belt in front extends from the wide, triangular, set-in piece from the under-arm seams. Back is semi-fitted. Skirt is straight. The suit is one that lends itself nicely to many an occasion or change.

well. For this alone she should be willing to "forsake all others" and adhere to the man who has shown her far more loyalty and respect than her "friends."

The second possibility is the more likely one. Well, what has happened to change things? Why does Margaret not seem to feel that Gerald's defects outweigh his good qualities?

We suspect that Margaret lacks self-esteem, that she is the kind of person who cannot fully love another because she is looking for some sort of glory for herself. She enjoyed Gerald's admiration — until she began to feel it cost her the admiration of others, even if only slightly. In that case, there are only two possible explanations for the marriage: She wanted a wedding ring so badly that she was willing to overlook everything else; 2) She saw good qualities in him, qualities which outweighed his defects.

If the first possibility is the truth of the story, Margaret at least owes Gerald a debt of gratitude. He gave her the wedding ring, and apparently his love as so she has turned against her husband in cruelty and anger.

Most individuals like to improve themselves if they are approached tactfully and intelligently by a person with whom they have a loving relationship. If Margaret showed her love for the husband and encouraged him to improve his manners in a gentle and affectionate way, we think it more than likely she would have some success. Nagging doesn't do it. Praise for effort often does.

It is very possible that Margaret's friends are now more embarrassed by her discomfort and her criticism of her husband that they are by his "boorishness". She ought to give her own mannery a second thought.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Harvey J. McFarland, it is reported, will take over the Macs, pending player arrangements. There has been no official release.

If the story is confirmed, fans hereabouts will be delighted, but both they and the management may have something to worry about.

The big question is "Will the Macs have a league to play in?"

This question pins a lot of others will be answered at the Eastern Ontario senior "A" League meeting here tomorrow night. It could be the swan-song meeting of the three-year-old circuit.

It is recalled that Sammy Pollock of Ottawa-Hull and Wren Blair of Whitby stated emphatically at the last loop meeting they would not enter teams unless the league was a five-team circuit. In fact Pollock withdrew his club pending the formation of such a league.

Since that time mysterious happenings have been going on—all under the table.

Blair blasted the Kingston club for non-payment of pool dues at the Whitby meeting. Later he made a public announcement asking that an official probe be made of the Kingston records. Still later he more or less apologized for his actions. But the damage was done.

A short time ago at a meeting of the tottering Quebec professional league, it was revealed that Ontario clubs like Kingston and Cornwall, and the Ottawa Canadiens had contacted the league for possible entry next season. Cornwall was not considering because of lack of arena facilities.

Later, an obscure radio announcer in Sudbury released a story to the Canadian Press that a new professional hockey was in the making. Teams considered were the remainder of the Quebec League, Sudbury, Ottawa-Hull and Kingston.

Why was the story released in Sudbury and not the probable point of origin, Ottawa-Hull? It is a known fact that Pollock has been flirting with the Northern OHA for possible entry. The northern loop in turn, fighting for survival, has emulated the western OHA and considering bringing in senior "B" clubs to round out its district league rosters.

The mythical, as yet, pro league nearly caused the huge crystal ball of Sudbury's sportswriting swami Paul Patton to explode with its fantastic pictures. It expected the various clubs would draw 6,000 different points. It stated that the Wolves won't change prices for pro hockey and that probably—Gerry McNeil would be in a Wolves uniform. It exposed the fine hand of Pollock when it said, or showed, Sudbury was offered a choice of three coaches by the Montreal Canadiens.

He wrote "Yet out-of-town calls give reasonable assurance that Kingston has been offered some kind of a working agreement with Canadiens and Black Hawks that would enable this city to join the pro league.

And yet this "Sam Pollock is supposed to be the person who has made the initial contact."

Scottie on, Scottie Vip Bradley will be attending the July 7 meeting in Belleville but only with instructions 'to listen to what the other teams say".

A reasonable assumption Scottie believes, is that the Eastern senior is finished. Wren Blair could have explained the Kingston pool fiasco better as a means of bowing out gracefully and joining the western loop. Cornwall must be finished. Ray Miron's 'Les Verns' night was expected to replenish the cotters. A quick count of coins quashed that hope."

Is Pollock trying to keep the flickering flame of life alive in the dying Quebec professional hockey scene by including Ontario teams in a new pro league and fortifying the eastern senior league?

This and a lot of other questions will be answered tomorrow night.

Knowing Mayor McFarlane as we do, it will take a lot more than under-the-table machinations to keep him and his McFarlands out of hockey. The strong-willed mayor of Picton could very well toss a monkey-wrench into that sub-rosa machinery by demanding entry as a professional club.

HE'D APPRECIATE IT

Herbie (The Ole Clucker) Henn is in the Kingston General Hospital and feeling a bit lonely. Herbie would greatly appreciate it if some of his old softball, and other friends would drop in and see him. He would cheer him up immensely. Keep your chin up, Chick. all the boys are pulling for you.

WELLAND (CP) — Welland-Crowland Switzons defeated Peterborough Mercurys 11-10 Saturday in an Intermediate Lacrosse Association senior game.

Switzons' win gives them a former grip on second place, though still far behind the leading Mercurs.

It was a tough, rugged contest with 22 penalties handed out, 13 for roughing and five for fighting and high sticking.

Ted Howe and Ron Roy each scored three Welland goals while Sip Teal managed two. Dave Hall, Ross Powless and Mike Dabrowski all registered singles.

For the Mercs, Bob Curtis and Bob Allan scored two each with Ron Baker, Lou Nickle, Larry Ferguson, Paul Parnell, Steve Merrigay and Roy Woods notching one apiece.

Berlin—Gustav (Bubi) Schob, 153¼, West Berlin, outpointed Hans — Werner Wolters, 158½, Hamburg, 15 (for European middleweight title).

Havana—Puppy Garcia, 129½, Cuba, outpointed Hilton Smith, 128½, Miami, 10.

Havana—Paul Diaz, 156, Cuba, outpointed Jimmy Beechman, 153¾, Miami, 10.

Indians Take 3 From Tigers To Build Two-Game Margin; Giants' Top Glory Was Brief

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Before the San Francisco Giants could figure the odds on moving from first place on July 4 to the pennant, they were in second place.

They aren't second by much (.005), but Milwaukee Braves definitely are back in the National League lead going into the pause for Tuesday's all - star game at Pittsburgh. The Braves, dropped to second by Philadelphia Saturday night, regained the lead by beating the Phillies 5-0 behind Carl Willey's four - hitter Sunday.

The Giants slipped by splitting a pair of 4-2 decisions at St. Louis. They lost the opener when ex-mate Bill White hit a grand-slam homer in support of a six-hit pitching job by Ernie Broglio, former San Francisco farm hand. The ex-Card beat Sam Jones won the second game with relief help.

DODGERS CLOSE IN

Los Angeles closed within a half-game of first by sweeping Chicago Cubs 4-3 and 5-3. Pittsburgh took two from Cincinnati, 15 and 12 to 11 innings.

Saturday's Los Angeles victory over Milwaukee was a 21 - inning marathon that finally ended in eight-hitter. San Francisco swamped the Cardinals 10-3. In other Saturday games the Dodgers whipped the Cubs 5-2 in the second of a doubleheader after dropping the opener 2-1, and Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati 4-3.

A two-run first-inning single by Joe Adcock and a pair of runs batted in by Ed Mathews got the job done for the Braves Sunday. Richie Ashburn, first half of the Phillies' hits and doubled for their only extra-base hit in the victory (4-2), who walked three. Gene Conley (6-5) gave up 13 hits for the loss.

FIRST IN MAJORS

White walloped his first major league slam in the fifth inning of the opener at St. Louis against loser Jack Sanford (7-7). Broglio (5-3) struck out six.

Jones (10-8) gave up only six hits in the second game, but walked just as many. Willie Mays hit his 14th homer, good for two runs, in the Giants' only big-hit (4-3).

A tumbling catch by Wally Moon, with two on and two out in the eighth, and Danny McDevitt's ninth - inning relief over the last four frames saved the opener for Dodgers as Roger Craig (3-0). Moon singled home the winning run after Charlie Neal and Jim Gilliam had homered off loser John Buzhardt (4-4).

A three-run sixth against losing reliefer Glen Hobbie (9-7) wrapped up the second game for Los Angeles. Clem Labine (7-7) was the winner, in relief.

RELIEF HELPS BUTTOUT

Ron Kline (7-6) had a three-hit shutout until Gus Bell's two-run homer in the ninth gave the Reds a tie in the second game. A double by Danny Kravitz, ex-Detroit, sold out and Bill Mazeroski's third single then made Kline a winner with a five-hitter.

Don Roak's bases-empty home run, his eighth, triggered a three-run sixth inning against losing reliefer Hooks Iaconello (4-3) that gave the opener to the Pirates. Harvey Haddix gave up home runs to Frank Robinson, who drove in three runs, and Pete Whisenant, but squared his record at 6-6 with Roy Face's eighth save in the ninth inning.

Retains Heavy Lift Title

TRANSCONA, Man. (CP)—Bill Swaluk, 21-year-old airman from St. Hubert, Que., S a r d i s equalled a Canadian record as he retained his Canadian heavyweight weightlifting title.

Swaluk, whose family lives in Fort William, bolsted 370 pounds in the clean and jerk to equal the mark set by Doug Hepburn of Vancouver.

His over-all total of 930 pounds lifted in this event, the body press and body snatch was 30 pounds over the Pan-American Games qualifying standard set by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

Swaluk, a 235-pounder, was the only one of seven entries in the Canadian championships to exceed the qualifying mark in his class.

However, he and Joe Stockinger of Medicine Hat and Marshall Quelch of Transcona have been recommended to the PAG selection committee as Canadian representatives at the Games, to be held in Chicago in August.

Swaluk was the only entry from Eastern Canada.

Cleveland Indians breeze into the all-star game break with a two-game lead in the American League race.

With three days of rest ahead, manager Joe Gordon used Herb Score and Gary Bell, a pair of starting pitchers, in relief Sunday and it paid off with a 5-4, 10-inning victory at Detroit.

That gave Cleveland a four-game winning string and a two-game lead over Chicago's White Sox, who beat Kansas City 4-3 in 10 innings. New York Yankees were beaten 4-0 by Washington, Scantors, backing Camilo Pascual's four-hitt, 10-strikeout pitching with three home runs, moved within two games of fifth place Detroit and a 1½ lime of third-place Yankees.

FIND LOSING STREAK

Last - place Boston broke the seven-game losing streak by Baltimore twice, 9-0 and 6-3, dropping third place Orioles 4½ games behind.

Highlight of Saturday was Bob Turley's 11th victory of the year, Yankee career, as Yanks won 7-0 over Washington after completing the first game of a doubleheader 10-4. Turley p e r m i t t e d only three hits in the nightcap, Bobby Shantz, Julio Becquer's bloop single left in the ninth deprived him of a no-hitter.

Elsewhere Saturday, Cleveland swept Detroit in a doubleheader, 5-4 and 4-3, White Sox split with Kansas City, winning 4-3 and losing 8-3, Baltimore belted Boston 11-5.

At Detroit Sunday Indians tied 4-4 in the eighth and won it in the 10th on George Strickland's single over the head of Detroit Second baseman Reno Bertoia.

SECOND STRAIGHT WIN

Bell squared his record at 8-6 with his second relief victory in as many days. It was Strickland's fourth straight loss. Score reliever starter Mike Garcia in the seventh, Tom Morgan (1-3) was the loser.

Sox' Aparicio and Nellie Fox, who combined for five of White Sox' seven hits, each singled for the winning run in the 10th. Jim Smith's solo homer had tied it in the ninth against starter Bud Daley (6-8) who was four-for-four, including a home run, and drove in two Kansas City runs. Early Billy Hoeft (4-4) was also homered for White Sox. Turk Lown (6-6) was the winner.

Harmon Killebrew, one game ahead of Babe Ruth's record-60 home run target, hit his 30th home run and drove in three runs for Senators' sixth win in their last eight games. Roy Sievers and Jim Lemon also had homers. Camilo Pascual (7-6) struck out nine. Duke Maas (6-5) was the loser.

Sam White drove in five runs for Red Sox in the opener as Tom Brewer (6-5) shaded the Detroit on three singles.

Jackie Jensen, who hit his 18th home run off loser Hector Brown (5-4) in the opener, had four singles and drove in two runs in the nightcap as Hoyt Wilhelm (5-4) lost his relief job to Ray Narleski (3-1) when Frank Baumann (3-1) was the second-game winner, giving way to Dick Donovan in the 8th. Gus Triandos hit his 20th home run, a two-run shot in the seventh, for Orioles.

Leafs Split With Royals; Bisons Drop 2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons, with three games under their belts in International League lead of three days ago, are the latest to join the ranks of "believers" about Rochester Red Wings' pitching staff.

The Bisons, who now lead Rochester by only ½ game, found out that the Wings can get effective hurling from ace Cal Browning or a second-liner such as Howie Nunn. And when the occasion warrants, the bullpen is agile.

The Wings took an International League doubleheader from Buffalo Sunday, Nunn took a 9-4 first-game victory and Browning won the nightcap 7-6.

SHORT WINS 11th

Nunn didn't become the league's first 11-game winner by beating Havana Sugar Kings 5-0 on two hits in the opener of a Sunday doubleheader. The Cubans took the nightcap 4-3.

Montreal Royals and Toronto Maple Leafs also split, with Toronto taking the opener 4-3 before tolling 10-2. Columbus Jets and Miami Marlins also split, with when rain washed out proceedings after five innings.

On Saturday Montreal beat Columbus 8-7 and 4-3, Toronto took two, one from Buffalo 7-6 and 4-3, Rochester defeated Montreal 2-1 and then lost 5-4 in the second game and Miami shut out Richmond 2-0 and 8-0.

HERRERA'S 23rd

The Bisons got only six hits off Nunn, one Frank Herrera's 23rd homer with two on. The Rochester shutdown specialist left with one out in the ninth when Bisons' Bob Boyer and Mike Baxes homered off loser Don Rudolph (1-4).

Jim Roacher (4-1) scattered nine Richmond hits in the nightcap, blanking Atlanta Crackers. Jack Reed's double and Bobby Deakin's single in the fifth broke his scoreless string.

Ron Negray of Toronto won his fifth against two losses with batting help from Bobby Wilson, who had a single, double and home run. Tom Lasorda (9-5) was the loser. Montreal sent 11 men to the plate in an eight-run sixth inning to give Rene Valdes his first second-game victory. Mike Goliat's two - run homer highlighted the bombardment. Don Johnson (4-10) lost.

Pirates Win When Umpire Changes Mind

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A disputed play in which the umpire reversed his decision gave Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory they needed Saturday to edge Cincinnati Reds 4-3.

The play came in the fifth when the Pirates scored two runs to break a 2-2 deadlock.

Joe Nuxhall, Cincinnati starter, and Bill Virdon got on base in the inning. Dick Groat blasted a ball drop to centre field for a scoring. Winton. Groat tried to score himself and was thrown out by plate umpire Vic Delmore.

Groat went wild and the Pirate bench poured on to the field, claiming catcher Ed Bailey had dropped Johnny Temple's relay throw. After a conference with his fellow umpires, Delmore reversed his decision and allowed the run to score. Groat was credited with a triple and Bailey with an error.

Harvard Crews Mark July 4 With Sweeping Henley Wins

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

HENLEY-on - THAMES, Eng. (AP) — Harvard's heavyweight and lightweight crews celebrated American Independence Day by sweeping the Grand Challenge and Thames Challenge cups at the Royal Henley Regatta Saturday.

It was the first time in the 120-year history of this Thames regatta that one American school captured the two prized trophies for eight-oared crews.

Harvard shared honors with Stuart Mackenzie, strapping Australian lightweight, who won the four, 200-pound Aussie won the Diamond Sculls for the third straight time by beating Philadelphian Harry Parker by six lengths. He also teamed with Victorian Bob Cowdery to win the double sculls.

The Harvard heavyweights rowed at a lower beat than the rival Thames Rowing club and won by 2¾ lengths in six minutes, 37 seconds for the mile and 550-yard journey against the current.

SAME MARGIN

The lightweights also underscored the Thames University eight and won too by 2¾ lengths. They were timed in 7:12, Earlier the Cambridge (Mass.) 155-pounders beat the heavier Union Boat Club of Boston by 1 1-3 lengths in 7:15 in the semi-final. London was two seconds behind in eliminating Jesus College of Cambridge by one - third of a length.

It was the second year in a row that Harvard lightweights annexed the Thames Cup. Harvard won the Grand Challenge Cup for the first time in 1939 succeeding the Russian Trud club of Leningrad as champions. The Russians did not defend the title.

Celeri Prefers Playing With Tiger-Cats

MONTREAL (CP) — Gorman Celeri, outstanding lineman of Montreal Alouettes, says Bob Celeri, quarterback with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, is "definitely included" in the Big Four club's agreement with the Dutchmen.

Celeri said Saturday he is "very much interested" in playing for Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Big Four and said he was not included in the Als' farm system along with the rest of the Dutchmen.

"Mr. Celeri should consult the directors of the Kitchener-Waterloo Club and read the agreement," Kennedy said when told of the veteran quarterback's opinion. "He'll find it is very definitely included."

Jake Gadaur, Hamilton product, said Saturday his wife would very much like to have him on our team. He is not only a good quarterback but a tremendous defensive player."

Cobourg Ties Bobcats for First With 6-3 Victory Over Trenton

The Cobourg Merchants formed a tie with Bellevilles for first place in the Belleville and District softball league Saturday night by handing the tail-end Garretts a 6-3 defeat in Cobourg.

The Merchants and Bellevilles entered the game with identical records of seven wins and three setbacks to lead the four-team league. Point Anne was seven and five mark while Trenton has won two and lost six.

Cobourg lost no time Saturday night as they plated three runs in the initial frame. Trenton got one back in the fourth and scored their final pair in the seventh. Cobourg bagged a singleton in the sixth and added their two insurance tallies in the bottom of the seventh. It was the Merchants fifth win over Trenton in as many games this season.

Rolly Campbell, stealing home from second on "Sleepy" Dave's hook, put on a one-man show for the Cobourg fans. He pitched the distance and allowed just four hits while fanning four and walking three.

Ted Tebbell was the big gun at the Cobourg plate, connecting for a three-run homer in the first inning and adding a pair of singles later for a three-for-four performance. A walk and McIlpoe's single set the stage for his first-frame circuit blast.

Rex McCahan also honored for two runs in the seventh after Campbell's third single. In the six-at-bat game, Scotty McPherson had a double and single while Al Cooney also doubled. Jim Hart, Clarke Harnden and Lee O'Brien also hit safely.

Trenton got by Campbell for three of their four hits in the fourth. Roger Drake, Leroy Wannamaker and Billy Mills singled in that order to score one run. Then after Garrett safety was a single by Gord Maroney in the ninth. Two walks, a hit batter and an error gave them two runs in the seventh.

Gord Maroney batted for Trenton, tagged for 11 hits. He whiffed four and passed but one batter.

Crowd Enjoys Driving Club Opening Meet

Favored with fine weather conditions and an excellent track, the inaugural meet of the new Quinte Driving and Riding Club on old Exhibition Park, officials in a satisfied state of mind.

While 400 paid admissions to the Fair Grounds, the high calibre of racing officials felt augured well for the success of the club meets The next is scheduled for Sept. 4.

An unfortunate accident occurred in the 2.28 class when Midnight Classy owned and driven by Morley Fleet of Belleville, broke a leg and had to be shot.

Eighteen horses from Belleville, Campbellford, Kingston, Cobourg, Brighton, Napanee, Tweed, Peterborough and Oshawa raced in the two-heat three classes.

Seven Belleville horses were entered and made a fine showing. Their owners showed a fine spirit of co-operation with their new club by donating their purses to the organization.

The highlight of the meet, two heats that had the "grandstand" on its feet throughout, was the near-sensational battle between Belleville's "Betty Abigail" owned by club president Jack Jeffrey and driven by Lee Mac and Ginger McElwyn Mac" owned and driven by Irvin Mace also of this city in the 2.25 class.

"Betty Abigail" won the first heat, but the horses driving neck-and-neck in a down-the-stretch thriller went under the wire in a dead heat in the second. The time was 215.

"Mr. Grif" owned by Mrs. Georgo Dolly and driven by her husband won the 2.35 in two straight heats. "Gus Scott" owned by Harold Hooey finished second.

B. Samons of Cobourg driving his own "Sunday Have Gratias" swept the 2.28 class in two straight heats from an eight-horse field.

"John De Kuyper", owned and driven by Belleville's John and Ken Weeks, finished second with Jack Jeffrey driving his "J.M.J." third position. It was in the second heat of this race that "Mighty Classy" broke a leg.

Contributing to the success of the meet, was the brand-new starting gate owned by Cameron Bunnett. Mr. Bunnett will operate the gate at various district meets and practically all county fair races.

Blanket "coolers" were donated to various award winners by the Ethlick Horse Transport, Toronto, Jack Bush, Barney Parson, Steve Garvin and the Labatts Breweries.

It was announced that efforts will be made to have betting arrangements available at the July 18 meet.

Prince's Yacht Beaten in Montreal Race

MONTREAL (CP)—Joanna II, skipped by Jerry Letournea, of Point Claire, Que., won the John Foster Dulles Cup for yacht-racing Tuesday, beating the Duke of Edinburgh's Bluebottle and three former winners of the cup.

In the three heats of the Octagon-class competition, Joanna II finished fifth, first and third to pile up 9½ points.

Bluebottle, skippered by Lieut.-Surgeon Ross Coles, finished eighth, fifth and fourth as she was second, fifth and 14th.

Galebird, who won the cup in 1952 and 1957, was third, following Notre Dame II, with 62½ points.

Birds' Finigan Sent to Coast

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles Sunday optioned Jim Finigan to Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League on 24-hour recall.

Finigan was obtained by the Orioles after he divided his 1958 playing time between San Francisco Giants of the National League and Phoenix of the PCL.

The 30-year-old veteran, who began his big league career in 1954, got off a fast start with the Orioles but tailed off to .232 with 30 hits in 129 times at bat.

Red Kelly Signs New Life Contract

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

A quiet tip to Connie Smythe and Jimmie Ian and the rest of the National Hockey League brass in general.

Never let it be said that "Jolly Jawn" Adams, top man of the Detroit Red Wings, won't deal one or any of his red - sweatered puck stars.

In fact on Saturday morning he give away a half - interest in one of the best defencemen ever to wear a National League sweater.

The contract was signed while Detroit sportswriters and casters, all but one, were meeting morning deadlines, blissfully unaware of what was transpiring.

The "deal" took place in an off-the-beaten-path edition of Detroit's Hotel Fort Shelby at a dozen witnesses.

"Jolly Jawn" radiated happiness when he turned over a "half-share" of flame - topped Leonard "Red" Kelly to pretty Andra McLaughlin, well-known American figure skating star. The Rev. Father Moran saw to it that the contract was legal and binding.

And in case his Catholic Browns, Patricks, Selkes and Ivans are worrying, the Simcoe - born parsley-top will continue to do his puckchasing with the Red Wings.

The rest of his time will be devoted to the life-long happiness of the near Mrs. Kelly.

The wedding took place in St. Brigid's Roman Catholic church in Detroit, and climaxed a lengthy courtship between the pair and his beautiful, fire-striking bride.

The nuptials were kept as secret as a meeting of Western private eyes in Moscow.

Only a few immediate guests and a closest friend or two knew about it.

Larry Eggert, of Detroit, Fisella and Rossmore, tipped the reporter at his weddings pointed Rossmore cottage on Saturday.

"I've sworn not to reveal anything until after the ceremony," Larry hinted. "That took place at nine this morning. It is now eleven so the ram is yours. You're the first newspaperman to know about it."

An hour later "Jolly Jack" Adams from Detroit with all the particulars — well — the most of 'em. He had everything except what the ladies wore, in detail that is.

The bridegroom struck a July 4 patriotic note. "Red" wore blue with white accessories. Probably to celebrate his last "Independence Day". Mr. Kelly's bride's frame was sheathed in darker blue with matching doodads. The bride looked lovely in sheer white.

"Bud" Lynch, Detroit sportscaster, and Mrs. Lynch attended the bride and bridegroom. Wings' coach Sid Abel and Mrs. Abel were witnesses were "Letty" and Johnny Wilson, and Marty Pavelich and their wives.

"Red's" father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Kelly of Simcoe were there. So were the three sisters, Laureen, Frances and Helen and their husbands.

Mr. Adams, in generous mood, not only relinquished a half-interest in his star, he also gave the bride away.

There will be no need from here in for Adams, Abel or any of the Wings to yodel "Who's anybody Bruce Kenlyn?" if the redhead should turn up missing. They'll know where to find him.

Ingemar Gets Warm Welcome In Goteborg

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)— Ingemar Johansson Saturday night received a roaring welcome as he returned home with the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

The handsome, 26-year - old fighter, Sweden's first world boxing champion, radioed reports that he would become an American citizen.

"I like it best at home. That's why I am here now."

Johansson said he has received many offers but had turned most of them down. One he rejected was an American old of $250,000 for the film rights to his life.

He said he expected to give Floyd Patterson a return bout, probably in September, and that he planned to fight three or four more years and maybe 10.

ARCARO READY AGAIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Eddie Arcaro was given the green light to resume riding by his physician Saturday but he is not expected to be back in the saddle until the Jamaica meeting opens July 15.

Arcaro suffered a concussion, sprains and bruises when his mount, Black Jet, fell during the running of the Belmont Stakes June 13.

USED CAR FACTS

By Ken Pinder

The wheel alignment of a car gives a good indication of its past history. A slightly bent spring or axle, or bent frame make the wheels deviate in faulty wheel alignment and unsafely mean that at sometime the car has been in a fairly serious accident.

To check for this condition, make certain that the tires are evenly inflated, and drive slowly on a smooth, uncrowned road. A strong "pull" to either side may mean misalignment. As a further check, have someone watch from behind as you drive away to see if the rear wheels follow the track of the front ones.

When you want genuine value in a used car it's where you buy that counts. Bargain prices and terrific "deals" don't always mean a good investment. At KEN PINDER LTD., 149 Front St., you're always sure of getting more car for your money. Dial WO 8-3406.

Miss Supertest Wins Race At Detroit

DETROIT (CP) — A wall of water helped Canada's Miss Supertest III win the Detroit Memorial Regatta for unlimited hydroplanes Saturday on the Detroit River.

Driven by James G. Thompson of London, Ont., and driven by Bob Hayward of Embro, Ont., Miss Supertest III led five of the six boats in the fifth and final heat across the starting line before the gun and left Jack Regas and Seattle-based Miss Bardahl on the only boat with an official start.

Regas pushed Miss Bardahl up with the pack but was washed out on a turn as he fought with Bill Sioux of Reno, Nev., in Maverick, and Don Dunnington of Washington, D.C., in Nitrogen.

Miss Bardahl captured the second elimination heat with the help of a record - setting 114.6 mile an hour lap as she edged Detroit-based Gale V and Maverick. Her winning time was 39.22. She also took the fourth elimination heat, beating Miss Supertest by a quarter mile with the fastest heat speed of the day, 101.161. This topped Miss Bardahl's mark of 100.641 in the third heat.

The 39-mile wind took a toll of the 12 starters. Miss U.S. owned by George Simons of Detroit, sank in the first 15-mile heat when her supercharger broke loose and tore a hole in the bottom of the $30,000 racer.

Miss Buffalo, a syndicate - owned boat making her debut, caught fire after her supercharger blew up in a rough qualifying run.

Miss Detroit finished second in the final standings based on points earned in three of the five heats. Maverick was third and Miss Bardahl fourth.

Tiger Veterans Back in Lair

BAMILTON (CP)—Milt Campbell, holder of the world record for the decathlon, and Pete Newman, four-time defensive end on the Eastern Canada all - star team will be back with Hamilton Tiger-Cats for the 1959 season, the Big Four football club announced Sunday.

Campbell, 6 - foot - three tall back, joined Ticats last season after playing for Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

Neumann, rated one of the best defensive ends in Canada, came to Ticats in 1951 directly from high school in St. Catharines.

Dew Finsterwald Will Meet in Flint Playoff

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Dow Finsterwald and Art Wall Jr., waged a head-to-head duel today over $9,000 and first money in a Flint open golf championship.

The 18-hole battle was set for 1 p.m. after they tied at 282 at the end of the regulation 72-holes Saturday.

Finsterwald, who will defend his national PGA title later this month, and Wall, tipping out the champion, matched par in the final round at Warwick Hills.

Their 282 totals were six strokes under par at the mammoth 7,200-yard course.

They edged veterans Jerry Barber and record-busting Cary Middlecoff by a single stroke. Middlecoff set a course record with a 34-31—65, tieing out the record set earlier in the day when Gene Littler shot a 66.

EFFICIENCY EXPERTS

Today's showdown pitted solid, calculating efficiency experts against one another. First place means $9,000, second place brings $4,500 and the loser of the playoff will share in half the admission receipts.

Al Balding of Markham was the only Canadian to finish in the money. He was in an eight-way tie for 46th position with 73-73-74-71—296 and collected $82.50.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Jerry Magee of Toronto finished with 297s.

Juniors Score 3 in Last Inning To Earn 4-4 Stalemate With Latta

A last-inning splurge gave the Belleville Juniors three runs and earned a well - earned 4-4 Saturday night. The Noakes' youngsters still rule the South Hastings Baseball League roost with a 7-2-3 record.

Scoring singles earlier in the game the teams battled on even terms until the fifth when Latta scored two three runs to take a commanding lead. The city kids came back with a trio in the sixth and that's the way it ended.

Stan Read went the route for Latta, striking out five, walking one and giving up eight hits. He smacked out a single to help his own cause.

Belleville's Larry Soden hurled two-hit ball for four innings but faltered in the fifth when he gave up three runs on which with errors accounted for three Latta runs.

Bill Latchford took over with one out and held Latta to one single over the rest of the route. Sodden whiffed five and walked one. Latchford had a 1-1 record.

Larry Mavety, Belleville catcher, was painfully injured in the fifth and Morris took over the catching duties.

A walk and a homer and long fly gave Latta the first run in the opening inning. An error, a sacrifice and Bill Moxon's double knotted the count in the fourth.

Three Belleville errors and doubles by Frank Ray and Ross Park shot over three Latta runs and sent Soden to the showers in the fifth. Latchford took over and put out the fire.

Elliott's single, back-to-back doubles by Hunter and Glenn Clarke and consecutive singles by Keller and Morris yielded the tie-making trio of runs for the Juniors in the sixth.

Morris was on second with the winning run when Latchford struck out to end the rally.

Bill Moxon powered the Juniors with two doubles. Mavety, Clarke and Soden hit two-baggers with singles going to Keller, Morris and Hunter.

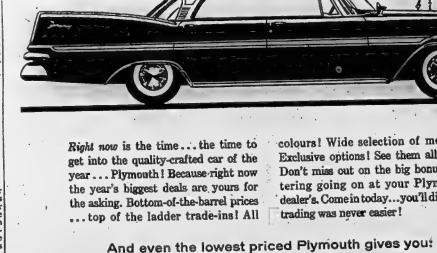
Frank Ray had two of Latta's five clouts, a double and a single. Parks doubled and Reid and Meeks singled.

The team:

Belleville: Goyer, Folwell, Elliott, Hunter, Moxon, Clarke, Keller, Mavety, Morris, Soden, Latchford.

Latta: Parks, Cronkwright, Gow, Ray, Sullivan, Reid, Hall, Meeks, Glass, Hazzard, Bustard, Harris.

Belleville	000	103	4-8-5
Latta	100	003	4-5-2



Umpires: T. Hurst (p), B. Hurst.

National League Favorite In First All-Star Classic

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A power-laden National League squad, headed by Henry Aaron, Willie Mays and Ernie Banks, is favored to end the American League's two-year dominence in Tuesday's 26th annual all - star game at Forbes Field.

A capacity crowd of 35,000 was assured for this second mid-summer contest in Pittsburgh since the all-star event was inaugurated in 1933. The last one played here, on July 11, 1944, was won by the National League, 7-1.

Including Aaron, Mays and Banks, the Nationals boasted 13 players batting better than .300 to only six for the Americans. The senior circuit also had four of its seven pitchers with 10 or more regular - season victories while the American had only one, Chicago's Early Wynn. In home-run totals, the Nationals also led, 207 to 200.

PONTOON PITCHING

Managers Casey Stengel of the American League and Fred Haney of the National arrived late Sunday night. Although the two veteran pilots refused to give even a hint of their mound choices, it was believed they had last-minute changes of heart.

Stengel, who had earlier indicated Early Wilhelm, Baltimore's knuckleball expert, as his opening pitcher, was said to be considering switching to Wynn. Haney, originally believed to be favoring Lew Burdette, his over-righthanded ace with Milwaukee, may open with Los Angeles' Don Drysdale.

In any event, righthanded pitching, at least for the first three innings, appeared to be in order. Second baseman Nellie Fox of the White Sox is the only lefthanded batter among the American starters. Eddie Mathews, Milwaukee third baseman, and Wally Moon, Los Angeles left fielder, are the only lefthanded swingers in the Nationals' starting lineup.

KEEP OUT OF PLAYERS

In addition to Mathews, Moon, shortstop Banks, and outfielders Mays and Aaron, the National League's starting all-stars will include third baseman Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco, second baseman Johnny Temple of Cincinnati and catcher Del Crandall of the Braves.

The Americans' starting squad, besides Fox, include first baseman Bill Skowron, New York shortstop Luis Aparicio, Chicago third baseman Harmon Killebrew, Washington; catcher Gus Triandos, Baltimore, and outfielders Al Kaline of Detroit, Minnie Minoso and Jacky Colavito of Cleveland. Kaline, sidelined for several days by a pharyngeal operation, was expected to be ready.

Canadian Stars Would Shine in National League

TORONTO (CP)—An outstanding player in Canadian professional football would be a standout in the National Football League, says Frank (Pop) Ivy, Chicago Cardinal head coach.

"You don't have to be a beast to make our league," he said in an interview Friday.

Ivy, here for a television appearance, said there are "wonderful a few" players in the Big Four Football Union who could make NFL teams.

He should know. Pop hit Canadian football as coach of Edmonton Eskimos in 1954 and led them to three consecutive Grey Cup titles—1954-55-56.

Ivy didn't name names but when reporters mentioned Edmonton's Jackie Parker and Johnny Bright, Montreal's Sam Etcheverry and Gerry James, brilliant young Canadian halfback with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, he said that all could make NFL teams.

He also defended his club's action of going to the courts over the playing services of end Jerry Wilson of Auburn, sought by both the Eskimos and Cardinals. "Jerry's all he was our No. 2 draft choice and we couldn't give him up without some kind of a fight," he said. The Cards won the case.

NFL DEFERMENT

Ivy offered the opinion during the television interview that split-T, belly or drive football doesn't work in the U.S National Football League because it depends for success on the offensive line's ability to handle the opposing defence.

Ivy will be back Aug. 5 with his Chicago Cardinals for the first pre football game in the 32,000-seat Canadian National Exhibition stadium. The Cards will oppose Argonauts of the Big Four.

WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT CHEWING GUM

CINCINNATI (AP) — Don Elston, big Chicago Cubs right-hander, will replace Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell on the National League's all - star game lineup in Pittsburgh Tuesday, the office of Warren Giles, league president, announced Saturday. Mizell recently has been troubled with his neck, a spokesman said, and requested his withdrawal from the roster.

Travel Show 'The High Road' Ready for TV Next Season

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—New York and Hollywood talent scouts are racing around furiously trying to sign up every big show business name for next season's spate of specials. Meanwhile, author John Gunther is due to become a television star largely, he insists, because he has rarely faced a camera.

Gunther, former newspaper man and author of best-selling non-fiction books, will preside over a filmed travel series that starts in September on ABC.

He thinks he's in on a new idea in the travelogue field: Climbing a mountain with U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, looking around Cuba with Adlai Stevenson, grandson of a Cuban liberator; exploring jazz with Benny Goodman.

"It's to be a dramatic show," says the author of the half-dozen inside books. "The idea is to journey to peoples and places and give an exciting report on them. I really think the producers picked me for the commenting because I have been on television for more than a total of 90 minutes. A new face, you might say."

The projected show, called The High Road, will replace another travel show, Bold Journey, come fall.

In case you wonder how TV series ideas are born, cast an eye on NBC's Suspicion Sunday, July 19. The shows were first unveiled two years ago and, in this particular Sunday-night repeat, Ray Milland stars as detective Roy Markham. Now Markham is a weekly CBS half-hour show seen Saturday night, still starring Ray Milland.

Imogene Coca, Tab Hunter and Ginger Rogers will be I've Got a Secret guests in the last three shows of this month . . . Rehearsals are under way for Hazel Gene Kelly special scheduled for a December NBC star parade.

Many New Records Set At Canadian Track, Field Meet

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. LAMBERT, Que. (CP) — Assessment of Canada's budding Olympic material seemed in order today in the wake of some of the fanciest record-wrecking a track and field meet could be expected to produce here.

High on the list were more than half a dozen teen-agers, from 13 to 19, who made merry with records Friday and Saturday in the opening bouts for Canadian championships in five age divisions.

Particularly outstanding achievements for recognition went to Marian Munroe, Diane Hayes, Bruce Kidd and Bob Holmes of the greater Toronto district; Dale West and George Short of Saskatoon and Bill Gala of Windsor.

WIND FIVE EVENTS

The 17-year-old Miss Munroe, competing for Toronto's East York club, was one of five double winner in the meet. Miss Hayes, 18, from Richmond Hill, and Dale West each collected four first-place medals.

Canadian open and native records were broken Saturday.

Two records were broken by Misses Munroe and Hayes. The third was broken by John Mc-Donald of the University of Western Ontario football coach, in the junior javelin throw but likely will not be recognized because of an aiding wind.

Bruce Kidd, East York, equalled the Canadian open and native records in the midget class 800-yard run Saturday and then mowed up two classes into the junior two - mile run and erced away with it.

JAILED FOR EDITORIAL

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A newspaper editor who refused to retract an editorial saying congressmen yawned while Argentina was "sold to foreign capitalism" has drawn a five-day sentence. The constitutional affairs committee of the house of deputies ordered the detention of editor Raimundo Fires of the Mendoza daily La Voz de Cuyo. It held the editorial was insulting to congressmen.

LOWER MONTHLY PAYMENTS. HFC's new long-term loans mean smaller payments that fit your budget better.

BANKABLE SECURITY not required.

INCOME INTERRUPTED ? If you can't make a payment promptly when due, you get helpfulness and understanding in rearranging your payment schedule.

BACKED BY 81 YEARS' EXPERIENCE. Unlike most lending institutions, HFC's only business is making instalment cash loans. That's why HFC is best equipped to serve your immediate wants and needs.

Garden Notes

Iris Colorful in Your Garden

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The bearded iris did not last well this year. The dry hot weather seemed to snatch away their colorful blooms too soon. Perhaps the past winter was a hard on the plants and they did not set as many buds as usual. What ever the cause they were like a flock of bright birds that dropped down for a brief visit then vanished.

We want a greater variety of iris next year. Some of the present stock we will move and replace mediocre plants with new colors and types. These will add color in new places and extend the blooming season.

Bearded iris can be moved any time after the blooms have faded. This is a good time to move them while the colors are still known. If you wish to move them later mark them as to color now.

CHOOSE FIRM ROOTS

In selecting roots for transplanting choose only the firm new outer rhizomes. The centre ones are spent and will be soft and spongy. These will not bloom again. Cut thick husky roots back along the top of the ground with the fiberous feeder roots intact ground. In re-planting cover the fleshy part with one inch of soil. This light covering seems to enable the feeder roots to adjust quickly to new conditions.

The soil should be loose. Work in some compost or leaf mold and allow one cup of balanced fertilizer for each plant work all together before planting.

Trim the fans back to seven inches. This will make for a neat appearance and enables the plants to remain upright while new feeder roots form to anchor the plants to the soil. Set the plants out in groups of seven to nine of one variety. Plant in a circle with the plants eight inches apart. This will give you a clump approximately two feet wide. Where a single plant of a new variety is used allow plenty of space for it to develop. Fill in the vacant areas with annual flowers for the first year or two until it spreads to a clump. All it's do not bloom the year following transplanting.

MANY COLORS

In the bearded types you will find any number of fine color combinations. The really big news here is the wonderful hybrid pinks with the tangerine or red beard.

The iris parade can be stretched from March to late summer by choosing — reticulata the dwarf iris for bloom in early spring. For April there is cristata, In May and June the bearded types bloom also the siberian blue, purple and white. Kaempferi the Japanese iris will bloom in July. For August and into September there is the versatile Iris, and dichotoma. For autumn there is the fall-bearded iris.

How to use-border paths and drives. Group them with shrubs. Plant varieties which will bloom at the same time as the shrubs. Choose complimentary colors for fine effect. Plant them in the perennial border with plants having fine leaves or tall spikes of bloom such as pink lathrum, blue delphiniums or veronica. They are fine associations for yellow day, or white madonna lilies.

ALL SMILES — A bilateral agreement was signed by Canada and Japan for co-operation in peaceful uses of atomic energy. Toru Hagiwara (left), Japanese ambassador to Canada, signed for his country while External Affairs Minister Green signed his first international document since his recent appointment as external affairs minister. Looking on is H. F. Feaver, chief of protocol, external affairs. — (CP Wirephoto).

Stirling

STIRLING — Mrs. S. J. Elliott, Stirling, accompanied by her niece, Mrs. Jarvis Middleton and son, Ralph, of Malton, left by bus Monday to spend some time with the former's sisters, Mrs Clarence Allen and Mrs. Harold Ritchie, of Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia.

Mr. Burton Bateman returned home from Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday of last week.

Several members of Stirling Legion branch participated in the drumhead service at Colborne centennial on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hanna and Billy are taking up residence in Frankford, this week.

River Valley Women's Institute has 100 souvenir coffee spoons for its members and friends in commemoration of the visit of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II to Canada. Her picture is on the handle and the bowl is suitably inscribed, "The secretary, Mrs. George Heasman, ordered the spoons in May and they arrived last week.

St. Andrew's Ladies Aid sponsored a successful strawberry festival and bake sale in the Sunday School rooms on Saturday evening.

A large number of old friends, relatives and neighbors attended the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ward on Sunday. They have lived in the same home in the village throughout their married life. Mrs. Ward has been keenly interested in lovely flowers and her garden has been a bower of beauty.

Mr. Joe Whitehead is undergoing treatments in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McGee spent a few days in Montreal Quebec, with their son.

Mrs. Clifford Lansing has purchased the property of Mr. Dave Cotton.

Miss Della Potter is moving to Belleville this week and will supervise the Children's Aid Receiving Home on Highland Avenue. Mrs. Ormel MacMillen retired from the position at the end of last year having for the past 17 months as supervisor.

Mrs. Florence Kerr is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Jo-Anne Heasman left by plane from Toronto last week to enjoy a three weeks' tour of England with the Denforth Salvation Army Songsters.

Miss Rose Spry attended a conference in Gananoque last week and participated in a discussion on "office relationships."

St. Paul's Sunday School held an enjoyable picnic at Bird's Beach, Oak Lake on Monday.

Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211 held its closing meeting last week. The report of Grand Lodge sessions was given by Sister Olive Whitehead. A donations of $25 will be sent to the I.O.O.F. sr. Rebekah members at Lanark, whose hall was recently destroyed by fire.

Noble Grand Sister Marion Carter and her officers served refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Miss Lois M. Coonson, River Valley, Miss Margaret Dracup, Wellmana, and Miss Grace Clarke, Eggleton, were successful in their final examinations at Peterborough Teachers' College.

On Sunday morning Stirling L.O.L. and L.O.B.A. attended divine service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Rev. K. J. Rooney conducted the service. Scripture lessons were read by Mrs. Clarence Holmes and Mr. Sam Twiddy. Mrs. Harry Morrow officiated at the organ and the choir rendered "Soldiers of Christ Arise." Mrs. George Heasman and Mr. William Reynolds sang a duet, "Pleasant Are Thy Courts Above."

HIGH CITY

La Paz, capital of Bolivia, is built in a sheltered valley at an altitude of 11,900 feet.

Minto

YOUNG COUPLE HONORED

MINTO — On Monday evening Salem Church Hall was filled with friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jack, son, (nee Jean Mayo), to honor them on their recent marriage and to bid them farewell as they are to make their new home in Chicago.

Mr. Stobbart acted as chairman for the evening, wishing the young couple much happiness and every success in life.

Community singing was enjoyed; readings were given by Mrs. Lindsay Tanner and Mrs. Everett Sine; a piano solo by Harold Sarles; an accordion selection by Carole Sine, and Dougie Ray and Barry Bray each sang a solo.

Mrs. Harold Holden read the address, and Mrs. Bert Sine presented Bill and Jean with a purse of money, on behalf of the community, for which the bride and bridegroom expressed their thanks.

Refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

Exciting Triumph For Queen, Philip On Chicago Visit

Exhausting Trek May Be Last of Royal Tours

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP) — The greatest welcome in Chicago's boisterous history was given the Queen and Prince Philip Monday in a 14-hour visit. The sovereign replied with a sunburst smile despite a troubled some tooth and a trip to the dentist.

Police Commissioner Timothy J. O'Connor calculated that 2,000,000 persons saw the Queen during the day. They massed around Buckingham Fountain Landing in Grant Park, where she stepped ashore, even before the royal yacht Britannia was in sight outside the breakwater.

They stood for hours in the streets during the day. They were still waiting late Monday night to see her come and leave the hotel where the final banquet was held.

The banquet was a mingling of 1,000 persons — mayors, state governors, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his wife, the 31 Commonwealth ambassadors at Washington, and millionaires, labor leaders and other figures among the population of 4,500,000 in Greater Chicago.

AMONG GREATEST

Chicagoans could not recall a bigger welcome given any visiting or national figure, including presidents. It was the first Chicago visit by a reigning British monarch.

Today, after a floodlight departure against the towering Chicago skyline, the royal yacht was sailing back into Canadian waters where a boat stop scheduled at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Wednesday.

The day started with about 15,000 persons watching the arrival by barge at the fountain plaza. Sections of the crowd in the Blue Britannia alongside had.

Crowds thickened as the day progressed, and they grew more lively. Polite clapping gave way to shouts of welcome — some ultra-informal compared with the British or Canadian custom—and by the time office workers were setting homeward the throngs were virtually packed.

It was a busy day, but no busier than either the Toronto or Montreal agendas. The royal couple visited the International Trade Fair here, attended a state luncheon there, with minutes overtime and then put in abbreviated visits at the Museum of Science and Industry and the Art Institute of Chicago.

The Queen's arrival at the Conrad Hilton Hotel basement was preceded by 40 Shriner troopers mounted on their specially-shampooed black horses, on a small mobile white sweeper-vacuum.

Security protection, tight all day, was especially strong for the banquet. City police blocked every access.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Clear weather prevails over all of Ontario with the exception of the extreme south where thunderstorms have been reported from Kenora. The thunderstorms are expected to spread slowly eastward across Northern Ontario today and Wednesday. Meanwhile, quite settled weather will persist over Southern Ontario as a high pressure area now centred in southwestern Michigan moves eastward at about 15 miles per hour.

Exciting Trudeau Welcome Given Royal Couple

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP)—The triumphant but exhausting trek of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip across Canada may be remembered as the last of the extended royal tours.

Sources close to the Royal Family say the safari-like "showing of the flag in the colonies" belongs in the past.

In its place is predicted the short, swift visit to specific points in the world where the Royal Family may arrive in the comfort of jet travel, perform a specific function and return home.

Already the royal couple have been in Canada 20 days. Twice they have stepped across the border into the United States. So far they have been subjected to enough heat, dust and exhaustion to wilt many of the veteran newspaper men travelling with them.

MORE AHEAD

And it comes after the near saturation heat of the seaway towns is the even heat of Calgary at Stampede time.

Against this thinking is balanced the popularity of the young couple in small centres that might not see them if it not for a tour such as this.

From the almost reverence displayed in such off-the-track spots as Deer Lake, Nfld., to the screaming enthusiasm displayed in Montreal, they moved on to such welcome as they received in Brockville.

There, with the tour running behind schedule after fog in the Cornwall area, an estimated 35,000 persons greeted the Queen and Prince in darkness.

Brantford was another stop which lingered in the memory. It is a grass-roots Queen. A bus driver interrupted the tour to get accorded Brantford's favorite son:

"There hasn't been this many people on the street since Tonto came home for the (sic)" Lone Ranger," stage name for Jay Silverheels-Smith, is the faithful sidekick to the Lone Ranger.

TOPS OF TOUR

But the welcome in Chicago, second largest city in the United States, was like nothing en countered on the tour.

Still, it was in the smaller towns that the Queen will be remissed when the lengthy Royal Tour becomes a thing of the past —that the people got close to royalty.

Won't Be Long Now Before People Flying in Space Say Jubilant Reds

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia claims the flying menagerie she lobbed into space last week is the most powerful single-stage rocket yet sent up from anywhere side of the Iron Curtain.

A leading Soviet scientist hailed the Russian feat of recovering the two dogs and a rabbit safely from their flight as "an important and step in solving the problem of space flight for man."

"It won't be long now before we see people flying into space," said Dr. Grigory Khrushchev, corresponding member of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences over Moscow radio.

Moscow radio first reported the successful flight of the missile on Monday, four days after it went up. The nose cone and its passengers separated from the propelling rocket and parachuted back to earth, returning the animals safely, the Russians said.

It was not immediately clear what the propelling rocket had gone through on re-entry. It had also burned up on returning to the earth's atmosphere.

HOUSE APPROVES TIME PAYMENTS ON COURT FINES

Commons Sanctions Obscenity Definition

By DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Monday passed a Criminal Code amendment that Justice Minister Fulton said is intended to eliminate any remnant of imprisonment for debt.

The amending bill also provides a new legal weapon inlesded to keep filthy publications out of Canadian newsstands and a limitation on news coverage of preliminary hearings, designed to safeguard an accused person's chances for a fair trial.

The only real opposition to any of the amendments—which now go to the Senate for consideration—was raised by CCF members.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) argued that the definition of obscenity for Criminal Code purposes include the provision that in addition to having as a dominent characteristic "undue exploitation of sex" a publication must also be without literary or scientific merit to be ruled illegal.

WOULD MAKE LOOPHOLES

Mr. Fulton argued that this would only afford loopholes in the law and the Commons rejected Mr. Fisher's proposal by a 6, the Liberals supporting the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Fulton, explaining the provision making possible instalment payment of fines for serious offences, said:

"A duty is to be imposed on the sentencing court to satisfy itself that the convicted person has the means to pay a fine before sending him to prison for failure to pay."

The proposed amendments would empower courts to seize obscene publications which there could be laid against any person in this connection without permission of the provincial attorney-general concerned.

The owner of premises on which a publication was seized would appear in court to show cause why it should not be seized. If it was still seized, the owner could appeal to higher courts.

Mr. Fisher argued that by empowering the courts to summon a newsstand owner within seven days to show cause why seizure to "show cause" why it should not be forfeited to the Crown, the onus of proof was being shifted to the defendant instead of the Crown. But Mr. Fulton said "that is not the case."

In other Commons activity, Mines Minister Comtois said the possibility of co-ordinating the government's coal development program and activities of "the new national energy board will be studied during the next few days."

He spoke as the House gave approval in principle second reading—to a government bill extending to the Canada Metals Limited Assistance Production Act, under which loans are made for capital development.

Less Than Half of Toronto Gas Stations Close Doors

TORONTO (CP)—A scheduled lockout of Metropolitan Toronto gasoline stations today was observed in its early stages by less than half of the area's 1,200 dealers.

Scattered reports indicated about 40 per cent of the operators shut down at the 7 a.m. deadline but later picketers surrounded their premises.

The bulk of the closed stations were in the east and west ends and in Forest Hill Village, a northern suburb. The remainder of the northern area and central Toronto stations were reported operating almost normally.

Prices continued at cut rates, generally 10 cents a gallon below normal.

About 800 station operators and employees met at dawn to receive picketing instructions from officials of the Ontario Retail Gasoline and Automotive Services Association. Those attending the meeting seemed enthusiastic, but it was not certain how many were dealers and how many were employees.

"We figure about 900 stations will be closed today," said Kenneth Langdon, chief manager of the association.

But a director of the association estimated the number at 600.

Mr. Langdon said a number of the 1,200 service stations in Metropolitan Toronto were waiting to see what the others do and he was "confident that when pickets are set up around their property they will close down."

Shell Oil Company of Canada Limited said in an advertisement Monday: "Many of our dealers have indicated they will remain open." Imperial Oil Limited said

Provinces Want More Money But Ottawa Sitting Tight

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government appears to be sitting pat on its taxsharing agreements with the provinces, at least for the time being.

And the provinces, at a federal-provincial meeting of finance ministers that entered its second day today, are mainly making the standard demand for more money to be turned loose in their direction by the central government.

The conference resumed shortly after 10 a.m. EDT. None of the officials had anything to say for publication as they resumed, but it was announced a statement will be issued late in the afternoon.

Some expressed the view, at a two - day meeting, that there should be an early reconvening of a plenary fiscal conference at which all government heads to re-establish fiscal arrangements.

Federal Finance Minister Fleming indicated to reporters after the first morning session that errnoon sessions that he made no promises concerning such a meeting.

In the Commons, the government was under fire on economic policy, on magnetism of the earth and on behavior of living organisms during cosmic flight.

The first spaceflight of mice was Laika, the little Russian dog who went into orbit with Sputnik II Nov. 3, 1957, and died in less than two weeks when her oxygen ran out. She travelled as far out as 1,200 miles from the earth in its orbit.

Though five premiers are attending the present conference, it is not expected to make any real policy decisions. Its major purpose appears to be the drawing of a plan of studies to be undertaken by groups of ministers and other civil service officials who make up a continuing committee on federal-provincial fiscal and economic matters.

The five persons attending are British Columbia's Bennett, Manitoba's Roblin, Nova Scotia's Stanfield—who all are also provincial treasurers—and Quebec's Duplessis and Prince Edward Island's Matheson.

Mr. Duplessis' government is the only one that has not signed a tax-sharing agreement with Ottawa.

Under the present tax-sharing arrangements the provinces are allotted 13 per cent of personal income tax yields, nine per cent of taxable corporation income and 50 per cent of inheritance taxes. The agreement runs until March 31, 1962.

All provincial governments Monday made general statements at the closed sittings, though all are not made public.

Ontario wanted the formula boosted to 15-15-50 and said there was an urgent need for an immediate adjustment of the existing arrangements in favor of the provinces.

Prince Edward Island supported the Ontario formula for tax-sharing and also urged a full-scale conference this fall to negotiate a new arrangement.

$4,000,000 FIRE DESTROYS PIERS AT PICTOU, N.S.

3 Badly Burned, One Said Critical

PICTOU, N.S. (CP) — A heavy rain beat down on this town of 4,500 today, clearing the air of smoke from Monday's $4,000,000 waterfront fire.

But while rain washed away debris, here and there a stubborn tongue of flame shot up from the highly combustible creosoted piles of two burned piers.

The blaze apparently started in a transport department freight shed at the end of a 500-foot-long pier. Flames spread to adjacent sheds and buildings.

ESTIMATES DAMAGE

Mayor James Baillie set the loss at a "conservative" $4,000,000.

Destroyed were the two piers, the freight shed, the federal hydrographic office, three shipyard buildings owned by Hanson Industries Limited, several small fishing boats and a barge. The ferry Prince Nova was heavily

Armed Officers Use Tear Gas To Charge Room

Night of Terror Ends For Women, Children

MONROE, Wash. (AP)—Thirty-eight hostages, held by 1954 terror-filled hours by four "still crazy" young convicts, were freed without harm at the state reformatory today in a surprise tear gas attack.

Officers carried out the rescue at 4:03 a.m. PST (8:03 a.m. EDT), two hours before the third and last deadline set by the revolting prisoners. Reformatory officials said it went like clockwork.

The rebels, who had armed themselves with butcher knives and long forks in the kitchen Monday afternoon in the abortive escape attempt, threatened violence only to the three guards who had been taken hostage.

One of the guards, Hugh DeWalt, said after the rescue that the desperadoes had told the guards to start praying because they would be thrown out of the window dead if their demands for freedom were not met.

Twenty-five visitors, many of them women and children, and 13 other prisoners who had been visiting relatives were seized along with the three guards.

One woman was released from the barricaded visitors' room late the night when she became ill. The others were held until the uprising ended. But outsiders and the 11 hostage inmates were treated fairly well.

GAS SURPRISES FOUR

The four rebels were quickly subdued as the tear gas sent the occupants stumbling, weeping and choking, from the room.

Officers said they were "roughed up a bit."

The four were ordered placed in isolation and state officials said they would be turned over to the courts.

An officer said surprise was the factor of success. A guard came close to the room and another hurled a tear gas shell while the first sailed in two of the corridor. The charge followed.

Mary Turner, 24, wife of one of 11 prisoners held hostage, said she was asleep holding her baby when the officers rushed the door.

Mrs. Turner said everyone was "pretty scared" by the blow-out deal. She said the four rebellious prisoners never threatened any hostages and even gave them cigarets.

WANTED ESCAPE CAR

The four convicts who seized visitors, three guards and 11 other prisoners Monday are Carl E. Murfray, 20; Donald Decourcy, 20; Ronald D. Jasmin, 22, and David K. Owens, 19.

They listed no grievances, asking only for an escape car and clear access to the British Columbia border.

One of the officer hostages, Hugh Dewalt, said the convicts told them: "You'd better start praying." They threatened they would throw them out the window dead if their demands for freedom were not met by 6 a.m. PST (9 a.m. EDT).

One of the most touching scenes of the rescue came when Mrs. Marlene Oxford of Kelso, Wash.,

Sioux Soldier Ignores Jeers, Produces Rain

SOEST, Germany (Reuters) The Canadian Army in Europe today claimed something of a minor secret weapon for use against a current European heat wave — a Sioux Indian rainmaker.

The hot spell, and the consequent fire risk over Lueneburg Heath, had forced the army to suspend target practice planned for a Canadian artillery regiment attached to the NATO command in Germany.

The troops were sweating it out, awaiting cooler weather, when Pte. John A. Goodwill of Fort qu'Appelle, Sask., decided he had enough.

Goodwill, a Sioux, got to his feet and in full uniform stamped into a traditional dance.

Platoon snickers died away half an hour later when it suddenly started to rain.

Goodwill refused to be amazed.

"I only did what my grandfather taught me," he said.

Drew Believes Soviet Schools Have Weakness

LONDON (CP)—Lack of emphasis on moral and ethical aspects of education may prove the "Achilles heel" of the Russian way of life, Canadian High Commissioner George Drew said today.

Addressing a group of Canadian university professors and officials here for next week's Commonwealth education conference at Oxford, Drew acknowledged Russia's technical achievements but said the societies must continue to draw a clear distinction between moral and technical sides of education.

"Russia has experienced an amazing technical explosion," the high commissioner said. "Russia is by Communist dogma, the country is nevertheless going ahead in a way unknown in the whole Western world."

ROAD GROUP

Drew, a former Ontario minister of education, is to lead the Canadian delegation to the Oxford conference July 15-July 29. It is expected today were made to 74 members of the 20-man delegation at a preliminary meeting in London.

The Oxford gathering, drawing 300 delegates from Commonwealth countries and dependencies, is to deal with a wide range of educational subjects, with emphasis on the plan for a multilateral exchange of scholarships and fellowships aimed at increasing the shared background of Commonwealth educational experience.

Hamilton Couple Rescued From Marooned Yacht

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Powell of Hamilton were rescued Monday night after being marooned in their yacht for 48 hours on a tiny Lake Erie Island off Presqu'ile Point, 24 miles west of here.

The yacht was spotted by a man in a passing boat who informed police. It ran aground during a gale on Saturday.

Mr. Powell was taken to Belleville General Hospital suffering from pneumonia. His wife was treated for shock and exposure.

The island was a full view of thousands of Sunday swimmers, but the yacht and the shoals could not be seen from the mainland.

Oust Reporters As Council Talks About Firemen

Reporters representing the Ontario Intelligencer and Radio Station CHBC were ordered out of a special meeting of council Monday evening as council members discussed matters concerning the Belleville Fire Department.

Alderwoman Frank Grandame said that representatives of the firemen had asked that the matter be discussed in camera without members of the press present. Reporters were accordingly asked to leave. In accordance with the discussion, believed to concern wages, they reported declined to return to the meeting.

Last night's meeting was a special meeting of council, held as such was open to the public.

Following the closed discussion by council, members of the press along with city hall officials who had also been excluded were invited to return to the chambers. They reported declined to return to the meeting.

Last night's meeting was a special meeting of council, held as such was open to the public.

Hospital Board Will Proceed With Four-Storey Nurses' Residence, Training School

With the Ontario Municipal Board having given approval to an $83,000 debenture issue as the city's cost toward the construction of a new nurses' residence school and with council giving third reading to the cover-ing by-law, construction of the new nurses' accommodation at Belleville General Hospital will now go full speed ahead.

"I am delighted to hear that council has given third reading to the by-law," stated hospital chairman Frank Domenico this morning. "Work on the building can now go into high gear."

Mr. Domenico said that with the approval of the Municipal Board and council having given third reading to the by-law the four storey structure would now definitely be proceeded with. He said the new building, combining a school of nursing unit and dormitory accommodation for 100 students, will be the realizations of a much larger nurses' training class for this fall.

Following the board's meeting to the debenture by-law at its special meeting of July 2, the hospital board decided later that an auditorium should also be included and will incur it was learned that a four-storey structure providing 31 dormitory beds for nurses could be built at no additional cost to the city.

The board will act as the own contractor in the construction of the new building and in this way expects to save considerable money, it was learned.

PAY GRANTS PROGRESSIVELY

According to information received yesterday, grants to be received will be paid progressively to the board as the building progresses.

The city will amend zoning regulations to extend and augment area to allow the YMCA to construct a new "Y" on the former Ellis property on south side of Victoria Ave. and north of Bridge Street. An area of about six acres has been acquired for the new YMCA site.

Residents of the Hillcrest area will be informed that petitions presented to council by Mundy Victor Solomas told council that the municipal act would not allow leasing in the resident-of-way.

Local contractor Hugh Murray has been appointed from the Chamber of Commerce to fill the unexpired term of Robert Chilman on the city industrial commission. Mr. Chilman was transferred out of the city.

TO SELL DEBENTURES

Fifty-cent thousand dollars' worth of short term city debentures will be offered to the public in the near future it was learned. The debentures will be offered at 3 per cent and will bear four and a half per cent interest.

Mr. J. T. Ranson, local land surveyor, was authorized to lay out five access streets, leading west from Sidney Street to possible use in future sub-division development in that area. Cost of the survey will be not more than $350.

Mr. Ranson's salary will be paid into the estate of the late Mrs. Ann Haggerty, former city clerk, who served for a month age. The two weeks' salary will be paid as holiday pay.

Funeral of Mr. Edward Gary Barry, of Queensboro, was held Saturday, July 4th, from his late residence to St. Henry's Roman Catholic Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated at 10 a.m. by Rev. J. E. Trainor.

Interment was in St. Henry's Cemetery.

Bearers were Mr. Barry's five sons, Messrs. Michael, Francis, Bernard, Gerald and Henry Barry, and a son-in-law, Thomas Irvin.

Mr. Barry died Wednesday, July 1, 1959, at Belleville General Hospital, 11 days after suffering a severe stroke. He was 80 years of age.

Born in Queensboro, Ont., he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barry. A life-time resident of that community, he attended St. Henry's R.C. Church and was a member of the Holy Name Society.

Besides his wife, the former Annie Dooley, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Thomas (Madeline) Irvin, Belleville; and five sons, Francis, Bernard, and Kevin, of Queensboro, Michael of Kingston, and James of R. R. 1, Petersburg, Ont. Also surviving are three brothers, James Barry of Madoc, Dan Barry of Toronto, and Frank Barry of Queensboro.

WILLIAM DREWRY

STIRLING — The funeral of William Drewry of Rawdon township, was held on Saturday, July 4th, at the Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling, and was largely attended.

The service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. R. F. Spurrell of Emmanuel Temple, Frankford, who also contributed a vocal selection. Another vocal soloist at the Temple spoke briefly.

The bearers were Messrs. Charles Vance, Claude Tucker, Charles Morton, Kenneth Mumby, George Martin and Joe O'Neil.

Interment was made in Stirling cemetery.

MASTER MARK J. WHITE

The funeral of Master Mark James White was held from his late residence, 97 Orchard Park Drive, to Christ Church, Monday afternoon. Archdeacon J. H. Creegan conducted the service in the church and the committal rites at Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were: Richard Langabeer, Bobby Lancaster, Raymond and William Bushnell.

ABRAHAM DUNCAN

The funeral of Mr. Abraham Duncan, 180 James Street, was held this Wednesday afternoon, July 6th, from the Pinkston and Luscombe chambers, to Belleville Victoria Ave. (at Church). The Rev. Everett P. Smith of Christ Church officiated.

Interment was at Belleville Cemetery.

Liberals Will Name Candidate For By-Election

Although no date has yet been set for the nominating convention, Liberals in the Federal riding of Hastings - Frontenac will probably select their candidate to be held this fall to fill the vacancy caused by the sudden death last spring of External Affairs Minister Hon. Sidney Smith.

This was indicated over the weekend by Marmora Reeve William Shannon who said he had been assured by the Federal Liberal Association that the riding would be contested, and "strongly contested" Mr. Shannon contested the riding for the Liberals at the last Federal general election.

Organization of the riding is now underway in preparation for the election which the progressive Conservatives have named Bob Webb, reeve of Norwood, as their party candidate for the by-election.

Dies of Injuries

WINDSOR (CP) — Demetro Kowalchuk, 76, of Montreal died in hospital Saturday from head and leg injuries received when struck by a car here June 24.

Driver of the car, Lloyd Baker, 28, of Windsor, has been charged with impaired driving. He has been remanded for plea until July 9.

Council Names Adam Stalker Deputy Clerk

Mr. Adam Stalker, currently superintendent of works with the city public works department, has been appointed deputy clerk with duties in the new position to commence immediately.

The appointment was made last night at a special meeting of city council called primarily to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of City Clerk, Mrs. Ann Haggerty.

A resident of the city for the past 10 years, Mr. Stalker has been with the city for eight years, starting as clock keeper in the city public work department. He then served as chief clerk of the department and for about a year has been superintendent of works.

The present acting city clerk, Mr. Victor Salomas, from the city treasurer's department, will depart Alfalva, who took over duties in the city clerk office following the death of Mrs. Haggerty, is to return to Treasurer Mr. Ross Reid is expected to be able to return to Belleville from Florida records during the month of August.

Mr. Stalker in his new position will receive $4,600 per year, the same salary he was receiving as superintendent of works.

City council is considering the possibility of combining the two offices of city clerk and city manager with one man to fill both positions. A report is expected for the dual position in all probability will be considered at a later date.

Seven Senior CBC Officials To Run Network

OTTAWA (CP) — A management committee of seven senior CBC officials will run the affairs of the publicly-owned corporation while Vice - President G. L. Bushnell is on approved leave of absence and President A. Davidson Dunton is convalescing from an operation.

Announcement of this move by the CBC board of directors' executive committee was made today in the Commons by J. M. Macdonnell, CBC vice-president portfolio and acting revenue minister.

The decision of the committee was reached at a meeting in Montreal Friday afternoon, it was decided by R. L. Dunsmore of Toronto, Earle Mckee of Toronto and Raymond Dupuis of Montreal.

TWO MEMBERS ABSENT

The two other members of the executive committee — Messrs. Ouimet and Mr. Bushnell—did not attend.

The management committee is headed by Col. Rene P. Landry, formerly assistant assistant to the president and long-time management official of the CBC.

The others on the management committee are: Marcel Carter, controller of management and personnel; Charles Jennings, controller of broadcasting; James P. Gilmore, controller of operations; A. H. Henderson, comptroller; W. H. Richardson, director of engineering, and Hon C. Fraser, director of public relations. All are from Headquarters of the CBC.

Mr. Macdonnell, reading a statement by the CBC executive committee, said Mr. Bushnell has been granted leave of absence for two months and that Mr. Ouimet has been asked in his office in for two to four weeks. Mr. Ouimet has been ailing for six months.

Appointment of the management committee was "an emergency measure."

The development comes after a parliamentary recess period for Mr. Bushnell who has had to face in the last six months a strike by 74 Montreal television producers; difficulties over programming; appearances before a Commons broadcasting committee and a big controversy over charges of political interference by the corporation.

The charges arose after the CBC management cancelled Preview Commentary, the morning radio program in opinion on political affairs. Thirty-seven persons, mostly producers, in the CBC talks and public affairs department resigned or indicated their intention to resign amid charges of "clandestine political interference."

The matter was aired before Tuesday's broadcasting committee where both Mr. Bushnell and Revenue Minister Nowlan, who reported to parliament for the CBC, denied the charges.

Mr. Nowlan told the Commons last week that Mr. Bushnell was exhausted after carrying the heavy load of the last six months and deserved a rest.

Will Finish Audit of Books Of City by End of Week

Auditing of city books to May 5th, on which date the alleged misspending of city money in connection with the Belleville Memorial Hockey Team was made known, will be completed by the end of this week.

This was made known to city council last night by Mayor Gerald R. Hyde who said the city auditor had informed him that the audit would be brought up to date by Friday. Following this the report will have to be typed and this will take about one week.

"The audit report should be ready for presentation to the Municipal Affairs Department by week from Friday", noted Mayor Hyde.

After receiving the report Municipal Affairs Minister Hon. W. K. Warrender will decide whether a public enquiry into the city's financial position and the city's operation of the McFarland Hockey Team, will be held.

Three-Vehicle Crash Sends 3 to Hospital

Three persons are in Belleville General Hospital suffering head cuts and lacerations as result of a three-vehicle collision in the village of Eldorado late Monday afternoon.

Injured are George Potts, 55, and his wife Augusta, 54, of Stracobridge, and Mrs. Leona Kargar, 49, of Peterborough. All injured persons were occupants of the Potts car.

Police said the Potts car was travelling westbound on Hwy. 2 immediately north of the CNR track at Eldorado, the vehicle driven into a ditch and overturned a northbound lumber truck driven by Hamilton of Eldorado. A second car driven by Frank McKee of Picton which was following the Potts vehicle then slammed into the wreckage.

Both the lumber truck and the Potts auto were almost complete write-offs.

Traffic on No. 62 highway was held up for nearly three quarters of an hour until the wreckage was towed away.

Man Slugged Over Head on Way to Work

Slugged over the head by a hammer wielder who sneaked up behind him while he was on his way to work, Durland Sawyer, 193 Moira Street West, escaped with only a sore head this morning.

City police believe the attack on Mr. Sawyer was made in an attempt to rob him. The attacker made good his escape and Mr. Sawyer was able to continue on his way to work at the CNR yards.

This morning in city magistrate's court Gordon A. Spencer, charged with assault of an 11-year-old Kingston girl, was remanded until July 14th. The assault is alleged to have taken place at a Hillcrest home.

Counsel for the accused man is seeking to arrange bail.

IN MEMORIAM

ROGERS — In loving memory of dear father and grandfather Wilbert Rogers, who passed away on July 7th, 1958.

Please God only a silent tear,
A fervent wish our Dad was here;
Sweet memories of a loved one,
Are all we have, we loved him so.
Dear Dad, you left us suddenly,
Without a chance to say goodbye,
Tell him how much we miss him,
And give him all our love.
—Never forgotten by daughter, Violet, Mildred, Jean, Gordon, Shirley and Roger.

CRAWFORD — In loving memory of my mother, Miss Crawford, who passed away at Stirling, today, July 7th, 1948.

Time has passed since dear Mother
Left us for her home above,
How well we do remember,
That sad and fatal day.
You suffered much, you murmured not,
You
We watched you day by day.
God saw you had suffered enough dear Mother,
And
Would not be taken away.
—Sadly missed by daughter Helen and family.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials were higher but the rest of the stock market was almost indifferent today in quiet morning trading.

The 11 a.m. volume was 617,000 shares, compared with Monday's 623,000 at the same hour.

Among industrials Dominion Stores climbed 1¼ at 74¼; but General Motors was up 1 at 83¾, a 1959 high.

Senior base metals were mixed, uraniums quiet. Geco and Noranda added ⅛ each while Consolidated Mining and Falconbridge were up ¼. International Nickel lost ⅛ at 90¾.

Hollinger gained ¼ at 31½ but Kerr-Addison dipped ¼ at 21¼ for the major changes in golds.

Base metals were the leaders Monday as the market scored a slight gain in light trading.

Total volume was 2,287,000 shares, compared with Friday's 1,812,000.

In the most active mines, Cad-amet was off 15¼ cents at 25½ cents while Queenston dipped 10 cents at 1.32 cents. Alder was up 17 cents at $1.67.

Among industrials, MacLaren Power and Paper gained 4 points at 90 but Canadian Fire lost this amount at 186. General Motors added 2¾ at 82¾ but Ford A and Loblaw Inc. were off about 2 points. Bank of Montreal added 1 at 61, while Consolidated Paper lost ⅞ at 41¾.

Hudson Bay dipped ¼ at 53 in senior base metals, but Labrador added 1½ at 30; International Nickel 1⅛ at 90¾; Geco, 1 at 119½. Algom was down ⅝ at 15⅝.

Calgary and Edmonton led western oils lower, down ¾ at 25½.

Kerr-Addison gained ⅝ at 21⅝ for the best gain in golds.

Index changes: Industrials up 0.82; golds off 0.51; base metals up 1.43 to 173.53; western oils off .91 to 121.51.

Trenton Council Briefs

GARBAGE PROBLEM

TRENTON — The Sanitation and Water Removal committee was instructed by the council last night to seek a schedule in which the large garbage cans on the town streets could be emptied. The request was brought up following the reading of a letter from H. S. Pane, town health inspector, saying that there cans were being used for garbage and were not being dumped. Councillors were informed that the emptying of these cans was not on the contract with the present firm removing town garbage. It is expected the committee may talk with Mr. Willmont concerning the emptying of these containers. Most councillors felt they would not like to see them removed from the town streets as they collected a large amount of paper refuse which might otherwise be thrown on the street.

TO PERMIT SHACK

The councillors gave permission to Merle Zigman to put a mobile shack on the town dump for the convenience of the men he has working there. Mr. Zigman told the council it would be used by workmen and would be used for shelter for his men when it began to rain. The council stipulated the shack must be on wheels and mobile and will be under the supervision of the town engineer as to where it will be placed from time to time.

CONFERENCE REPORT

Gordon Davis, welfare officer of the town of Trenton, gave a report to the town council on a recent conference he had attended for Welfare Officers. He told the council that the experience and knowledge he had gained from the conference will assist him a great deal in carrying out his duties for the town.

ALL PRESENT

All members of the Trenton town council were present for the regular meeting last night. Councillor Howard Aziz took over the mayor's chair for the first time as the mayor was away, when it was necessary for Mayor Rene Boutet to leave the council chambers to discuss some other matter with a visitor. Also present were the council meeting were town officials O. W. Larry, Clerk-treasurer; Eric Aldersey, town engineer; Rod Campbell, town solicitor, and G. Davis, town welfare officer. It was the first time Councillor Aziz has taken over the mayor's chair. He will be acting mayor during the month of July and August if Mayor Boutet should be absent.

AGENDA DEADLINE

Councillors decided last night that in the future any letters requesting to be heard before the council meeting on Monday nights will be laid over until the following council meeting. Regular sectionals of the town council will be held on the first and third Monday's of each month. This deadline is set to enable the clerk-treasurer to set up an agenda which can be followed on the night of the meeting without odds and ends being added at the end of the council meet. It was also decided that a copy of all letters received by the town will be made and sent to the chairman of the committee concerned and that all work is brought up at the council meet. This, it was felt, would eliminate a lot of wasted time by discussing the matter and the sending it back to the committee for a recommendation.

AWARDED CONTRACT

The VanAlstine Construction Company was awarded the contract to install the forced sewer line from the pumping station to the sewage disposal plant. The company's bid was the lowest of three tenders and quoted the amount of $19,500. The work was expected to take about 14 weeks to complete and if no unforseen difficulties are encountered would be finished by October 8th.

CONVEY LAND

Third and final reading was given by the town council last night to authorize the conveyance of land to S. Sidney Street for the sum of $1,110. The land is situated on the corner of Wilson Crescent and Sidney Street and had been put up for sale by tender by the council some time ago. Mr. Klemencic was the highest of six bidders.

TO INSTALL SEWER

Council authorized a by-law calling for the installation of sanitary sewer services on the property at 89 John Street, under the Public Health Act. The work was recommended by the Trenton Board of Health which brought the matter to the council on the unsanitary conditions at this building. It was reported that only three of the four outhouses were being used on the premises and that the people living there were also required to use water from a well near the outhouses. The action was taken by the town after it was reported that the owner of the property had refused to correct the situation.

GOLF LEAK

The second reading of the Air Pollution by-law was laid over until the next council meetig to give the councillors further time to study the provisions of the act. The first reading of the by-law was approved by the councillors at their last meeting.

MACHINE TO GO BACK

Mayor Ross Burtt told the council that the machine the town borrowed to test the air in Trenton for pollution will be sent back to Toronto sometime this week. The tapes on which the machine records the air will also be sent in and it is expected a report on this will be forthcoming in the very near future. It was felt the results of the machine will be used as a guide in passing the air pollution by-law.

APPROVE NEW PIPE

Town councillors saved the town ratepayers $1,150 last night when they approved a resolution authorizing the use of concrete pressed pipe instead of asbestos cement pipe on the sewage treatment plant. The pipe will be used as the forced main from the pumping house at the east side of the town bridge to the disposal plant at the end of Sidney Street. The use of the pressed pipe was recommended in a letter from Gordon D. Crawford of Gore and Storie Consulting Engineers in charge of sewage plant construction.

TO ASK FOR REPORT

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis will be asked to give a report to the town council on the destruction of the open-flamed gas heaters at the Community Centre. The question of the heaters was brought up at the council meeting last night and Councillor Howard Aziz stated that the fire chief had made an inspection of the heaters but as yet had not given a report on them. Mayor Ross Burtt asked Councillor Claude Graham, chairman of the Community Centre and Property committee, to ask the chief to make a report to the council on his inspection.

TO CALL TENDERS

Tenders will be called by the town for the supplying of 3,000 feet of 12-inch enamel pipe which is needed for work on Dundas Street. Tenders will also be called for the installation of the new, larger sewer line from the Bay Street pumping on Film Street to the bay shore. This was recommended by Councillor Lloyd Weese during his committee report to the council.

FURTHER STUDY

Two recommendations made at last night's council meeting by the committee of Works, Councillor Lloyd Weese, were rejected and turned back to the committee for further study. One was the purchase of a new sewer flusher unit to replace the one now in the town which was said to be worn out. It was the thought of council that the present machine had been supplied by the oil company and the council wanted the committee to check into it further before purchasing a new one. The second was the letting of the contract who installed gas mains for the Lakeland Natural Gas Company. The committee recommended that the town take over the repairing of the gas line request from Douglas Whitley of Trenton asking for a tax sympathy on water and sewer services outside the limits of town. In his letter Mr. Whitley said he and his wife were planning to build a home in an area just outside the limits and asked permission to hook onto the town water and sewer lines. He said he was willing to pay the difference in taxes between the township of Murray and Trenton to the town office in return for these services at the present rate. The councillors agreed if they did this it would be in contradiction to a resolution previously passed on the same issue with another resident.

Permission was granted for the yacht club to use the fill now on the banks of the Trent River near the Community Centre to build a causeway to the islands just off-shore. The town will supply the pipe necessary to put underneath the road to enable the circulation of the river water into the basin but will not take on any other financial obligations connected with the construction of a yacht basin.

GETS CERTIFICATE

A. Hoornweg, a draftsman in the town engineer's office, notified the council by letter that he has now obtained his certificate as a qualified engineering technician and asked that his file be changed on the town records. The councillors agreed to this and r ommended that a letter of congratulations be sent to Mr. Hoornweg compliments ing him. Engineer Gordon Aldersey approved of the change in title.

Ask Highways Dept. to Pay Half Street Widening Cost

TRENTON — The town will make an application to the Provincial Department of Highways asking it to pay 50 per-cent of the costs of widening Division Street. This by-law was given first, second and third reading at the council meeting held in the Municipal Building last night. The total cost of widening the east side of Division Street will be $22,544. Division Street will be the main route from No. 2 Highway to the 401 Highway on the west side of the river.

The council was informed by a letter from G. A. Weavey of Trenton and another from Ward and McLaughlin of Picton of the intent of Mr. Weaver to have dismissed an action against the town by the costs assessed to the plaintiff. The matter arose over the supplying of water and sewer services to residents outside the town limits some time ago and involved the town of Trenton and the Public Utilities Commission. The action has been dropped in both cases.

Town councillors agreed they would pay the costs of installing the window blinds in the town's court room. The application stating the town to pay the costs ($23.03) came from Police Chief Jack Taylor in a letter which stated the blinds had been put there to enable the darkening of the room for films used by the Traffic Safety Training Classes. It is expected this will be the first step to have to pay towards the running of the school, which is sponsored by Trenton Rotarians.

REJECT APPLICATION

Town councillors rejected a request from Douglas Whitley of Trenton asking for a tax sympathy on water and sewer services outside the limits of town. In his letter Mr. Whitley said he and his wife were planning to build a home in an area just outside the limits and asked permission to hook onto the town water and sewer lines. He said he was willing to pay the difference in taxes between the township of Murray and Trenton to the town office in return for these services at the present rate. The councillors agreed if they did this it would be in contradiction to a resolution previously passed on the same issue with another resident.

Hoornweg, a draftsman in the town engineer's office, notified the council by letter that he has now obtained his certificate as a qualified engineering technician and asked that his file be changed on the town records. The councillors agreed to this and r ommended that a letter of congratulations be sent to Mr. Hoornweg compliments ing him. Engineer Gordon Aldersey approved of the change in title.

Fire Department Will Tee off in Softball Game

TRENTON — Fire Departments from Trenton and Belleville will meet in an exhibition softball game at the Belleville Ball Park on Wednesday, August 19, it was announced yesterday by Fire Chief Cecil Ellis of the Trenton Department.

The game will get underway at 7.45 p.m. and most of it will be played under floodlights. Proceeds of the game will be used for Benevolent purposes.

Many of the firemen to take part in the game have not released as yet but it is assumed the two teams will include the fishing kit, electric fan, electric toothbrush clock, 4-piece TV tray set and electric tea kettle. All prizes were donated by Trenton merchants.

Tickets are being sold on the prizes, which are attractive, but all are asked to turn out for the game.

A ticket on the prized will also be the admission to the ball game.

A native of Lansdowne, Ont., he is a graduate of Gananoque High School and the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College, Toronto, and is now employed at St. Margaret's Hospital, in cancer research.

Phyllis obtained her early education at Belleville College-late Institute, where she spent two years, and four years at Albert College, when she decided to take up chiropractic work.

In her junior year she received the J. M. Wallace scholarship for highest standing, and in her senior year, Dr. Sturdy scholarship for general proficiency throughout the 4-year course.

Miss White has also been successful in the Board of Examinations, and will be associated with Dr. James Price, D.C., of Toronto and Agincourt.

Miss Phyllis White, D.C., 21-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stan White, Rossmore, has successfully completed her four-year course at the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College, Toronto and is now employed at St. Margaret's Hospital, in cancer research.

Catch Bases Clogged by Heavy Rains

TRENTON — Heavy rains Sunday night and early Monday morning washed large amounts of dirt into the catch basins on town streets and brought the town crews out all day Monday to clean them out.

Clearing the catch basins took the workers away from their normal routine of patching streets. They had also been busy grading and applying gravel to other streets as well as cutting grass where necessary.

A new sewer line has been installed on Dundas Street, one of the newer town streets which runs west off Fourth Avenue. Both storm and sanitary sewer lines were lain.

Operations have been working on Sidney Street, where entire sections are being torn up to be resurfaced with asphalt properly installed to allow for efficient drainage. It was reported that because of the poor road bed on this street the pavement heaved and breaks each spring when the frost comes out of the ground forming leaves the street rough and full of holes.

Another task of the town's public works department is the spreading of the residue of the Eldon and Wanda power mill on town streets to keep the dust down. So far this year the town has received over 50,000 gallons of this liquid. It has been satisfactory in the past and many tank trucks from other towns and cities have visited the town of Trenton and the paper mill for the liquid.

Patching on the town bridge is well underway and is expected to be completed in about a few weeks. Work is also being carried out on the piers under the bridge and the new pedestrian government road and bridge employees are adjusting the level of the swing bridge.

The painting and other work on the bridge is the last part of the contract taken last year when a new deck was installed as well as several other repairs at a total cost of $100,000. The town had expected to pay only 50 per-cent of the bill.

Catholic Padre At Air Station To Be Honored

TRENTON — A public reception honoring Wing Commander Wilfred H. Dunphy, Staff Officer Catholic Administration at Training Command Headquarters will be held this Friday evening at 8.00 p.m. in the RCAF Station Trenton recreation centre.

Friends and well-wishers of the Wing Commander, better known to thousands of Air Force personnel as Father Dunphy, are invited to include the offering of a spiritual bouquet on behalf of the children in the air force chapels, and will feature a musical offering by the combined choirs of No. 4 Repair Depot and Station Trenton.

Prior to the public reception, Father Dunphy, accompanied by Archbishop Wm. Minty, Anne and Rita Dunphy, will be honored at a reception dinner at the Officers' Hotel. Among those in attendance will be chaplains from other military establishments, headed by G/C Rt. Rev. Monsignor L. A. Costello, RCAF Director of Catholic Religious Administration. Catholic activities will be represented by officers and their wives.

W/C Dunphy, a native of Cherry Valley, PEI, has been a member of the RCAF since 1941. He has also served in Catholic Missions across Canada and during the war years followed his flock from Africa to Great Britain, France and Germany. He was twice decorated with the Croix de Guerre by the French government for his efforts on behalf of the spiritual welfare of the troops.

Following his retirement from the air force, W/C Dunphy will take over the Catholic parish at Batawa.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE

The Brazilian Navy, which is not exactly old in song and story, at least in these climes, appears to be master of a remarkable technique. On Wednesday of last week it was reported to have bombarded an unidentified submarine in the Atlantic off Rio de Janeiro, but by Thursday it was merely searching for this submarine as that it could bombard it if it failed to identify itself.

Since the submarine in question was reported running submerged, and might be unaware that the Brazilian Navy was interested in its name and nationality, there would appear some reason to doubt whether its commander would be able to meet the condition of prompt identification in order to escape a bombardment.

This, however, is apparently not a plight unusual for submarines operating in the South Atlantic. Back in May of 1958 units of both the Brazilian and Argentine navies reported "suspected submarines" in waters off their coasts, according to an Associated Press dispatch. Whether this means they saw vessels suspected of being submarines, or that they suspected submarines were there, or that they knew submarines were there and suspected their intentions were not strictly honorable, we do not know for sure. The second meaning of the phrase seems to be more likely. In any event, Argentina warning was made a depth-charge attack off the southern coast of Argentina and later reported sighting an oil slick.

What makes these reports so highly interesting is that there is absolutely no rule of the sea, or of international law, which forbids these submarines, whatever their nationality, to cruise these waters, on the surface or beneath it, unless they are inside territorial waters. The submarine in the latest incident was said to be 55 miles off the Brazilian coast, on, or under, the seas. From Rio de Janeiro we learn that "a diplomatic source said it was unlikely that a friendly submarine would be in the area," but we were unaware that there were any unfriendly submarines in the world, as far as Brazil is concerned, since it is not at war with any nation.

What the diplomats are thinking, but are not saying, is that, they suspect these submarines are Russian and that they do not like Russian submarines cruising off their coasts, even 55 miles out to sea, because it is possible to launch a missile from such a submarine.

- - If, however, the free nations of the world are going to go around dropping depth-charges on every submarine suspected of being Russian, somebody is going to get hurt and it is not at all certain that the somebody or somebodies will be Russian.

To reply that Russia probably plays the same game, and certainly has followed a similar pattern with respect to foreign planes approaching its borders, is not a completely adequate answer.

Until such a time as the freedom of the high seas is denied to submarines by international law, it would be prudent for everybody to treat all submarines as friendly — which technically at least, they are. Otherwise some submarine commander is going to decide that, if it is all right for somebody to shoot at him, it is equally permissible for him to shoot back - - and who could blame him? Then the fat, which is us, could easily be in the fire, which is the H-bomb.

CANADIAN TO ATTEMPT WORLD RECORD

This September will mark the first time that a Canadian will make an attempt on an international land speed record. Ed Leavens, prominent Canadian sports car driver, has been chosen by the British Motors Corporation to assist in the piloting of its specially prepared Austin-Healey Sprite in an effort to set a new world speed record for Class G automobiles.

The attempt, to be made on the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah, is considered the Canadian sporting scene to be a new facet of international competition with which it hitherto had no association. Certainly the choice of the person to represent this country was well made. Mr. Leavens has had considerable success in motor sport competition on the Canadian scene and has also had experience in the annual international race event held in Sebring, Florida, on two occasions, driving to class wins both times.

And numerous strangers stood around
Suggesting ways he might get out.

One said some wood might do the trick
And others thought a building brick
Or two or three would help a bit.
Another thick and

One chap said; "Hold the wheel and steer,
I'll get behind and shove you clear."

Into the mud he stepped and
His shoulder 'gainst the car,

Horse-Radish In the Making

October Journal

Among the principles needed to solidify the quivering indecisiveness of the body politic is a respectful regard for radishia nodosa. We are not permanently setting any problems at rest mulling around our rubber wheels behind portable watering troughs.

Nor are we talking like a whole-some erring jag around the kitchen table in the pungent, acrid fumes of the radish as salivation-starting condiment to go with cold cuts. We mention it in the way of therapy that releases tensions, relaxes the nerves and expedites a sense of unity in a family group.

Which was when horse-radish making was a definite seasonal event, and a lad who turned the grinder attached to the drop-leaf cherry table was glad when his job was over. Mother believed the ripplest, most-to-be relish was made in early summer, although others waited until autumn.

They dug for the roots, some stubby and short, some long and slender. Then they were washed at the barnyard trough and brought to the house for sisters to finish the job. There was a powerful, tear-starting, pungent reward of the labor, roots three feet deep, and the family wept together in the preparation of a family feast.

Horse-radish is a perennial which does not like to be moved. So far as the countryman knows, it does not produce seeds, although there is a flourishing sepals for new plants. We wish all homes had a bed of horse-radish, that all families united to shed tears while their members prepared the roots for food.

Delinquents Give Warning

Minneapolis Tribune

Children don't get into serious trouble without finding themselves in circumstances which lead easily to violence.

That's the word of an expert in child psychiatry at a meeting of the American Psychiatric Association in Philadelphia.

Dr. Lawrence Kubie says: They're not always the same, of course, but there may indeed be complete accepting of fires, preoccupation with death, a mental withdrawal from the environment, speech problems, difficulty in learning to read. Behind all of these apparent problems may be as diverse as brain damage, a particularly bad home environment, or a tendency with violence.

What circumstances leading to trouble? Take a poorly controlled, impulsive child, add a situation who irritates the child, provide a weapon — and there you have a killing. Read the psychiatrist.

Such combinations of problems are rare, but far too many children get into lesser kinds of trouble which might have been prevented. A good preventive rule for parents would be to keep a lookout and when in doubt, consult a doctor or psychiatrist for social agency.

Rotten Trick By Policeman

Toronto Telegram

Nothing so much shakes confidence in the police than when a policeman not only fails in his duty but deliberately violates it. Such an instance occurred when a doorman parked his car in a prohibited place and, to evade penalty, placed a parking ticket on another car on his own. The other motorist will probably have to pay $4 for a summons instead of $3 for the tag. Apart from this, the policeman's acts border on extortion. In view of the offence and the reprehensible nature of the person committing it the Metro Police Commission was much too lenient when it suspended the policeman for only three days.

Twenty-one happy members of the faculty and student body of the Piedmont College of Demorest, Georgia, furthering their general knowledge and pursuing geography lessons of the United States and Canada, first hand, visited Belleville yesterday as part of their tour of the continent.

Permit has been issued by the office of the city building inspector to the local Salvation Army Corps for the construction of a new citadel on Pinnacle Street at an estimated cost of $12,000. It is expected that the first ground work of the new building will be commenced next week or the week after.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Houlihan and Lindsay are home to spend a few days with friends.

Mrs. Fred Hudson has returned to her home in Lindsay after visiting her parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott have left for their new home in Orillia on a motor trip. Mr. Scott will assume his new duties as manager of the Bank of Commerce Bank, after having served in a like capacity here for several years.

Mrs. S. G. Fisher and young son of Lindsay, Ont., are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Modeland, Charles St., Ke-Mayor.

Mrs. Panter and daughter Lois left on a motor trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls.

Judging from the attendance at Exhibition Park last evening, twilight baseball is very popular in Belleville. The game played was between the Ontarios of this city and the Picton team both of the Bay of Quinte League. The final score was 8 to 0 in favor of Belleville. The following composed the team: Belleville—Hagerman, Casey, Whalen, Mills, Ross, McWilliams, Hopper, J. Smith and H. Smith; Picton: J. Carter, Bowerman, B. Frederick, B. Sayers, C. Craft, A. Britton, H. Campney, H. Monahan and E. Mulholland.

Mr. David Kerr of Toronto is visiting relatives here.

Mr. Gerald Wills is spending his vacation at Cardinal, N.Y.

Dr. J. J. McDonnell and family of Pushelo, Colorado, are guests at the home of Mr. C. Whalen, Forin Street.

The yateguyers of Belleville experienced a delightful reversal of the by-law submitted to them for the purpose of granting their consent to the issuing of debentures in the sum of $150,000.00 for the erection of three new schools and making improvements in present schools. In every section of the city an adverse vote was recorded. A fair vote was polled, namely 698 out of which only 194 were in favor of the by-law. The vote was 334 against the by-law and 194 in favor of it, making the majority against the by-law 370.

Editorial: — The vote cast for and against the $70,000.00 by-law for school purposes was indicative of the feelings of the taxpayers. They have evidently come to the conclusion that Belleville's taxation is high enough now. Notwithstanding this adverse vote there is not a matter of doubt, but that the moderate sum for alterations and repairs to the present building would be readily approved.

PONOKA, ALBERTA

Soon after the first settlers arrived at this place in 1881, the Hudson's Bay Co. established a trading post and during the 1885 rebellion the post was fortified and named for Capt. John B. Oskell, officer commanding the troops. After the rebellion was quelled the residents sought a name having other than a military designation and it was suggested Ponoka, the word being the Cree name for the Black Elk, which abounded in the area. Incorporated in 1904 the town houses a large mental hospital.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE STILL WATERS

Every night, for many years, I have repeated the 23rd Psalm before failing to sleep. It is a comforting Psalm that will be in the hearts of people for so long as there will be people. I love it all but I especially am comforted by that line "He leadeth me beside the still waters, He restoreth my soul."

Millions of people have thus been targeted and uplifted by this favorite Psalm by David. Anyone who has sat near a body of silent water can understand the peaceful message that results.

There is stillness by the ocean, many a beautiful lake, and even beside the whispering brook. That same picture of peace and comfort is common to all. The "still waters" have a universal message of hope and courage.

People who say little are always those from whom we are more apt to learn than from the talkers ones. The quiet person is the comforting one. Something like the peaceful waters, or that gently summer breeze that we welcome a hot night.

We often misjudge those with whom we come in contact because they talk less than others. Perhaps it is that quiet people say little but think deeply. The still waters of the heart absorb those of the mind and give direction to our outlook. How happy we are to have the quiet ones! There is feeling behind it. How careful we should be not to misjudge another.

Values are scattered all about us in our human lives. We are wise to select only those that lead to higher ground.

Good Drivers To Get Reward

Philadelphia Bulletin

The idea seems to be spreading that care is driving is one virtue that deserves a cash reward in the form of lower insurance rates.

Some 800 insurance companies doing business in California have been experimenting since May 1 with a plan providing for such a bonus. And now the Travellers Insurance Co. announces that it will experiment with a similar program in four mid-western states.

The California plan grants a 20 per cent discount to drivers who have built up a three-year clear record, with no accidents coming over bad and no moving violations. Higher rates will be exacted from drivers with records considered unsatisfactory.

Details of the Travellers' plan are not announced, but are presumably similar. To make this experiment, the company has had to resign as a voting member of the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters, which fixes most rates.

The principle involved is one that will appeal to the sense of justice in all of us. If applied carefully, save money for themselves is the particular compensation but pay premiums that have to be unduly heavy because of the recklessness of others.

She can't walk no more than half a block and her father finds it increasingly difficult to buy her the additions) it causes too much wear to remain in her body. In perfect health, this problem does not make any difference.

Chlorine intake is not good, we all eat contain a little natural salt (or sodium). In modern diet, a little more than is sufficient for your needs. After all, the food you buy must be engaged in any such strenuous activity, but he will need little more sodium in hot weather than in winter.

Therefore — while I think the "salt substitutes" are excellent— I know there are many people being very careful of their diets, require a little bit of real salt (or sodium from some other source) in really hot weather.

The amount in any event will be small. Since no two cases are alike, I would suggest any amount, but I do say that too drastic a lack of sodium can make you weak and listless in hot weather. So discuss with your doctor whether you should (or shouldn't) add a very small amount of common table salt during the hot part of summer.

The salt substitute (various) mixtures of potassium glutamate, glutamacid acid, potassium chloride, etc.) are generally available in grocery stores; if you can't find it there, try your drug store.

The Russians, lacking a precisely similar sound in their alphabet for the English letter "h" have taken to calling our new secretary of state "Dulles" — and the current foreign ministers' meeting.

Secretary Dulles should not feel too badly, however. It appeared before, to notables like Samuel Clary Gompers and Averell Garriman. Some American leaders, like Franklin D. Roosevelt, escaped gumillion, but not many. Garry Truman did pretty well. Ingersoll must still wince every time it happens.

A counter weapon, possibly, is available to our side at the four power table. Dulles was in error on calling Foreign Minister Gromyko "Mr. Homyko."

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

SUBSTITUTES ARE EFFECTIVE FOR A SALT-RESTRICTED DIET

Yes, there are numerous "salt substitutes" on the market which do not contain sodium yet give you the "salty" flavor you want.

As I write this, I have a small salt shaker filled with one of these salt substitutes, and about a minute and a half ago I poured a bit of it into the palm of my hand, and tasted it with my tongue. And I say that it is absolutely satisfactory as a substitute. It looks like salt, pours like salt, and tastes so much like it that I'm not sure I could tell it from the real salt unless I happened to be concentrating on it. If I were taking a blindfold test, and conscientiously trying to tell which was which, I'm sure I could. But if somebody put the substitute in the shaker before the table, I don't think I'd notice the difference at all.

The principle involved is one that will appeal to the sense of justice in all of us. If applied carefully, save money for themselves is the particular compensation but pay premiums that have to be unduly heavy because of the recklessness of others.

Great Artist At Age of 8

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Referring to one of the leading figures on the platform in the Globe and Mail said he was the youngest pianist to appear at Massey Hall, and he was only then 30 years of age. That statement is very far from wrong.

Back in June, 1910, a little boy dressed in a white velvet suit with lace collar, was billed locally like "Little Lord Fauntleroy," stepped onto the platform in Queen's Hall, and gave a brilliant rendering of Tschaikowsky's "Concerto in B Flat," under the baton of Sir Henry J. Wood and Sir Edward Elgar conducting. The audience gave him a tremendous ovation. Sir Henry had a heavy drilling for those who called "child prodigies" and only allowed great artists to appear with his orchestra.

The great artist in this case was Solomon, which is the only name he is known by.

He was eight years old.

Solomon is still playing and is one of the greatest pianists in the world.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

According to my Grandma, everybody had to eat a peck of dirt before they died. This philosophy served two purposes. It allowed small boys to eat a certain amount of dirt without social expectations. And it excused anybody over 40 for their bad habits, property, such as gangling grandchildren, and their hand at

An eminent doctor beside whom I sat at a dinner party recently yesterday holds that my Grandma was right. One of the great risks society is running today, he said, is through too much cleanliness. Human species do not evolve, across uncounted and countless aeons of time, through sterility, but quite the opposite. He was mucky.

BLESSING OF FORGETFULNESS

The mother of one of my closest friends had passed her ninety-second year. Her memory was failing and she knew it. Yet that, although I had been in and out of her home many times for some decades ago, it had to be explained to her who I was. She took hearing aids and "what have you?" I inquired. And the beautiful quiet answer was given for one of her years, and said "Oh yes, I'm happy. I am what I am. I have anything long enough to worry about it."

A loss of memory is an affliction indeed, yet if we could completely and utterly lose all memory of grudges we would be a lot happier. Some people simply will not forget. They keep on remembering how they were slighted them or acted with what appeared to be a dishonorable way regarding their family. They can tell you the exact day which they have not been invited, the time they have passed certain persons on the street and received no sign of recognition; the extent to which they are known by boss or foreman.

How fortunate for such people if they could say, "I can't remember anything long enough to worry about it." The gift of memory is a great deprivation but the willingness and ability to forget slights and grudges is something else again. Here is where a factor of genuine spiritual value.

Forgiveness does not harbor a thing—foolish person than the one who nurses a grudge.

British Papers Say Chicago Visit Greatest

LONDON (Reuters) — British newspapers almost ran out of superlatives today in describing the welcome Chicago gave Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Correspondents describe it as a "stupendous" or a "great" welcome and feature the Queen's own remark: "This has been an unforgettable day."

The Daily Express writer calls it the "greatest turnout in Chicago's history, outstripping the triumphs of Truman and MacArthur in the last 14 years."

Police, he adds, were "astonished" by the turnout of 1,000,000 human republicans."

JAMES HEADLINES

The Daily Mail's front page story ran under the headline: Chicago, Chicago, that wonderful town's been hello."

The newspaper's correspondent, Don Hickox, writes: "This is one of the hard hearts of middle-western isolationism and anti-British feeling, today gave the Queen the most tumultuous reception I have ever seen outside the United Kingdom."

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent, Alden Hatch and Eric Downton, refer to the Queen being "clearly excited" at seeing Chicago for the first time.

The pair describe the scene that "streamers started out of Damon Runyon stopped chewing their cigars to wave small Union Jacks and shout 'Hi Liz' or 'Hiya Queenie' or 'Hi Phil.'" was reunited with her four-year-old son, Bobby.

Mrs. Oxford was visiting her husband as one of the prisoner hostages. She was released Monday after the hostages became severely ill. She refused to leave the grounds, however, waiting for the release of her husband.

GOT MILK FOR CHILDREN

Mrs. Oxford said: "They were pretty decent. Those fellows even held us. They got the kids milk."

She said the men and children were not the least afraid although the guards held as hostages were armed.

Reformatory superintendent Ernest Timpani said that 19 members of his own staff led the charge and were followed into the dining by state patrolmen. He said three of the prisoners were knocked unconscious by the flash of the tear gas shell. He did not believe any of them were seriously injured.

The convicts let two deadlines pass without a move to carry out threats of "We know where to stick the knife."

SPEAKS WITH SON

The mother, brother and sister of Owens, the youngest rebel, came to the reformatory and talked with him by telephone from the superintendent's office.

"David, it would be easier on you if you gave up," his mother told him.

Maximum - security prisoners, the convicts were working in the reformatory kitchen under a single guard. Timpani said they overpowered the man, grabbed two other guards en route to the visitors' room and took control.

Timpani said that at one time he offered to become the hostage of the convicts if they would free the others. They refused.

LUCKY NO ONE KILLED

Timpani said: "It was lucky that no one was killed." He meant by the convicts.

One of the hostages said the convicts, serving terms for robbery, theft and arson, brandished their weapons and for the first few hours stationed themselves at strategic points within the room. At the long hours dragged on, the four convicts relaxed their guard more and more.

They appeared to be more nervous and more unsure of themselves as the hours were on.

Each of two knives possessed by the convicts was about 20 inches long, wide near the handle and tapering to a sharp point. The forks they also used as weapons were two-pronged, the kind used in handling large pieces of meat while carving.

Man Getting Lift Killed

OTTAWA (CP) — A hitchhiker was killed Monday and three youths were injured when a car bearing California licence plates careered off the highway near Bradley's Quarries, 14 miles west of Ottawa.

Dead is George Toyne, 34, of Carleton Place, who was being given a lift to Ottawa in the car.

Injured were Norman Randle, 17, and Glen Flood, 18, both of Pickering, and Martin Udall, 17, of Ajax.

Randle suffered a broken collar bone and lacerations. Flood and Udall suffered lacerations and abrasions.

Police said the car rolled over several times after leaving Highway 15. They said the road was slippery due to a heavy rainfall.

SOVIET SPACE DOGHOUSE — Dog models were used in this Soviet rocket chamber designed to carry a pair of canines aloft for short space flights. The chamber, enclosed in parachute pack, was exhibited at the industrial achievement fair in Moscow last February. Moscow radio Monday announced a space rocket containing two dogs had been launched and returned to earth safely last Thursday. No attitude details were given but the condition of the dogs after landing was reported good. (AP Wirephoto).

Phony Bomb Threat Mars Queen's Visit

CHICAGO (AP) — A phony bomb threat briefly intruded into Queen Elizabeth's visit Monday.

While she was riding through the University of Chicago area, the police complaint room received a telephone call from a man who mumbled:

"There's a bomb going to go off in the Museum of Science and Industry at 3:30 o'clock."

The warning call came at 2:17 p.m. The Queen was scheduled to be at the museum on the south side between 3 and 4 p.m. But her entourage was running about 45 minutes behind schedule.

Police accompanying the royal party skewed the group's progress while bomb squad detectives quickly searched the museum.

When 3:30 p.m. passed without an explosion police dismissed the call as the work of a prankster and the Queen and her party were permitted to enter the museum.

Publishers Try To Stave off Ink Drought

LONDON (Reuters) — Newspaper publishers met today in an effort to stave off an ink drought that threatens to shut down Britain's big national dailies after Wednesday's editions.

The publishers hoped to get enough ink to last them at least until next weekend by pooling supplies in transit from the manufacturers to the newspapers.

Leaders of the striking National Society of Operative Printers and Assistants—representing the ink workers—said Monday night they would co-operate with the newspapers in pooling supplies already "in the pipeline."

But they stressed that they would not deliver ink still held in the strikebound plants—enough to keep the national dailies going for several weeks.

TWO DISPUTES

The national newspapers—which circulate throughout the country—are not directly involved in two disputes in the British printing industry.

The main walkout was called by 10 unions representing printing workers in the smaller provincial newspapers and printing firms throughout the country for back demands for a 10-per-cent wage increase and a 40-hour week.

The strike has hit 300,000 workers and shut down 1,100 provincial newspapers and 4,000 printing firms, sent out thirteen also asking for a 10-per-cent wage increase and 40-hour week, with Danko.

in a statement: "You will always be able to buy Imperial gasoline in Toronto."

Since the war started prices for regular-grade gasoline have dropped from the normal 43.9 cents a gallon to as low as 27.9 cents.

The association demands that oil companies sell gasoline to all dealers at a uniform price, eliminate subsidies and put a ban on price signs at service station entrances.

Meanwhile, in Hamilton 96 per cent of the city's 283 stations agreed to a proposed lockup to fight a price war there. But Mr. Langdon said it probably will be another week before a Hamilton lockup date is announced.

The price war has also reached the town of Collingwood in the southern Georgian Bay area, where prices have dropped steadily the last two weeks and range from 27.9 cents to 30 cents a gallon.

Collides With Train

BRANTFORD (CP) — Steve Danko, 61, of Delhi was killed Monday when the car in which he was riding collided with a New York Central freight train at Lasalette, near Delhi. Driver of the auto was Frank Stefan, who lived near Danko.

A funny that's honest-and-truly funny starts in the Ontario Intelligencer today.

Its name is "The Muggles" and you'll find it on the comic page. Easy to glance at and easy to grasp, this new comic strip by Bob Cooper will appeal to every member of the family.

It has the following cast: Pa and Ma Muggles (she runs the joint); the precocious daughter, Sharon Lee; the struggling artist son, Harold; the elder daughter, Sally (the most stable member of the family); Aunt Mabel, the spinster aunt; and Uncle Ben, who works hard at being unemployed.

Oh yes, and there's Chester, the faithful dog who philosophically tolerates the rest of the family.

"The Muggles" may not be a typical American family, but then, how many American families are?

Here's a rundown on Bob Casper, both artist and author for "The Muggles":

Received first prize in the National Scholastic Awards before he was 16. Graduated from Columbia University with an M.A. Studied three years at the Art Students League and the Hans Hoffman School of Art.

After military service in Europe, became interested in animated cartoons for TV and Pa and Ma Muggles (she runs the joint); the precocious daughter, Sharon Lee; the struggling artist son, Harold; the elder daughter, Sally (the most stable member of the family); Aunt Mabel, the spinster aunt; and Uncle Ben, who works hard at being unemployed.

Oh yes, and there's Chester, the faithful dog who philosophically tolerates the rest of the family.

"The Muggles" may not be a typical American family, but then, how many American families are?

Here's a rundown on Bob Casper, both artist and author for "The Muggles":

After military service in Europe, became interested in animated cartoons for TV and the movies. Worked on the "Mr. Magoo" series. His exceptional work in this field led to the designing of the animated character, "Mr. Oop," which won first prize at the Cannes International Film Festival in 1957.

An unusually talented young man of 29, Bob Casper has far more to his credit than his contributions to magazines, books, movies and TV. He is gifted with a deep perception of human values and humor.

For a truly funny funny, don't miss "The Muggles," appearing today and every day.

Going Away Residents Feted With Gifts

POINT ANNE — On Saturday evening in the Point Anne Orange Hall a going-away reception was held for Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Maracle, Sr., and their son, Alfred, Jr.

The evening was fully enjoyed and pleasantly spent in playing euchre and round dancing. Winners in euchre were ladies — Mrs. Dorothy Hart, Mrs. Millie Burleigh, Mrs. Percy Green; low — Mrs. Eileen Akey; men's — George MacDonald, Alfred Maracle, Gordon Chisholm; low — Mr. Bassett; lone hands — Mrs. Jack Clark.

After euchres, Mrs. Charles Hart conducted a draw and Mrs. Maracle and son to the chairs of honor where Mrs. Millie Burleigh read the address and Mr. William Juby, Mr. Gordon Chisholm presented them with two lovely upholstered chairs in green and wine for which he reciprocated most graciously thanked them all for the lovely gift and for those who were so kind in having the reception for them.

Refreshments of many good things were served.

Round dancing was also enjoyed for a short period.

Mr. and Mrs. Maracle and son have moved to a farm near Desoronto. They will be missed in the community having lived here for many years where Mr. Maracle was employed at the Canada Cement plant. Children of Mr. and Mrs. Maracle attending their reception from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Maracle and daughter, Buffalo, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. W. Gallaghan of Toronto; Mrs. M. Burleigh, Belleville; Mrs. Percy Green, Desoronto.

UPPER AND LOWER

WILBY, England (CP)—An advertisement in a shop window in this Northamptonshire village said: "For sale, two-berth oven."

ROSLIN — On Thursday evening St. Paul's Woman's Auxiliary entertained Roslin United Women's Association, at their regular meeting held at the home of Mrs. Donald Sills.

The president, Miss Phyllis Sills, presided and in few opening remarks welcomed the guests.

The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. E. Geen.

The number of items of business were dealt with.

Mrs. H. Sills presided for the program including a humorous reading, "When Father Laid the carpet," given by Mrs. D. Sills; Mrs. J. Fargey gave a reading, "Quiz Needs."

The leader introduced the guest speaker, Miss Grills, of Belleville, who showed pictures of her recent trip to the world hockey games in Czechoslovakia and Prague.

The speaker took her listeners with her from Czechoslovakia to Switzerland and showed many of the beauty spots there...Then on to Paris, France with its famous Notre Dame Cathedral; the Opera House; Eiffel Tower; the home of Marie Antoinette; Palace of Louis 14. From there on to London, England. Some places included Buckingham Palace; Westminster Abbey; St. Paul's Cathedral; Picadilly Circus; the Houses of Parliament; Tower of London; the famous waxworks of Madam Tousaud, with their lifelike wax replicas of famous persons.

From there to the Isle of Jersey where no other breed of cattle is allowed on the Island. One thing here that fascinated the speaker was watching the cows coming in and going out.

The trip over, the party returned to Canada, where several slides were taken at the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa.

Mrs. D. Woodward thanked the speaker for a most interesting and enjoyable travelogue, saying "If you can't travel pictures are next best."

A reading, "The Umbrella" was given by Mrs. Sills.

Miss Margaret Bates favored with several violin selections.

Mrs. J. Fargey, on behalf of the visitors, thanked the president and members for their kind invitation to attend this meeting and also for the enjoyable evening.

After the meeting closed, the leader conducted a contest.

Dainty refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

LONG STAY

ALDERSHOT, Ont. (CP)—Fred Leathem, who said he intended to stay "just until Christmas" when she started in 1930, has just retired after 30 years of teaching at Fairfield public school.

Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Mary Lou Donovan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Len Rushworth of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Anderson of Glasgow, Scotland.

ANDERSON — DONOVAN

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the setting on Saturday, June 13, at 2.00 p.m. for a lovely double - ring summertime wedding when Mary Lou Donovan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Len Rushworth, of Belleville, became the bride of William Anderson, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Anderson, of Glasgow, Scotland. The Reverend R. D. MacLean, pastor of the church, officiated before a background of red and white peonies interspersed with ferns. White satin bows designted the guest pews.

Mr. Kgerton Boyce, church organist, provided the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. Len Rushworth, was lovely in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over net, fashioned in waltz-length, with fitted bodice featuring a Sweetheart neckline and cap sleeves. She wore a finger-tip lace veil, and crowned encrusted with seed pearls, and matching mitts. Her flowers were of red and white rosebuds.

Miss Carole Day, of Belleville, attended the bride wearing pale blue crystalette with net overskirt, matching net gloves, white picture hat, and white shoes. She carried a nosegay of pink and white rosebuds.

Mr. Ian MacKenzie, of Toronto, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Richard Donovan, brother of the bride, Belleville, and Michael Bulmer, of Scarboro, Ontario, ushered the guests.

The reception and wedding dinner was held at Club Cedars, Cannifton Road, where the bride's mother received, wearing a royal blue brocade chiffon in reddingote style, with white hat, gloves and shoes, and corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, gowned in white and green flowered silk, with white hat, shoes and gloves, and corsage of pink carnations.

The bride's table was appropriately appointed with the traditional white wedding cake centring white damask and flanked by silver candelabra and the bridal bouquets.

For travelling to Toronto, New York City and Long Island by air, the bride chose a pale blue linen suit, white feathered hat, white gloves and shoes, and corsage of white gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will reside in Toronto.

Guests were present from Scotland; Carry, Indiana; Chicago; Toronto, and Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The bride was entertained, prior to her marriage, by the staff of the Independent Order of Foresters, of which both bride and bridegroom are members, at a miscellaneous shower. Miss Carole Day of Belleville, also entertained at a miscellaneous shower.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bruce Taylor are pictured following their recent marriage in St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc. The bride is the former Miss Annette Rose Provost, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Provost, of Marmora. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taylor of Madoc.

TAYLOR — PROVOST

Baskets of pink and white peonies formed a pretty background in St. John the Baptist Anglican Church, Madoc, on Saturday, June 27th, at 2 o'clock, for a lovely summer wedding, when Annette Rose Provost, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Provost, Marmora, was united in marriage to William Bruce Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taylor, Madoc.

The Rev. W. Glovetti officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Mrs. J. Aylsworth, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her floor-length bridal gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon illusion net over silk taffeta, featuring a fitted lace bodice having a nylon yoke and Queen Elizabeth collar, edged with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. The long sheath-like sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists. The skirt was of tiered Chantilly lace and nylon illusion caught to either side. Her tiny plateau-shaped crown of embroidered Alencon lace was edged with iridescent sequins and seed pearls and held her finger-tip veil of embroidered nylon tulle. She carried a bouquet of red roses and lily-of-the valley, mingled with fern. Her only jewellery was a tiny silver cross, a gift of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor, Miss Jeanne Provost, of Marmora, sister of the bride, was gowned in aqua Chantilly lace and nylon net over taffeta, enhanced with fitted, strapless bodice, matching lace bolero and floor-length skirt. A picture hat of white lace, white gloves and white shoes, completed her ensemble. She carried a nosegay of pink and white feathered carnations.

Mrs. Leo Provost Jr., of Marmora, sister-in-law of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a floor-length blush-pink gown identical to the maid of honor, with white lace picture hat, white gloves and shoes and carried a nosegay of pink and white feathered carnations.

Mr. Edward Taylor, of Peterborough, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, while Mr. Leo Provost, of Marmora, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ralph Taylor, of Madoc, brother of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in St. John's Parish Hall, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who chose a soft blue gown of lace over taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of pink feathered carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, gowned in navy nylon jersey with pink accessories and corsage of pink feathered carnations.

The bride's table was appointed in white linen, centered with the traditional three-tier wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of roses.

For travelling to Ottawa and points in the province of Quebec, the bride chose a dress of white taffeta, figured in blue and green and featuring a full harem skirt, elbow-length sleeves and scoop neckline, with white shoes, gloves and hat and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will reside in Madoc.

Guests were present from Toronto, Peterborough, Trenton, Alderwood, Marmora, Fuller, Flinton and Madoc.

Basic Mixes: A Serial for July in Three Parts

by Mary Moore

Recently we have been receiving an increasing number of requests for all-purpose flour mixes for biscuits and muffins and hot breads.

I can give those mixes to our readers and do, but unless the variations are attached they are not as useful as they could be.

The variations are so many that they require more space than one column permits. So we have decided to give the Basic Biscuit Mix today with some new variations. Next week we will give you an Oatmeal Muffin Mix with some variations that are recent discoveries. The following week we will give you a Cornmeal Mix and variations for it.

One thing we want to stress: If I know our readers — and I think I do — this will be popular with the sector who have big families and big appetites to cater to so please clip this now. Also watch for and clip the second and third instalments of this idea — Oatmeal Muffin Mix next Tuesday, July 14th and Cornmeal Mix July 21st. Okay?

BASIC BISCUIT MIX:

NOTE:

All measurements must be made level using measuring cups and measuring spoons. One pound best quality hydrogenated shortening (the shortening you use must be waterfree; that is why you must not use lard). 9 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1¼ tablespoons salt, ¼ cup single-acting baking powder. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt 3 times. Cut up the shortening and blend it into the sifted dry mix with a pastry blender until the mixture resembles rolled oats in size. Store in covered jars on kitchen shelf or refrigerator. Try to use it up within one month.

VARIATIONS:

In these variations Basic Biscuit Mix will be referred to as BBM.

CHEESE OR CHIVES HOT BISCUITS:

Three cups loosely packed BBM, ¾ cup milk (at room temperature), ⅔ cup grated old Cheddar cheese or 2 tablespoons each finely chopped chives and parsley. Add milk and cheese or chives and parsley and quickly mix enough to turn out on board. Knead for 15 seconds. Pat out to ¾" thickness and cut out with 1½" floured cutter. Bake on unbuttered baking sheet at 450 deg. Fahr. about 12 to 15 minutes.

RASPBERRY SHORTCAKE:

To 2 cups BBM add 2 tablespoons sugar, ¾ cup cream or ½ cup milk, and ¼ cup melted butter. Stir to blend. Divide into halves, pat out into two —¾" thick rounds. Butter the top of one and place the other over it. Buttered baking sheet. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. about 18 minutes or until baked at centre. Remove from oven. While still warm carefully split into two layers. Cover bottom liberally with sweetened fresh raspberries. Replace top. Cover with more raspberries (using about 1 quart in all. Top liberally with sweetened whipped cream and decorate with big perfect berries.

Mixes continued next week.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

FAMILY SHOULD FOLLOW USUAL CUSTOM

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

It is our family custom to say grace before meals at the table. When we have guests who are of a different faith, do you think we should omit saying grace?

— K. L.

Certainly not. It is correct, customary, for a family to follow its usual custom. During the grace the guests merely sit with bowed head.

HOSTESS' FIANCE SHOULD KEEP PRIZE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Miss A gave a bridge party and offered a very fine prize. Her fiance won high score, accepted the prize. Two of the guests claim that, as he was the hostess' fiance, he should not have accepted the prize, and that it was a breach of etiquette for Miss A. to give the prize to him. — Reader

Nonsense. Of course the hostess' fiance was entitled "to have and to keep" the prize he won. He was there in the role of a guest, competed with the others, won the prize, and should have it.

DON'T SEND READY-MADE "THANK-YOU" CARD

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a person is ill at home and receives "Get Well" cards, without gifts, would it be proper to acknowledge these cards with "Thank-you" cards? — Reader

No. It is never correct to use the ready-made "Thank-you" cards to thank for anything, for cards, for presents, or for any other kind gestures. The words printed on these cards are not your words, and so are too impersonal. For every "Get Well" card you receive, you should, as soon as you can, write a friendly little note in your own words . . . one or two sentences will show your courtesy.

Grace J. — My problem is my mother-in-law. She claims to be an invalid and gets loads of attention from my husband by building each situation into a crisis.

* * *

Last month alone she complained of the flu, severe neuralgia, intestinal troubles and migraine. I, too, had a cold, a muscle pain, a bad stomach and a headache, but I would be ashamed to make an issue of any of them.

My husband worries so much. If only he would recognize that his mother is a faker — and act accordingly.

* * *

Louis J. — Grace has always been jealous of the time I spend with my mother. She always suspects that Mother is faking, but more than once Mother has admitted that she didn't even tell us the whole truth about her illness.

Mother is 70 and lives by herself. This is her own choice, but I don't think she should be neglected just because she chooses to be independent.

I believe Mother doesn't like to complain. She has always been delicate, I can't ignore her when she asks for me.

The Council: Faking or exaggerating illness is one of the top disturbing factors reported by children and elderly people.

Healthy young men and women should recognize, however, that both children and elderly people are more apt to feel lonely, helpless and subject to panic. The complaint of illness is often just an easy way of describing some very bad inner feelings. Viewed from this angle it can't be considered faking.

In the case of a 70-year-old woman living alone, we don't think her loved ones can afford to take an offhand attitude when she signals for help, but it might be easier for everyone concerned if certain definite arrangements could be made to give her a little more peace of mind.

For example, it might be a good idea to make an arrangement with a trustworthy neighbor to look in on the elderly woman regularly. Many women would be glad to earn a few extra dollars in this way. Louis' mother should be free to call on this woman in an emergency.

Louis should also discuss his mother's general health with her doctor. If the doctor feels her health is good, she should be encouraged to get out of her house and among people as much as possible. This will help her get her mind off herself. Perhaps she will find friends of her own age and they'll get in the habit of calling upon one another when they aren't feeling up to par.

Instead of taking the negative attitude of saying, "Your mother is faking," Grace should take the positive position of asking, "What can we do to make your mother comfortable?" If ways and means can be found to reassure the elderly woman that she isn't being deserted, she may be less prone to make unnecessary demands.

Mother's Helper

AN ELECTRIC bottle warmer for your baby's bottle is truly a time-and-step saver. Use it right in baby's room, for those night feedings, and by the time you've changed him, the bottle will be ready. Incidentally, even if the electric cord can be disconnected directly from the warmer, it's better for any electric appliance if you first pull out the wall plug.

Regard Blue Bombers Threat In Western Football Union

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Blue Bombers are odd assassion and part of the generally regarded as the threat team's youth movement. In Cal-with-the Western Interprovincial gary, Joe Kapp, University of Football Union opener less than California quarterback, shares a month away. duties with Bobby Witzenburger.

The third Grey Cup champs are Regina's quarterback will be expected to be tougher than ever, Al Ford, a rookie from Palo and the rest of the league is re-Alto State who replaces the building to meet the challenge. George Herring, acquired from B.C. Lions.

New coaching staffs for British Bombers, coached by George Columbia Lions and Edmonton Terlep, have proven backfield Eskimos, a fresh backfield for strength in halfs Jack Hill, lead-Calgary Stampeders and Sask-ing WIFU scorer in 1958, and atchewan Roughriders — a rash other ground gainers. of rookie - dazzle halfbacks on most of the clubs—that's the picture as training camps swing into high gear.

New head coach Wayne Robinson, 28, former Winnipeg line coach, is looking for youth and The Bombers walked away with the league last year, win-desire in his B.C. Lions and has ning 12 and losing three. The good backfield material to choose Eskimos had a 9-4-1 record, their from. The line also will have new poorest in five years, but they blood. finished second.

The Stampeders are again se-Saskatchewan finished 7-7-2 and cure in backfield, with reason. Besides Calgary 5-9-1. The Lions won Kapp, Pat Abbruzzi, Montreal's only five of 16 games.

PARKER BACK

The clubs promise their fans fluid backfields and brainy quarterbacks. Jackie Parker, Canada's outstanding player in 1958, will again lead the Eskin. Jim Van Pelt, sensation of the Grey Cup last year, will quick-step Regina.

The Lions have lured lowa flash Randy Duncan, a 21-year-

WINNING FORMATION

Coach Eagle Keys of Edmonton, promoted from line coach after Sam Lyle's surprise resignation in May, will stick with the split-T attack using a double-tail-back formation—the offence that has brought Eddy three Grey Cups in the last five seasons.

Parker again will be the head man and backs Johnny Bright and Normie Kwong the shoulders of the Oilmen—if Kwong returns. He has been dickering about terms.

Winnipeg has made few changes. Canadian star Gerry James, his broken leg healed, will play again after being out most of 1958. Fullback Leo Lewis is again the backfield threat behind the brilliant Van Pelt.

New import backs include Eddie Vincent from Iowa, Big Ten rushing champion in 1956.

KWONG MAY RETIRE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Normie Kwong, 29, veteran fullback of the WIFU Edmonton Eskimos, says he has been told by his club to sign or retire. In a telephone interview with The Sun from Calgary, Kwong is seriously thinking of resigning. The all - star back, who has business interests here, and wants Edmonton to trade him to British Columbia Lions.

Harness Racing

TORONTO (CP)—Wilbert Hopkins of Port Elgin, drove his three-year-old filly Cathy G. to her second win of the short season now at New Woodbine Monday night.

It was the sixth time in six outings that Cathy G. had been either first or second, and her third victory this year.

In the stretch, Hopkins slowed to get room, moved wide of the leader, Lou Gales Boy, and came on to win by 1¼ lengths and justify the even-money odds with which she went to the post. Time of 2:09.4 represented a new mile mark for Cathy G.

Driver Harold North was set down for 10 evenings for "back-ing off of the field and an unsatisfactory drive" Saturday night.

GOSHEN, N.Y. (AP) — Nine three-year-old fillies met today at historic Harness Racing Track in the $17,867 Coaching Club Trot-ting Oaks after rain interrupted the Wednesday day-session of the week-long grand circuit meeting.

Rain ended racing Monday after the first elimination heats of the $31,036 Debutante Stakes for two-year-old pacing fillies and two heats of the $13,864 Acorn Stakes for two-year-old trotting fillies.

Debutante Girl, owned by Greer brothers, East Providence, R.I., and driven by Franklin Safford won the second heat on the Debutante in 2:05, fastest in the history of the stakes. The old mark of 2:06 was set by Elizabeth Scott, unbeaten last year by Wonderful Time.

Art Wall Wins Playoff in Flint Open

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — The sweet smell of money revived Billy Wall's game and chased the jitters and tournament fatigue, and today they are calling the 28-year-old pro golfer "old money-bags."

Wall turned back PGA champion Dow Finsterwald Monday in an 18-hole playoff for the Flint Open Golf Classic, worth $9,500 for his fourth major success of the year.

The 35-year-old veteran from Pocono Manor won $2,000 for his fourth major success of the year.

The 35-year-old veteran from Pocono Manor won $2,000 first money out of the $52,000 jackpot and collected another $500 as his share of the playoff gate receipts.

The double payoff raised his earnings for the year to $35,296.

Winner of the Masters, Pebble Beach and Azalea events before arriving in Flint "just dog-tired from too much golf," Wall fired a one-under-par 71 and defeated his 29-year-old rival by—two strokes.

A disastrous 72nd hole kept him from victory in regulation time on Sunday.

He had taken a double-bogey six after having the $9,000 check all but in his pocket. Only a bogey-five by Finsterwald on the same hole eliminated him from the tournament into overtime. They tied at 282, six strokes better than par over the 7,280-hole layout.

U.S. BOATS WIN

TORONTO (CP)—Three United States skippers captured the international class 14-foot dinghy Emmerson Trophy during the lake skiff sailing regatta here. Stuart Walker of Annapolis, Md., Dave Thorpe of Long Island, N.Y., and Charles Shumway of Marian, Mass., became the first American winners since the cos-test was set up again on a yearly challenge basis five years ago.

Dinah Shore to Buy Gowns In Europe for Fall Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Dinah Shore, now on a leisurely two-month European holiday with family, will wind up her vacation with a bit of business that makes her the most enviable woman in television. August will be spent buying clothes in Paris, Rome and maybe Madrid.

The gowns—original from the great dressmakers—will be specific attractions on Dinah's series of fall and winter Sunday night color shows. During the shopping tour, she's to be accompanied by a fashion consultant who will fly from Hollywood for the delightful chores.

Actually, Dinah Shore's clothes have been consistently among the big attractions of the musical show. She is one of few women TV stars who has reflected current fashion trends, although she has never carried high style to extremes.

DESIGNS CLOTHES

Most of her clothes have been designed for her by Jean Louis, an NBC-TV staff, who also designs the costumes she uses. His is a big job, because last season alone Dinah had more than 100 changes in the course of 37 shows. Next season, this will be cut to 39 Sunday night shows but she'll also be seen in special shows as a visiting star.

Fashion may be spinach to a lot of male TV viewers, but Dinah's clothes and her smart way of wearing them has attracted an especially large feminine viewing audience. And it's a grateful audience for this huge exposure to the early Victorian styles of the ladies in the westerns and the broad - shouldered suits of the late, late movies.

Ods and ends: Maurice Chevalier will do a CBS radio special, Holiday with Chevalier Sunday, Sept. 27, aided by a packet of Parisian stars—Danielle Darrieux, Juliette Greco, Line Reynaud and others. The hour-long broadcast comes, incredibly, exactly 30 years from the day on which Chevalier made his American radio debut.

Pat Boone Will Do Some Smooching in Next Picture

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was all a mistake that he became known as the kissless Hollywood hero, says Pat Boone. To prove it, he'll do some smooching in his new movie.

The singing star explained the mixup before descening into a man-made cavern for The Center of the Earth. The script calls for some live scenes with curvaceous Diana Baker, and Pat indicated he'll go through with them.

"I didn't know what to say. The issue had never come up because then I had been no kissing scenes in the script. I wanted time to discuss it with my wife and to think about how the fans and my church would react. But Henry wanted a decision right then, so I said no.

CREATED UPROAR

"The next thing I knew, all the papers and wire services carried the news that I wouldn't kiss Shirley—because of my religion. It created such an uproar that Henry and Producer David Weisbart, wanted to write a kissing scene into the movie. I decline again, because it would seem as though I were going back on my principles."

Now he has talked the situation over with Mrs. Boone, Pat said, "and she agrees it would be all right, although she would prefer to keep that part of our lives solely to ourselves. She realizes that love scenes are a part of this business, and hopes other people will too."

Why is Boone doing an adven-ture story about exploring the earth's interior instead of the frothy musicals that have made him a box office star?

"Because this is the first chance I've had to play a role much like Pat Boone," he explained. "I've been studying dramatics each winter for two years with Sandford Meisner, and I want to do straight roles."

But so far this won't go away disappointed, he will have, three songs in To the Centre of the Earth.

WINS PGA TITLE

FRENCH LICK, Ind. (AP)—Betsy Rawls, a Pitt Beta Kappa who majors in winning golf tournaments, won grimly Monday to take the U.S. Ladies Professional Golf Association title by a single stroke. The 31-year - old onetime physics student shot a one-over-par 73 for a 72-hole total of 288 that edged Patty Berg of West Chicago, Ill. Louise Suggs of Cincinnati was third with 290.

At the Belle

Clifton James: Actor, Soldier and Monty's Double

Early morning riders in London had a surprise this year as they went on their way to work at Baker street station when they found the walls adorned with posters admonishing "CARELESS TALK COSTS LIVES!" Even the less observant doer the Monsejgneur — was advertising all the latest news items from the second Front!

The area around the station had been transformed overnight to resemble the year 1944., and it fitted in with strange posters, which greeted the workers, there were some 100 military personnel mixing with them — fighter pilots, Royal Navy and Army and Wrens all dressed in wartime uniforms. The whole area was being used for a scene in the Maxwell Seton production from Warner Bros., "I Was Monty's Double," which is playing tonight and Wednesday at the Belle Theatre. The picture stars John Mills and Cecil Parker.

In this instance, James played himself and as he did in real life was walked unsuspected into a News Theatre to watch the first newsreel pictures from the second front, and the man he had impersonated directing the Belle operations.

New B.C. Govt. House, Said to Be Lavish Dwelling, Awaits Visit of Royal Couple

VICTORIA (CP) — A magnificent view over the Strait of Juan de Fuca, from a mansion of splendor with its lavish royal suite and fine cuisine, awaits Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip at British Columbia's new government house.

The just - completed, $1,600,000 residence of the Lieutenant-Governor is probably one of the most lavish, and certainly the most up-to-date, of all official residences in Canada including Ottawa's Rideau Hall, the residence of the Governor-General.

Its 37 occupancy rooms combine a touch of the old world with a touch of the new. It has more than 150 rooms in all — if cupboards, closets, bathrooms and hallways are counted.

It took two years to build, replacing the 55 - year - old official residence which burned down in April, 1957. That was the second government home to burn down on the same site. The new one is protected against fire by a modern automatic system.

HILL-TOP SITE

It is in this neo - Tudor style mansion high on a hill that Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will be in residence for two days, July 16 and 17. Citizens of Victoria, a city noted for its English flavor, will look with pride at the royal standard flying from the flagstaff.

Landscaped gardens and rockeries and woodlands surround the structure. The Queen and Prince Philip will have several dining sessions, from breakfasts to formal dinners, in their private apartment government house is the after- noon of July 16, in the official dining room. With its mustard-colored, Irish-woven rug, it has seats for 40.

For the table, it's a safe assumption that there will be numerous Canadian and British Columbia specialties, ranging from the choicest of Pacific ocean salmon and steaks from the Alberta ranches to the Canadian breakfast favorite of ham and eggs with flapjacks cooked with Quebec maple syrup. The kitchen is in charge of Chinese cooks.

VIEW OUTLOOKS

The huge mansion overlooks not only the city of Victoria but the blue waters of the Juan de Fuca strait, with the snow-capped peaks of the Olympic Mountains in Washington state, on the U.S. side of the water, in the distant background.

The Queen and Prince Philip will use the four official guests in the new home of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross of British Columbia and Mrs. Ross. It was Mrs. Ross who supervised the decor throughout. Many of the paintings, vases and other valuable pieces were donated by people from across Canada.

Many of the furnishings came from Scotland, Mr. Ross' native land.

Veteran reporters who toured the mansion were impressed from the minutes they walked into the red - carpeted entranceway from under the old stone portico, left standing from the fire which burned the previous structure. Newly-sanded, the portico is incorporated into the new structure but still carries the date 1902 in Roman numerals. It was the second old government house was opened.

STATELY INTERIOR

The grand entrance hall has circular stairways curving each side to the entrance to the second floor, and paintings of Queen Victoria and Prince Philip command the walls on each side of the high stone fireplace.

The main floor contains a ballroom which can accommodate 600 dancers, and its chandeliers were imported after Buckingham Palace. There is also the huge dining room, two drawing rooms, a business office, an office for the Lieutenant-Governor and another for his wife.

On the second floor, besides the royal suite and the Lieutenant-Governor's suite, are other bedrooms, sitting rooms and powder rooms. The third floor has more bedrooms for the regular government house staff.

In the basement, besides the huge cloakroom, is a kitchen as big as that of any hotel, with the latest equipment.

There is also a central music system, which can pipe high-fidelity recordings to any room in the mansion, and a huge recreation room.

When he opened the new government house, Lieutenant - Governor Ross declared:

"This house has a little bit of the past, something of the present and yet it contains much that is too extreme. This is a house built for our lifetime and long after we are gone."

WHERE QUEEN TO VISIT — The Queen and Prince Philip will visit this well-kept farm during their visit to Prince Edward Island late in July. Willard Prowse, proud owner of the 100-acre farm at Brackley Road seven miles from Charlottetown, stands here at his front gate with his wife and son Ernest, 12. The farm was selected for the 25-minute call of the royal couple because it was a three-time county winner in a rural beautification competition. (CP Photo).

Only 30 Licences Will Be Issued to Hunt Buffalo In NWT Protected Since 1893

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—When buffalo hunting was prohibited in 1893 only 500 wood bison remained in northern Alberta. Man had almost wiped out the northern variety of the continent's largest animal.

Since then, the northern herd—bolstered by thousands of Plains buffalo—has grown to about 17,000. All but 3,000 roam the grassy plains and low hills of Wood Buffalo National Park. Except for the Indians and natural enemies —wolves, bears and disease—the buffalo has been left in peace. This fall, however, the buffalo live again faces the white hunter.

Canada's first unofficial season for sport shooting of buffalo runs from Sept. 15 to Nov. 30 this year in the Northern Territories. Thirty licences will be issued, each good for one buffalo.

PARK PROTECTED

"Only buffalo outside the park limits in the Northwest Territories will be hunted," stressed Park Superintendent Sid Olson in an interview here. The hunt will take place north of this Territories administration centre, and east of the park boundary, in an area on each side of the Slave River.

The area teems with bear, moose, elk, mule deer, timber wolves, lynx and other game. Upland birds are plentiful and the trout fishing is good in small, clear lakes.

Nick Novikowski, C a n a d i a n wildlife branch biologist and a recognized expert on buffalo, said a certain amount of stalking for prize trophies will be done though the buffalo is easily found, a factor which contributed to its near-extinction.

Hunters likely will be looking for wood buffalo, slightly larger, darker and shaggier than the plains southern cousins. Most of the buffalo in the area are hybrids of the Plains and Woods varieties but needy Indian or Eskimo bands.

"there probably exist pockets of wood buffalo," Mr. Novikowski said.

Rifles of .270-calibre or more must be used.

CAREFUL START

"We're starting the hunt in a small way," said Joe Bryant, superintendent of game in the Mackenzie District of the territories. He handles all applications from his office in this Alberta-N.W.T. border town of 1,200.

"Eventually the hunter will take care of the overflow from the park as well as providing employment as guides for the native people."

There are about 700 Treaty Indians, mostly Chipewyan, and Metis in the Fort Smith area.

Buffalo hunting will be expensive. Licence costs range from $25 for N.W.T. residents who are not aliens to $200 for persons not living in Canada.

Outfitting will also be costly. Parties will be equipped with horses, guides, supplies and even rifles at Fort Smith.

However, 40 applications for licences have been filed and received, mostly from United States sportsmen.

GREAT AREA

Isolated Fort Smith can be reached only by air — there are daily flights — or river boat. A road from the Mackenzie Highway may open here briefing the winter but most supplies are brought here by barge on the Slave River the nearest large city is Edmonton, 430 miles south.

Since the hunter kills his buffalo, what then?

Often a person wants to go to the expense of shipping the meat to his home, he can," says Olson. "There are no restrictions."

Though buffalo is tasty meat it is said that hunters will likely want only the hide and head as trophies. If the meat is not taken with it it will be distributed to

Expanding Economy, Skyrocketing Population Shakes Red China

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Staff Writer

Twin explosions—an expanding economy and a skyrocketing population — are shaking mainland China. The shocks appear to have staggered the Communist rulers.

The Reds are pushing an already overworked population close to the breaking point in their drive to overtake Britain industrially before 1972. The stork is the mighty enemy of the Communist planners.

Each year there are at least 13,000,000 more mouths to feed. The Chinese Nationalists claim 15,000,000 more since their term as overwhelming 24,000,000 birth in a country which already leads the world with a population of about 840,000,000.

LOOMING RACE

In recent weeks, the Communists themselves have given sugar-coated hints that they are losing the race with the stork.

The clues:

1. A serious shortage of food in the country's 37 big cities.

2. An admission that the 323,000,000-ton grain quota for 1959 may not be reached.

3. A slash in the already-minute income of commune workers from the 15 cents a day to 12 cents a month to 81.15.

4. A head-down in the handicraft industry.

5. A sudden slump in the big Communist Asia trade fair in Canton.

The workers in the newly-formed communes appear to have fallen down on the herculean job of feeding the increasing population of the cities.

WORKERS ARMY.

Besides growing crops, tending livestock and doing country chores, the peasants have in recent months been inspected into a bob-tail workers army. They lend home blast furnaces and ironworks for steel production, a contribution to the 18,000,000-ton steel quota for 1959.

Fear that they will not turn out the tons of pig iron from their unfamiliar ovens appears to have brought about widespread neglect of the farms and a consequent drop in food production.

Worse still, pig iron thus produced in a thousand sections of the country have clogged rail and shipping facilities, leaving rotting food to pile up in the warehouses.

Half of this mountain of amateurishly-created pig iron is of poor or unusable quality, the government now says.

MAO STEPS DOWN

Chairman Mao Tse - tung stepped down from the presidency in April to devote himself to ironing out the kinks in the communes, which have bended still

Continue Strike 'Until Justice May Prevail'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The leader of 27,000 British Columbia wood-workers who went on strike Monday says the men will continue to do no coastal logging and lumber operations "until some measure of justice may prevail."

Joe Morris, district president of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC), made the statement in a broadcast eight hours after union members walked off their jobs at 203 operations to back up demand for pay increases.

No new talks have been scheduled in the dispute. Economists say the strike will sap $3,300,000 a day from the province's economy. The woodworkers will lore $300.000 a day in wages. The industry employs the province's largest single labor force.

WANT 20 PER CENT INCREASE

The woodworkers wanted a 20 per cent wage increase, implementation of a job evaluation program in the plywood industry and other contract improvements. Management, represented by Forest Industrial Relations, proposed a 12-cent an hour increase over two years.

Until the impasse is overcome, the union will pay $14 weekly for married couples; $3 additional for each child and $2 for single persons out of its $2,000,000 strike fund.

Courses Named After One of Seaway's Locks

CHICAGO (AP) — The Queen and 1,000 other guests figuratively will "step out" tonight at the Lawrence Seaway Monday night.

Each of the courses served at a banquet was named after one of the seaway's locks.

The banquet, given by Mayor Richard J. Daley, was held in the gold and green grand ballroom of the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

The banquet was decorated with 25,000 A m e r i c a n beauty roses. The tables were covered with gold cloth and the lighting during dinner was soft. Candles were placed light in crystal chandeliers.

The dinner began with fresh strawberries, then double consomme froquois, filet mignon St. Lawrence with potatoes Welland and grilled tomato Beauharnois, international Rapids salad and ice cream and sherbert served beneath a cupola of green icing and flowers in the shape of seaway locks.

CONCERN FOR DOGS

LONDON (Reuters) — The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Monday warned dog owners of the coronation sun's menace during the current heat wave. "Don't take your dog out in the mid-day sun," a vet in a radio appeal. "Several died yesterday from the heat."

May Be Wasting Funds Following Liberal Policies House Mines Committee Told

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons mines committee says the government may be wasting the taxpayers' money by following northern development policies established by the former Liberal administration.

"In the view of the committee this is resulting in continuing subsidization of government funds," the committee said Monday in a hard - hitting report tabled in the Commons.

The committee—made a series of sweeping recommendations for major re-organization of the department of mines affairs and national resources. The two main proposals called for creation of a special committee of Commons to promote Canada's forest product industries and for establishment of a department spending to help develop the tourist business.

The Commons — dominated committee described the Liberal government's policy of northern development as a "vacillation between inaction and reaction." NO CURB URGED

The committee did not want to leave the impression that funds for northern development should be curtailed. But the manner in which these funds had been spent in the past was "open to justifiable criticism."

Costs of northern construction in all cases considered "were unjustifiably excessive." There had been unrealistic planning resulting in "colossal white elephants" and "over-dry-wash" projects such as Inuvik, new settlement at the mouth of Mackenzie River, and inefficient execution of plans after they had been approved.

The report proposed an intensive program to open Canada's national parks, saying every block of these vast areas are being developed.

The committee urged that private individuals be permitted to build motels and hotels within park limits to attract tourists. It also proposed that the federal government - guaranteed loans to help establishe tourist operators' facilities be greatly expanded to improve their facilities.

The tourist industry could multiply its annual earnings by two times three times through a more active promotion program. Federal tourist publicity should be advertising in the United States should be increased 25 per cent to help overcome the cost of the San Francisco, Boston, Detroit and Cleveland to expo of 1956.

The committee, headed by J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West), said it could not understand why some the responsibility of "a separate and/or official of government."

It added that the forestry branch of the mines affairs and development should become a department under a deputy minister.

The new forestry department should undertake concerted action in co-operation with industry to find new export markets for forest products, the committee said. Canada had no imaginative program to assist "in maximizing our share of world trade in wood and wood products."

Queen Spends Part of Hour In Dentist's Chair

CHICAGO (Reuters) — The Queen spent the first part of her hour in a dentist's chair in a Chicago hotel Monday night delaying her arrival at a civic dinner marking the climax of her visit to this city.

Sources close to the Queen said that she had complained aboard the royal train that she had trouble in a right molar and an appointment was made for her to be seen by Chicago dentist Dr. Norman Dires.

Dr. Olsen has his surgery in the Drake Hotel, where the Queen spent a rest period at noon Monday.

It was learned that the tooth had to be filled. The dental work delayed the Queen's departure by almost an hour for the Conrad Hilton Hotel for Monday night's dinner.

U.K. Publishers Under Fire From Cassandra

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — With supplies of ink dwindling, British newspapers are using what little they have left in a fine old frenzy of mutual denigration.

Leading the attack, as usual, is columnist Cassandra of The Daily Mirror. Musing on the old saw about newspaper men having printers' ink in their veins, he speculates gloomily on what Fleet Street publishers could contribute.

Lord Beaverbrook, he concludes, would drain nicely into a mixture of maple syrup, acid and a dash of champagne.

Lord Rothermere, publisher of The Evening News and Daily Mail group, would give a "thin gruel, with maybe a dash of lemon."

As for The Times, Sir William Haley's veins would yield "distilled water sharpened up by a dash of phosphoric."

The Manchester Guardian publishers would provide "pure parsnip wine."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, without mentioning Cassandra, leaps into the fray with an editorial blaming the current printing dispute on the big magazine chains.

Their tough and uncompromising attitude; it says, could only make the struggle fiercer.

Model Farmer Wants to Show Philip Fine Herd of Ayrshires; Wife Will Show Queen Home

BRACKLEY ROAD, P. E. I.see his prized group of ancient (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Willard Prowse naturally are excited over the fact that Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will visit their farm here July 30. But they are not worrying about what to wear.

The Queen and Prince Philip will spend 25 minutes at the Prowse farm, seven miles from Charlottetown, during the one-day Royal Visit to Prince Edward Island, July 30. The only other Canadian farm they will visit is one near Tuxford, Sask.

The Prowse farm was selected because it was a three-time winner in Prince Edward Island's rural beautification society competitions as the outstanding farm in Queens County.

The 100-acre farm with its prize herd of dairy cattle, 73 head of Ayrshires, surrounds the trim, two - storey farm house built 80 years ago by Willard Prowse's grandfather.

PICKS HOUSE-DRESS

Mrs. Prowse, 32, says she'll wear one of her pretty housedresses for the occasion. Her husband, 35, will stick to his dairy clothes.

"But here we don't wear white ties and tails on a tractor," he said in an interview.

But Mrs. Prowse interjected: "It will be no use going to bed at all the night before, because none of us will get any. sleep. We'll be too excited."

Grandm o t h e r, Mrs. Ernest Prowse, said she may be 83 years old but she "can still thread a needle in the dark."

She's been shopping for a new dress to wear on the big day and has been walking around each day to talk about the event with the neighbors.

Ernest Prowse, 12, is an ardent gun collector and is eagerly hoping that Prince Philip will like to muskrats.

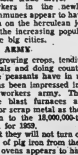
Prowse's only daughter, Mrs. Denis Jenkins, with her husband and one-year-old son will come for the day from their home at Winslow.

Another at the Prowse farm for the occasion will be Col. E. W. Johnson, the founder and president of the rural beautification association and its regular competitions.

Former commanding officer of the Prince Edward Island Light Horse Regiment, Col. Johnson lives about 25 miles from the Prowse farm, and has a collection of models of British castles and other landmarks on his lawn. He will show photographs of the models to the royal couple.

The family is not yet sure just what the royal party will be shown on the farm. Mrs. Prowse hopes they will want to see some of the rooms in the handsome home, and Mr. Prowse of course wants to show his fine cattle.

They'd like them to see he has being baled and stored in the barn," Mrs. Prowse added.



The Queen and Prince Philip will be visiting some nearby frozen food plants before they drop in at the farm, just outside Charlottetown on the road north to Brackley Beach.

Mr. Prowse, a descendant of a pioneer P.E.I. family, and his wife were both born in Prince Edward Island. His grandfather started the farm. Hon. T.W.L. Prowse, lieutenant - governor of P.E.I. from 1950 to 1958, is a distant relative.

COUPLES HONORED

A pleasant evening was spent on Monday when a double shower was held for the Dafoe twins, Carol and Carmen, and their brides, in Scott's Church hall.

A large crowd was in attendance. The Rev. R. McMullin acted as chairman for a program of readings, music and singing.

SECOND INCREASE — Living costs rose during May for the second straight month following a five-month decline.

The cost-of-living index at June 1 stood at 125.9, up three-tenths of a point from a month earlier.

The graph (shaded area) traces the yearly average of the price index during 1949-57 and its movement through 1958 and so far this year. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

Also shown is the index for average wages and salaries which stood at 170.5 at May 1, last date for which figures are available. (CP Newsmap.)

Female Bear Mauls Two Men and Boy

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—A female grizzly bear charged into a fishermen's camp at Chephren Lake early Sunday, mauling two men and a boy.

G. H. L. Dempster, superintendent of Banff National Park, said Alex Semochuk and his son Tom were seriously mauled. Frank Winchester, another fisherman, was not mauled so seriously.

All are from this resort town.

The men were camped at Chephren Lake, on the Banff-Jasper highway. The elder Semochuk and his son were starting a camp fire about 4:30 a.m. when the grizzly came upon the camp. It had two cubs with it. Semochuk shouted but the bear was on the camp before Winchester could get out of his sleeping bag.

After the bear tore through the camp, the trio managed to climb trees until it left.

The party made their way out and were brought to hospital here.

Interpreter Gives Version Of Red's Nyet

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP)—Sergei Yeger, a touring Russian aircraft designer, was inspecting an exhibit of house trailers at the San Diego County Fair.

"Do you have house trailers in Russia?" a reporter asked.

Yeger replied in a word: "Nyet."

The reporter had a pretty good idea what the word meant, but he asked Yeger's interpreter for an explanation anyway.

"He says," the interpreter replied, "that they do not like houses on wheels in Russia. They prefer a more permanent, stable type of housing."

EXHAUSTING TREK

In Brockville, a drunk ran alongside the prince and called in high good humor: "How are you doing, Philip? Are you having fun."

Before hovering guards could move in the prince was reaching for the outstretched hand. "Very well, thank you," he called, "I hope you're having fun, too."

VISIT THEATRE

In Stratford, where they went to the theatre, the royal couple saw a command performance of An You Like It which had been almost unanimously panned by the critics. Even in the dark the pair showed they were enjoying the performance, smiling and applauding.

All along the soaway and into the Great Lakes the story has been the same—crowds awed by the pomp and ceremony of snow-white uniforms and shrilling bosuns' pipes, only to be captured by the dignity and warmth of the two who stepped ashore from their yacht.

So far, there have been no clashes between the prince and the press—Philip objects to the "key-hole" type of journalism and there has been little of that, even in informal Chicago.

There was military panoply at Ottawa, where the Queen and Philip dedicated a memorial to airmen lost during operations from North America and who lie "in unmarked graves." But in every case, the formality and ritual has been tempered by grace and courtesy as the royal couple walked among the relatives of lost heroes in sympathy and humility.

The feeling in the royal entourage is that much of it is becoming archaic and unnecessary.

SYMBOL CHANGED

Where once the symbol of Britain's power was necessary to keep the colonies knitted together, it is pointed out that the British Empire has progressed into the British Commonwealth of nations and the symbol of might and power has become one of understanding and leadership.

This second leg—from Montreal to Chicago—took in the St. Lawrence Seaway, the $600,000,000 project the royal pair came to open.

They saw new towns of old buildings moved from the patch of man-made lake and rivers. Placid Lake St. Lawrence, created by backing up water for the Moses-Saunders power dam at Cornwall, wiped out the Long Sault Rapids.

This was the stretch of water that the Queen's great - grandfather, then Prince of Sales, once shot in a canoe.

Some tour officials say this is the high spot of the tour—this is what they came for. Everything before was preparation and all that comes after will likely be anti-climax.

This points up another major argument against the extended tour—the difficulty of sustaining the interest when the high point of the trek is 3,000 miles behind.

EXCITING

Similar precautions had been evident most of the day — the U.S. state department worked out arrangements. Police guards even were posted on hotel generator rooms.

BOMB THREAT PHONED

A police bomb squad scurried to the Museum of Science and Industry after an anonymous telephone call said the building would be blown up while the Queen and Philip were inside. The officers found nothing.

Chicago was dressed up for occasion. The Stars and Stripes and the Canadian Red Ensign flew from most downtown buildings. On the streets, hawkers sold only the Union Jack.

At the museum, a vast collection of old and new in communications, science and industry, the party moved freely through a crowd of officials and reporters to poke buttons, see themselves on color television and watch the wonders of computing machines, electronic devices and up-to-date farm equipment.

The Queen touched a chick hatched on schedule for the occasion and lingered over some ducklings whose lunch had been withheld to make sure they moved around smartly.

RIDE TRACTOR

At the trade fair, the Queen and Philip rode around on a custom-made electric tractor, with a half-mile of red carpet for a road. After the royal ride, the carpet company sold the rug at 100 feet a chunk to aid charity.

There were shouts of "Hello, Liz," "Hey, your majesty," "Hello Queen" and even "Hello, Queenie."

At the art institute there were isolated cries of "God Save the Queen." Police said 200,000 persons jammed around the building and officials expressed some chagrin because the visit was curtailed to about 13 minutes—perhaps to make up for lost time.

The Queen noted that there were so many people around the Canadian exhibit at the trade fair that she couldn't see it.

Philip and the Queen posed willingly to shouts of "Smile" and "Just one more". Philip told an official he had never seen so many flashbulbs and that if it went on much longer he might get what he called "flash-bulb pupitis."

APPEARS HAPPY

The Queen quickly caught the spirit of the crowds. She smiled. She began to wave with genuine feeling. She kept turning to Philip chatting and laughing, as the thunder of the applause pursued them through the streets.

"We shall carry with us on the next stage of our journey, and for many years to come, a memory of the generous hospitality of Chicago which will long warm our hearts," she said.

These were her words as she rose to speak to 1,400 guests at Mayor Richard Daley's banquet, where she was a glittering figure in white with a diamond and emerald tiara in her hair.

"My husband and I thank you most sincerely for the touching welcome you have given us," she said, and once again an explosion of applause rose around the Queen.

Long Campaigns For Re-election

WINNIFIELD, La. (AP)—Governor Earl K. Long, pressed by his doctors to slow down, made a leisurely trip to his "pea patch" farm here Sunday.

The 63-year-old governor who has an ailing heart, on Saturday defied his physicians when he undertook a 300-mile speechmaking trip to open his campaign for re-election.

In temperature that hit 98 degrees, Long made five appearances, telling his audiences:

"I just wanted you to see for yourself what a nutty man looks like."

Long won his release as a mental patient from a state hospital only last June 26, after a series of incarcerations that began May 30.

Nylon Nighties Are Worn by Today's Godivas

MOUSFORDN England (AP) Half a dozen girls had an undress rehearsal Sunday for Britain's craziest horse race of the year—the Lady Godiva Stakes, Post Time: Midnight next Saturday.

The race is named for the legendary lady of Coventry, who was the first gal to put all she had on a horse.

As staged by the South Berkshire hunt, the race will feature girl jockeys in flesh-colored swimsuits and nylon nighties, which is considerably more than Lady Godiva sported on her trot through town.

Out rehearsing, Susan Capstick, 21, daughter of a dairy director, patted her straw wig, looked at her figure-flattering swimsuit, and giggled: "I don't know what daddy will say."

Clare Bryant, 17, was wearing a swimsuit too.

"I did consider riding nude," she said, "but I've had second thoughts."

Ann Pilling, wife of the master of the hunt, was riding in a white nylon nightie over tights and bra. Clare Venables-19 wore a pink shortie pajama.

Among other items at the equestrian practice will be a sensible glandslaque for men wearing midskirts and hats to the side, "ladies' natural hairstyle along the way."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

If the take at the forthcoming Durelle-Moore fight in Montreal is not the largest in Canadian boxing history it won't be the fault of one Jack Kearns.

Kearns, as every boxing fan knows, is one of the craftiest, cunningest fight managers of all time, whose nostrils flutter whenever a new batch of money is turned out in the United States mint.

He has more publicity gimmicks than a Miami jet salesman and he is building up the second fight between herring-hocking Yvon and the willing and capable, if venerable Archie, bride by bride.

His latest cranium concoction for the benefit of the press boys is in humorous vein, but the Kanny Kearns made the sports headlines with his quip that he would ask Queen Elizabeth to knight his aging champion.

"If he is knighted," he said, "he will be Sir Archibald, or his lordship. That would go good with his lightheavyweight championship." That would make Ole Arch the first book-busting baronet in history.

Probably in his search for publicity gimmicks, Kearns decided to use Ole Arch's sense of humor as a headline hunter. So now the venerable one has turned script writer, sports columnist, or what have you.

In a recent letter to Promoter Eddie Quinn of Montreal, Archie wrote: "Somewhere in the back of my mind I remember you saying you'd see me in Montreal some time. Am I right?"

"I'm at the rail mines at Ramona, Cal.," Archie goes on, "and have sent away for the Charles Atlas bodybuilding course and as soon as it arrives I will begin developing my muscles so no one can kick sand in my face at the beach."

"I'm sitting here writing to you while smoking bites of humming-bird drumsticks while the trainer is asleep. What he doesn't know won't hurt him."

"I ran 19 miles this morning and then woke up and had a light breakfast. We do all our sparring on a trampoline out here and it makes for some lively sessions."

"All in all, things are fine here at present. I have four sparring partners and each one can match a different pair for three-round bouts which is fun for all to watch. I fight the tournament winner and the winner of that fight will meet Durelle."

"When I retire, I'm giving my title to Frank Sinatra. I think that's what he always wanted — to be considered 175 pounds."

"These little notes will let you know I am alive and well and in constant touch with Sugar Ray Robinson. I hope to be in constant touch with Yvon a little later."

But Kearns' cunniness backfired on him when he was the manager of the Manassa Mauler Jack Dempsey. That was previous to what later was dubbed by New York sportswriters the "Battle of the Century" between Dempsey and the Orchid Boy of France, Georges Georges Carpentier.

Carpentier was scheduled to fight some European for a purse of $45,000. Kearns learned about it, and with a paltry two bucks in his pocket wired Carpentier and offered him $300,000 to fight Dempsey. This at the time he was in dangers-drawn with the New York promoter, Tex Rickard.

However, the fight was arranged and Rickard went for it. One day Mr. Kearns in the privacy of Rickard's office, said "We have discussed everything but Dempsey's share. We want $300,000."

Rickard nearly fainted but realized he had been "took." He gave Kearns the money and for the next few days Kearns who, put the dough in the safe-keeping of a friend, gloried in the counting and recounting of the 45 lovely bucks.

But Kearns had not reckoned with the boxing public. The publicity build-up was terrific. The fight between the debonair Frenchman and the man-killing Dempsey took the popular fancy.

The night of the first Rickard probably sat in his office in Madison Square Gardens and rubbed his hands gleefully. Kearns in Dempsey's dressing room, probably smashed his teeth. He had "took" himself when he asked for and got $300,000 as Dempsey's share.

The gate was $1,307,000.

FRENCH'S BIG CROWD

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Matchmaker George Parnassus predicted Monday some 15,000 boxing fans will pay close to $150,000 to see Mexico's Jose Becerra challenge France's Alphonse Halimi for his world bantamweight title.

The 15-round televised bout comes off Wednesday night in Los Angeles' new Memorial Sports Arena.

Halimi, the 31-year-old champ, remains a 3-1 betting favorite. A big majority of eye - witnesses, however, will be rooting for the 23-year-old No. 1 contender from Guadalajara. Los Angeles has a huge Mexican population and hundreds are expected to come from Mexico itself.

Eastern Senior "A" League Fate Decided Tonight

Merchants, Macs Hold Key To Survival of the Circuit; Pro Loop Background Issue

Written For The Canadian Press
By DON SCHEFFER
Kingston Whig-Standard

KINGSTON (CP) — A crucial, fund-raising schemes, Kingston day lies ahead for the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern division.

The five-team league which spawned three Allan Cup championships and a pair of world title-holders in its three short years of operation meets tonight in Belleville to decide its fate.

And ironically Belleville Mc-Farlands, world champions who operate in an 8,200-seat, unheated icebox, and Kingston Merchants, a team that grossed $85,000 yet lost $8,000 in vain pursuit of the Macs despite a modern 3,000-capacity arena, hold the key.

Complicating the matter are factors such as scoring of Kingston and Hull by the professional Quebec Hockey League, an ultimatum issued Kingston a month ago requiring it to pay its pool "or else" and some uncertainties about Cornwall's operation.

MACS TO OPERATE

The Macs, threatened by a revelation that $100,000 of the city's money was used to underwrite the operation of the hockey team over the last three years, are reported ready to operate.

Unconfirmed is a report that coach-referee Harvey McFarland is prepared to stand behind the Belleville team. At present 11 of last year's championship squad are working the area—nine of them McFarland.

In Kingston it's a matter of money.

The club finished the season with outstanding debts running more than $5,000 and an arrears in the pool of $2,200. Despite a club statement that it eight years Kingston had contributed nearly $30,000 more than it had received and that it "definitely intended to meet its pool obligation, the other clubs issued an ultimatum to pay by July 7 or not be allowed to enter. CANT PAY

Although carrying out various fund-raising schemes, Kingston is not expected to settle its account tonight and club director Harry (Tip)-Radley has been instructed to attend the meeting "and hear what the others have to say."

Cornwall's Ray Miron reports that the seaway city "is likely to be able to operate" but that more time is required before entries are closed.

He hopes to be able to confirm Cornwall's entry Tuesday but contends the league "will have to control payrolls better" if it is to survive another season.

Ottawa-Hull's Sammy Pollock earlier withdrew his team from the league but indicated that he would re-enter if a second berth for operation was established.

ONE SOLID TEAM

The one solid team in the league, the Allan Cup Whitby Dunlops, is ready to operate. General manager Wren Blair, who was instrumental in having the ultimatum issued by the league, has repeatedly said he wants to keep the eastern loop going. But as an NHL hockey operator, it's likely he has other irons in the fire if the league fails to continue.

In the background at the meeting hovers the proposed new professional league embracing Quebec and Montreal as its base.

Although Kingston officials have not openly resigned from it has the Montreal Canadiens and the Chicago Black Hawks willing to transfer players to Kingston if necessary.

A similar proposal has supposedly been made to Sudbury Wolves of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association.

With his option in the background, Kingston has to be sure whether the group is strong enough to pressure Kingston. And without the well-drawing eastern city it's doubtful that the league could survive.

Pool Hopes

Platoon System Plus Knox Will Be Salvation of Argos

By WILF GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Coach Harry Pool, operating on a produce-or-else basis, after two cellar-finishing seasons, hopes a two-platoon system and the potential greatness of quarterback Ronnie Knox will be his own and Toronto Argonauts' football salvation this season.

The knowledge that his job is in jeopardy hung over Pool's head Monday as Argos opened their training grind for the Big Four schedule.

After rebuilding by Pool and general manager Lew Hayman, Pool is confident Argos' flounder-ing days are over.

The astute Hayman hasn't actually said in so many words that the 46-year-old Pool is on the griddle, though it is obvious to impatient Toronto fans. Their faith in the club has been shaken after seeing them fail to make the playoffs the last three seasons and only once in the last six.

IN NEW HOME

Hayman needs that faith restored to start fans pouring into the Argos' new home, the 34,000-seat Canadian National Exhibition Stadium.

Pool, former head of Los Angeles Rams, thinks he can finish second at least with Knox on hand from the start of the season and the possibility that for the first time since he took over in 1957 he will have the player strength for a two-platoon operation.

He thinks emphasis is developing. Canadian players now will pay off. Some of them, such Rogers Blair, failed to get been a starter in the Big Four, but the 6-foot-2, 200-pounder is the hottest team in the league in a late-season splurge that has pulled Argos to get been a playoff spot. He sparked them to three straight high-scoring wins after they had lost nine of their first 10 games.

"This will be the first time in two years we'll have an effective quarterback starting the season," said Pool. "It's going to make a tremendous difference. Knox has the ability to become one of the greatest quarterbacks in the game."

After two exhibition nights' games, both at home against Chicago Cardinals and Saskatchewan Roughriders Aug. 12, Argos open the regular season away against Ottawa Rough Riders in a night game Aug. 18.

Bisons Win Clips 4-Game Losing String

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lou Vassie broke his 0-for-32 slump at the plate for Buffalo Bisons Monday night with a 14th-inning single.

Important? The Bisons, Rochester Red Wings and Vassie think so for the hit helped break a four-game Buffalo losing string as it scored two runs in the 14th en route to a 13-8 Bisons victory.

The second-place Wings felt the sting for the loss dropped them 3½ games behind league - leading Toronto Maple Leafs International League. It was Vassie's first hit in seven trips in a game that saw the Bisons score seven runs in the ninth for an 8-8 tie.

In other games Columbus beat Miami 6-5 and Richmond defeated Havana 9-1. Montreal and Jacksonville were idle.

Bobby Del Greco and Frank Herrera led off the 14th with singles. Manager John Sullivan was hit by one of reliever Bill Smith's pitches to fill the bases were loaded, Vassie came up with two out and singled to left, breaking the ice. Morgan's double added two more for Buffalo as reliever Ken Lehman evened his record at 4-4.

ROMER TIES SCORE

Herrera socked a three - run homer in the ninth to tie the score. Morgan also homered for the Bisons while Wally Sannon, Whitey Herzog and Herrera batted in the ninth, hit one for the Wings, Smith (3-2) lost.

Columbus won its seventh decision in nine games from the Marlins at Ken Hamlin's baseball-loaded double in the eighth scored two runs for the victory. Miami had taken a lead with three runs in the top of the inning.

Dick Gibson (4-5) limited the four hits as he evened his record at 4-4. Deron Johnson's sacrifice fly, after Ed Bauer's double, set an infield out, broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh inning off loser Emilio Cueche (5-5). Jack Reed hit a solo homer for the Vees in the eighth.

Borrego Alvarez hit No. 17 for Havana to tie the score 1-1 in the sixth.

SWIMMING MEET SET

BRANTFORD (CP) — Jerry Anderson, a native from Puerto Rico, is among more than 140 athletes entered in the Canadian junior swimming and diving championships to be held here this week. Twenty - four championships will be decided, starting Thursday afternoon and ending Saturday night. About the 35 swim clubs entered are 10 from the United States.

BACKS UMPIRES

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Warren Giles, president of the National League, backed up his umpires Monday in their fines and suspensions of Solly Hemus, St. Louis Cardinal manager, and Harry Walker, one of his coaches. Giles supported the $250 fine and five-day suspension of Hemus and the $100 fine and two-day suspension of Walker. The action was taken in a game with Los Angeles last Thursday after a dispute as to whether Los Angeles catcher Johnny Roseboro caught or dropped a foul-tipped ball.

Powerful National League Favored Over American Loop In Annual All-Star Classic

By JOE REICHLER

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The sub-par physical condition of Mickey Mantle and Al Kaline, two of the American League's more distinguished batsmen, has not appeared to give the National League a decided edge in today's 26th annual all-star game.

Although scheduled to open in centrefield, Kaline, brilliant young Detroit Tiger star recovering from a facial operation, had the stitches removed only Monday. He hasn't played or taken batting practice for a week.

Mantle, Kaline's alternate in centre, got only Sunday's game between New York Yankees and Washington Senators because of a twisted ankle. He winces every time he puts pressure on the right foot.

Manager Casey Stengel insisted this evening: "I believe that Mantle was ready to play but it would not be surprising if Mickey were to be used only in a pinch-hitting role.

MANTLE READY

"That guy never lets you know when he's hurting and he always is ready to play," said Stengel. "I kept him out last Sunday for his own good and I believe that he couldn't play in the all-star game, I didn't want people to say it was ready to play Sunday and then why not now? The fellow will play though even if he's hurting."

There were no known casualties on the powerful circuit Nationals' League squad that had such home run wizardries as Eddie Mathews, Hank Aaron, Willie Mays, Ernie Banks and Orlando Cepeda batting second, third, fourth fifth and sixth respectively. This will cover a total of 101 home runs during regular season play.

There is nothing puny about the American League batting order either. Begin with Minnie Minoso, a 13-homer man, and his Harmon Killebrew, the circuit's leading home run and runs batted in man (27-70), batting seventh.

In between are Nellie Fox, Mickey Mantle, Bill Skowron, Rocky Colavito and Carl Yastrzemski, the fleet-footed shortstop, Luis Aparicio, was eighth.

TEMPTLE TAKES OFF

Johnny Temple, Cincinnati's fine second baseman, was the National League leadoff hitter. Wally Moon, Del Crandall and Don Drysdale, selected by manager Fred Haney as his starting pitcher, represented the lower third of the order.

Haney, who lost last year to Casey Stengel, gave his reason for picking Drysdale a right hander with Los Angeles Dodgers, over his own Lew Burdette.

"I had decided on a right hander because they have only one lefty in their lineup (Fox), said Haney. "It came between Drysdale and Burdette but I figured if I picked my man they'd say I was prejudiced."

Actually Drysdale, with his cross - fire delivery which has helped him strike out the major league high of 133 batters so far, figured to be the best bet against the right-handed power hitters.

AL STARTER

Stengel's choice of Early Wynn, 39-year-old Chicago White Sox right-hander, confirmed the suspicion that he had weakened on his original choice of Hoyt Wilhelm, Baltimore Orioles' spectacular knuckleball expert. Hoyt, after winning his first nine games, lost his next four. He pitched six innings Sunday and did not look too good.

Under all-star rules, no pitcher may go more than three innings unless the game runs into extra innings. Starting players must see action in at least two innings.

Burdette was Haney's choice to pitch the middle three innings with Elroy Face, Pittsburgh Pirates' relief ace, the other pitcher kept in readiness at a moment's call. If he happens to need Johnny Antonelli of San Francisco Giants will pitch the last few innings.

Stengel did not name his second pitcher but assured all that Ryne Duren, the Yankees' flame-throwing righthander, would be in there toward the end.

Other American League pitchers included lefthanders Whitey Ford of New York and Bud Daley and righthander Jim Bunning, Righthanders Don Elston and Gene Conley and southpaw Hal Stephen Spahn were the other National League pitchers.

This was to be the fourth all-star appearance for Wynn. He was credited with last year's victory in Baltimore. The 24-year-old Drysdale was a first-timer. He is 9-8 for the season to Wynn's 11-5.

The National League, which had won only 10 all-star games of the 25 played, were out to win their first game since 1956.

'Hard-Boiled' Meets Don Leo Here Friday

It is difficult to imagine Hard-Boiled Haggerty, a rugged boxer who weighs 190-feet-two and weighs 250 pounds being kind to his foe in the squared circle.

Nevertheless when Hard-Boiled steps into Memorial Arena on Friday night his opponent will have quite a man.

Haggerty will meet Don Leo Jonathan 6-5 and 290 pounds who does not take a back seat in smackdom from anybody let alone Haggerty.

Jonathan is as ruthless as they come, often being compared to that axe of meanness Killer Kowalski.

Not only is Jonathan big and ruggedly powerfully fast, a fact which causes spectators to gasp when they see that huge man handling about the ring. Haggerty has heard about this, but maintains he's too experienced for his rival.

Haggerty, the likeable lefthander, is back again, this time against Howard Martin , Jack Kennedy and Aug Abe Zvonkin raise the curtain.

Kuenn Boasts 20-Game String; Aaron Slumps

NEW YORK (AP) — Harvey Kuenn of Detroit will take a 20-game hitting streak and a 12-point lead in the American League batting race into today's major league all - star game.

Kuenn's skein is the longest in the American League this season. Mark Belanger, Baltimore ace, the National League batting leader, hit safely in 22 consecutive games from April 23 through May 18.

A week ago, Kuenn led Pete Runnels of Boston, the runner-up, by only five points. However, last week, including games of Sunday, July 5, Kuenn climbed one point to .356 while Runnels dropped 19 points to .333. Runnels was replaced in the No. 2 position by Al Kaline of Detroit. Kaline, who is sidelined with a fractured cheekbone, is hitting .344.

Nellie Fox of Chicago remained in fourth place. He gained five points to .330 with 73 hits in 22 tilts.

In the National League, Aaron, slumping steadily the last few weeks, lost 11 more points. He had only five safeties in 32 times at bat and his average tailed off to .370.

Junior Gilliam of Los Angeles rushed up to deadlock Bill White of St. Louis for second place. Gilliam pitched up 14 points with 13 hits in 28 trips while White gained three points with an 11-for-30 performance. Each is batting .349.

Harmon Killebrew of Washington slammed two more home runs last week, lifting his league-leading total to 28. He also paces the American League in runs batted in with 70. Ed Mathews of Milwaukee also hit a pair and he continues to lead the National League with 25 homers. Ernie Banks of the Cubs drove in five runs to boost his leading aggregate to 76.

CAUTIONS JOHANSSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson should have five more good years of fighting if he controls himself and doesn't let adulation go to his head, in the opinion of Gene Tunney, the former heavyweight champion, in an interview in the New York World-Telegram and Sun, said: "His future may depend on what acclaim does to him. He has a nation of 7,000,000 eventually at his feet. It's a heady thing."

ARCHIE'S HEEL — Light heavyweight boxing champion Archie Moore holds up for inspection the bruised heel that forced a two-week postponement of his return title fight with Canada's Yvon Durelle at Montreal. The new date for the 15-round match is July 29. (CP Wirephoto).

Rough Riders Start Training And Clair Has His Troubles

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders opened their training camp Monday and coach Frank Clair may have been glad when the day was over.

"It's going to be a long haul pull," said Clair, entering his fourth year as head coach of the Big Four club.

Looking at some overweight prospects, he said: "It was pretty hard to tell them anything because they don't bear a thing with all that noise from the hard breathing.

NEW TROUBLES

There were other troubles:

A couple of imports—including No. 1 quarterback choice Frank Tripucka—did not report and two Canadian are mild holdouts. An assistant coach quit during the weekend. The field was soaked, the weather muggy.

Today the players start light tackling and by the end of the twice-a-day drills in a week or 10 days they'll be knocking heads in earnest.

Clair's 54 players include 23 holdovers from the club that finished third last year—14 Canadians and nine imports. There are 16 new imports and 15 new Canadians.

Tripucka, obtained from Saskatchewan Roughriders in a multi-ter trade, was delayed by personal business in New Jersey. Halback Dick Bowman, Wittenburg University medical student, is also reporting later.

The holdouts are guard Merv Collins and defensive end Lou Bruce, both expected to sign soon.

Assistant coach and scout Vito Ragazzo, signed less than two weeks ago, left town because of illness in his family and asked to be released from his contract.

WAS REPLACEMENT

Ragazzo was a replacement for Ed Hughes who asked to be released to accept a job at Tulsa University.

That left line coach Bill Smyth and Centre Terry to help Clair. But Terry comes up only briefly every year, from Louisiana State University.

Imports returning are guards Larry Hayes and Haralmus Curtion, tackles Tom Jones, Kaye Vaughan and Mitt Graham, end Mack Yiho, fullbacks Gerry Nesbitt and Dave Thelen and halfback George Brancato.

Apart from Tripucka, new imports include quarterback Don Allard, who may be used as a defensive halfback, halves Don Clark from Ohio State and Bobby Cravens from Kentucky, ends Jim Hainfurn, former Toronto Argonaut, and Bob Pype from North Carolina and tackles Sam Palumbo from Green Bay Packers and Ed Denk from Cincinnati University.

HAD U.S. COACHING

The 15 new Canadians include two who have had coaching in U.S. colleges: guard Ray Shubat, a Hamilton rookie who played at St. Joseph's College, Rensselaer, Indiana, and end Bob Hanson, Windsor boy who played for the University of Detroit.

Ottawa has landed three of the best players in the intercollegiate league last year. They are fullback Peter Joyce, from the University of Toronto, now an army lieutenant stationed in Ottawa; Jocko Thompson, powerful punter from Queen's University now interning in the capital, and end Joe Poirier from McGill University.

Returning Canadians Russ Jackson, sensational quarterback last year who may be switched to fullback to capitalize on his ability to run the option play; fullback Gary Schreider; half Ron Stewart, who may be used on defence this year; end Bobby Simpson, who may be switched to safety man, and tackle Gills Archambault.

Higgins May Stay With Sox

BOSTON (AP)—Mike Higgins heads back to Dallas, Tex., Wednesday for an extended vacation with his baseball future undecided.

Higgins, former Boston star, was fired Friday as manager of the last-place Red Sox. Billy Jurges took his place.

Mike's parting conference with Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey Monday ended on a satisfactory note. But it didn't decide anything.

"Mr. Yawkey and I have a mutual understanding," Higgins said. "He has agreed to offer me a job in a few weeks. I have agreed to accept it provided no one has offered me a better one."

Bass There But They Won't Bite

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial officials have no answer for reports that black bass fishing has shown a sharp decline in lakes in this area.

Fishermen in several sections of Southern Ontario say the fish just haven't been biting since the season opened July 1.

But C. H. D. Clarke, assistant chief of fish and wildlife at the lands and forests headquarters, said:

"We know they must be plentiful in all our waters." Dr. Clarke says. "We know 1953 was one of the greatest years for survival of young bass in Ontario. These fish are now mature."

Dr. Clarke said a Kingston area fisherman recently became exasperated at the lack of a catch that he hired a diver, fell and went under the surface to study the problem.

"He saw plenty of bass," Dr. Clarke said.

Ingy Says Right Still A Mystery

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Ingemar Johansson, world's heavyweight boxing champion, continues to draw crowds in the thousands in his "royal tour" of Sweden.

Some 7,000 people turned out at the university town of Uppsala and another 3,000 at the fishing port of Orthammar on the Swedish east coast Monday night.

Asked to display the famous right-hand punch that landed repeatedly in his seven-knockdown victory over Floyd Patterson in New York, June 26, Ingo said:

"It is impossible. I do not know myself when it fires. It seems that the right feels an opening even before I see it myself."

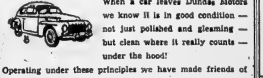
KALINE CAN PLAY

DETROIT (AP)—Al Kaline, injured Detroit Tiger centrefielder, was released from his doctor Monday to play in the all - star game at Pittsburgh today. Kaline, who suffered a jaw fracture June 18 in a game at Baltimore, underwent surgery for the second time last Monday.

Braves Sign Two Canadians

BRANTFORD (CP) — Thomas Newton of Niagara Falls and Gerry Burgess of Brantford, both pitchers, were signed to professional baseball contracts by Milwaukee Braves of the National League following a baseball school conducted here last week by scout Dewey Griggs.

Newton, a lefthander, stands six feet, two inches and weighs 180 pounds. Griggs, who spent more than a week touring the Inter-County Senior Baseball series, described Newton as the fastest pitcher he has seen in the province this year.



Burgess, an 18-year-old righthander, pitches for Brantford Jones Brushers of the Inter-County junior series. He played senior ball in Hamilton last season before moving here where he attends high school.

Griggs said Burgess would report to the Braves' minor league training camp in Waycross, Ga., next spring before being assigned to Cedar Rapids of the Class B Three-I league.

Today more people are interested in OUTDOOR LIVING than ever before. For many, outdoor living begins right in their own backyards. People are gearing their grounds for everything from gardening to dining and sun-basking. All with a view to putting a bit of "vacation fun" into everyday living! Result: a large responsive market for "what it takes" to give the backyard it's NEW look and NEW usefulness: patios, terraces, barbecues, outdoor furniture, outdoor lighting and a long list of accessories. People are actively looking for ideas on what to buy and WHERE to buy it. Most of them will do most of their looking in the pages of this newspaper!

Shopping for the needs and luxuries of outdoor living (like most shopping) starts in the pages of this newspaper. What better place to tell your story, if you have something to SELL to this rapidly expanding market? As always . . . to do a TOTAL selling job, use the TOTAL SELLING MEDIUM.

FISHERMAN TAKES LIFE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Lee Junior Fulmore, 21, was drowned Saturday after a diving apparently inspired by failure to catch a fish. Witnesses told police Fulmore threw down his line in disgust, said "to hell with this fishing" and jumped off a St. Johns River pier.

MR. I WEEDY — by Ned Riddle

"It certainly gives you class. I wish you could see it."

Sukarno Given Sweeping Power In Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (CP) — The cabinet of Premier Djuanda resigned today, paving the way for a return to President Sukarno's "guided democracy" backed by the nation's armed forces.

Observers here said the Indonesian Army will get from three to six seats in the new 27-member cabinet.

The key man behind the move to give Sukarno near-dictatorial powers was seen as Gen. Hario Nasution, army chief of staff who wants a drastic change against bureaucracy and corruption.

Sukarno said today he will pick the next cabinet on the basis of the "right man in the right place."

DECREE

BARBERS' CHOICE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Council decided that barbers may close any day in the week they individually choose. Previously the Wednesday closing was enforced.

MORTGAGE LOANS NOTICE

To those contemplating building or re-financing we suggest getting applications in as early as possible. We do our own inspections and valuations and can, therefore, give immediate action. Advisory service free. Money advanced as building progresses.

Lowe Brothers Paints
FOR QUALITY DECORATING PLEASURE

$2.80 QUART

LONG LASTING BEAUTY

Lowe Brothers High Standard House Paint will assure you of satisfaction for many seasons. High Standard is made of carefully selected ingredients and leaves a paint film that resists cracking, checking and the extremes of our Canadian climate.

Let us show you the interesting and exciting fade-resistant colors available in High Standard. And, for any type of architecture, let us suggest how the skillful use of color can add charm or excitement to your home . . . make an attractive home even more attractive.

LASTING PAINT BEAUTY FOR EXTERIOR MASONRY SURFACES

Ken-Krete is a ready-to-use, easy-to-apply, exterior masonry latex paint. It provides outstanding results when applied to stucco, brick, concrete . . . even asbestos siding. Ken-Krete comes in modern colors that are impervious to alkali burning. It flows freely, and covers solidly in one coat without sagging. Ken-Krete gives you extra years of beauty and protection.

ONLY $2.65 QUART

TREND COLORS THAT RESIST FADING

One coat of Ranch Tones gives you lasting beauty and color retention on primed surfaces of wood, steel, brick or concrete. Fortified with durable alkyd modules, Ranch Tones resist the damaging effects of our Canadian climate.

$2.90 quart

GET THE RESULTS YOU WANT—USE OUR KNOWLEDGE & EXPERIENCE

From a description of the surface you plan to paint, and its condition, we can advise you how to do the job with professional-quality results. Use our years of experience as your guide to save time and money. Whether you plan to paint a chair or the whole house, we are always ready to help you get the most for your decorating dollars.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, July 8

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Here is an opportunity now to reveal your true friendship for an individual who is in trouble, though it may not be a pleasant task. Then utilize rest of day putting your problems across with important Bigwig. Achieve. Expand.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Disturbing situation at home gives you an opportunity to display your fine qualities of arbitration and understanding. Be very spiritual, and all will be well. Then remainder of day can be fine there, and you save money. Be happy.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — A surprising letter or bit of news could send you spinning in early A. M., but be aware that there are beneficial aspects thereto. You can attend to business affairs with perfect poise and just the same. Put on a pleasant exterior.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Finances could be quite a worry to you today, especially since loved one requires more than you can offer. However, ask for an extension of time and you will get it, since you are of a natural slow but through manner anyway.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Better not remain at home now for best results. Go to beauty shop, barber, get treatments you need. Take it easy and think. P. M. avoid entering into any argument with person who loves the sound of his or her own voice.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) — Meet that obligation today, or there may be serious repercussions, even if it is boring or distressing to you. P. M. use every bit of diplomacy and wisdom with your correspondence, since it is of a serious nature.

Libra (Sept. 22 to Oct. 23) — Rare opportunity to get into new and remunerative outlet should not be permitted to escape you now. Stop procrastinating and deliberating. P. M. money problem is a bore, at best. Then enjoy yourself at favorite pastime.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — An unusual problem may seem difficult to solve in A. M., but if you tackle it conscientiously, here is a fine opportunity to impress one in authority. Later you can really bring up private affairs with which you need help. Be smart.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — A certain long - distance situation comes up, but it will be beneficial to you, though it was not expected. Don't let it throw you. Consider all angles wisely. P. M. personal anxiety needs real tact on your part.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Take care you do not follow that intuition today, for it is erroneous and could take you off the beaten track, lose you friends and finances. Follow through on present obligations, tasks. P. M. be happy and avoid envy of others.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — While an idea given you by a good partner may at first irk and annoy you, listen carefully because it has the kernel of real success in it. P. M. steer clear of that disturbed higher up who wants to vent spleen on someone.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A day for being very patient and philosophical, since unexpected tasks require much of your time and attention. Roll up your sleeves and put them behind you efficiently. Take treatments to improve health tonight.

If your child is born today ... The delightful child born today can be depended upon to do something entirely unusual or something which would hardly occur to you. Take this in your stride and appreciate the quality of originality in your talented child's makeup. Give as fine an education as pocketbook will allow, for the potential is great here. Splendid chart for big business or governmental or political professions.

COFFEE CUP KILLS BABY

COLLINSVILLE, Okla. (AP)—Tracy Ray York, 15-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond York, died Sunday when he fell from his bed onto a coffee cup. County Investigator Ray Bachus said a jagged edge of the cup severed the infant's jugular vein.

Rumors Persist Redlegs' Smith On Way Out

PITTSBURGH (AP) — General manager Gabe Paul of Cincinnati Reds had a "no comment" reply today to persistent reports that Mayo Smith will be let out as manager of the club.

The rumors, brewing for more than a week, gained momentum after the Reds dropped both ends of Sunday's doubleheader and suffered their fourth straight loss to Pittsburgh Pirates.

Smith, shaken by the series of defeats, received permission from Paul to return to Cincinnati "to get away from it all" instead of remaining for today's all-star game between the National and American Leagues.

It was reported Paul has contacted at least two candidates for the job. One is Fred Hutchinson, former American and National League manager now the field and general manager of Seattle in the Pacific Coast League. The other is Clyde King, coach of the Reds.

The Reds, rated a strong contender this spring, now are seventh, 10½ games off the pace.

Nine Ex-Champs To Compete In Pro Tourney

HULL, Que. (CP) — Nine former champions will compete for the record $5,500 purse in the annual Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament at the Rivermead Golf Club here July 22-25, tournament officials announced today.

Among the entrants will be three-time winners Jules Huot (1934-38 - 46) and Stan Horne (1936-37-39) both of Montreal.

Defending champion Hector Martell of Edmonton will be shooting for his third title after leading the field last year and in 1953.

Carmel

CARMEL, — Mrs. Edith Gay has been spending a weekend with her cousin, Mrs. H. Dafoe.

Mrs. Whitmore's mother, who returned from hospital to stay a few days with her daughter, is improving.

Strawberries are nearly over. There was a good crop.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reynolds, and Gerald, and Miss Sharon Sheffield, spent the weekend in Rochester, and attended the Haines' family reunion while there.

The W.M.S. meeting was held at Mrs. George Moorman's home on Tuesday evening. The number present was not so large. The president and Mrs. Charlie Bristnell led the study book. At close lunch was served by the hostess. As it was the birthday of the president "Happy Birthday" was sung, and a beautiful birthday cake was presented to Mrs. Patterson by her daughter, Mrs. D. Williams of Belleville, which all shared, with ice cream, wishing many more happy birthdays to Mrs. Patterson, a faithful and worthy president.

The rains of the recent few days have helped the growth of gardens and grain, which is a great blessing.

Last Sunday morning a large crowd attended church for the last time to hear the pastor, the Rev. R. J. McCrea. All are sorry to part with him and trust the new pastor will be a great blessing to all.

Mrs. S. Honnan's sister has family, and mother, who of late has been with her son and family, and Mrs. H. Dafoe, had tea on Thursday evening. The pastor and family had visited with Mr. and Mrs. C. Dafoe and at several homes at Carmel and made calls.

Several are working at the canning factory at Foxboro.

Mrs. S. Honnan's sister has been spending a few days with the family here. She returned to a cottage on Sunday. Jean is returning for a visit with her mother.

The pupils both at high school and Carmel have all been successful. Congratulations to all and also to the teachers.

Majors May Trade Players Minus Waivers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A proposal to permit trading between National and American League teams without waivers between Nov. 21 and Dec. 15 of each year will be up for reconsideration at the major league meetings in Chicago Thursday and Friday.

The proposal was approved last year but is coming up for a vote again this year at the suggestion of baseball commissioner Ford Frick, who is against the plan.

Charles Segar, secretary of baseball, said Monday a second item to come up at the meeting will be how a $1,000,000 fund approved for aiding the minor leagues is to be distributed. He said there are no plans to discuss possible formation of a third major league.

damaged.

Three men were badly burned trying to salvage equipment from the hydrographic office. Edward MacDonald, 52, a local businessman, was reported in critical condition. William Pederson, 62, of nearby Green Hill and 16-year-old William Martin of Picton were less severely burned.

Black smoke that hail-blinded firemen rose thousands of feet into the air. So dense was the smoke that the Prince Nova, moored at one of the wharfs, was reported to have sunk after catching fire. The vessel later was found afloat.

The big blow was the loss of berthing facilities at the height of the summer shipping season. The mayor said the loss will cripple the port, through which is channeled freight to Prince Edward Island, the Magdalen Islands and Newfoundland.

It was the second disaster to hit the Northumberland Strait area in three months. At the other end of the strait, 32 New Brunswick fishermen lost their lives when a sudden storm hit the salmon fleet June 20.

A bright spot was Monday night's announcement that the fire would not materially affect production at Ferguson Industries, the town's biggest employer. Company president A. A. Ferguson said some shipyard departments had been hard hit but operations could continue with no layoff in the 375-man work force.

At one time the fire threatened a residential area. Preparations were made to evacuate the local hospital. Though the fire was halted before it got near the hospital, smoke seeped into the building.

Firemen predicted that the pilings might burn for days. Some were inaccessible. A fisheries patrol boat equipped with two pumps poured water on them from the harbor and firemen hacked openings in the plank tops of the wharfs to admit hoses.

Nobody could say how the fire started. A southwest wind was credited with saving the town.

Finance Minister Gives Some Hopes To Provinces

Extra Cash Depends On Economic Expansion

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial treasurers must wait until October, at least, to learn whether Finance Minister Fleming will meet their demands for extra federal cash next year.

Mr. Fleming has indicated that their hopes may depend, in large measure, on an economic expansion big enough to beef up the federal treasury beyond present expectations.

That picture emerged Tuesday at the close of a two-day federal-provincial conference of finance ministers and treasurers.

The ministers will meet here again Oct. 15 and 16 to discuss in the words of the official communique—"the possible need for a negotiating conference" of government heads to revise benefits available to the provinces under the final two years of the existing five-year tax-sharing arrangements. The agreements last until March 31, 1962.

FAVOR VALLEY

The communique said "a large majority of the provincial ministers expressed a strong interest for the federal government to call such a conference before the end of 1959.

At the close of conference, Mr. Fleming said there is "not much use in calling a conference" unless the federal government is in a position to increase tax-sharing payments. "We would expect to know the federal treasury benefits from economic recovery."

He added that by his forecast of a $302,000,000 federal deficit for the current fiscal year—ending next March 31, and said that prediction was based on expectations of a several-point rise in the gross national product.

NO DECISIONS

The only concrete action taken by the ministers' conference, attended by four of the provinces, was to draft a heavy agenda of studies on federal-provincial financial relationships.

A committee of senior civil servants must meet now and the rest of the week to start tackling the studies, which are comparatively, and report to the ministers in October.

In the communique, where Mr. Fleming reported briefly on the conference to reporters, Premier Leslie Frost Peterson commented: "The federal mountain laboured and brought forth a mouse."

Mr. Fleming replied that the meeting had been "extremely successful."

The present tax - sharing arrangement provides the provinces with 13 per cent of personal income taxes, 9 per cent of taxable corporate income, and 50 per cent of succession duties.

Quebec is the only province which hasn't agreed to these terms. It has its own taxes in those fields and federal rates are limited to 5 per cent of amounts filed in the agreement. However, the province collects some $55,000,000 a year in federal succession payments under terms of the tax-sharing agreement.

The October meeting of ministers is intended to be merely another big field of federal-provincial relationships. There are many problems in the field of insurance, pensions to the needy and blind and disabled, and other shared-cost programs.

The committee of senior civil servants will also be asked to start studying a series of technical questions for the October meeting: It also has been assigned other studies requiring a "long-term" approach, and the first item on that list is a study of alternative methods to the present tax-sharing arrangement.

Labor Member Wants Big Ben To Be Silenced

LONDON (AP) — Labor MP Frank Allaun Tuesday complained that Big B. is a boomer and that it should be silenced while Londoners try to sleep.

The gong-throated chimes of the famous Westminster clock were thundering through the House of Commons as Allaun suggested they should be stopped at least between midnight and 6 a.m.

He charged they disturb the sleep of 2,000 patients in St. Thomas's Hospital across the Thames from Parliament.

Speaker W. S. Morrison, whose official residence is not 30 yards from the foot of Big Ben's tower — listened sympathetically and called for the government to answer.

But government spokesman Harmar Nicholls turned down Allaun's plea.

"I slept for two years in St. Stephen's Club quite close to Big Ben and I can assure you it kept very well indeed," he told Allaun.

Allaun told a reporter his opponents seem to believe Big Ben does the hospital patients good—on the theory that while they hear it, they know they are alive.

"But my friends in St. Thomas's disagree," he said.

"They go there to get cured and find themselves shaken by this terrible din — dong dingdong every 15 minutes through the night."

The MP's apparently are immune to Big Ben's insomniac effects. Daily Telegraph reported a number of them slept peacefully through a debate on the printers' strike.

PRISON HOSTAGES FREED — Crying from effects of tear gas, three women and two youngsters emerge from the Ohio State Reformatory after they had been held hostage for more than 13 hours by four convicts in Washington State Reformatory. No 'Black List' Of Newsmen Says Controller

OTTAWA (CP) — Charles Jennings, CBC controller of broadcasting, said Tuesday there is no "black list" of newspaper men who may not give opinions on the public-owned corporation's radio and television networks.

Mr. Jennings made the statement to the Commons broadcasting committee at the end of a two-day discussion of CBC policies related to political and controversial broadcasting.

Maurice Johnson (PC—Charity - Rouville), asked Mr. Jennings whether it is true, that there exists in Ottawa and Montreal a list of "left-wing" newspaper men who must not be invited to comment."

"No," Mr. Jennings said.

Jean Noel Tremblay (PC—Rouville) asked whether there was a ban on Pierre-Chaloti, parliamentary correspondent for Le Droit, Ottawa's French - language daily newspaper.

G. Ernest Halpenny (L—London), committee chairman, said the question dealt with a personality and Mr. Jennings was not to answer.

Mr. Jennings said the CBC "bends over backwards" in attempting to give a balanced presentation of views on controversial subjects.

CROP INSURANCE BILL GETS HEAVY HOUSE ATTACK

Members Approve Principle of Act

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal crop insurance legislation is running headway against heavy weather stirred up by the Commons opposition.

Agriculture Minister Harkness' bill to protect farmers against bad crop years met with general approval in principle Tuesday night, but the Liberals and CCF were critical about the way the government went about putting the plan into effect.

The bill got third reading, usually a formality, remained after the Commons resumed 151 to 0 to give the bill second reading—approval in principle—as a government-for-the-head count.

Mr. Harkness told the House in the government's intention to proclaim the insurance bill "quite quickly" when regulations are established.

MAIN CRITICISMS

Most criticism of the crop bill was based on contentions that the federal government is not contributing enough money and that it has not had sufficient consultations with the provinces and farm organizations.

Both the Liberals and the CCF called for further study. CCF House Leader Hazen Argue talked the government's procedure "arbitrary" and as putting a gun to the head of the provinces.

Mr. Harkness said governments have been studying crop insurance for 20 years and this is the first practical result. It will take time now for action and not more study.

ANSWERS LIBERALS

To doubts expressed by Paul Martin (L—Essex East) and William Benidickson (L — Kenora-Rainy River) as to provincial participation and free elections for Russia's eastern and central European satellites.

Williams said Kozlov argued that the people of East Germany had never had free elections and made their choice and that anything to the contrary was propaganda.

The governor said he told Kozlov that Russia was "ruthlessly" put down a revolt in East Germany six years ago.

"I pointed out that Poland, one of the most Catholic countries in the world, had been given its freedom of religion," Williams said.

"I told him that in Hungary the Russians agreed to withdraw and did, but came back with Soviet tanks and troops and imposed a Red rule on the people. I told him the Romanian people certainly did not feel the regime represented them.

He told me that all I heard was a lot of propaganda. I told him the American people would not believe a single word he said."

Queen Steps Ashore at Soo After Voyage From Chicago

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)The royal barge carrying Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrived at the dockside here at 12:06 p.m. EDST today, opening a four-hour visit to this canal city.

The Queen stepped ashore wearing a dress of deep blue and white printed silk under a full-length printed blue coat. Her hat was of white silk trimmed with blue velvet and tulle.

Prime Minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker accompanied the royal couple ashore in the barge as the royal yacht Britannia, used banners flying, lay near the U.S. shore after a one-day voyage from Chicago.

It was sultry and cloudy but there did not appear to be any immediate threat of rain.

The Britannia moved up the St. Mary's River escorted by her accompanying warships, tugs and United States Coast Guard vessels. She stopped near a park below the International Bridge and dropped the royal barge which made a trial run to the landing here before returning to take on the royal party.

About 1,000 were on hand at the jetty as the Queen stepped on a metal diving board and walked up to the reception point on the seawall. Thousands more lined the two-mile route to Bellevue Park where city school children were gathered.

Michigan's Governor Fights Verbal Battle With Kozlov

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's Governor G. Mennen Williams says Soviet Premier Deputy Premier Frol R. Kozlov is skrewd and tough and it will take a "Yankee smile" to beat him.

Williams made the appraisal Tuesday night after what he called a "knock down and drag out" verbal fight with Kozlov.

The six-term Democratic governor appeared to feel he had the better of his sparring with Kozlov as he described it to a press conference.

Kozlov likewise today for a three-day Chicago visit. Aides said the Russian didn't realize the point view with Williams was to be public. They said he made no comment on the interview when he reaches Chicago.

Williams and Kozlov talked for an hour in a Detroit hotel room following their visit to the Industrial Detroit. Williams said he fired a series of written questions at the deputy premier. Then he said they argued through their own interpreters and at one point Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov got worried and interviened.

Three Firms Will Be Bid On Contract For Lockheed Jets

Malton Plant to Produce J-79 Engines for Craft

OTTAWA (CP)—The main contract for the airframe of the American Lockheed F-104G supersonic fighter plane for the RCAF Air Division overseas will be put up for competition among Canada's three major aircraft manufacturers, Defence Production Minister O'Hurley announced today.

He also informed the Commons that Orenda Engines Limited of Malton, Ont., will produce the J-79 engines for the aircraft.

Total cost of the program will be more than $400,000,000 of which the airframe will account for 47 per cent and the engines 23 per cent.

The three major Canadian aircraft manufacturers who will compete for the contract are A.V. Roe (Canada) Limited, Malton; Canadair Limited, Montreal, and de Havilland Aircraft Company, Toronto.

Some 200 of the planes are expected to be produced to replace the Canadair 1E fighters now used by eight of the 12 RCAF squadrons overseas.

ZONE FOR 10,000

The three - year program will create employment for about 10,000 persons at its peak, Mr. O'Hurley said. More than half will be spent directly by the major airframe and engine contractors.

Mr. O'Hurley said that while the basis on which contracts would are to be established must be settled by negotiation with various tractors, he could assure the House "we shall not contract on any cost-plus formula."

"For some items it may be possible to negotiate firm prices from the outset, but in the main the aim is to start on the basis of target prices, with incentive features.

"Where this is done, we shall subsequently negotiate firm prices as soon as our experience with production costs permits."

SO WON'T GO UP

By staying away from any cost-plus contracts, the government evidently intends to ensure the original price will not go up as the project is carried out—something that happened in development of the Avro-built Arrow interceptor, which the government cancelled earlier this year.

Original cost estimate for development of the Arrow was $300,000,000 but it was estimated to have cost about $600,000,000 when the program was cancelled.

Mr. O'Hurley said the American-developed F-104G will be built in Canada through payment to the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation of California of licence and royalty fees amounting to seven per cent of the cost.

The government intends to have the main engine within only six weeks and the first aircraft in the delivered within not more about 18 months after the contract is awarded.

UP TO 18 MONTH

Delivery rate would be built up to 10 planes a month within six months of receiving the first delivery and continue at that rate until the order is filled by mid-1963.

Mr. O'Hurley said a small number of parts for the airframe will be bought in the United States, but the government emphasized these purchases would be offset by the assignment in Canada or subcontracts to other aircraft manufacturers for F-104Gs going to West Germany's air force.

Teachers Told To Have Fun Along the Way

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Ontario Minister of Education Dr. W. J. Dunlop told 2,000 elected high school teachers Tuesday not to take their jobs too seriously.

"Education is a serious business but you get serious business done faster, more comfortably and more efficiently if you don't take it too seriously. You can have a little fun along the way," he said.

The teachers are attending the first year of a two-year course designed to help them "recognize and principals' positions.

But the principals and principals do not strive to become dictators but rather become "the friendly leader of a free discussion, the inspiration and guide."

Plane Taking Royal Couple to B.C. Vacation Spot Used by Loggers

VANCOUVER (CP) — When the Queen and Prince Philip take a vacation in Pennaks Lake in British Columbia's interior mountains they will use a small amphibious plane which usually transports loggers into the bush.

The plane will be used privately by British Columbia Air Lines, whose Grumman Albatross will fly the royal couple only twin pistion-engine amphibious planes operated in Canada.

Gordon Best, BCAL general manager, says that as a safety measure members of the Royal Family normally must fly in 4-engine aircraft. The exception was permitted because the $150,000, 16-passenger Mallard, besides being amphibious, are capable of maintaining altitude on one engine with a full load aboard.

BCAL's two Mallards — the Kitimate Princess and the Kitimat Prince, were specially built for the royal visit by the B.C. company. Old seats were taken out in the two passenger compartments of each plane was replaced with light blue leather. The ceilings were covered with cream-colored paint and built Pags were installed.

Capt. William (Waddy) Waddington, 38, will pilot the Kitimat Princess Saturday afternoon when it carries the royal couple from Kamloops to a fishing lodge at Pennaks Lake, 50 miles north, and 5,100 feet above sea level. They head back to Kamloops the following Tuesday and board a train for the coast to resume their Royal Tour.

The Kitimat Prince will stand by at Kamloops as a precaution.

Watts Towers In Los Angeles May Come Down

LOS ANGELES (AP)— They're still trying to decide whether three towers erected by an Italian immigrant are eloquent works of art—or nothing more than motley mazes of poorly assembled junk.

The edifices in question are the Watts Towers, built over a period of 30 years by a stonemason named Simon Rodia as a "tribute to America." The towers — one standing 104 feet high—are fabricated of 64 tons of steel rods decorated with glass, tile, seashell and pounce-it.

The city building and safety department, unimpressed by whatever genius may be incorporated in the weird spires, is trying to show in a condemnation hearing that the towers are dangerous and should be knocked down.

A hundred or so artists are calling the towers such things as "a monument to human energy" and "flower of folk art."

But Rodia, now 80, said he couldn't care less. He lost interest in the project shortly after it was completed.

Gas, Nightsticks Used to Quell Polish Riot

WARSAW (Reuters) — Police used tear gas and nightsticks to quell a riot at Poznan Thursday in southeastern Poland June 24 following official refusal to allow Roman Catholics to build a temporary chapel, it was reported today.

The crowd sacked the local Communist headquarters and police headquarters with stones before policy reinforcements from several towns came to the rescue.

The demonstrators, estimated at 1,000, fought a pitched battle with the reinforcements but eventually were driven off.

Police have made about 30 arrests. Several dozen persons were injured in the fighting.

Kranik Fabryczny, about 25 per cent of the town's population, is a predominantly industrial town built up around a metallurgical plant. It has no church.

Catholics formed an unofficial committee to raise funds for the building of a church. In the meantime they set up a cross and a statue of the virgin in a public square where a priest came to celebrate open-air masses.

Royal Yacht Crew to Get Shore Leave

MONTREAL (CP) — The royal yacht Britannia, with her British and Canadian escorts, is to return late July 18 for a six-day visit.

Purpose of the stop is to give shore leave to sailors who have been on duty without a break since the royal tour which began in Newfoundland June 18.

The St. Lawrence, which has a deep most royal craft this summer than at any other time in history, will welcome another large squadron of warships when Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten sails in next month en route to a naval review at Toronto. He and Lord Mountbatten will travel in one of four British Frigates, all of which will stop here.

Forecast Bathyscaph Will Probe Last Unknown Frontier of Earth

SAN DIEGO Calif. (AP)—Navy officials said today that preliminary dives of the bathyscaph Trieste have convinced them that it has been equipped with devices that will carry explorers to the earth's last great unknown frontier.

Eight preliminary dives by the Trieste to depths of more than 4,000 feet, have started a program that is aimed at giving man direct information about the three-fourths of the earth's surface covered by the oceans.

Capt. John M. Phelps, commanding officer of the navy electronics laboratory, said the program is so vast that it will take much time and money to carry it through.

But he and Dr. Andreas P. Rechnitzer, oceanographer in charge of the Trieste project, expressed confidence that a good start has been made.

Their views were supported by two internationally famous pioneers in the field, Prof. Auguste Piccard, Swiss scientist, and his son, Jacques.

The younger Piccard is under contract to the navy to pilot the Trieste in its preliminary dives. His father arrived this week from Europe to assist in some modifications to the craft, which the Piccards sold to the navy last year.

The Trieste is capable of dives down to 20,000 feet.

Friendship of U.S., Russia Key to Peace -- Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev told seven American governors Tuesday that friendship between the United States and the Soviet Union is the key to world peace.

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union "wants peace with all nations, but above all with the biggest and strongest—the United States of America."

"If there is friendship between us, there can never be war," the Soviet premier declared in a three-hour-and-45-minute talk in the Kremlin with the U.S. state executives touring the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev said if another na- tion started a war, Russia and the United States together could halt it.

"But if the United States and the Soviet Union are ever in a conflict," he continued, "the result would be terrible calamity, because if we fight, no force on earth could ever halt us."

Khrushchev said he believes this is realized by both American and Soviet leaders.

Asked by Florida Governor Leroy Collins, who heads the delegation, for a message for President Eisenhower and the American people, Khrushchev expressed hope for agreements on termination of nuclear weapons tests, a German peace treaty and settlement of the Berlin question.

CITY and DISTRICT NEWS

FIRE FIGHTERS, COUNCIL AGREE ON NEW CONTRACT

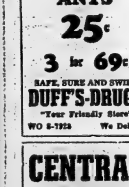
Belleville fire fighters have settled with city council on a new salary agreement, it was learned today.

Although terms of the contract have been tentatively agreed upon by the firemen and council, the agreement at noon today had still not been signed.

Details of the agreement will be published following its official signing.

EDUCATIONAL COSTS PUT MILL RATE UP

Increased educational costs will mean a bigger bite in tax dollars for ratepayers in the village of Tweed this year. The increase is 8.2 mills.



Public school supporters will be required to pay 52 mills for residential property and 88.5 mills for commercial, while the rate for Separate school supporters is 78.5 mills residential, and 85.1 mills commercial.

The high school rate is up 6.5 mills and the county rate is up one mill.

Tennis Classes Started at Quinte Club

Tennis instruction classes, under the direction of a qualified tennis coach, commenced at the Quinte Tennis Club (corner of Dufferin and Queen Streets) on Monday, July 6.

Instruction classes in three age groups: Group 1 — (under 12 years), group 2 — (12-16 years), group 3 — (16 years and over). There will be a junior tournament. Mr. Doug Grant will be in charge of the coaching program. These classes together with the supervised use of new practice facilities are offered free of charge to all club members.

Membership is open to anyone interested in tennis and membership cards may be obtained at the Quinte Tennis Club any evening after 7.00 p.m. or at the Sport Centre on Campbell Street.

Junior tennis rackets, in limited supply will be available for instruction and practice in the under 12 age group.

Bronc Crashes Into Fence

CALGARY (CP)—Marty Wood, defending world's saddle bronc champion, rode into the lead of the saddle bronc event at the Calgary Stampede Tuesday, then watched as his horse crashed into a fence and killed itself.

Wood, from Bowness, Alta., stuck with the horse for the required 10 cents. The horse continued bucking after Wood jumped off and hit the fence, breaking its neck.

Textile Industry Talk Given To Kiwanis Club

An interesting and enlightening talk on the textile industry was given members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club Tuesday at their noon meeting by fellow member, John Denton.

Mr. Denton, co-owner of the Vagabond Mills Ltd., 211 Bay Drive, briefly explained the operations of his industry which manufactures men's socks under three trade names, among them the Hunter of Scotland. He also discussed the problems involved in starting a business for oneself, and the advantages of a smaller industry over a larger one.

He explained problems of starting your own business included building up of retail trade, gearing up production to meet anticipated demands for your product, training new staff, and planning ahead for future and marketing.

The speaker stated "a small is the big guy's big guy", particularly in the textile industry, where only a comparatively small amount of capital is needed to start up a business. His opinion was there is room for active management in a smaller type of industry and more opportunity for specializing in one type of product, or for experimenting along in those lines.

He added within the past few years five to 10 large textile industries in Canada have shut out of business because of stiff competition from labour trade, particularly from Japan.

Regarding his own business, Mr. Denton said "business is encouraging this year." A staff of 36, working on three shifts at 30 knitting machines, are producing an average of 200 pairs of socks a day. The yearly total is approximately one-half million pairs, which represents a 1-2 per cent of the total Canadian market.

Mr. Denton was introduced and thanked by president Gerry Wishart and Kiwanian Jim with a token of the club's appreciation.

A question-and-answer period followed during which several fellow club members had an opportunity of visiting the speaker on his business and products. Several pairs of Vagabond socks were on display.

Obituaries

MRS. HELEN KETCHESON

The funeral of the late Mrs. Helen Ketcheson was held on Tuesday afternoon from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home with service at the chapel and for the entombment in Belleville Mausoleum conducted by Rev. H. M. Davis of Bridge St. United Church.

The bearers were: Seldon Homan, John Homan, George McClelland, Harry Ketcheson, John Ketcheson and Cecil Ketcheson.

MRS. JOHN SYINSON CHRISTY

Wellington

One of the oldest residents of the Lakeside village of Wellington was laid to rest Wednesday when the funeral of Annie Casteril Christy was held with interment in Wellington cemetery.

The funeral was held from the Ainsworth Funeral Home with Rev. Alfred Poulter conducting the service. The bearers were the grandsons of the deceased: S/Sgt. Reburn Christy, Keith Christy, Bill Christy, Vernon Christy, Fred MacDonald and Raynor MacDonald. Mrs. Christy died June 28 at her home after gradually failing health. Previously she had lived on a farm on Gilead Road.

She was a member of the United Church.

She is survived by one son, Foster J. Christy in Belleville and two daughters, Mrs. Clare (Ethel) Masteller of Wellington Cotta, and Mrs. Ben (Dorothy) Wright of Wellington.

There are 15 grandchildren, 49 great grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren.

MRS. JOHN SLEDZIEWSKI

Oshawa

In failing health for three years Mary Selerowski, beloved wife of John Sledziewski died at the family residence, 20 Johnston Ave., Oshawa, Sunday, June 28. She was in her 70th year.

A daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Selerowski, the deceased was born in Poland, July 6, 1890, and was married there Feb. 15, 1920.

A resident of Canada and Oshawa for 31 years, Mrs. Sledziewski was a member of St. Hedwig's Polish Roman Catholic Church.

She was also a member of the ladies' auxiliary of the church and of Polish Ladies' Auxiliary, Branch 4.

Besides her husband she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Anthony (Regina) Kozlowski of Belleville and Mrs. Steve Sciuk (Sophie) of Oshawa and a son, Robert of Oshawa.

Also surviving are a sister and a brother in Poland and five grandchildren.

The body rested at the Armstrong Funeral Home for High Requiem Mass in St. Hedwig's Church at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, July 8. Rev. Fr. Ks Kwiatkowski sang the mass. Interment was in St. Gregory's cemetery.

Workers Clean Weeds From Inner Harbor

The annual cleaning of weeds from the inner harbor at the Belleville waterfront is near completion for another year with two weeks work having stripped the area of most weeds. Next another week's work will complete the job, it is stated.

The cleaning job is being done by employees of the Belleville Harbor Commission.

The modus operandi sees workmen attach a heavy wire to a raft, the other end of which they being attached to a boat which circles the raft cutting off the weeds below the water surface. The weeds are then forked onto the raft and later dumped on the shore to rot.

The weeds may grow up again this season, but they will not be as rank as the first growth and is questioned whether they will require cutting a second time.

Sheikh Irshad of Pakistan Studies Banking in Canada

SHEIKH AHMAD IRSHAD, Pakistani banker, is shown above in the dress worn commonly to businessmen in his homeland. The Belleville official was the guest of Georges Tripp of the Bank of Nova Scotia. (Photo by Michael Burns).

Yesterday evening, although a few people might have realized it, Belleville was visited by Sheikh Ahmad Irshad of Karachi, West Pakistan. The Sheikh, who is touring Canada as the guest of the Bank of Nova Scotia, is visiting the North American continent to study various aspects of banking, especially consumer credit. An officer of the National Bank of Pakistan he is extremely interested in how this banking may be included in the economy of the newly developing Pakistan nation so that her people, who rely greatly on cottage industry (where goods are manufactured in the home) for their source of income, may be enabled to utilize their initiative to raise their standard-of-living through the purchase of modern equipment and other conveniences by the instalment plan.

The development of such opportunity towards individual free enterprise is the best answer to Communism which does not offer a good way of life, Irshad stated. He added that the Pakistani visitor felt that Communism was a theoretical revolt out by the 85,000,000 people of Pakistan as a desirable way of life. Political-financial progress is towards a republic under the parliamentary system of government as it is evidenced in North America.

The organization of Pakistan is another project of the present government to further encourage foreign investment in free enterprise. Many opportunities for industry are available to promote private venture capital to industrialization, withdrawal of profits and repatriation of capital. Earlier tax exemption and investment guarantees are included in these concessions.

Illiteracy was one of the main problems which faced the new nation in 1947. Only 7.5 per cent of her population were literate. Since then great advances have been made since that time by establishing a good educational system extending right up to the granting of the Ph.D. degrees.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION

These degrees are granted after requirements similar to those in Canadian universities have been met. A compulsory education system has been put into effect providing free education for all Pakistani children for the first five years of school. The results of this system have been significant — in the past 11 years the proportion of education people increased to the point where over 20 per cent are now literate.

Sheikh Irshad has found Canadians to be quite interested in exchanging views and ideas and finds a friendly atmosphere in Canada. He feels that Canadians are trying to combine the traditions of the past with progress for the future and considers this admirable.

Commenting on the differences to be found in the attitudes towards life between the East and the West Sheikh Irshad explained that basically the people in the East believe more in idealism whereas people in the West are more materialistic in their outlook. People in the East "find contentment in wanting what they have, not to have what they want" concluded the Sheikh in summing up on the differences between the thinking of the people of the East and the West.

Communism is not the threat which it might seem to be in the East, commented the visitor, indicating that the people in Pakistan have no inclination towards it whatsoever. It was also felt that the recent incidents in Tibet changed the attitudes of many people in the East in their thinking concerning Communism.

Following his brief stay in Belleville, Sheikh Irshad continues on to Montreal, Regina, Toronto, Winnipeg, California, Honolulu, Japan and Hong Kong speaking at various service clubs and organizations and looking for ideas which may be adaptable to the future development of Pakistan.

Workman Hit On Head With Well Pump

Struck on the head by a well pump which he was attempting to dismantle, George Stone, 50, of R.R. 6, Belleville, suffered head cuts and shock on Tuesday.

The injured man was treated at Belleville General Hospital and was later allowed to go home where he was said this morning to be resting comfortably. Twelve stitches were required to close the cut in Mr. Stone's head while he also received two smaller cuts behind the ear.

The accident occurred as Mr. Stone was attempting to remove the pump from a drilled well. The pump had been elevated and was in the process of being separated from the standpipe when it slipped out of holding hands and struck Mr. Stone on the head.

Queen Misses Her Children

CHICAGO (CP) — The Queen misses "terrific" her children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, according to a Chicago couple whom she visited Monday.

Patrick Hoy, whose nine-room home was the only private residence the Queen visited here, said she told him she missed the children even though she talked to them every day.

"I've been gone as long on this trip." Hoy quoted the Queen as saying.

75 Dog Owners Will Soon Get Summonses

Approximately 75 Belleville pet owners who have neglected to secure 1959 licences for their dogs are going to get an unwelcome surprise in the mail within the next few days.

City Dog Catcher Charles Thorn stated today that the number of summonses will be going out to dog owners who have not yet purchased 1959 dog tags.

So far this year only about half the dog owners in the city have renewed dog tags with but 1450 of about 3000 being sold.

This week Mr. Thorn is making a house to house canvass, checking on dog licences. Yesterday no less than 38 owners were found without 1959 tags for their dogs. Owners are given 24 hours to secure licences before summonses are issued appearance will be sent out.

2 Men, Woman Killed as Car Slams Into Tree

QUYON, Que. (CP)—Two men and a woman were killed and another man injured early today when a car slammed into a tree on Highway 8 near this community 35 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Dead are Donald Thompson, 31, and Graham Russell, 28, both of Eastview, Ont., and Margo Daeg, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Daeg of Eastview.

Carol Thompson, 28, of the Royal Canadian Navy stationed at Bedford, N.S., lire visiting her brother Donald, is reported in serious condition in hospital at nearby Shawville.

All four had been on their way home after taking Russell's father, Andrew Russell to Bristol, Que., to catch a train for North Bay. Earlier they had attended a funeral in Eastview together.

Police said the car apparently went out of control while rounding a bend "at terrific speed."

Russell was a nephew of the Thompson brothers. He was employed at the Royal Mint in Ottawa. An inquest will be held.

CROP INSURANCE

Claim Battery Just Borrowed To Start Auto

TRENTON — Richard Chouinard of Front Street, Trenton, appeared in Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon, on a charge of theft, but the case was remanded for another week to allow further investigation by local policemen.

The week's delay will also give the accused time to get legal advice.

The theft charge involves brass rollers which were the property of the Hinde and Dauch Paper Mill and valued at $1,000.

Bail was set at $6,000 in property.

Jerry Angelakis and Peter Mastakis, both of Trenton, were charged with the theft of a car battery valued at $12 and pleaded not guilty to the charge. They were represented by Rod Campbell of Trenton.

Constable Roy E. Miller gave evidence for the Crown and told the court that on the night of June 14, while he was on normal property duty, he saw the two accused in front of a car parked near Elgin Street and the hood of the car was up. He said he also observed one of the men carry the battery from the car to another one parked on the street and set it on the pavement. He told the court that when he arrived at the scene they had already attached from the battery on the radiator to the one in the car. He said the accused fled and it was by the their battery and then later told him they had just come down to get the car started.

Under question by defence counsel Miller further told the court the corner in question was well lighted and only a block from the police station. He said the men displayed no excitement when he appeared on the scene and had continued to work on the car. He also identified the battery which was brought to court.

The battery and the car it was taken from belonged to LAC Gerard Mendzeron of Elgin Street.

The case was enlarged until August 11 for judgment.

Kenneth James Wilson was found guilty of speeding on Dundas Street East and fined $20 and $3.50 costs. Constable Sid Vickers told the court he had clocked the vehicle Wilson was driving at a speed of 50 m.p.h.

Merchants Ask 'No Parking' Rule Be Eliminated

TRENTON — A request to town council to have the 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. parking ban on the north side of Dundas Street between Victoria and Albert Streets removed was turned over to the Trenton traffic committee for study.

A petition, signed by most of the business men along Front Street and Dundas Street West was read at the council meeting and it stated in part that owing to the decrease of heavy traffic through Trenton, because of the 401 Highway, the merchants felt this "no parking" ban could be lifted. The petition also read that it was a hindrance to the stores concerned and the owners therefore wished to shop during these hours.

During the discussion by the councillors Claude Graham suggested that although it is an excellent way to keep traffic moving it may be possible to cut it by an hour and have the ban in effect only from 4.30 p.m. to 5.30 p.m.

Councillor Lloyd Weese, also a member of the traffic committee, felt that traffic was moving through Trenton very well under the present system during this time of the day and that this would not be so if cars were parked on both sides of the street.

Mayor Ross Burtt, who suggested turning the request over to the traffic committee for its opinion, said he was of the impression that the committee had finally got traffic moving through Trenton surprisingly well and the matter should be left to it for its recommendations.

PRIZES PURCHASED

TRENTON — It was erroneously reported in yesterday's paper in the firemen's softball story under the "Trenton News" that the prizes the firemen are selling tickets on were donated by merchants in Trenton. This should have read, "Prizes were purchased by the firemen from Trenton stores."

SCIENCE COLLEGE

Oldest school of applied science in the U.S., Franklin Institute at Philadelphia was founded in 1824.

Will Revalue Town Property Up for Sale

TRENTON — A special meeting of the Trenton town council will be held today or tomorrow on the revaluation of all property owned by the town which is likely to be put up for sale.

Mayor Ross Burtt said he congratulated Councillor Vagn Lange for suggesting this and the councillor, along with the town engineer and assessor, will bring in a report to the special council meeting.

The entire council felt this was desirable despite the fact that the same thing had been done only four years ago. The members expressed the view the town could derive much benefit as much as possible by sale of land and that present prices were too low.

Councillor Worrall also suggested that in the future the town look into another proposal brought out by Township clerk-treasurer Lee, a certificate of sale be issued in connection with the property requiring the purchaser to build on it within a year or two.

In other business the council, on Monday night, approved the request from the Recreation Parks Board for a $2,000 advance from the money spent on the water purification plant. This money will be refunded in time by the provincial and federal governments. It was also recommended that the town send a letter to the proper authorities in Ottawa and have this money paid to the town as soon as possible. The total refund for the entire winter work project in Trenton came to $,300.

Halls Will Be Given Close Fire Inspection

TRENTON — Better fire protection and more frequent fire inspections of halls and other buildings in the town of Trenton was approved by the town council-ton at their last regular meeting.

The recommendation was made by Fire Chief Cecil Ellis and put before the council by Councillor Claude Graham, chairman of the Protection to Persons and Property Committee.

In his letter to the council, Chief Ellis says:

"I would like to bring to your attention that most of the dance halls, public meeting places and halls operated by fraternal groups are greatly lacking the necessary fire protection which is required.

"According to my information, permits allowing the use of any building as a public meeting place have to be renewed each year. If this is the case, I would like the permission of the council to have a fire inspection included in the requirements necessary to obtain a permit for a public hall.

"There are several halls which have been inspected by this department and have fire escapes but which are in a very dangerous condition and some halls have no fire escapes at all. We are unable to correct this once they have a permit to operate."

Workman Falls To His Death At Colborne

TRENTON — William Alexander Anderson, 48, of R. R. 3 Picton, (Demorestville) plunged 25 feet to his death Tuesday morning while at work at a project at Colborne.

According to police reports Mr. Anderson lost his balance while working on a structural steel, the 25 foot fall to a conveyor belt which will run out from the lake, and fell to the cement pier below. He was killed instantly.

He is survived by his wife and three children and the news of the accident was not received until yesterday afternoon after the members of the family had been notified.

Mr. Anderson was employed by Canada Crushed Stone, a construction firm, and had been with the firm for three years. The company is at present fulfilling a contract with the Canada Cement Co. at Colborne.

Dr. F. Pembers, coroner, of Colborne was called to the scene and Harry Deyman, Queen's Park, investigated for the area said no inquest will be called.

The accident was investigated by the Brighton Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Her Majesty Calm Patient Says Dentist

CHICAGO (Reuters)—The dentist who filled Queen Elizabeth's troublesome tooth Monday night said she "was one of the calmest patients I ever had."

Dr. Norman Olsen, whom the Queen consulted in his surgery between official engagements, said the royal visit was "terribly routine."

"I called her 'Your Majesty,'" he added. "We exchanged greetings and from then on it was just 'open and close.'"

Dr. Olsen said he prepared the cavity with a high-speed, "painless drill and stopped the hole with a temporary filling of dental cement.

The Queen certainly has a wonderful smile and a marvelously healthy set of teeth," he noted.

Contributors Pay

CHICAGO (CP) — Private contributors paid for the $27-a-plate lunch and the even more expensive dinner the Queen gave for some 1,500 guests here Monday, Mayor Richard Daley disclosed Tuesday.

Official estimates were that expenses ran to about $5,000 an hour for the royal stay.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were reported unchanged here today.

The egg market was reported steady with receipts adequate for a fair demand.

Country dealers are quoted by the federal department of agriculture on graded eggs, delivered Toronto, in fibre cases: extra large 41; A large 41; A medium 39; A small 33 25; C 15. Wholesale to retail: extra large 46; A large 46; A medium 39; A small 33; C 25.

Butter prices: Canada first grade, Ontario tenderable 64c; non tenderable 63¾-63 in light trading; western 62¾ (nominal).

F/L and Mrs. J. Laroche pose with the tea and coffee service which was presented to Mrs. Laroche at a party held in the Officers' Mess, 6 RD, on Friday, to mark the retirement of F/L Laroche from the RCAF after 30 years of service.

Excutive Meets

TRENTON — Executive members of Branch 110 of the Canadian Legion held their regular monthly meeting, Monday. Branch President, W. T. Lawson, was in the chair.

Entertainment chairman, Ken Craddock, informed members arrangements had been completed for the children's picnic, to be held at Cedardale Beach Park, Sunday, August 9th.

Housing Committee Chairman Orvell Smith, advised arrangements had been made to have the Ladies' Auxiliary's kitchen painted and an exhaust fan installed.

Zone Commander, elect W. Ell Donaldson reminded members of the Zone Rally to be held at Port Hope, July 14. He requested all executive members to attend.

F-L J. Laroche Retires After Long Service

TRENTON — F/L J. Laroche and Mrs. Laroche were guests of honor at a retirement party held in the Officers' Mess, 6 Repair Depot, on Friday.

During the course of the evening G/C A. Spruston, Acting Commanding Officer of 6 RD, presented Mrs. Laroche with a silver tea and coffee service from the Officers of 6 RD. In his remarks G/C Spruston stated that with the retirement of F/L Laroche the RCAF was losing another one of its real old timers, and a man whom he had known personally for a great many years.

In accepting the tea service on behalf of his wife, F/L Laroche thanked everyone present for their kindness and for the pleasant memories he had of all his associations at 6 R.D.

F/L and Mrs. Laroche are residing in Belleville and the Flight Lieutenant plans to take up employment in the local area.

F/L Laroche enlisted in the RCAF in April, 1929. He spent eight years at Camp Borden with the Air Armament Squadron, and when the latter unit moved to Trenton in June, 1937, he moved with it.

From April, 1941, F/L Laroche was transferred to 8 Bombing and Gunnery School at Mountain View, where he remained until December, 1942, when he went to 7 and 8 School at Paulson, Man.

In May, 1943, F/L Laroche was transferred to 3 Wireless School, Winnipeg, and in November of that year he was commissioned in the Aeronautical Engineering Branch of the RCAF.

After a course at the RCAF Engineering School in Toronto F/L Laroche was transferred to 6 Repair Depot, Soudbow, N.B., where he remained until August 1944 when he went to RCAF Station Goose Bay, Labrador, as Chief Technical Officer.

In late 1945 and early 1946 F/L Laroche helped in the closing out of 4 RD at Scoudoac and 13 Supply Depot in Montreal.

In May, 1946, F/L Laroche came to 6 RD where he remained until November, 1950, when he was transferred to 438 Squadron at St. Hubert as Engineering Officer.

In May, 1954, F/L Laroche returned to 6 RD where he has been Officer Commanding of the General Repair Unit for the last five years.

Council Agrees To Hire Man to Repel Skunks

TRENTON — "Skunks are invading Trenton" was the complaint of a town resident in a letter to the town council read at the regular meeting.

The letter said all the neighbors in that area have the same complaint and suggested the town bring in an exterminator to get rid of them. The letter also stated that it was not permissible to shoot them or throw gas bombs at them. Nor was it permissible to put out poison for them.

Mayor Ross Burtt said he knew from experience that it is almost impossible to get these things and suggested the councillors contact the bonding in of the exterminator to get rid of them. This was approved by the councillors.

The letter was read by Councillor Howard Aziz.

CHURCH AOYS

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Vatican sources say retired Rear-Admiral Isaac Rojas, former vice-president of Argentina, and an Argentine deputy had incurred automatic excommunication by helping a divorce. The sources say other Roman Catholics helping them in the divorce bill, such as reporters and photographers, were included in the excommunication.

THEY WERE BETRAYED

We are fascinated to discover that the evidently bounding interest of members of Lions International in all problems which affect the economic, cultural and spiritual welfare of our North American civilization include a deep and abiding thirst for knowledge relating to the history and the psychological implications of that great American institution, the art of the strip-tease dancer.

That such an interest exists is self evident from the testimony of S. A. Dodge of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., relative to a most deplorable and unprincipled use by some newspapers of a picture of Adlyn Morris, a graduate in English literature of the University of Washington. Miss Morris addressed a Lions meeting in Royal Oak, Mich., on the subject of her profession which happens to be that of an ecdyiast. Certain Detroit newspapers, instead of running a picture of Miss Morris in her graduation cap and gown, or even in the off-the-shoulder white dress in which she was so demurely clad for her appearance at the Royal Oak meeting, illustrated the story of her address by a picture of Stripper Libby Jones, almost completely undressed.

The Detroit newspapers' defence, we imagine, is going to be that Adlyn Morris and Libby Jones are one and the same person. This, of course, is immaterial, irrelevant and a host of other things, including annoying to Mr. S. A. Dodge, past international president of the Lions. The picture, he declared "by innuendo inferred she put on such a striptease act at the club meeting. We are going to do everything possible to erase from the record any idea that such a thing happened at the meeting."

By all means do that, Mr. Dodge. But surely nobody would infer that any club which would invite a strip-teaser to address it on the art of strip-teasing would really want anything but a first-class strip-teaser? Why, once grant that and the implications are enormous, the inference being that when members of these same clubs invite speakers to address them on such subjects as painting they would really enjoy looking at pictures and that when they hear talks about community betterment they are really interested in doing something to improve the community.

Of course, there are some of us who have made this sort of inference all along and it is not unnatural that we should make a companion inference and believe, as Mr. Dodge evidently fears we do, that some members of the Lions who have heard talks on the history and psychology of strip-teasing are also interested in seeing strip-teasing demonstrated.

It would be true of the members of almost every other organization which invited a strip-teaser to address them. But evidently the Lions are different - - or perhaps Lionesses are much the same as other wives.

PRO AND CON -- THE BLESSED IDIOT

Senator C. G. Power described himself as a "blessed idiot" inadvertently when he criticized the early retirement policy which has been in effect for officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force since 1944, and was advised that this measure was brought into effect by himself when he was Minister of Defence.

The policy, when adopted, was designed to keep the RCAF a dynamic organization with the opportunity of advancement through the ranks for its officers and to avert the possibility of stagnation in the upper echelons of command. This idea certainly had its merits in 1944 and we feel, in contradiction to Senator Power's present opinion, that the practice is extravagant, it still has considerable merit.

Senator Power's reason for reversing his opinion of some 15 years ago is that "the situation has changed." He doesn't state exactly how it has changed but suggests that officers now do work of "a purely administrative nature." If this is the case we feel that there is an even greater greater argument for the early retirement scheme. Certainly a person can become extremely set in his ways if administration work is all he is required to do. The interjection of new blood into the administrative system of any organization is useful in keeping it on its toes and abreast of the times. This, we suggest, is certainly what we would desire of the RCAF, or any other branch of our armed services. In fact it might be beneficial to various branches of our civil service.

HONORING AN UNKNOWN HERO

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Since I am doomed to sing today,
Regardless of the sticky weather,
Since I must work while others play
And string a bunch of rhymes together,
I'll be as cheerful as I can
And uncomplaining ply my trade;
I'll sing some praises to the man
Who first invented lemonade.

I don't know what his name may be
Or what year he served his neighbors;
But here for all to see
I tribute to his splendid labors.

Our histories record the deeds
Of men whose fame shall never fade,
But so far no one ever reads
Of him who gave us - lemonade.

I wish I knew this hero's name
That I might properly address him,
He should have had undying fame
And all the race of men should bless him.
Therefore, since I must sing today
When it's one hundred in the shade,
I'll dedicate this simple lay
To him who gave us lemonade.

Barbers Have Their Woes

New York Times

A barber in Times Square is quoted as saying that men are becoming more difficult to cater to than women when it comes to shaping the hair. Styles have changed so drastically in the last decade, he notes, that it is no longer possible to count on the element of speed to produce business. Men want a hair-cut that can keep the barber busy for almost an hour and, when the customer is dead, the barber's starving suffer. A few years ago, the customer got a cut, the Ivy League, the square cut and the flat top; now he reported to put the barber on his best behavior if he is to satisfy the customer, study his bone structure and control his temper. The latest barbering styles for men seems to have increased greatly in difficulty, and the familiar phrase "same as usual" is becoming more fitting than it has been.

A group of barbers met recently in New Jersey to see what could be done to increase prices of haircuts that require excellence. He has known that was present heard vivid discussions about the detail involved in taking orders. One of the charges was that a barber "has to ask a man how he likes his styles to see that every hair is square." A spokesman said that he felt it should no longer be just a barber. "He has to be an architect. He has to know lines and angles." A description of one modern fad, the bird, bears out the fact, for when a customer selects the bird as his hair style, the barber has to work on top, long on the sides and square in the back. Enough perhaps, to make any aspirant wonder about a career in the field.

Another style that disturbs the tonsorial artist is the "do" in which long hair in the back comes to a point, like a cowlick. One of the experts in attendance commented on the particular style which "kind of bugs about the craziest haircut there is. It takes forty minutes to do it properly." And what if the young man who is getting it is hungry, in a hurry, or both? Meantime, you might take longer. Meantime, you might have a bald-headed man waiting. He is getting madder all the time. It might take you ten minutes to cut his hair, but he has to pay the same price as the younger man." The local newspaper, in reporting on this comment, couldn't resist reminding the reader that it was "enough to cost your hair."

Among the haircuts developed by this generation that are troublesome to the barber are the Julius Caesar (sworn by Jerry Lewis, the comedian), the Ivy League, the Flat Top, the Crew cut and the Elvis Presley (named for the entertainer). While these are a bit difficult as some other styles, according to the barbers, they still require more effort and take more time than the simple haircut of yesteryear. There was a day, of course, when a man sat in the barber's chair and answered one simple question: "How do you want your hair cut?"

The barbers say that they cannot be too proud of some of the results they have had in their current generation a haircut. "In some cases," one of them says, "you have to take the hair back and the sides heavy and leave them long. Sometimes it looks like they never get a haircut." He didn't quite say that it looked like the barber has never applied the tools of his trade, and if there is one thing he takes as much pride in his work as his customers, it is probably the working of his tools.

* * *

The natural problem that may arise is whether men's barbers may not regard themselves as greater than stylists because who shape women's hairdos. Shutterbugs are known to be developing before long if enough changes are made in what customers may desire. A boy will say a haircut. But then, again, it may be better to let it go with the comment of one headline writer: "Barbers Say There's No Short-cut to Easy Haircuts." To which the newspaper's specialist on haircuts added: "Next please."

Translating Into Braille

UNESCO Feature

Exciting new prospects for blind readers are being opened up by one of the latest applications of electronic computers. With the aid of one of these machines, a 300-page book can now be translated into Braille in one hour — a task which would take almost a week for several skilled translators to complete. Moreover, it takes about two years to train specialists in Braille, whereas the new method does not demand a knowledge of Braille on the part of the operator.

The Braille technique has certain features in common with the automatic translation of languages — one of the subjects being discussed at the big international conference on information processing now in progress in Paris (15-20 June).

The computer equipped to translate into Braille is provided punched cards on to which the printed text has been transcribed in code, letter by letter, number and punctuation mark by mark, in the usual story. Also stored are the complicated rules of Braille translation. The machine operates at the many as 600 instructions per word in less than one-fortieth of a second. The translation appears in the form of coded symbols on a punched tape which are passed on to a printing unit and then to a stereotyping machine which produces plates for use in a rotary press.

Braille consists of 63 combinations of six raised dots representing the alphabet, numbers and punctuation marks, and more than 180 contractions and abbreviations similar to shorthand notation. It has complex rules wherein the symbols often change their meaning according to the context. To cope with this, the computer memory lists words or parts of words which cannot be converted on the simple letter-for-letter basis, and the machine is able to spell out as a pattern of magnetic dots and the computer is able to scan the line letter at a time as one would do when looking up a word in the dictionary. Thanks to this technique, the machine is free from the common human failing of making mistakes through false memory associations.

By making it possible to accelerate considerably the production of books in Braille, the machine translates 4,000 words a minute, it increases a how man being only does 40 — and increasing the range of texts available. The printing process will certainly open up many new fields of learning to the blind.

Yaks Breed Too Slowly

Ottawa Journal

Northern Affairs, one of the most optimistic and forward-looking departments, announces with a gentle fanfare the Mirth of another yak.

That makes two. One was born last year and this latest arrival, born at the Canadian Government yak herd, a collection of yaks maintained on a farm near Ottawa, a total of five.

The idea is to get yak into the Arctic where they would provide good meat, clothing and hides and offer their long hair for knitting or whatever it is principle people make yak hair into. We are poised and ready to drive the yak population boom when we think of the wide acres of the Canadian Arctic and note the net increase of one a year in the Government herd, we shrink our power live to one the day when a Polar bear, lurching from the west, pauses to mull a yak with wild surmise or a musk-ox bull, ready to charge, pauses to think better of a yak's horns and decides discretion the better part of valor.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT A NEIGHBORHOOD PEEPING TOM

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a neighbor who is a peeping Tom. I have children and girls only with my husband and we agreed to just keep our curtains open. (If the other neighbors know, they are keeping it a secret.) Are we safe?

"What worries us is our girls. Can he become dangerous?

"This presents a problem, because we can't keep curtains night, and our girls are crazy about the neighbor's girls. I am sure his wife has no idea what he is doing, and it would break her heart. She is very attractive a neat housekeeper and an excellent mother. — Mr. and Mrs. C. A. C."

*P.S. — I wish I had a problem where you can say, 'See your doctor!' We enjoy your columns very much."

To the best of my knowledge, from both police and medical sources, the "peeping Tom" isn't likely to be dangerous. This cannot be a 100 per cent rule, because of the dangerous types may, as a part of their illness, do a certain amount of peeping, but in such cases the peeping is incidental to the dangerous purposes.

The true peeping tom is usually a shy, frightened sort of fellow (in this regard, at least) and will run from a woman or girl if he is discovered.

Although it would be to drop a hint that "there's a peeping tom in the neighborhood. If we can catch him, the police tell us, we'll see that the boy stays in his own neighborhood hereafter, this." Or something like that.

It may be that your neighbor, if he were to be referred to a psychiatrist, could get his thinking straightened out. But I don't see how you can impel to do so; that's up to him.

WELL SHAPED LEGS

For your problem, or any such, there's one thing you can do. You don't say how old your daughters are, but at any age they might as well realize that there's one thing which will stop a peeping tom, and that's to pull the shades when they dress. Nobody can peep through drawn shades.

As far as that's concerned, if a lady, from age 6 to 60, leaves her shades up, she can't complain that males, in the same expansive age bracket, won't look. Looking to the male animal, is a perfectly natural process and looking demure is to the female of the species.

So down with the shades and up with your spirits.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My son seems to have a sinus condition, and had an almost constant cough, which I am sure. Do you think this might be caused by refusing to wear a hat during the coldest weather? — Mrs. C. C."

A sinus condition can (among other causes) result in a chronic cough, but I do not think that wearing a hat will ward it off. The hat doesn't cover the sinus area. Perhaps you should look further for the cause, such as excessive smoking, nose defects, allergy.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that persons suffering from duodenal ulcer have to be especially careful in the spring of the year? If so, what do they do? — P. T."

Yes, it is true that such an ulcer tends to flare up in spring and fall, but I can't tell you why. The only explanation I have heard is that it may be related to chilling in those seasons.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is the use of white vinegar in the douche harmful to the tissues? — Mrs. E. S."

Two tablespoons of vinegar to the quart is not harmful to the tissues. It is frequently used for trichomonas vaginalis infections. However, unless a douche is necessary for purposes of treatment, it is not recommended at all. Why use it unless there is a need for it?

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with fissure, fistula, itching and other rectal problems, write to me in care of The Canadian Star Syndicate, P.O. Box 153, Dundee, Ill., requesting a copy of booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids," enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20c in coin to cover handling.

Canadian PLACE NAMES

LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA

This southern Alberta city owes its existence to coal. During the early seventies coal was discovered in the area and to the Mounted Police barracks and the settlement that grew up the place had become known as "Coalbanks" and had attracted wise ass lawmakers from capitals who formed a company with Governor Lethbridge of Southern Shire, England, as president. The Post Office department did not like the name "Coalbanks" and substituted "Coalhurst," but the citizens did not. It is the first citizen of the town, chose the name Lethbridge. The coalmining district as there was already a town named Lethbridge in Ontario. But the local citizenry persisted in clinging to the name Lethbridge and won the battle.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A'GOOD PAST

Old people are inclined to reminisce. This is probably due to the fact that the future being so limited to extent old people attend to look back on the broader expanse of years, meditate upon and sometimes dream of.

Of course, there is no reason why old people should refrain from reminiscing; that is, if his memories become a source of bore his hearers. Some of the most charming elderly people are those who talk quietly and gently about their youth and middle ages. In these older minds are sometimes stored up precious recollections — occasionally of historical value — and if a person has the sparkle to tell stories of past days with enthusiasm and vitality, the person who reminisces often becomes a most social success instead of a bore.

What we should make sure about is that we have something good to look back upon. There is none of us who is not sorry for spots and areas in the past. Yet many a person comes to the threshold of old age and sometimes even beyond that looking back upon a life conspicuously full of happy memories. This person may not have been a great benefactor to his race and his or her life may have been characterized by sorrow and disappointment.

But, a good past there is a past which can be recalled with a heartwarming glow of heart, of gentleness, kindness, tenderness and, toward others — faith in God.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THAT X-RAY

One of the great inventions has been proved to be the X-Ray. It takes pictures and gives to the surgeon the location of trouble that gets immediate attention. The skilled operator then does not make any guesses. The path is beside in front of him.

It's something like this in trying to learn things about a friend of whom we may know nothing but the least part of that friend. We see the heart and discern the soul of him one — without an operation! Perhaps it may be no more than a warm handpress, or the quiet word of cheer, or some kind word that mere medicine cannot locate.

We need to explore our friends. There may be some of Dr. Russell Conwell's diamonds in their Acres of them. The X-Ray pictures may reveal much but not so much as a kind heart can discover. How very little we know about the invisible heart of our friend or neighbor.

There was a rich young ruler who went to Jesus as it is recorded in the Bible. He wanted to follow Jesus. He was rich and couldn't get rid of all his wealth and then return and follow Jesus, he was very disappointed when he left, never returning. Jesus saw his whole inward heart.

We would be more charitable and understanding if we could get a glimpse of another, without having to give up some of our treasures. A minister went to the great actor Edwin Booth, whom he admired, but was afraid his people would not like to learn that he was there. He asked Booth if he could sneak in, let him be concealed somewhere so that he might see and hear Booth acted. "There is no place in my Theatre that God can't see."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Has anybody thought of just cutting off all negotiations with Russia?

Negotiation has no meaning to communists except that it is the feint the prize fighter uses to put his adversary's guard down for a haymaker. Many years ago, when I was young, I found myself in a labor negotiation. My next door neighbors were hoodlums. Such was their behavior that I decided to call the police. I thought I would be a good citizen and do my duty. They were boisterous, hilarious, hearty, tough, irrespective. It turned out that one of their friends had decided that my house would be nice for him. So the program was to drive me out. But I didn't know it. I was genteel. Being a small man, I was no match for their toughness.

However, in a war in which I had recently participated, I had made sundry friends, and I called them fairly rough characters. And one day I met an old sergeant of mine down town, and I happened to tell him of my plight. How does a polite and proper little man deal with great and lusty neighbors?

That evening, my old sergeant called upon me with four comrades of less comely visage than himself. Somehow, they told them that if they made any more trouble for the proper little people next door, they would come and break the blank blank blank out of every bone in their bodies. Three blanks appear to be necessary in speaking certain tongues.

I have often recalled, with guilty conscience, this incident in my life. Should I have condoned this lawless act on the part of my old comrades?

But do you know, it was my neighbors who moved, in about six months!

What our genteel statesmen ought to learn, maybe, is about three good blanks in Russian.

More Anaesthetists for Modern Medicine

Canada Meets Medical Challenge

One branch of modern medicine to which doctors in Canada have increasingly turned their attention in the past decade has been the challenging field of anaesthesia. Vital co-partner of the surgeon in the tense drama of the operating theatre, it is the anaesthetist's task to keep the patient alive and with good muscular relaxation throughout the operation, which may take anywhere from a few minutes to many hours. In most types of modern surgery where intravenous anaesthesia is now employed, the patient is unaware of further procedures by the anaesthetist.

Anaesthetist at one of Canada's large metropolitan hospitals keeps an alert eye on a battery of dials and equipment for the slightest indication of danger signals. His job neither begins nor ends in the operating room: he makes a thorough study of the patient beforehand, conducts post-operative checks afterwards.

Emergency cases, often rushed to hospital from the scene of accidents, present a serious problem for the anaesthetist. Without knowledge of the patient's past history and not knowing when or what the patient may have eaten, he must rely on his own shrewd judgment and personal skills in choosing the right drug or combination of drugs.

The anaesthetist has to cope with an infinite variety of problems: the very young and the very old, the patient with organic weaknesses or those who may possess allergies to certain drugs. Often the type or duration of the operation itself sets certain severe limitations and demands upon the method of anaesthesia employed.

Canada was one of the first countries in the world to require specialist training in anaesthesia; the number of certified anaesthetists have tripled in the past 13 years, from some 200 to 657 today.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Ted Grant.

Evidence of the use of drugs to induce unconsciousness dates back to the dawn of history but not until the first world war did anaesthesia come into its own as an important branch of medicine. Today, the centuries-old search for new and better drugs goes on.

JOHN N. BROWN

John N. Brown, President and General Manager of Bancroft Lumber Limited, has been appointed President by the Board of Directors of the newly-formed Company, Osmose Pressure-Treated Wood Products (Ontario) Limited. The plant is located at Bancroft, Ontario.

"We obtained from the Osmose Wood Preserving Company of Canada Limited a license to use their pressure-treating equipment, their preservatives and trade name, after observing the outstanding success of Osmose Licencees in the United States", Mr. Brown explained. "We have every confidence that we will enjoy equal success", he continued, "since there appears to be a great market in Canada for pressure-treated wood that is not only rot-resistant, but clean to handle, and fire retardant as well."

In addition to his interest in Bancroft Lumber Limited, Mr. Brown is Secretary of Bancroft Concrete Products Limited. He has been Reeve of the Municipality of Bancroft for the past three years, and is presently Warden of Hastings County.

Visit Recalls Poem Written 24 Years Ago

The present Royal Tour by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II and His Royal Highness Prince Philip recalls to the mind of Mrs. Andrew Sharpe, now residing at 110 Stanley St., Belleville, the formal acknowledgement from Buckingham Palace, London, England, which she received on June 25, 1935, for a poem she had written.

The poem was written on the occasion of the death of King George V of England.

The letter she received stated in part: "His Majesty deeply appreciates the sentiments of loyalty and devotion which are so happily expressed in your poem of May 20th."

The poem follows:

Sonnet to His Majesty King George V of England.

"Hail Monarch of a mighty nation thou
Did'st deem to hold thy subjects, thus, so long
Whole-heartedly devoted to thee now
A peaceful, happy, law-abiding throng.
Willing with gifts of kindness to endow,
Praising thy works in word and deed and song
Calling to God to guard thee from all wrong
Did'st deem such honor for thy kingly brow,
Ah yes, for Britain's Monarch is our pride,
Beloved ruler, subject to our God.
Most gladly our allegiance then we bring
Well pleased that British laws should be our guide,
For God's appointed ruler bears no rod.
Hail, then, beloved Monarch, Britain's King.

District Soccer Leagues Results

Northern Electric scored two goals in the second half of the game to shade the RCAF 3-2 in a Bay of Quinte soccer league match last night.

RCAF opened up a 2-0 lead early in the game on goals by Turner and Al Brown. Northern came back with one before half time with J. Iasenza booting the goal to cut the deficit in half.

Then in the second half, Northern netted the tying and winning goals, both by P. Evenden, to squeeze out the hard - fought 3-2 decision.

City Commercial Softball League

Bishops Steeds scored in every inning last night on their way to a 13-7 victory over the Bankers in a City Commercial softball league tilt.

Bankers held a 2-1 lead after one frame but Bishops tied it in the second and scored six in the third to take over the lead for good.

Andy Knott and Tommy Schrieder shared hitting honors for the victors with a double and two singles each. Jack Reid had a double and single and Roger Courneya a brace of singles. Doug Bunnett and Bob Robes collected doubles while Rusty Garvin, Ted Ewings and Jack Garvin also hit safely.

"Shorty" Miller sparked the Bankers with a triple and three singles. Al Chalmers had two hits, with one each for Burgess, Coddrichs and McGrimmon.

Jack Reid pitched the distance for Bishops, allowing nine hits. Jones started for the Bankers, relieved by Smith in the fourth. They were tagged for 13 safeties.

CHANGE PLANE'S NOSE

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — When the X-15 rocket plane blasts off toward the fringes of space it will have a long, hot a needle nose. A round ball that replaces the lance-like nose of the swept-wing experimental ship was turned over Tuesday to this test facility. The new nose is instrumented so the pilot can determine immediately any pitching or side-slipping that could create intense friction and burn up the ship as it tries to enter the earth's atmosphere.

BRIDE - ELECT FETED

A charmingly arranged miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Lois Plaus, was held on the evening of June 27th at 90 Pine St., when the bridesmaids were hostesses for the bride-elect.

During the evening, a bride's book was given after which an address was read wishing Lois a long and happy married life. After Lois had opened the prettily wrapped gifts, overflowing a large umbrella, and expressed her gratitude, all joined in singing, "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow".

The recreation room was appropriately decorated with pink and white streamers and bells. A huge bride-doll centred the table.

Refreshments were served.

JACKSON — MAYO

Salem United Church, Minto, was the setting on Saturday, June 27, at 2 o'clock for a pretty double-ring wedding ceremony when Lillian Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mayo, became the bride of Mr. William Jackson, son of Mrs. Stanley Jackson of Toronto, and the late Mr. Jackson. The Rev. H. Beare of Springbrook, assisted by Mr. Stobbart of Ivanhoe, officiated.

The church was beautifully decorated with baskets of pink and white peonies, blue Canterbury bells, mingled with fern, and the guest pews designated by white satin bows.

The radiant bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in an original white imported French lace over satin, featuring lily-pointed sleeves. The sweetheart neckline was accented with seed pearls and sequins. From the princess line waist fell tiered lace panels extending into a train. She wore a three-quarter length veil of nylon net held by a pearl and sequin studded crown and carried red Sweetheart roses, with white satin streamers knotted with rosebuds.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Don Seamen of Belleville, as matron of honor, gowned in blue ballerina-length peau de soie with white picture hat, matching gloves and shoes and carrying a nosegay of pink mums.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Dick Goldthorpe of Toronto, and Miss Gwen Ray of Minto, were attired in similar gowns of pastel green and yellow with white accessories and carried nosegays of pink 'mums.

The flower girl, little Miss Linda Lloyd of Belleville, friend of the bride, wore a short pink dress similar to the bridesmaids' and carried a basket of pink roses.

The ring-bearer, Master Billy Jackson of Toronto, wore white trousers and navy blazer, and carried a white satin cushion which held the wedding rings.

Mr. Bob McKay, Toronto, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, performed the duties of groomsman, while Mr. Leo Ray and Mr. Jack Jackson, also of Toronto, acted as ushers.

Mrs. Vene Hagerman provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Master Barry Bray of Ivanhoe, who sang "How Great Thou Art" before the ceremony and "Bless This House" during the signing of the register.

Before leaving the church the bride was presented with a Bible by Mr. Ernest Saries on behalf of Salem congregation of which the bride was a member.

The reception dinner was held in the church parlors. The W.A. of Salem catered to approximately 80 guests.

The bride's table was appointed with white stands and centred by a three-tired wedding cake on pillars and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Pink tapers in crystal holders and the bridal bouquet added a delightful nuptial accent.

After a bountiful repast, best wishes were extended to the bride and bridegroom by the officiating ministers.

Mr. Bob McAfee acted as toastmaster.

Telegrams were received from Lorne Greene, Ed Sullivan, and two telegrams from Bower's Inc Company, where the bridegroom is employed.

The bride's mother received, wearing mint green rayon bouclet chez linen, yellow gloves, with white bag and shoes. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother gowned in blue/nylon lace, with white accessories and white shoes and bag. Corsages of pink carnations completed both ensembles.

For the wedding trip by motor to the Thousand Islands and points east the bride chose mint green hat and sheath dress topped by white nylon jacket. Her accessories were tan suede shoes and bag, and a blue corsage of pink carnations.

Upon their return they will reside in Chicago, Ill.

Guests were present from Gravenhurst, Hamilton, Toronto, Belleville, Ivanhoe and Fuller.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor George Kiser are shown signing the register following their recent marriage in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Marilyn Elizabeth Bird, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bird of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Wilfred Belch of Belleville, and the late Mr. Walter Kiser. (Photo by William E. Biley, Belleville).

KISER — BIRD

A very pretty mid-summer wedding was solemnized at Holloway Street United Church on June 20 when Rev. T. F. Townsend united in marriage Marilyn Elizabeth, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bird, Belleville, to Victor George, son of the late Mr. Walter Kiser, and Mrs. Wilfred Belch, Belleville.

The bride, charming in her wedding dress of nylon lawn, fashioned on traditional lines, with finger-tip veil and matching headdress of seed pearls and carrying a bouquet of pink roses and miniature Canterbury bells, entered the church on arm of her father to the strains of the wedding music rendered by Mr. William Connor.

The maid of honor was Miss Sheila Stanton, cousin of the bride, who was attired in mint green taffeta.

Miss Bernice Belch, cousin of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, was also in mint green taffeta. Both carried nosegays of chrysanthemums and roses.

Little Miss Anne Elizabeth Ketcheson, dressed in mint green, was flower girl.

Prior to the ceremony Miss Marjorie Hales sang "This is Our Day," and during the signing of the register "As Dawns the Day."

The groomsman was Mr. Robert Belch and the ushers were Mr. Harold Lyons and Mr. Richard Bird.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors. The bride's table was attractively centred with a beautiful three-tier wedding cake.

Receiving the guests was the bride's mother, wearing a blue floral silk dress, navy blue accessories with corsage of pink carnations. Assisting her was the mother of the bridegroom, wearing pale blue lace with white accessories and corsage of

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Thinking back to Sunday night and Monday, many song titles came to mind, such as "Stormy Weather" and "The Day That The Rains Came." In the midst of some of the heaviest downpours, we could even sympathize with Meaghan's Sadie Thompson. But our rain did not last long enough to be anything but a mild occasion, especially when we view the results now.

Perhaps the song title we thought of most was, "It's Just a Garden in the Rain." To us, a garden in the rain is something like a girl having her hair washed. It may be uncomfortable and we may be bedraggled about a bit, but won't it be lovely when it is all over!

When the rain is finally over and we venture outdoors just to look things over, we are met with the smell of the damp earth and the cleanness of the air. The plants may be splashed at the bottom with the wet brown earth, but the colors of the flowers and the green of the leaves are not dulled by drops of moisture. We have to be careful not to step on the biggest of worms and the smallest of frogs brought out something by the rain. And you will have an embarrassment of flowers; it is difficult to find places for the varieties that must be plucked to keep them blooming.

However, we have also been to say that Monday's rain spoiled weeks of planning for a certain group. It is always the same—one man's meat is another man's poison.

Going shopping?

If you are one of those who never wear a stocking in the summertime, then don't bother reading this. But for those who do, in the words of the commercial, we have news for you. New about the variety of types and styles of hose for summer needs, about the many different kinds designed for vacation needs.

For instance, a holiday is the big city means lots of walking in warm weather, perhaps some dancing and theatre going. Did you know about nylon sheers with notion feet, which are more absorbent and thus cooler and more comfortable? For special evening wear there are special dressy types and demi-toe hosiery in a variety of weights. Then for resort or real wear on a long trip by road or rail, there are stockings with lacy stretch tops that don't bind or constrict the leg while sitting all day. These are available in day-time sheers or in lighter weights.

Stretch hosiery is a favorite with some women who claim it is less susceptible to runs and snags for every day wear. Socks are available in great variety in summer. There are foldable anklets, and knee-high hosiery in fine or heavier weights and again, in these, stretchies are very popular. In between the regular dress hose and the socks are the regular knee-high hose with elastic tops which are so comfortable in hot weather. They will be very popular again this year that all are now in fashion.

We were informed too, that even tights have a place in vacation wear although we think of these more for cold weather. They say tights are perfect at the cottage after an evening swim or on those rainy days.

Good shopping for hosiery.

July days are long and, we hope, beautiful. July also brings the various Shakespeare festivals into focus again. Stratfords in England, Ontario and Connecticut become theatre centres for a while each year. Shakespeare evidently enjoyed the warmth and beauty of July days since he uses one as part of a character description in "Much Ado About Nothing." We feel sorry for a person of whom it might be said, "He makes a July's day short as December."

SCHOOL STYLES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Warning against dangling earrings and jangling bracelets for girls entering high school is contained in a book of information for parents issued by the school board. Practical, rather than fancy clothing, is especially recommended for lobster salads.

LOUIS DRESSING

1 cup mayonnaise, 1/4 cup French dressing, 1/4 cup chili sauce or catsup, 2 tablespoons minced onion, teaspoon prepared horseradish, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Mix ingredients together and chill. This is a favorite west coast dressing for cooked or canned crab meat.

SOUR CREAM DRESSING

1 cup dairy sour cream, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar.

Beat vinegar, salt and sugar into sour cream. Mix well. If desired, add to this one of the following ingredients: cucumber, chopped chives, or prepared horseradish. An ideal dressing for salads featuring sardines or marinated herring.

Special Dressings for Seafood Salads

The dressing, it has been said, is more to the salad which it complements than the frame to a picture. Dealing with palates rather than palettes and herbs rather than verbs, the salad dressing maker is nevertheless an artist, and like other creative workers is in need of new ideas occasionally. As a source of inspiration, the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries offer some recipes for special seafood salad dressings.

MICHELEEU DRESSING

1 cup mayonnaise, 1/4 cup sour cream, 1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1/4 teaspoon finely grated lemon peel, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Mix ingredients thoroughly. This dressing is wonderfully good with cold, cooked fish. It

Heat cherries and juice to boiling (or if using raw cherries heat them with first amount of sugar and water.) mix tapioca, sugar (second amount) and salt. Stir gradually into fruit and boil 1 minute. Pour into small (1 1-3 pint) casserole that has been buttered and keep hot in oven. Add the 2 tablespoons sugar gradually to the thickened egg yolks and beat until light. Add salt to egg whites and beat until foamy; add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Fold yolk mixture into whites. Fold in flour, adding a small amount at a time. Turn batter over fruit in casserole and bake 30 minutes or until cake part is baked. Serve warm to 5.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. T. F. — Rose is old enough to go with boys.

Rose F. — I wouldn't go with those stupid boys.

Mrs. T. F. — Is it normal for a 15-year-old girl to have no interest at all in clothes or boys?

My daughter, Rose, is a nice looking girl. She reads a lot and is very interested in music and science. I'm proud of her good record at school, but I think she should also have a little fun.

My friends tell me I should be glad that she isn't boy crazy. They have so much trouble with their daughters. But I can't understand why a teenage girl shouldn't care about boys.

• • •

Rose F. — My mother makes me so mad sometimes She talks about me to all her friends and neighbors. They all bother me, asking me when I'm going to get a boy friend.

Well, I don't care. I wouldn't want to go with any of the stupid boys at my school. They act so silly It's no fun at all to be with them.

My mother thinks every girl is supposed to get married and start raising a family as soon as possible. But I want to go to college and have a career first.

The Council: Mrs. T. F. is making a big mistake on two counts: first, discussing her daughter's personal affairs with outsiders and second, pressuring Rose to go out with boys.

It is true that most girls today begin to show an interest in boys by the time they are 15, but that doesn't mean they should be hounded if they don't feel this interest naturally. You can't tell a flower when to bloom. As attempt to tear open the bud will only kill the blossom.

In Rose's case, it is likely that her mother's pressure will destroy any possibility of her ever getting to know and like boys in a natural way. She is forced to either fight her mother or try to please her. Neither course will permit her to establish simple relationships with boys. And these casual relationships form the foundation for future strong ones.

At the same time, Mrs. T. F. is destroying the normal channel of communication that exists between mother and daughter by broadcasting Rose's problems to outsiders. Rose has a right to her privacy and self-respect. She should not have to give an account of her dating or non-dating problems to anyone.

What to do if a teenage girl shows no interest in dating?

Just help her build her confidence in herself through a variety of activities. Encourage her to join clubs that expose her to contacts with boys and girls in a casual way. Encourage her to bring home friends. Encourage her to develop skills — music, dramatics, dancing, sports, photography — the more the better. Encourage, but don't pressure. Then stand back and "stay over" at home. Don't lecture, but listen carefully and ask questions that help her find the honest answer she's been looking for.

And leave the rest alone.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

"ASKING FOR TROUBLE"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In response to a letter written to you, and your answer published in a recent column, I would like to state my position. I am the future mother-in-law of the young lady who wrote you, saying that I said I wouldn't attend the wedding unless my three grandchildren are invited. What I did say was that I would attend the wedding, but not the reception. It's true, as she said in her letter to you, that she and my son did agree that no guest under 17 was to be invited to the reception, if that's the way she wanted it, since her parents were paying for the wedding. He also told her she was "asking for trouble," but that she could do what she wanted.

When she told us that, my husband went to see he family and offered to pay half of the wedding expenses. This offer they refused. The point they were making if they invite my three grandchildren, they will have to invite cousins of that age, and they would rather invite that number of their friends. The reception, to which about 150-175 guests are to be invited, is to be held in a nearby family-type inn.

I didn't think it was asking too much to include my three grandchildren, aged 6, 4, and 10 months, for my son is very close to the first two children, who lived with us from the time they were born until the time he went into the Service 22 months ago. My son is also close to his two sisters, and was in both their wedding parties.

Is it proper for the bride to have her four cousins in her bridal party, and not ask one or both of her fiance's sisters? Is it proper to invite nieces to a reception and not invite cousins? Is it fair for the bride-to-be to ask her cousin to be ring-bearer and not ask her fiance's niece to be flower girl, even though she told me time and time again she could be flower girl? What is your advice about this situation?

— Grandmother

My most earnest advice is that you immediately stop criticizing and defying the young lady your son has chosen to be his wife . . . and wisely resist all temptation to make any suggestions whatever about any plans made or to be made about the procedure of the wedding.

As you know, or should know, the bride and bridegroom are the ones who have the right and the privilege of planning their own wedding and reception exactly as they wish to plan it. You and everyone else must accept this important fact and co-operate completely with their plans.

To criticize and try to defeat any of these plans doesn't make sense, is really "asking for trouble" — incalculable trouble now, incalculable trouble in the future. From the special questions you ask about the bride-to-be's plans, it seems to me perfectly obvious that she is planning to do as she herself wishes to do, as she has the right to do.

It isn't too late . . . is it? . . . for you wisely to agree to attend the reception and plan to have your three grandchildren stay at home (certainly the place for the 10-months-old baby)? This would be the first step to take to show your mature judgment and your gracious co-operation . . . the perfect way to give your son deep happiness, make him mighty proud of you.

One of the perkiest swimsuits at the beach this year is lively, floral-dotted, crisp cotton.

Styled for action, it features little-boy pants and a perfect-fitting bra top for stability in the breakers. The straps may be worn up, as shown, or removed for an even tan.

Portrait Painting Disease Says Montreal Artist

MONTREAL (CP) — Auburn-haired Brenda Bury says portrait painting is a disease.

"Unless I paint a portrait a week I don't feel well," the British-born Miss Bury said in an interview.

She came to Canada two years ago from her native Yorkshire. Her portrait work is done on commission.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker was among her subjects. Others included a series of directors-general of the Canadian Medical Corps for Defence Headquarters in Ottawa.

Miss Bury said she enjoys painting high - ranked officials particularly, though she finds any type of portrait work fun.

GOOD SITTERS

"I've never found a dull one. People who are confident of themselves and what they can do make good sitters. They do not face indecision in their own characters."

She said many successful men who have great demands on their time make good sitters.

"They sit for an hour, let us say, and give their full attention to it. They do not fidget."

But she has found no subject easy to paint, technically, and children specifically were difficult.

"Frequently I feel sorry for children, though," she said. They usually have to be bribed to sit and they may end up by being threatened."

Miss Bury was asked if she thought vanity prompted some to have their portraits done.

"I don't like painting people who are just vain. But I believe the desire to be perpetuated is not vanity. It's a fundamental human trait.

LASTING RECORD

"After all a photograph is only a temporary record of a given time in the life of a subject. A portrait capturing the essential character is lasting."

Miss Bury was 11 when she did her first portrait. At school, she painted her teachers and fellow-students, but she said: "I'm afraid some of them were near caricatures."

She said that in painting she has learned more from her failures than successes. But she invariably destroyed her failures, nonetheless.

When she finds difficulty with a particular portrait, she consoles herself by recalling that the great Picasso once had 118 sittings with a subject to do a single portrait.

She said he finally scrubbed out all his work—and painted the portrait from memory.

After a portrait is finished, how does she react to the subject's comments?

"It's worse when there are no comments," she said.

GIRL ACCOSTED

WINDSOR (CP) — Police are investigating the claim of a 15-year-old girl that she was accosted by one of four youths who forced her into their car on a downtown street Sunday night. The girl was found wandering in a riverfront park Monday morning. She told police that at a downtown intersection, a car pulled up, four youths bundled her into the vehicle, and later assaulted her.

HAPPY REUNION

CALGARY (CP) — Sisters who had not seen each other for 36 years were united when Mrs Alice Nichol of Bournemouth, England, visited Mrs. A. Lauder of Calgary.

HAPPY YOUNGSTERS

Techniques Of Paintings Discussed

The final meeting for the season of the Belleville Art Association was held at the home of Mrs. L. Andrews, when two techniques of painting were discussed, Tempera and Oil.

Many of the pictures studied were by painters who, in their time, were classed as trained workmen. The old masters were trained to the standards of their craft and when this craft was perfected it was put at the service of their patrons' requirements without the artist feeling any loss of creative integrity. In contrast, the modern painter is in the opposite position — he paints for himself and then offers his work for sale.

"Madonna and Child," by Tommaso da Modena, does not show any originality, force, or emotional depth of conception, however it is so rich in detail it becomes devotional in character and therefore has expression.

This picture is also an example of painting in the egg tempera technique which was in general use well into the fifteenth century when it began to merge with the new developments in oil technique.

PANEL PREPARATION

The preparation of panels was a craft in itself, usually done by an apprentice in the master's studio. As the apprentice proceeded in his training he was allowed to work on more and more important stages of the many through which an egg tempera painting progresses on its way to completion. As he grew more proficient he was allowed to paint some of the minor figures in the master's commissions. He would eventually paint entire pictures under the master's instruction, and by three degrees he would attain recognized status as a full-fledged painter in his own right, ready to set up his own studio and train other apprentices in the technique.

"Madonna Enthroned between Saints Peter and Leonard" is four minus and deteriorates in expense, a bit of the original panel and all stages of preparation can be seen.

The canvas is covered with gesso, then a preliminary drawing, called a cartoon, is finished in all its outlines and scratched into the gesso surface. Egg tempera, which is composed of equal parts of powdered pigment, yolk of egg, and water, is then applied stroke by stroke.

Flesh areas are modeled over a green base tone, which gives more vibration. Over the centuries the top film of paint tends to evanesce or grow more transparent, and most tempera paintings have been varnished, also increasing the transparency. For this reason the flesh tones on many old tempera paintings have a greenish hue.

This is noticeable in the painting of "Francesco Sassetti and His Son Teordoro," by Ghirlandaio.

The strengths peculiar to the egg tempera technique are utilized in Mantegna's "Adoration of the Shepherds". The forms he paints suggest sculpture in polished stones of fantastic color, although the expressive power of the painting is more overwhelming than its technique. Crivelli, who painted "Pieta," paints on the sophisticated principle that technique can replace true expressive forms and create emotion where there is none. His paintings are interesting not so much for what he says as the way he says it.

TRANSITIONAL PERIOD

Bellini's "Portrait of a Young Man" was done in the transitional period when the range and brilliance of oil was grafted to the precise definition of tempera. A more successful use of oil is displayed in Simon Marmion's "Crucifixion."

Titian's "Venus and Adonis" is based on underpainting that defines essential forms and on overpainting in glazes that tint and develop them.

Whereas Titian and Caravaggio capitalized on the sensuous and dramatically ornamental potentials of oil, Rembrandt found in it the means toward an opposite expression — mystery, melancholy, and philosophical brooding. His "Portrait of the Artist" was studied as an example.

"Woman in White" by Picasso is not a piece of craftsmanship in anything like the sense of the other pictures studied. It is typical of the anarchic technique of contemporary painting, in which individual invention takes the place of systematic procedures.

The portfolio concluded with the comment that at the moment there are healthy indications of a return not exactly to painting methods of the old masters, but to the idea that craftsmanship is a means toward expression rather than a brake upon it.

The seminars will continue in the Fall.

White's District

WHITES DISTRICT — Mrs. Joseph Dale left by plane on Thursday for France, to visit her daughter, Gloria, and husband.

A number from this district attended the funeral services at the Weaver Funeral Home for Mrs. William Parks, on Monday. Bearers from this district were: Messrs. Clifford and George Acker and Frank Sandercock.

Master Diane Dale is visiting friends in New Liskeard.

Master Stephen Jones is holidaying with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stoneburn in Bancroft.

The executive of White's Sunday school met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Palmer on Monday evening to plan for the Sunday school picnic.

The farmers are very busy at this time harvesting their hay crop.

Miss Louise Rush has returned to her home in Toronto following a holiday with Mr. and Mrs. C. Rush.

The members of the YPU met at the home of Gail Glegras on Tuesday evening for their regular meeting, which featured a wiener roast.

The school children are enjoying their holidays.

A very heavy thunderstorm passed over this district Sunday evening with a heavy rain, which was needed by many of the farm crops. During the storm on Wednesday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sandercock was struck and considerable damage was done.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family of the late Mrs. Seldon Ketcheson, who passed away on Saturday evening after a lengthy illness.

Many families are enjoying picnics to neighboring beaches these days.

Church service was held on Sunday morning at White's Church, with the Rev. Roy Rickard, B.A., preaching on "Consider the Lilies." The junior choir contributed an anthem, "The Little Flowers Came From the Ground in Summer Time."

A pulpit hymnary was presented by Miss Deborah Glydon on behalf of the junior congregation. It was accepted by Mr. C. Rush on behalf of White's Church and presented to Mr. Rickard.

U.S. to Start Immediately Removing 200 Planes From France to Another Area

PARIS (AP)—Reliable sources today said the United States will start immediately to remove some 200 planes from French bases because President de Gaulle will not agree to the stationing of U.S. atomic arms on French soil.

The refusal of France to allow atomic stockpiles on her soil is the cause of the decision by the Allied supreme commander, Gen. Lauris Norstad, to shift the planes, these sources said. The French were warned some time ago that the decision was planned.

The North Atlantic council—with representatives from all the NATO powers — was informed this morning that the move will start soon and probably will be completed before the end of the summer.

The transfer will be staged progressively.

WANTS CONTROL

De Gaulle has refused to admit U.S. atomic stockpiles unless France is given control of their use. The latter refuses that American officers retain control of the nuclear warheads for weapons, although other governments can control the weapons themselves.

The planes involved are F-100 Super Sabres based on four fields along the French-German frontier. Three fighter-bomber wings are involved.

The majority probably will go to British bases with a few to German fields. Atomic arms are available in both countries.

Spokesman at Allied headquarters would only say "no comment" when asked about the new move.

SAY DEMANDS VETO

France's allies have accused de Gaulle of demanding a veto over the use of any atomic weapons stockpiled in France as a bargaining card in his campaign to get France an equal voice with the United States and Britain in Allied councils.

The news of the transfer was welcomed by U.S. Air Force officers.

Originally it was felt that in the event of war the planes could take off from French bases, pick up atomic arms from bases in Germany or Britain and continue on their missions. The advent of Russian missiles changed all that.

Member Against Officials Aiding Cabinet Heads

OTTAWA (CP) — Do federal cabinet ministers depend too much on advice of their departmental officials when guiding legislation through the Commons?

Arnold Peters (CCF — Timiskaming) said Tuesday night he thinks they do. If a minister really knew his stuff, he suggested, there would be no need to have officials at his side offering advice and guidance at every turn.

Mr. Peters made his remarks in a heated Commons exchange with Agriculture Minister Hartt 1933, while two officials of the agriculture department sat in front of the minister's desk ready to advise him on crop insurance legislation.

It is the practice for a minister to have two or three of his departmental experts come into the Commons during detailed stages of legislation or his department's spending estimates.

SOMETIMES RELAYS

Mr. Peters, especially during study of estimates, a minister might have a relay of officials—bringing the expert in the field of interest under study change.

Mr. Peters said he resents the opinion of officials being passed on what he says and then spoken by the minister. The officials have no right to pass opinions on anything statements.

If the British Commons, he said, a minister answers for his legislation and departmental activities by himself—unaided by advice from hovering officials. He suggested such a practice might be a good idea in Canada.

Mr. Harkness said Mr. Peters had "no business" making his remarks about the officials. And suggestion that the officials had offered opinions of what Mr. Peters said was "entirely in his own imagination."

Paper Says Queen 'Agrees' To Name of Gen. Vanier As Next Governor-General

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says it has learned reliably that the Queen has "agreed" to the appointment of Maj.-Gen. George P. Vanier, 71-year-old Montreal - born soldier and diplomat, to succeed Governor-General Massey.

Mr. Massey, 72, Canada's first native-born governor-general who has served half his term extended, is due to retire this fall. He was appointed in 1952.

The Globe says announcement of Gen. Vanier's appointment is expected shortly, possibly before the Queen ends her Canadian tour Aug. 1.

FRENCH-IRISH DESCENT

Gen. Vanier, whose parents were French-Canadian and Irish, studied law and was admitted to the Quebec bar in 1911. When the First World War broke out he became one of the founder-members of the Royal 22nd Regiment of which he now is colonel During wartime service he won the Military Cross and Bar, the Distinguished Service Order and was honored by France as a chevalier of the Legion of Honor. He is not a leg in action.

Following the war he remained in the regiment and in 1946 was the rank of lieutenant-colonel represented Canada at the League of Nations' preparatory disarmament commission in Geneva.

MINISTER TO FRANCE

In 1951 he was appointed secretary to the Canadian high commissioner to the United Kingdom and in 1939 became Canadian minister to France. He escaped from France ahead of the German invasion and after a time in London as Canadian ambassador to the Belgian government in exile.

In 1944, 17 days after the liberation of Paris, he returned to France as Canadian ambassador, a post he held until his retirement from public life in 1953.

Believe Eggs From Japan too Long in Transit

TILLSONBURG (CP) — A dozen eggs sent to Canada by Emperor Hirohito of Japan show no signs of hatching even after a 24-day incubation period, Harold Warwick said Tuesday.

The eggs were given to Mr. Warwick by his brother, Ernest of Blenheim, who received them after he had sent the emperor a box of hybrid corn seed.

The eggs are of the Yokohama chicken variety which is found only on the emperor's estate. The birds sometimes grow tails to a length of 20 feet.

Mr. Warwick said he believed the eggs had been too long in transit.

If Ernie gets another dozen to hatch without the delays which held up the present ones, Harold is certain he can hatch at least 10 of them.

Herter Will Fly to Ottawa Saturday for Discussions Before Leaving for Geneva

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada may play a part in the formation of the Western position in the new session of Geneva talks opening Monday, state department officials said Tuesday.

State Secretary Christian A. Herter will fly to Ottawa Saturday for a round of discussions with Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and External Affairs Minister Howard Green before going on to Geneva Saturday night.

This will be Herter's first official visit to Ottawa since he succeeded the late John Foster Dulles last April. While there has been no formal declaration by the American government as to what he will discuss, American diplomats made clear that an exchange of views on the Geneva situation undoubtedly will the first item of business.

NOT OPTIMISTIC

Herter's aides said today he is proceeding overseas with no great feeling of optimism as to what the resumed East - West power talks will produce. There is talk in some official quarters here that the new round of conversations will see nothing more than a continuing stalemate on the Berlin situation.

However, the Canadian government is known to feel strongly on a need for exhausting every possible basis of equitable East-West agreement before Western negotiations with Russia are broken off, Canadian officials may press this view in talks with Herter and his aides.

U.S. diplomats said Herter will be prepared to give Canada's views earnest attention. Canada in the past has been able to play a prominent part in reaching means of arbitration in international disputes.

Hunt for Cause Of Pictou Fire

PICTOU, N.S. (CP)—Investigators continued searching today for the cause of a $4,000,000 fire that wiped out port facilities at this northern Nova Scotia town Monday.

Provincial Fire Marshal Kenneth Partington said Tuesday the fire started in a transit shed but the cause was still unknown. He recalled that the cause of a similar 1946 fire had never been determined.

Crossted pilings beneath piers burned so fiercely that for two days firemen could get close enough not control the blaze. The fire marshal said a recommendation that modern earth-filled piers be built following the 1946 fire was not followed.

Loggers' Strike Effects Appear Likely to Spread

VANCOUVER (CP)—The wage strike of 27,000 loggers gave promise today of spreading its paralysis into many industries on the British Columbia coast.

There appeared to be no move by either side to reopen negotiations. The walkout is in its third day.

It has been estimated the strike costs the B.C. economy about $2,300,000 a day in lost wages, income and sales.

The International Woodworkers of America (CLC) seeks 20 per cent more pay for workers in the province's biggest industry. They now make a basic $1.72 an hour.

The companies, about 125 of them, have offered 12 cents more an hour. There are also fringe issues to be settled.

The strike reached the B.C. Supreme Court Friday in a side dispute that saw the 10th injunction issued in a week in labor disputes here.

The B.C. Shipping Federation at first refused an injunction request because its papers were filed in order, war later granted an injunction by Mr. Justice Thomas Brown. It ordered IWA members not to interfere with the loading of lumber on three ships in Victoria.

HELPED BUILD HIGHWAY

TORONTO (CP) — George W. Porter, 71, a contractor who supervised construction of 300 miles of the Alaska Highway, died Monday. Born in Thornhill, he was president and general manager of Gedson Contracting Company Limited from 1926 to 1954 and was later president of the Ontario paving division of Dominion Construction Limited. He founded the George W. Porter Construction Company Limited in 1939.

Talks With Nikita Shocking, Terrifying Says Harriman

NEW YORK (AP) — Averell Harriman describes as "shocking" his talks with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev as "terrifying, shocking, worse than Stalin."

His account is carried in the current issue of Life magazine. But the quotation Harriman is said, was contained in Harriman's report to Washington.

Harriman is a former New York governor and a former ambassador in Moscow.

In his signed article in the magazine Harriman says Khrushchev told him, in "blunt and brutal language" that:

"Your generals talk of maintaining your position in Berlin with force. That is bluff. If you send in tanks, they will burn, and make no mistake about it. If you want war, you can have it, but remember it will be your war. Our rockets will fly automatically."

ROCKETS TO CHINA

Life also reported that Harriman told Washington that the Soviet premier said Russia has shipped numerous rockets to Red China. Those have been planted behind the coastline, according to the report, but have the range to blast the Nationalist fortress of Formosa.

If China decides to try to take Formosa, it can count on Russian help, including direct military intervention—even if it means war —according to this report. Khrushchev also was said to have added that Communist strength is sufficient to destroy the U.S. 7th Fleet, now patrolling the Formosa Strait area.

Harriman and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will be just as stubborn and inflexible when the Geneva talks resume July 13 as he was before the talks adjourned.

Harriman declared he is convinced that there should be a summit conference and that the West should seize every opportunity to deal directly with the Navy Tug Goes To Assistance

DARWIN, Australia (AP) — An Australian Navy tug today went to assist Hollywood actor-magician John Calvert's yacht Sea Fox, which has been seeding cloud formations off Australia's north coast.

An Australian Air Force bomber reported it had spotted the missing yacht 96 miles northwest of Port Hedland.

The bomber pilot said the yacht appeared to be a little lower in the water than usual but that she seemed in no immediate danger.

The Sea Fox was expected to reach the scene early Thursday.

Calvert, radioing Sunday that main engine had broken down and that the ship was taking water fast.

Senator White Sponsor of Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of the RCMP accused of infractions of service regulations would have the right to properly-trained legal counsel, Senator John Connolly (PC—Ottawa North) said today.

During Senate debate of a government bill consolidating the RCMP Act, he said the legislation provides only that an accused may obtain legal help from another member of the force.

However, he said the RCMP has no staff members who have been trained as lawyers. He suggested that the Senate should consider an amendment to enable an accused to obtain trained legal counsel.

Senator George S. White (PC—Ontario), sponsor of the bill, said he questioned this provision in the legislation when he discussed it with RCMP officials.

The bill received second reading in the Senate and Senator White suggested that an amendment could be considered when the bill is before a committee for detailed study.

MAKES PREDICTION

LONDON (Reuters) — Scientists will "probably" succeed in developing a machine capable of directly transmitting human thoughts, Soviet scientist Prof. E. Kaiman said in the Soviet trade union newspaper Trud.

The Jupiter roared 1,700 miles out over the Atlantic before the nosecone, with its monkey cargo, dropped into the ocean. So far the Western world doesn't know whether Russia's space shot achieved it's feat or merely fired the rocket straight up.

CLAIMS ACCEPTED

As far as instrumentation is concerned, the Russians probably made the great strides they claim. Even allowing for the fact that Russian scientists have never excelled in tiny, compact rocket instruments, they lifted into all the space required to carry a far greater impact than the collection of scientific data, especially when it involves an obvious race between nations.

The Americans plan to send their first man to the outer edges of the atmosphere sometime next year in the rocket-powered X-15 experimental aircraft.

The Russians have never announced their plans for entering the race but they are known to be writing men for the big flight. Now that they have sent a dog on three successful flights, and have containers capable of carrying humans, they might try it anytime.

Russia Appears Ahead of U.S. In Effort to Put Man in Space

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

On the basis of what is known, Russia appears to have soared ahead of the United States in its effort to put man into space.

Much remains unknown, but the fact that Russia has succeeded in a two - ton container into space and recovered, apparently with live cargo of two dogs and a rabbit seems to pose man close to the fringe of space travel. In any case it casts a shadow over the American accomplishment of Explorer, and retrieving, two small monkeys.

Until the Russians elect to tell the world more about their latest shot into space we can put it in a firm comparison with the American effort.

PAVOR RUSSIANS

But there is a strong scientific opinion in London that the Russians are well ahead at the moment.

One of the biggest unanswered questions is how high Russia's latest space vehicle has gone. The official statement says only that it reached a "great height."

But because of all the scientific information the Russians claim to have received, some British scientists suggest it may have gone up at least 300 miles. This would equal the height attained by the American monkey - carrying Jupiter rocket.

New Production Of Corialanus Brings Acclaim

STRATFORD Eng. (Reuters)—Sir Laurence Olivier made a triumphant return to the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre Tuesday night in the title role of a new production of Coriolanus.

After two years' absence from the British stage, he drew a massive ovation as the tall, proud Roman general who joins the enemies of Rome after being banished by the city's fickle populace and finally renounces his full revenge at his mother's entreaties.

Sir Laurence presented a fine study of superb egotism combined with great nobility of nature, but also introduced into the part—in effective touch of dry humor.

DANGEROUS SCENE

The murder of Coriolanus was one of the most spectacular scenes—and for Olivier one of the most dangerous—ever seen on the stage.

After being stabbed on the edge of a lofty platform, he fell backwards and hung head down to be strangled again ahead of his murderers held him by the ankles.

This brought to a striking climax Peter Hall's vigorous and well - produced play which made much of the tumultuous crowd scenes.

The other big acting success of the evening went to Dame Edith Evans as Coriolanus's mother, Volumnia.

Pension Bills Too Complicated Says Senator

OTTAWA (CP)—A Senate committee spent 12 hours considering eight wading through two complicated pension bills and it's possible there is no way of simplifying such legislation to make it easily understood.

Liberal Senator John Connolly, a top Ottawa lawyer, told the banking committee that the two bills—consolidating and revising pension statutes for the armed forces and the RCMP—are complicated even for lawyers.

D. S. Thorson, director of the pensions and social welfare department, said pension bills always will be complex because they must be worded in such a way that all rights previously granted are carried forward.

"I won't reveal your age, dear. If I can keep a secret for forty-five years, I can keep it for ever."

Reeve Mary Fix Against Paying School Budget

TORONTO (CP) — Reeve Mary Fix of Toronto Township said Monday night the township council would continue to refuse ratification of the $3,000,000 budget for the South Peel board of education.

In an interview she said she believed her six councillors—"conscientious, intelligent men"—would continue to reject the budget, which would mean increased taxes. They have no right to refuse it under provincial law.

Mrs. Fix said council would continue to hold out in the hope the Association of Mayors and Reeves of Ontario would seek provincial legislation creating a board of appeal for councils to go to in cases such as this.

The battle between the two Toronto Townships bodies has been going on now for two months with council asking the school board to amend the budget and the board refusing. Under existing law, township councils may refer back to education boards its school budget but in the final analysis must pass it for tax purposes if the school board refuses to change its money requests.

NO JAIL THREATS

About the middle of last month, school trustees instructed the board's lawyer to take the steps necessary to get payment. Mrs. Fix said none of the members has been served with papers threatening jail sentences for their stand.

Mrs. Fix said approval of the school board budget would mean an increase in the mill rate of 5.3 mills. This would mean, she said, that a taxpayer with property assessed at $5,000 would pay an extra $15 for the last four months of this year on the basis of a complete year.

In a story Monday The Canadian Press reported erroneously that the councillors had approved the budget and tax bills at the new rate would soon be sent to taxpayers.)

Lightning Kills Boy at Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Two young boys were killed as they left violent thunderstorms crashed through western New York Monday.

John Lewis, 11, of South Stockton was struck by lightning as he crossed a field near his home. He got out of the pelting hail and rain.

John Calkins, 16, of Lewiston, near Niagara Falls, was crushed by a barn door, torn loose from a building by the strong winds. He was driving a tractor at his family's farm when the accident occurred.

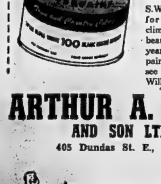
WOULD ABOLISH COURT



WASHINGTON (AP)—A plan to abolish the present Supreme Court and reorganize it as a 17-man tribunal of state judges was introduced Monday by Representative Overton Brooks (Dem., La.). The proposal was in the form of a constitutional amendment. To go into effect, it would have to be approved by a two-thirds vote in the House and Senate and by three-fourths of the states.

ROYAL RETREAT — Secluded Pennask Lake Lodge, on the shores of Pennask Lake in British Columbia, 270 miles northeast of Vancouver and 50 miles south of Kamloops, has been set aside for exclusive use of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip July 11-14. The three-storey lodge, of log construction, was built in 1929 and is owned by a group of Canadian and American businessmen. It has modern facilities, including its own electric power plant and water supply, but there are no regular telephone or telegraph communications. Access is by seaplane and over a rough road. The Royal couple will occupy a suite of rooms on the ground floor where a glass-enclosed sunporch will give them a view of the entire lake which is well-stocked with rainbow trout, and the surrounding mountains. A member of the club's executive will be on hand to meet them when they arrive, but only the staff and the Royal party will remain during the Queen's 36-hour rest period. The public and the press will be barred from the area. (CP Photo).

Pennask Lake Lodge in B.C. Chosen as Rest Period for Royal Couple Quite Modern

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fishing is excellent and the accommodations modern and comfortable.

It is said Pennask Lake Lodge is fit for a queen. Royal Visit planners have chosen it for a 36-hour rest period for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip during the British Columbia section of their Canadian tour.

The lodge is on the shores of secluded Pennask Lake, 270 miles northeast of Vancouver and 50 miles southeast of Kamloops on a high plateau area of the B.C. Interior.

ARRIVE BY SEAPLANE

The Queen and Prince Philip will visit there July 11 to 14, arriving by seaplane from Kamloops, 35 minutes away.

They are not likely to be bothered from the "outside." There are no regular telephone or telegraph facilities from the lodge, although special communications will be maintained while the royal visitors are there.

Access is by air or private road, which isn't fit for the average car, and both these routes will be closed to the public well before the royal couple arrives. RCMP will be stationed in inconspicuous places, just in case.

The lodge is three storeys high, has accommodation for 24 persons and "is fully modern in appointments," says a statement released by Al Williamson, press officer for the royal tour in B.C.

"It is of log construction with a cedar shingle roof and gable windows."

Mr. Williamson, as a Royal Tour official, is among the few apart from the owners and members of the lodge who have had royal household press officer an opportunity to see Pennask Lake Lodge, inside and out, and its surrounding grounds.

"Any publicity must come through Mr. Williamson," said Dr. Michael Pottinger of Vancouver, president of the Pennask Lake Fish and Game Club which operates the lodge.

"Our members", said Mr. Williamson, "have decided they will permit no publicity and no pictures. Reporters and photographers won't be allowed on the property."

However, while details of the lodge property are sparse, the fishing quality of the lake is widely known.

Pennask Lake is abundantly stocked with rainbow trout up to four pounds with the average fish running one to two pounds. It is described as a perfect fly-fishing spot and it has been reported that Pennask Lodge members are not permitted to fish the lake in any other manner.

The setting is one of great mountain beauty.

Pennask Lake is at an elevation of 4,600 feet, is irregular in shape and about 2½ miles long.

The lodge was built in 1929 by James Dole, Hawaiian pineapple king who later sold controlling interest to a group of 50 United States and Canadian friends and associates who formed the present club. There also are about 65 associate members.

One member of the club will be on hand to greet the royal couple, but he will leave immediately after doing so, leaving only the royal party, the staff — and the trout.

Any news of the doings of the royal party during the stay will come through a daily visit by a Trenton hospital nurse.

Toronto Lumber Yard Laid Waste By Tuesday Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Fire swept through the block-wide yards of the Riverdale Lumber Company on eastside Toronto on Tuesday the second lumber yard fire in that area of the city within 24 hours.

Monday night firemen prevented a third fire from spreading in a waste paper company yard in the same vicinity after an employee of Lewis Waste Paper Company reported he saw someone throw something over a fence, igniting bales of paper.

Both lumber fires were under investigation, by arson investigators.

Firemen were unable to say what caused the Riverdale fire in sheds in a low-lying area along the Don River Valley near Queen Street at Broadview Avenue. There was no immediate damage estimate.

In the other lumber company fire, on the premises of Crown lumber yards on Greenwood Avenue, damage was estimated at $30,000.

NEARING COMPLETION — With construction in its final stages, Vancouver's $6,000,000 civic auditorium is prepared for landscaping and last-minute decorating touches before start of the city's annual international festival of the arts and visit of expected to be called Royal Elizabeth Theatre. Oblong project tion at left is over stage. Slanted roof covers 2,200 seats, all with complete view of stage. In foreground is glass-walled Queen Elizabeth July 15. Auditorium, still without a name, is lobby. (CP Photo).

$6,000,000 Auditorium Sits In Untitled Splendor Waiting For Queen to Give It Name

VANCOUVER (CP) — Queen Elizabeth will grace a formally-dressed concert at Vancouver's civic auditorium during her visit here July 15. And she is expected to give it a proper title while she's here.

The new $6,000,000 auditorium, with its steel and glass exterior, was designated the Royal Elizabeth Theatre by city council eight months ago, but still lacks a nameplate. Until the Queen announces at the royal performance July 15 that she has consented to the use of her name the auditorium sits in untitled splendor.

Splendor there is — more than twice as much as the voters planned on when they passed a bylaw six years ago which provided $2,750,000 for a civic auditorium.

NATIONAL CONTEST

It wasn't until early 1955 that the architects got the contract, and another two years before they returned the plans so construction could start.

By that time the price had jumped to $4,084,923, the lowest bid submitted.

During the sod - turning, Fred Hume, then in the last of his eight years as mayor, badly skinned his knee climbing into the cab of a power shovel for pictures.

All hope that the auditorium would be ready for last year's British Columbia Centennial celebrations disappeared when labor disputes on the project halted work for five months. Delays and demands for extras in the building pushed the final price past $6,000,000.

FINE RESULTS

For that money, Vancouver now has one of the finest general-purpose concert halls on the continent, auditorium officials contend, a 2,900-seat theatre which has the largest stage in Canada.

It faces onto walls of creamy Japanese ash and darker slate of Danish-dull wood, a ceiling which recedes in waves of wing - like acoustic baffles over the sharply sloping balcony, and onto red plush seats and taupe-high grey carpet.

There isn't a "blind" seat in the house, no wide in the stage.

Between acts, theatre - goers can wander over 25,000 square feet of tiled lobby and look through walls of glass at the downtown traffic scene and the foundation and plants on the paved areaway.

Or they can eat in a glass-walled restaurant beneath a mural by Vancouver's Jack Shadbolt called Pageant of Transformation in Nature.

By next year, they'll be able to go to an adjoining, $1,700,000 building to watch Little-Theatre productions in a 700-seat house.

SUPERB ACOUSTICS

When the question of acoustics in the auditorium comes up, such adjectives as "astounding" and "superb" flow readily from John Paynter, 47 - year - old auditorium manager.

In the weeks before the start of Vancouver's annual international festival and the Queen's visit four days later, teams of acoustical engineers will tune up the auditorium and construction workers put the final touches on the building.

The tuning can be managed by adjusting air spaces behind most of the wall panels, by moving ceiling baffles or manipulating backdrops from a stage that can handle 86 curtains.

For the royal concert, international festival officials have lined up Sir Ernest Macmillan of Toronto to conduct the 80 - piece festival orchestra. The 200-voice festival choir will be on hand, with soprano Elizabeth Schwarzkopf and Edmonton violinist Betty-Jean Hagen.

The Queen and Prince Philip will go to an outdoor theatre musical first, then travel to the auditorium at intermission. Shortly after that, the auditorium should get its name.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Mr. and Mrs. William Juby have returned home from Toronto, where they attended the funeral of their nephew, Mr. William Paul, son of Mrs. Lillian Paul and the late Mr. Arthur Paul.

Sorry to report Mrs. Jack Clark has been on the sick list.

Deepest sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Leo Holur and family in the loss of a husband and father, Mr. Leo Holur, he was well known here and highly respected for he was a real all round neighbor and friend, having lived here for many years.

The weekly euchre club was held at the home of Mrs. James MacKay, Sr., on Tuesday evening. Winners were: Mrs. Pearl Gotsenauz, Mrs. Agnes Whalen; low — Mrs. Marion Deforge.

After euchre Mrs. MacKay served refreshments and a social chat was enjoyed about summer holidays.

Mrs. Nellie Kish, Mrs. Lee Bradshaw's sister-in-law, is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital. Her many friends here wish her a speedy recovery.

Master Stevie Bradshaw is spending holidays at "Merrywood," at Perth.

Several families here are enjoying their holidays as are also the school children and teachers.

Shore-Line Fishing for Bass

Quite a few times I. this column during the past few years the importance of paying special attention to the shallow has been emphasized. The shallows are the places in just about any body of water, fresh or salt, in which most of the natural game-fish food makes its home.

In a creek or a river, "the shallows" means the riffles and the tails or "fans" of the pools. Backwater shallows, where there is little or no current, generally are not productive. Evidently both minnows and bottom life prefer moving water which brings to them both drifting food and freshly oxygenated water.

In a pond or a lake, "the shallows" means exactly what it says — the shallower water. Don't overlook the shallow coves, nearly always encumbered with stumps, brush and weed growth. These places usually are the best spots. And in open water, pay special attention to rocky bars and reefs.

Last but not least, in both lakes and streams, the shore lines are the places that generally pay off when you are bass fishing.

Shore-line fishing, if done properly and efficiently, can be what might be called an exact science in itself. Done improperly, however, and shore-line fishing very well can be a waste of time.

USE SURFACE LURE

In view of the fact that shore-line fishing, for the most part, is done in shallow water, obviously a surface or non-sinking lure is indicated. Even along a deep shore, the surface lure seems to produce better than the under-water varieties.

When you are shore-line fishing, it must be remembered that game fish, feeding in the shallows, have little water to cover them and thus they are exposed to their natural enemies. For this reason, disturbance of any kind will move the feeding fish off the shallows and into the accustomed safety of deep water.

A great many people pay all too little attention to the importance of noisy conversation while they are shore-line fishing. Fish, being under water, are not supposed to be able to hear you when you talk to your fishing partner. Don't you believe it. This summer, put on your bathing suit and submerge your head so that your ears are a foot or so under water. Then have a friend call to you. You will find that you can hear surprisingly well.

Make it a point to avoid loud conversation at all times when shore-line fishing.

Years ago we discontinued the use of metal tackle boxes when shore-line fishing. The same holds true when fishing the sand flats of the Florida Keys. The scraping noise of a metal tackle box being pushed across the floor of a boat or even being set down too carelessly will alarm fish at surprising distances. Now we use soft "fishing-suit bags" or "plastic bags" that you can buy at almost any drug store These, as you know, are made of cloth and make little or no noise when moved.

A vital mistake that too many shore-line fishermen make is in their rate of progress along a shore line. Almost all of them fish much too fast. Believe me, haste makes waste along the shore lines. Make it a point to move slowly, very slowly. You will catch more fish if you do.

OARS ARE NOISY

Oars almost always are noisy things. Oar locks seldom fit snugly. If you must use oars, you can silence the oar locks by inserting a piece of cloth or rope in the lock. Then lubricate with some reel oil. In any event, the oar blade is several feet closer to the shore line than the boat is. Thus, we use a canoe paddle, keeping it on the side away from the shore line. It's a small thing but it does minimize disturbance.

While it is easier by far, when fishing a bass river, to drift with the current, almost always this causes the boat to move too fast. We like the hard way, against the current. Sure, it makes more work but we can control our rate of progress.

When you cast a lure at a shore line, fish it slowly. From a concealed position on a high bank, we have watched the behavior of bass when a lure is cast over or near them. The sudden splash of the lure startles them at first and they move away. If the lure is allowed to remain where it is, lying there quietly, usually the fish, being curious, will return to inspect the thing that frightened them. For this reason, we allow the rings created by the splash to widen to a diameter of about ten feet before we begin the retrieve.

Last but by no means least, make it a point never to crowd the fish. Big bass are wary and they will not stand crowding. Always, whether we are fishing fly rod and bass bug, or casting rod and plug, we fish at distances of 65 or 70 feet.

Admittedly it is much easier and far less work to cast a lure accurately at 40 feet than it is to cast one 70 feet. The fact remains, however, that you will hook more big bass at the longer distances. Try out some of these ideas this season and see if you don't agree with them.

A few years ago, the owner of the Queen's Plate winner stood in front of the members' stand at Toronto's Old Woodbine race-track and with a great flourish thumbed his nose at the top-hatted patrons. It was, an odd gesture for a fellow who had just won a fistful of money and the Queen's 20 guineas.

"This is for those so-and-so people up there," he told this reporter. "I'm throwing a big blowout tonight and none of that crowd is invited."

He was a wealthy man. But he was a product of Cabbagetown, a dingy district on the eastern fringe of downtown Toronto, and his nose-thumbing was his way of telling the horsey set that someone who grew up on the other side of the tracks could win Canada's greatest race.

The Plate classic, with a few refreshing exceptions, has been dominated by wealthy men who came from families with a tradition for spending thousands in improvement of the thorough-bred. This isn't a business for bank managers or hood sales-men.

BIG INVESTMENT

Someone figured that the 20 thoroughbreds who started in last week's 100th running of the Plate represented an investment of about $200,000. Broken down, that means it cost the owners $10,000 to get a colt or filly to the starting gate—this includes purchase price, feeding, stabling, training and so on.

It is possible that some of the owners may have felt like making rude gestures at E. P. Taylor when he accompanied the Queen and Prince Philip to the winner's enclosure after his colt, New Providence, won the 100th running of the Plate. But none would have a legitimate reason for doing so.

Taylor has done more for Canadian racing in the last 10 - 12 years than any man in the country. He owns National Stud Farm in Oshawa, Ont., the plush 600-acre Windfields Farm in Toronto and, as president of the Jockey Club, has been the driving force behind big-time development of racing in Ontario.

The Jockey Club has spent upwards of $700,000 in improvement of Old Woodbine and Fort Erie tracks and building of the $1,500,000 New Woodbine layout in suburban northwest Toronto since 1952. Purses have gone up steadily, to 1953, for instance, if a Queen's Plate was a $15,000-added stakes; this year, it was $50,000-added.

SPREADING CHANCES

Taylor believes in sharing the wealth, insofar as the thoroughbreds are concerned.

Each year he conducts a yearling sale. Taylor sets the price, buyers take their pick and proceedings halt after about half the colts and fillies are sold. Taylor keeps the remainder — the half the buyers pass up — and runs them in his own stable.

That is where lock plays a large part in this risky business of racing.

Since 1949, when the 58-year-old Taylor first won the Plate with Epic, three thoroughbreds purchased at his annual yearling sales have won the guineas. McGill did it for Vince Sheridan in 1950, Epigram won for the Three V's Stable of Toronto in 1952 and Canadian Champ for Bill Beasley of Toronto in 1957.

The "left-overs" have won the Plate four times for Taylor since Epic's victory. They were Major Factor in 1951, Canadiana in 1953, Lord Cay in 1957 and New Providence this year.

Taylor got lucky in 1953. Lord Cay had been bought by a wealthy owner but the yearling was returned to Taylor because the buyer didn't like the look of went wrong.

Taylor knew. Two years later the colt, racing under the Taylor colors, won the Plate—and then FAMOUS SCHOOL

Eton College in England, one of the oldest privately - operated schools, was completed in 1525.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

The Eastern Ontario Senior "A" Hockey League lies in a quiet grave today, after a brief but meteoric three-year flash across the hockey horizon.

The question is, has it been a sacrificial goal slaughtered to provide blood to revive a dying Quebec organization?

It actually, received the death-blow in the form of a telegram sent OHA past president Lorne Cook by Sammy Pollock, master mind of the Hull-Ottawa club, saying his team would not enter the league this season.

Pollock must have known he was delivering the lethal blow because he withdrew his team at the last meeting of the league, held in Whitby, and seconded a motion that the 1959-60 edition of the loop must be a five-team affair, and that Kingston must pay pool deficits amounting to some $2,300 by July 7, the date of last night's meeting.

At the Whitby meeting he stated he would consider re-entering the league if it was a five-team circuit. He knew that Whitby, his motion co-sponsor, would not enter a four-team loop, and his final withdrawal naturally meant the death of the league.

Pollock's representative at the meeting last night made a statement that seemed utterly ridiculous to most of us there. Asked why the new pro league was being formed, he replied, "The five team in the Eastern League all finished in the red last year. We feel we won't do that in the new pro set-up."

What does the new pro setup hope to do that the dying Quebec league failed to accomplish? Only two teams have survived the financial storm, Three Rivers and the Montreal Royals. Those clubs with Kingston, Sudbury and Ottawa-Hull met today to see what can be done about establishment.

If Kingston, Sudbury and Hull-Ottawa could not feed a puny last year, how do they expect to support a horse this season?

Perhaps Len (Kilchener Record) Taylor was not far wrong last week when he wrote, "Canadiens, it is suspected, having ruined junior hockey completely in Quebec province, are now starting to do the same job on the senior game in Ontario."

One hockey executive who isn't impressed with the new professional set-up is George Dudley, veteran secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"Pinoos like Sudbury and Kingston should take a good look at the Quebec league before they get into a mess like that," he said. "Personally I feel that if they do get started, it'll doubtful if they'll finish the season."

Dudley said he had been asked for some time of the move, which, he said, had energetic Sam Pollock of the Ottawa-Hull Canadiens doing the spade work.

"It could be," Dudley said, "that Canadiens are behind it. They have been pouring money into the massacred Quebec league and probably would like someone else to carry the load."

As Len Taylor wrote: "Sudbury opinion is that a grouping with Ottawa-Hull, Kingston, Montreal and Three Rivers is just what the doctor ordered. Down this way there is a strong opinion they have been getting their advice from a quack."

"The history of pro hockey in Northern Ontario," Taylor says, "is not one calculated to make your rush up and purchase stock in the new venture. And if the northern clubs don't come out better than they did last year, the league than they did in the OHA-NOHA they won't survive more than one season in any league."

However, the move to establish a new pro league with Eastern Ontario participating, did not surprise Wily Wren Blair of Whitby magstro. During the between-meetings interim, he contacted r western OHA, and apparently got a favorable reac on. He said that loop would welcome Whitby as it does Belleville and other teams would get a warm reception.

As matters stand, Belleville, Cornwall and Whitby will attend a joint meeting with the Western Ontario teams on Friday, and it is hoped a strong OHA league will emerge from the confab.

Incidentally, part of the new McFarlands' executive represented the club last night. Manager Keith MacDonald spoke for the club with Harvey McFarland Jr. present. Other members are Murray Mann and Moe White, like was there, too. He will carry on as the club's coach next season. H. J. McFarland Sr. will issue an official release regarding the taking over of the club in the immediate future.

Eastern Senior League Folds After 3-Year Span

Belleville, Whitby, Cornwall Turn Eyes to Western OHA; Kingston, Hull Look to Pros

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Eastern Ontario Senior "A" Hockey League, spawning bed of Allan Cup and world champions, closed a brief but meteoric three-year-old span here last night.

Unknown by other clubs, the demise actually took place a few days previous with the cabled announcment by Sammy Pollock that his Hull-Ottawa Canadiens would not play in the league next season.

Whitby's Wren Blair told the meeting the Dunlops would abide by a previous-meeting motion that it would not operate in a four-team league, and would seek entry in the western OHA.

Following a heated discussion, Belleville, Whitby and Cornwall decided to meet the Western Ontario teams, Windsor, Kitchener and Chatham, at a special meeting in Toronto, Friday night, to discuss a merger.

The meeting, arranged by chairman OHA past-president Lorne Cook by telephone during a recess, is designed to form one solid OHA group in Ontario.

Hull-Ottawa and Kingston representatives are in Montreal today at a meeting of a new professional league which is said to include their clubs, Three Rivers, Montreal Royals and the Sudbury Wolves.

Pollock of Hull-Ottawa and Reg Walton, president of the Kingston Memorials, were not present at last night's meeting in the city hall.

Actually, the decision to close the Eastern League hinged on a Whitby-Hull-Ottawa sponsored motion at the previous meeting to the effect that the league must be a five-team circuit, and that Kingston must pay a pool deficit of some $2,300 by July 7, the date of last night's meeting. Pollock withdrew his club at the Whitby meeting pending the formation of a five-team circuit.

BETTER LEAGUE

Dick Dumouchel, represented the Ottawa Canadiens and Harvey "Tiff" Bader of Kingston Merchants' Cornwall's Ray Milroy was there as was Blair with newly-appointed manager of the Belleville McFarlands Keith MacDonald and Murray McFarland, Jr., representing the Macs. Ike Hildebrand sat in, in an advisory capacity.

The four-team circuit caused by the withdrawal of Ottawa-Hull and Kingston's interest in the new pro league were the main bones of argumentive contention.

Keith MacDonald and Ray Milroy said the Macs and Cornwall were not interested in a four-team loop. Kingston's Bader insisted Kingston would enter a team in the "Eastern League, but that he wasn't even sitting in on the pro meeting "just to see what was going on."

"If they have a better deal we'll" was his comment.

Whitby's Blair charged that Kingston and Hull-Ottawa interests were using the Eastern League as a lever, "if they cannot get a deal there but they will work to come back. In view of the four entries as of now we are not interested. We have been approached by other western Ontario group I know that will welcome Belleville and I would like to see Cornwall come in, too. It would make one solid OHA group in Ontario."

"The Kingston club president is not here neither is Pollock" Blair continued. "It seems their interest is more in the pros than ours and the rest of the Eastern clubs have every right to look the other way."

Belleville's Keith MacDonald suggested the league wait until it was sure of the new pro league developed, Blair objected.

"There is no sense in waiting he said. "If they will give the pros the first chance and if they are not satisfied they will want to come back here. We are not walking out on Ottawa and Kingston. They are walking out on us. Kingston owns the league money and we probably wont get it."

Kingston's Radley objected. "We intend to try the pool effect" he said, "but we need more time. We have fund-raising events under way."

But he later admitted Kingston had been approached by the pros with player help being requested by the Chicago Black Hawks and the Montreal Canadiens.

"Go ahead and join the pros" Blair said "They wont ask you to pay your pool debts."

"USED AS CATSPAW"

George Dudley, secretary-manager of the CAHA, asked Hull-Ottawa's Dumouchel why his club wanted to join the new pro loop. Dumouchel answered: "All five teams in this league finished in the red. We want to cut down the red in the new pro loop."

"Do you think you can operate a pro league cheaper than a senior "A" league?" Dudley asked.

"Yes," replied Dumouchel.

"How do you do it? It there is a pro loop being run more cheaply than a senior "A" league you have got to show it to us."

Dudley did not pull any punches in his remarks about Kingston and Hull-Ottawa-Hull turning to the pros.

"To say the Kingston president was attending a pro meeting just to see what was going on is ridiculous," he said. "We are going to enter one team in the pro loop and one here?" he asked. "We don't want to enter a team here, and that is that."

Dudley told the meeting: "You are the most forebearing group I ever saw to let this man Pollock use you as a catspaw. If the proposed pro league does not function it will fall back on you. I have heard of rats leaving the ship, as in the case of the Quebec Hockey League, but I never heard of a group climbing aboard. I fully support Whitby's and Belleville's action in wanting to join the western OHA."

Belleville's MacDonald said the McFarlands would go along with the Western league idea. Wren Blair said that unless we get the Irish Tuesday — by not showing up for the Irish Open golf tournament Tuesday.

"We expected Miss Bueno would be here, but instead with scant, courtesy," said W. J. Sandy of the Dublin promoting club.

Dr. Paulo Silva Costa, Brazilian Lawn Tennis Association official in London, said: "Miss Bueno received a telegram from the president (Jurscino Kubitschek) asking her to come home. She couldn't refuse."

In Rio de Janeiro it was explained the tennis federation would like to have Miss Bueno represent Brazil in the Pan-American Games in Chicago but officials fear she will not be able to do so.

Paul Amorim, president of the federation, said under new rules of the International Lawn Tennis Federation amateurs may play outside their countries only for periods of 150 days. He feels Miss Bueno has been away about that long. Even if she has time enough left, Amorim said, for play in Chicago, Amorim believes she will have too many other commitments within Brazil to travel any time soon.

Willie's Triple Hardest Ball He Ever Hit

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Mays is hitting a cool .400 in stellar competition. The San Francisco centre fielder seems to be able to rise to the occasion.

Willie's tremendous triple to the ivy - covered wall in right center field in the 40th inning drove home the winning run in the National League's 5-4 victory over the American League Tuesday at Forbes Field.

"Was that the hardest hit ball by you this season?" a fellow asked Mays.

"Man, I don't remember hitting any harder." he answered.

It was the sixth all-ster game for the 28-year-old spectster.

Sixteen Ladies Advance in Ontario Open

BRANTFORD (CP) — Sixteen players advanced Tuesday to the second round of the Ontario ladies' golf championships with Toronto women dominating the first round of match play.

Qualifiers included:

Kay Bishop, Brantford, defeated Margaret Hunter, Toronto, 4 and 2.

Mrs. H. R. Armstrong, Weston, defeated Barbara Kimmerly, Nepanee, 3 and 6.

Sheila Flain, Toronto Dee Valley, defeated Mrs. S. J. Derrymple, St. Catharines, 1 up.

Mrs. Jim Bowman, St. Catharines, defeated Mrs. F. Culhane, Kenora, 1 up.

Kay Hellner, Woodbridge, defeated Suzanne Hilton, Maitland, and 1.

Mrs. N. J. Carlson Rosedale, defeated Mrs. E. Creed, St. Catharines, 3 and 2.

Mrs. S. S. Williamson, Peterborough, defeated K. Cartwright, Toronto, 2 and 1.

Mrs. W. G. McKay, Mississaga, defeated Mrs. Jim Nelson, Hamilton, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Dick Scarborough, defeated Mrs. R. Freeman, Brantford, 2 up.

Mrs. Lionel Ross, Cobourg, defeated Joan Clayden, Don Valley, 3 and 4.

Marilyn Brown Kitchener Rockway, defeated Nancy Smith, Windsor Beech Grove, 1 up.

Lady Champ Fails to Show

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)— Maria Bueno, the Brazilian girl who won the women's singles title at Wimbledon, also upset the Irish Tuesday — by not showing up for the Irish Open golf tournament.

"We expected Miss Bueno would be here, but instead with scant, courtesy," said W. J. Sandy of the Dublin promoting club.

Dr. Paulo Silva Costa, Brazilian Lawn Tennis Association official in London, said: "Miss Bueno received a telegram from the president (Jurscino Kubitschek) asking her to come home. She couldn't refuse."

Queen, Prince May See Football Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Royal Tour day in Edmonton also will be football day.

Edmonton Eskimos are of the Western Interprovincial Football Union announced Tuesday they will meet Calgary Stampeders in an exhibition game the day the Queen and Prince Philip visit the city, July 21.

Defensive safety Oscar Kruger has signed a two-year contract, the Eskimos also announced.

At Regina Tuesday, Saskatchewan Roughriders began training in earnest for their exhibition game in Vancouver July 23 against the B.C. Lions.

Pitdery said Doug McKenzie, backfielder from the University of Western Ontario who broke a clavicle in a drill last week for rookies, will be out for nearly a month.

The Lions lost two prospects Tuesday at their Kelowna, B.C. camp.

Walt Chatiman, who left Ventura College in California to try out at end, said he was leaving for personal reasons.

Harry Langford, a former Calgary Stampeder, quit because business interests in Calgary were interfering with his playing.

Don Jonhson Missing Again

MONTREAL (CP) — Pitcher Don Johnson was missing from Montreal Royals' camp Tuesday night for the third time this season.

Although not scheduled to pitch, the 32-year-old righthander couldn't be found as Leafs rounded Montreal 9-6.

Johnson left the team while they were in Montreal last season and was missing two days while Toronto was in spring training in Florida. A former' major leaguer, he has a 6-10 record this year.

Montreal Edges Peru Team 1-0

MONTREAL- (CP) — Montreal Canbis edged a touring team from Lima, Peru, 1-0 in an exhibition soccer match before 6,000 fans here Tuesday night.

Forward Kurt Baran scored the only goal of the game at the 32-minute mark of the first half.

Lacrosse

BRAMPTON (CP)—Bob Allen and Bob Curtis scored four goals apiece for Peterborough Mercurites Tuesday night as they walloped Brampton Excelsiors 15-10 in Ontario senior lacrosse action.

Larry Ferguson added another three goals for the Mercuries and Paul Farnell got one.

Peterborough led 5-1 at the end of the first period and 9-4 going into the third. The teams shared eight penalties.

Jack Madgett led the losers with four goals. Clark Pulford, Bill Castator, Burt Russell, Len Caruso, Larry Kendall and Bill Wanless each got singles.

Carbo Will Face Charges Of Conspiracy

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—Frankie Carbo, reputed underworld boss of boxing, Tuesday was ordered returned to New York State to face charges of conspiracy.

Carbo's transfer, however, was held up pending an appeal on the extradition decision to the New Jersey Superior Court.

The 54-year-old Carbo was remanded to Camden county jail without bail pending the appeal. Carbo, who has served a prison term for manslaughter, is accused of acting as a boxing promoter without a license. He was charged with having others front for him. The indictments were returned in July, 1958. Carbo was considered a fugitive from justice until his arrest at the home of a friend near Camden May 30.

Nationals Shade American 5-4 In All-Star Epic

Score Pair in Eighth Frame After Blowing 2-Run Lead; Aaron, Mays, Drysdale Stars

By JOE REICHLER

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Manager Fred Haney plans to use the same starting lineup in next month's all-star game in Los Angeles as the one which defeated the American League 5-4 Tuesday for the National League's first victory in three years.

The American League squad, however, may have a few new faces. That was lusty manager Casey Stengel's ill - concealed threat when his athletes let the game slip out of their hands after coming from behind with a three-run rally in the top of the eighth.

"I got four or five fellows in mind I'd like to have for the next game," he said. "And I'm going to use a couple of them, too, and nobody is going to pick out me. That's right."

DOWN ON WHITEY

Stengel didn't single out any player for blame in the defeat but he made no secret of the fact he wasn't satisfied with the pitching of Whitey Ford, his portsider lefthander with New York Yankees.

Ford was on the mound when the Nationals scored two runs in the bottom half of the eighth to overcome a 4-3 count.

Stengel also might have felt that Mickey Mantle, his hard-hitting slugger, had been playing in centre field, he might have caught up with Willie Mays' booming triple in the eighth that drove in the payoff run.

The ball, which Mays said was the hardest he has hit all season, sailed over Harvey Kuenn's head and bounced against the right-centre field wall. Kuenn, Detroit Tigers' right fielder, had replaced Al Kaline in centre. Mantle, who normally would have played there, was in right field because of a sprained ankle.

WON'T PIN BLAME

When asked whether he thought Mantle would have caught the ball, Stengel growled:

"You want me to put the rap on my-players but I won't do it. I don't want to take anything away from Mays. It was no soft fly ball he hit, you know.

"They played worse than we did. But they won and that's what counts. Those guys were lucky we didn't score more runs in the eighth, or else they were just playing it with when they let us fill the bases twice. It took a great catch to beat us."

Casey probably was referring to Hank Aaron's fine catch off Gus Triandos with two mates on base. That put an end to the fourth inning when the Americans scored their first run, on Kaline's homer. Two hits followed but Aaron prevented further scoring with his running catch in right-centre.

TEAM VICTORY

Haney praised all his players. The little Milwaukee skipper credited the first triumph in two all-star managerial efforts.

"It was a team victory all the way," he said. "They were all great. I defy anybody to single out any one player. Mays was great; Aaron was great; Banks was great; but so was Temple and Buhl, Face and Crandall and Drysdale. We had some fine pitching and defensive work."

Haney's strategy set up the tying run in the eighth inning. Drysdale, of St. Louis Cardinals, batting for winning pitcher Johnny Antonelli, singled to open it.

Haney sent up Pittsburgh Pirates' Dick Groat to hit for Eddie Mathews although the National League's home run leader had socked a four-bagger in the opening game. Groat, laid down a neat sacrifice and Aaron singled to score Boyer with the tying run.

FEW CHANGES

Haney made just two lineup changes in addition to using a new batboy. Six players—Mays, Aaron, Banks, Orlando Cepeda, Wally Moon and Del Crandall—went all the way.

Antonelli, who threw six pitches in putting out the fire in the eighth, was credited with the victory but the best pitching was done by righthander Don Drysdale, of Los Angeles Dodgers. Honored with the starting assignment, he retired all nine batters he faced, striking out four. Two Burdette of the Braves gave up one run in the middle three innings.

Ernie Face, Pittsburgh's unbeaten relief pitcher, was the victim of the American eighth-inning outburst. After retiring the first five batters he faced, Ernie lost his stuff, yielding three hits and two walks with two out in the eighth. The most damaging blow was Triandos' bases-loaded double that put the Americans in front.

KALINE SAFE AT THIRD — Al Kaline, of Detroit, slides safely into third base in sixth inning play in yesterday's All-Star game as the American League player beat ball to waiting Ed Mathews, of Milwaukee Braves. Kaline went from first on Bill Skowron's single to right centre, but Al died on base. Umpire is Al Barlick. (AP Wirephoto).

Leafs Shade Montreal 8-6; Bisons Beaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Columbus Jets are last in the International League, but don't bet on them sticking around the cellar for long.

They host a 9-2 loss on Miami Marlins Tuesday night for their fifth victory in eight games and could vault into sixth place tonight.

Rochester reduced Buffalo's first-place margin to 1½ games with a 4-3 victory while Havana scored five runs in the 14th inning on only one hit for an 11-8 victory. Toronto defeated Montreal 8-6 in the other game.

The Jets also kept their streak against Miami with victory No. 8 in their last 10 meetings. Lyon Lovenguth pitched his first complete game since May 11 with an eight-hitter that was backed up by Tom Burgess's 20th home run, a two run shot in the sixth inning that junked Herb Moford's twelfth hitter. Lovenguth is the Jets' winningest pitcher now with nine victories. He has lost the same number while Moford is 1-1.

FULL GAME OUT OF FIRE

Rochester scored three times in the last of the ninth inning on Billy Harrell's bases - empty homer and Gene Green's two-run double to hand Chris Short his second loss in 10 decisions. Bob Lillt, a June graduate of Cornell making his first pro start, was the winner in relief.

Havana scored its winning cluster in the 14th when loser Ben Flowers (1-5) walked Cookie Rojas with one out, wild pitched him to second and then walked to Tony Gonzales. Cleto Boy's error on Dan Morejon's grounder scored the go-ahead run. Jess Gonder then singled for the league's only hit to drive home Gonzales. Two more scored on Bobby Deakin's error on Leo Cardenas's grounder.

Reliever Pete Carillo (1-3) won it while Boyer hit his 10th homer and Jack Reed his second, off starter Don Rudolph.

Montreal's six-run eighth inning almost upset Toronto's two run third and fourth innings, and a four-run eighth. Pat Scantlebury came on in relief of winner George Susce (2-3) to quench the rally. Bob Lennon hit his 17th homer to lead off the Royals' big inning. Ed Rakow (6-7) lost.

NOT BASKETBALL

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press looked back Tuesday on the Russians' thrilling 7-5 Davis Cup victory over the American Globetrotters with mixed emotions. Pravda and Izvestia said of the game with the San Francisco Chinese team: "This is not basketball; it is too full of tricks" but admitted the Trotters' ball handling was terrific "and they have some techniques to show us."

Majors Ready To Start Free-for-All

By ED WILKS —
Associated Press Sports Writer

With the first leg of the all-star series out of the way, major league baseball now gets back to the pennant races, jumping into a swift schedule that could change the scrambles almost overnight.

The free-for - all gets started again Thursday night, although Boston's last-place Red Sox play at New York tonight in a make-up game on the American League schedule.

The National League picks up its pennant race with Milwaukee's Braves in first place by .005 percentage points over San Francisco and a half-game over third-place Los Angeles.

IMPORTANT GAMES

The Braves, who had a one-game lead over the Giants at this stage while winning their second straight flag last season, have a three-game series at Milwaukee against the Dodgers, then play two against the Giants.

San Francisco plays three at Cincinnati before moving into Milwaukee. And the Dodgers have two with the Reds, concluding in seventh with manager Mayo Smith rumored on the way out, after leaving the Montreal 4.

Fourth place Pittsburgh, 3½ games out of first, is at home for three games with fifth place Chicago and two with sixth place St. Louis.

The immediate American League schedule is just as hot. First-place Cleveland, ahead by two games, is at Chicago for two games with the second place Baltimore Orioles play five games at Washington before returning home for four games with Kansas City and four with the Tigers.

Detroit, still fifth after dropping three in a row to Cleveland, now trail by six. The Tigers play three with the Athletics before ending with the Indians again this weekend.

Jurges a 2-1 record.

That sweep dropped third-place Baltimore 4½ games behind. The Orioles play five games at Washington before returning home for four games with Kansas City and four with the Tigers.

Detroit, still fifth after dropping three in a row to Cleveland, now trail by six. The Tigers play three with the Athletics before ending with the Indians again this weekend.

Halimi Risks Bantam Crown With Jose Becerra Tonight

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Broad-shouldered Alphone Halimi of France risks his world bantamweight crown in a 15-round fight tonight with leading contender Jose Becarra of Mexico.

The 27-year-old French Algerian was the top favorite at 8-5 in 1. The scrap goes at 10 p.m. EDT and will be televised by ABC.

Promoter Cal Eaton predicted a crowd of 15,000 or more would pay upward of $150,000 to see the match, which serves as a kickoff sports event for Los Angeles' new $8,000,000 Memorial Sports Arena.

"I am ready to fight one to 14 rounds," said Halimi.

"I promised my people, and the president of Mexico I would win the championship," said the 23-year-old contender.

SECOND DEFENCE

Halimi, in the second defence of the title he won in 1957, in a 15-round fight with Mario d'Agata of Italy, will pick up a guarantee of $65,000. If he loses, he has a guarantee for a rematch within 90 days. Becerra settled for $20,000 for a shot at the champion's slip.

The fight will be scored on a 10-point-must basis, with 10 to the winner.

Most observers think it will be a bout filled with action, whether boxer is known as a clutch-and-clinch exponent.

TWO-PRONGED FIGHTERS

Both can hit with either hand. The champion likes to ball away with both hands to the head and suddenly swtie to the midsection. Becerra's most explosive weapon is his left hook, usually to the head.

The consensus is that to win, Becerra must bomb Alphonse into submission within seven or eight rounds.

Halimi usually improves the longer a fight lasts.

Becerra has won his last 11 fights by knockouts.

Says Third Major League Ready by 1961

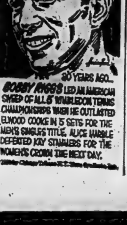
NEW YORK (AP) — William Shea, chairman of the mayor's baseball committee, told Mayor Robert Wagner Tuesday that a third major baseball league would be formed and ready to play by 1961.

Shea visited the mayor to bring him up to date on the progress of the committee and its efforts to bring a third league team to New York.

He expressed "optimism" and said that his committee would be ready to sit with baseball commissioner Ford Frick any time between July 23 and August 3 to discuss the new league.

He added that Minneapolis would publicly announce its willingness to be a member of the third league.

Shea said he recently spoke with city construction co-ordinator Robert Moses, who told him that if the league was formed by December of this year, work would start on a new stadium and that it would be ready in 14 months.



SUSPEND FLAYER

MONTREAL (CP) — Larry Novak of Havana Sugar Kings was suspended four days and fined $50 Tuesday for an altercation involving umpire Augie Guglielmo in a Canadian League game here in Columbus July 4.

League president Frank Shaughnessy said the umpire's report showed Novak bumped Guglielmo twice, shoved about, threw his glove in anger and refused to leave the bench when ordered from the game.

The incidents occurred when Novak protested Guglielmo's "safe" call on a rundown of a Columbus player between first and second base.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Oct. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, results were "almost unbelievable" as reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (or retraction) (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very large number of long-standing conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous Research Institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H. is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

It Takes A TOTAL Selling Medium To Push A Sales Curve UP! . . .

Today's market for almost anything you can name is rich, responsive, rewarding . . . BUT highly competitive! To keep sales mounting under such conditions calls for a TOTAL selling effort. In particular, it calls for the use of the TOTAL selling medium, the newspaper.

No other medium covers the advertiser's TOTAL market so thoroughly . . . no other medium delivers his message with such powerful selling impact as the newspaper. Most shoppers check the ads in their newspaper, last thing before setting forth to buy. This gives the newspaper advertiser the opportunity to put in that all-important last word for himself, the word that pays off so handsomely in SALES.

Point Anne Wins Fourth Straight, Downs Cobourg 7-5 in 13 Innings

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Point Anne pushed across three runs in the top of the 13th inning, with the help of a couple of errors, to defeat the Cobourg Merchants 7-5 in Cobourg last night, tightening the Belleville and District softball league race even more.

Cobourg's loss dropped them back into second place, scant percentage points behind the first place Bobcats and only an equal margin ahead of the Cementmen. The same clubs hook up again in Point Anne tonight at 8.45 p.m.

The Cementmen blew a nearly 4-0 lead as Cobourg scored once in each of the fourth and sixth frames and twice in the eighth to send it into extra innings. The 13th, after the Pointers scored in a row, was the longest game in the long this season.

Cobourg threatened to win it with two runners in each of the 11th and 12th and again in the 13th, after teh Pointers scored three, the Merchants got one back and left three more, bringing their game total to 20 stranded base runners.

One of two base-on-balls that the winners drew started the deciding rally with one man away in the 13th. Lefty Hull followed Carr's walk with a Baltimore chop single to third and an infield error filled the sacks. McGahan's bad throw to the plate on King Sloan's fielder's choice gave Point Anne a 5-4 lead. Jack Elliott Jr's solid single to right drove in two more runs for a 7-4 lead.

Bobby Hunter, who pitched the last 12 frames in only his second start of the year, tired in the bottom of the inning as Cobourg fought their way back. Hunter hit lead-off man Campbell, walked McGahan and gave up an infield hit to Church to load the bases with none out. He fanned B. Hart and got brother Jim on a popup before walking in one run. Turpin grounded out to end the two hour, 10 minute affair.

Hunter gave up 15 hits on the night. On-coming hilltop but kept them well spaced and was good with men on base as Cobourg's strand-ed-runner total proves. He struck out 12 and walked seven, five after he got the lead in late three frames. Seven of the Merchants hits never left the infield.

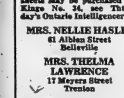
Rolly Campbell also banged out full 13 and surrendered just eight base hits. He whiffed half a dozen and walked only two men but five errors hurt his cause. Neither club had another pitcher available for relief duty.

Carr hit a double off the light wires in right field and John Batchelor lined a home run to centre for the Pointers after two runs in the fourth. A hit batter, Goyer's single and an error gave it 4-0 in the same frame. That was all for them until the 13th frame.

A walk, wild pitch and Bryan Hart's safety got one back in the bottom of the same inning. Another in the sixth scored on a single by Hart and two Point errors. Cobourg kept getting men on but could not plate them until the eighth. Hits by Hart, Clarey, O'Brien and McSporran scored one and Hunter's free ticket forced in the equalizer.

Gary Goyer had two singles for Point Anne and John Batchelor his third homer of the season. Claude Carr doubled with Jack Elliott, Dave Jones, Church Kingston and Doug Hull also hitting safely.

All Cobourg hits were singles, with Leo O'Brien getting four, Ryan Hart, Jack Dick Turpin and Scotty McSporran two each. Campbell, McGahan, Al Church and Burke Clarey had the others.



The line-ups:

Point Anne — Jones 3b; Carr, c; D. Hull, ss; Batchelor 2b; Kingston 1b; Elliott, Jr., rf; Goyer lf; Soule ef; Hunter p.

Cobourg — Turpin c; O'Brien 3b; McSporran rf; Campbell p; McGahan 2b; Church ss; B. Hart lf; J. Hart 1b; Hendry cf; Clarey cf.

Umpires — Neil Cane (p) and Paul Jones. Time 2.10.

Godfrey on Way to Recovery Already Planning Sept. Show

By CYNTHIA LOWERY

NEW YORK (AP)—Arthur Godfrey, convalescing from lung cancer surgery three months ago, says that "I still tire easily, of course, but the energy last a little longer every day."

Godfrey, in fact, is making such a good recovery that his New York doctors have lengthened the periods between his regular checkups from bi-weekly to monthly.

Except for flying visits to his doctors, Godfrey has been sticking close to home—his 2,500-acre farm near Leesburg, Va. in a note to this column. The TV and radio performer (who will be 56 next month) describes his usual program.

"A swim in the pool starts the day around 7:30 or 8," writes Godfrey. "I try to get in three or four swim sessions a day. No special diet has been prescribed, but having lost 16 pounds the hard way, I have no intention of regaining any part of it. So I am engaged in the same old battle of the bulge.

NAPS AFTER LUNCH

"Ride and work with the other animals about an hour a day. An hour's nap after lunch is a must. I try like to spend the last hour before dark hunting varmints. I try to sleep an hour or two a day, which often includes some attempts at writing. After dinner, I read to wife Mary and listened love to play cards with our neighbors until bedtime."

Godfrey says that he's already planning his next show—one of perhaps four spaced which will be his only TV appearances next season—which is scheduled for September.

The Godfreys, with their two teen-aged younger children, live in a comfortable but not lavish two-covered brick tudor house. Horses are a passion with both Godfrey and his wife and they have perhaps a dozen of them.

Friends say that he rarely looks at television or listens to radio but keeps up with the news via newspaper and magazines.

"Don of Robin Hood" in Color and CinemaScope, "Mark of Zorro" Next Week

The legend of Sherwood Forest and its famed chivalrous outlaw, a story which has captured the imagination of millions of people throughout the world, dramatically comes to life in the new 20th Century-Fox film, "The Son of Robin Hood," opening tomorrow, Thursday, at the Belle Theatre.

Revealing the seldom heard, but historically recorded facts of Robin Hood and his son, she De Luxe Color, CinemaScope production was filmed on location in Sherwood Forest and on the fields of Runnymede on the full permission of the English government.

"The Mark of Zorro." Thrills

The most famous adventure figure of all time slashes a jagged 'Z' across the screen of the Belle Theatre tomorrow as the mid exciting feature offering, starring Tyrone Power, Basil Rathbone and Linda Darnell, opens its triumphant popular-demand return engagement.

Tyrone Power as the masked avenger who becomes a symbol of justice in the cosmopolitan people of early California, and Rathbone as the sinister master of swordplay, Captain Esteban, "The Mark of Zorro" combines three top action story with the most dazzling of the current crop of youth heroes.

Linda Darnell

Darnell makes her mark as the tender, beautiful young senorita, Donna Lolita, who share the secret behind "The Mark of Zorro."

Boys and girls, when Mom and Dad shop at Dominion in Trenton or Belleville, be sure they pick up your free scout ticket. Then scout headquarters at the Belle Theatre Friday and Saturday, for action shows at the Belle Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

City Commercial Softball League

Chris' Drive-In climbed into third place in the City Commercial softball league last night by defeating Mead - Sportsmen 9-8 for their third victory in four starts.

The winners trailed 8-2 going into the fifth inning but scored they plated seven runs with the help of four Mead errors to cop the win. Chris' Drive-In have six errors in all.

Fred Howard pitched the win, allowing nine hits, fanning four and walking seven. Bruno McCurdy started with Chris'. Young taking over during the wild fifth frame for the losers. Each got up eight hits, whiffed seven and passed five.

Bob Wannamaker paced the Drive-In crew at the plate with a double and two singles. Eddie Donovan banged a double and single while Frankie Donovan singled twice and Ron Haley rapped a two-bagger.

E. Morgan collected four singles for Mead-Sportsmen with McCurdy doubling and singling. Warren Snell, Lloyd Worsley and Al Thompson also hit safely.

Shirley Maclaine Sees Hubby Only Few Weeks Each Year

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I know people don't understand it, don't understand it myself. But we're making it work, and I know we'll get what we want."

That was Shirley Maclaine explaining about her strange marriage to Steve Parker. She has seen him only a few weeks a year since 1956—she won't say how few for fear people will be shocked.

Their careers keep them apart. Shirley is the hottest female star in movies today. Steve has displayed a rich field as producer for films and shows in Japan.

Last year, he brought over the Japanese troupe that made a hit on Dinah Shore's TV show. Now he is importing an extravaganza to play the New Frontier in Las Vegas, Nev., and he and Shirley can together for one of their infrequent reunions.

How did they get into such a situation?

"It just happened," she said. "Steve had lived in Japan when he was a boy—he went to all parts of the world with his father. But he liked Japan best. He went back there after the war and found a terrific field. Now he's branching out. The next show he does for Dinah will be not only from Japan, but from all of eastern Asia."

TIED BY CONTRACT

Contractual matters keep her busy. She was plucked out of Pajama Game for a movie deal with Hal Wallis. All of the films she has made between Around the World in 80 Days and the forthcoming Can Can were under salary. So she hasn't been able to cash in on her current popularity.

"I've got pictures lined up steadily into the spring of 1961," she said. "Then we'll be able to resume our marriage. I'll be independent and able to make my own deals, and Steve will make his. It's been quite a struggle. I don't think it's too much for us to be apart for another two years—as long as we can achieve everything we both want by that time."

But she admitted that her friends can't understand how she and Steve live.

"Sure, I'm lonely," she said. "But much of it I've learned to accept. The way I've been working, I wouldn't be able to have much of a marriage, anyway."

Unhappily, she is working her hardest now that Steve is here. She's in strenuous rehearsals for the Adam and Eve number in Can Can. It's the first dancing she has done in four years of movies, though she was discovered in a musical.

53 Die In Panic, Excursion Boat Explodes, Burns

2nd Denmark Disaster Within Three Weeks

HADERSLEV, Denmark (AP) — An excursion boat packed with gay picnickers was torn by an engine room explosion Wednesday and set afire by streams of fuel in the ensuing fire and panic.

Others, some mothers with babies in arms, escaped by leaping overboard into the park lake in this south Denmark resort. Officials feared at least 94 persons were aboard.

The skipper of the 45-foot excursion boat Dannede, injured and unable to halt the panic, beached his craft on a sandbar out within an hour.

Witnesses said the panic was so great that many burned to death or were drowned after the ship foundered in water so shallow that any adult could stand with his head above the surface. Police said many of the victims were children and elderly women who had come to the resort for a day in the sun.

PICNIC

The boat was returning with passengers from a picnic area along the Lillebaelt lake when disaster struck within full view of hundreds of others on the shore and pleasure craft in the area.

"I heard somebody crying and screaming and at first I thought it was some children who were enjoying themselves," said 61-year-old Carl Engel, credited with saving at least 15 in his rowboat.

"But when I reached the beach I was shocked to see a ship afire and scores of screaming people fighting to get into the water.

"When I was beside the ship the first time, she was in the middle of the lake. If the accident had occurred only 10 yards closer to the shore, many of those aboard could have been saved just by walking into the shallow water."

A weeping young man said he and his wife jumped into the water when the ship caught fire. He said he had managed to get his little belt. En route to shore, he said, his wife gave the life belt to a screaming girl whose mother was trying to keep herself and her baby afloat. The wife was suddenly disappeared.

Fourteen of the survivors were admitted to hospital with burns. Some, including Capt. Hans Riisstofte, were in critical condition.

IGNORED CAPTAIN

Survivors said Riisstofte tried calmly to halt the panic-stricken and reach the lifebelts. While flames shot out of the engine room the panicky crowd threw him back, and he returned to the bridge.

Some foreign tourists were among the victims, mostly West Germans, including a married couple, were among the survivors.

Bodies were still being washed up on the lake shore more than 12 hours after the explosion, and police said they had not determined how many were aboard the boat. They appealed to all survivors who had not been seen to report to the police.

Riisstofte and a ticket collector were questioned by police under the small boat, which carried picnic parties along the wooded shores of the lake, on the night of this quiet South Jutland resort 30 miles from the German border.

Queen Reaches Western End Of Her Great Lakes Voyage

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — The royal yacht Britannia today brought the Queen to the western end of the St. Lawrence Seaway route.

Freighters were loading grain, ore and pulp as the yacht came like a seagull out of Lake Superior and into quiet Thunder Bay.

Though scattered thunderstorms had been predicted for the royal party, only a slight breeze ruffled the water, and the yacht shone brilliantly on a throng of thousands scattered along the waterfront. Lakehead cities of Port Arthur and Fort William have a population of about 85,000.

They yacht steamed slowly along the waterfront before the Queen and Prince Philip came ashore at the CPR wharf. The royal couple saw grain pouring into the cavernous bowls of the lake freighters and ore being dumped from hoppers perched on a high trestle.

Spectators were perched on every available vantage point as the Queen and Prince before the Britannia came over the rim of the horizon from the sun.

Dozens of small craft, manned by members of Lakehead boat clubs, escorted the Britannia, moved through a gap in the breakwater at the entry (10:00 a.m. EDT) and turned past the arrival wharf where dozens of flags flew and a band played. Whistles of ships in harbor hooted a welcome and the vessel moved back through the breakwater to anchor along with her escorts.

The royal barge came alongside the pier at 10:10 a.m., 10 minutes behind schedule.

The Queen wore brilliant yellow to match the bright day. Under a yellow wool coat, she wore a yellow rose and moss green print silk dress. She wore white shoes and carried a white purse. Prince Philip wore a grey business suit.

The greetings at the flag-bedecked pier were brief and the Queen in an open car began to drive through the twin cities to the cheers and waves of thousands of children.

The Britannia anchored outside the breakwater, mouth to the sea and three city officials, who had wanted the yacht to dock at the pier to show the world that the Lakehead is a deep water port.

The yacht made her way through the twin cities harbor inside the breakwater as a compromise.

Thousands of cheers perched on the roofs of nearby pier sheds, boats and the city station. Even the navy had turned out for the royal visit, leaping up from the pier.

The Queen was escorted just before the Queen's arrival the royal baggage truck nearly ran over Prince Philip's fisherman.

The royal couple was welcomed by Lieut.-Governor Louis O'Neil of Arthur and Mayor Mrs. Catherine Seppala of Fort William.

Mounties Arrest Same Two Men Indicted At Chicago For Possessing Loot From Brockville Trust Robbery

Twenty Other Raids Made in Montreal Area, FBI Stages Searches of Premises in Several States

MONTREAL (CP) — The RCMP today made one of the largest narcotic hauls in Montreal history, seizing an estimated $8,000,000 worth of heroin.

They also arrested two men, identified by Supt. Henri J. Belege of the RCMP's criminal investigation branch here as Guiseppe (Pepi)' Cotroni, 45, and Rene (Bob) Cotroni, 32.

Cotroni and Robert were charged with conspiracy, possession and trafficking. Cotroni, a Montreal cafe and tavern owner, and Robert were indicted 10 days ago in Chicago for alleged participation in a ring charged with possession of millions of dollars worth of bonds, part of the loot stolen from trust company vaults in Quebec and Ontario during the last 15 months, including loot from the $3,500,000 robbery of the Brockville Trust and Savings Co.

The seizure of heroin was made in the dead of night at a motel in suburban Pointe aux Trembles.

Robert put up a fight and suffered a head laceration in the struggle to subdue him, police said.

He was taken to Montreal General Hospital for treatment. Cotroni sursed and sustered meekly.

Police described the arrests as the result of part of an investigation under way for months. The heroin seizure was estimated to weigh 13 pounds.

ALSO SEIZE CARS

Supt. Belege said that on the illicit narcotics' market it would be worth "perhaps $8,000,000."

Five expensive cars were seized by police.

Both prisoners were scheduled to be arraigned in criminal court later today.

Police said other raids continued through the night — 20 of them in the Montreal area.

In the United States, co-operating FBI agents searched premises at New Jersey, New York and other points. It was not immediately known whether any seizures or arrests had been made in the U.S.

The two Canadians and three Americans were named in an indictment returned by a Chicago federal grand jury.

The Montreal searches were arrested July 2. The FBI said they were involved in attempts to dispose of loot from a $3,500,000 theft of bonds, plus cash and jewelry, from the Brockville Trust and Savings Company, Brockville, a gang of counterfeiters using blowtorches did the job May 3, 1958.

THE WAIT

Montreal police said they knew of the Chicago indictment but did not publish the names about it until extradition proceedings are started in Canada.

Cotroni and Robert have had close brushes with death in the past.

Cotroni was at a party last December in a hotel at Ste. Adele in the Laurentians north of Montreal when one man died after drinking champagne from bottles said the wrong man may have taken the poisoned drink.

Robert was shot and wounded April 23 in downtown Montreal a week after he was acquitted in possession of $800 worth of bonds from the Brockville robbery. He survived the stomach wound he sustained was charged with attempted murder.

The Laurentians also were the scene of the Kennedy (Kenneth China Boy) Winford, 32-year-old underworld hanger-on. He died in hospital at St. Jerome March 23, a week after being found staggering in the snow with two bullet wounds in the back.

Police listed him as a suspect in two gangland-style killings.

After his death, Winford was linked in Montreal court to a connection with the Brockville robbery. Raymond Galarneau, jobless Montrealer now awaiting trial on a charge of perjury, testified that Winford was a parcel from Winford and delivered it to another man, since charged with handling stolen bonds valued at $1,000,000. Galarneau said at the time he didn't know the parcel contained bonds.

Police here disclosed that besides the bond case they have been working on mysterious case for months. They said the Montreal branch of an international narcotics ring became target No. 1 because the customary narcotic-peddling channels in the United States have been broken up upon information which flowed after the Apalachian, N.Y., raid on the Mafia last year.

Hydro Options Bruce Property For Atom Plant

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission today announced it has taken options on 1,000 acres of farmland north of Kincardine in Bruce County as possible site of a 200,000 commercial nuclear power plant.

A Hydro spokesman said other sites in the southern part of the province also are being investigated and no definite decision has been reached.

The plant, capable of producing 200,000 kilowatts of electricity, is to be built by Canadian Atomic Energy of Canada Limited and Hydro people said it will assist in the design, provide a site and co-operate in the construction.

On completion of the plant—scheduled for late 1964 or early 1965—Hydro will purchase the power produced and later, if the plant proves suitable for Hydro needs, the plant itself.

The site purchased must be near a large body of water to provide a cooling agent—this type of station will require some 300,000 gallons of water a minute—and must also be situated in a thickly populated area as a safety measure.

The station must produce power at a price competitive with that produced by coal-fired plants of similar size.

The plant will be known by the name of Canada, Canadian deuterium uranium. Final approval of the site will be made by the atomic energy control board.

Decision to build the plant was disclosed in the Commons July 6 by Trade Minister Churchill.

Hydro Chairman Japps S. Duncan made today's announcement on the property options in the Kincardine area.

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungary today restricted travel within the U.S. diplomats Monday. They can't go more than 40 kilometres (25 miles) from Budapest without permit unless they get special permission. Soviet diplomats have not been imposed on diplomats of other Western countries.

Top British Union Leader Urges Labor to Renounce H-Bomb Now

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (Reuter) — Frank Cousins, British union most powerful trade union leader, has appealed for repeated pledges from the world's three nuclear powers that none of them will use nuclear weapons first.

Cousins addressed the annual conference of more than 1,000 delegates of the Transport and General Workers, in this Isle of Man resort town.

For the second successive day, he spoke briefly on party lines on nuclear policy. This calls for Britain to keep nuclear weapons until the formation of a world ban of all non-nuclear nations to include every country except the United States and Russia.

Cousins, leader of 1,300,000 TGWU members, appealed for the permanent cessation of nuclear weapons tests and production in Britain as soon as the Labor party returns to power. He said this action should not await the formation of a non-nuclear world.

Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell formed the party's new nuclear policy in recordings late with most trade union leaders. He has hoped, to close ranks in the labor movement before a general election expected in October.

The current split on nuclear policy results from a "ban the bomb" resolution approved by another big union—the General and Municipal Workers.

But Gaitskell received enormous agreement for his policy Wednesday when two other major unions, the 700,000-strong National Union of Railwaymen and the 330,000-member National Union of Railwaymen both swung behind official party policy.

Cousins said, amid loud cheers today that he rejected the official party policy because it "could not contribute toward establishing world peace."

Groom's Mother Dislikes Seat, Takes Son Home

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The marriage ceremony went smoothly enough.

Mattie Sue Harelson, a pretty bride-to-be, exchanged vows with Carl Thomas Blaine.

Each promised to love, honor and obey.

That is as far as harmony and bliss went, however, last year Jack Harris told Judge Harold Craik Wednesday.

Harris said Blaine's mother was dissatisfied with the seat assigned her for the June 5 church wedding.

As her son and his bride-to-be walked down each entrance, Harris related, the mother grabbed her son by the arm and announced:

"We're going home."

They did just that, son and mother going one direction, the bride and her parents another.

Later Blaine filed an application for a writ of habeas corpus, claiming his wife hadn't been able to see his bride.

Judge Craik put the young couple together for a private conference.

The bride decided she no longer wanted to be married and announced plans for annulment. The groom and his lawyer said they would not contest it.

Ball Club Executive Injured in Crash

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Goldwyn (Goldie) Whitfield, 47, a city solicitor and secretary of the Inter - County Baseball League, died in hospital of the Empire Hotel here, is in critical condition in hospital following a car crash on Talbot street Wednesday night.

His companion, Douglas Hook, 40, of London suffered undetermined injuries.

'METAL BASHING' CONTRACTS OUT SAYS O'HURLEY

Pearson Says U.S. Hard to Convince

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Production Minister O'Hurley says the government is determined that Canada's role in defence production sharing with the United States shall not be limited to pouring concrete and "metal bashing".

But Opposition Minister Pearson argued in Commons debate Wednesday that it is going to be hard to persuade U.S. industry. The Canadian government would have to overcome forces in Washington that would be alert to see that Canadian industry did not constitute dangerous competition.

The debate followed Mr. O'Hurley's announcement of a $400,000,000 program, over the next four years of building 75 Canadian plants some 200 Americas Lockheed F - 104G supersonic fighter planes for the Canadian air division in Europe.

In this program, said Mr. O'Hurley, "the principle of production sharing has been fully accepted by the United States firm involved."

HARD MARKET EFFORT

—But he said Canadian firms will obtain U.S. defence orders only if they "bring all their skill and imagination to bear in the framing of their proposals."

"If they are not prepared to make this effort, nothing that my department can do will make the production sharing program work."

Held by Police After Seizing An Airliner

BARI, Italy (Reuters) — A 23-year-old Yugoslav was being held by police here today after seizing a Yugoslav Adriatic airliner at pistol point and forcing it to land here.

The Yugoslav, Cockovic Obrad, stepped out of the plane Wednesday night and asked airport police to arrest him.

Six children were among 27 people on the plane which Obrad took over by holding the pistol at the pilot's neck soon after it took off from Cattaro in Dalmatia on a regular flight to Belgrade.

The Yugoslav was taken to Bari police headquarters for questioning and the pilot took the plane across the Adriatic again to Belgrade.

GAS DEALERS IN METRO AREA CALL OFF LOCKUP

Clear Operators Were Losing Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Gasoline dealers in the Metropolitan Toronto area called off their two-day lockup Wednesday night and announced that all service stations would be open for business today.

The move followed a special meeting of the Ontario Retail Gasoline and Automobile Service Association's negotiating committee when it became clear dealers were losing their battle to close all Metro gasoline outlets.

Oil company spokesmen say gas prices will level out lower than they were before the gasoline war began but higher than those just before calling the lockup.

REGROUP FORCES

In a statement, the association said the strike was called off "to regroup our forces." It said the strike had served its purpose by creating the public's attention on the "discriminating practices of the oil companies and shows the lengths gasoline dealers were prepared to go to put an end to these unfair practices."

Kenneth Langdon, association field manager, said the strike could be called on again "at any moment" if the oil companies do not heed its demands.

"We don't mind selling gas at cheaper prices in view of the surplus," he said. "But we want everybody to take advantage of it. We want oil companies to sell

Self-Confessed Addict Tells Of Drug Traffic, Prostitution

TORONTO (CP) — A sordid story of narcotics traffic and prostitution in Canada's second largest city was told Wednesday by a 23-year-old self - confessed prostitute and drug addict.

The woman testified voluntarily before a Metropolitan Toronto licensing commission hearing which is investigating reports that drug addicts and peddlers, prostitutes and bootleggers are using restaurants in the downtown area and Yonge Street area as meeting places to transact business.

The woman, 4½ months pregnant, gave her testimony under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

An addict since she was 16, she told of buying heroin, given to her in an empty Coca-Cola box by a "pusher" in a restaurant. She was barred from the restaurant when the proprietors became aware that she was an addict.

Police officers said after the hearing that there are at least 200 women in the city in the same category as the one who told her tale to the board.

She showed needle marks on both arms to prove her addiction and said she had been using it four days in bed "trying to kick the habit."

She told the hearing "my mother and father were both addicts."

The woman said she had been in jail for a narcotics offence previously but had not received any help to break the habit.

Magistrate C. A. Thoburn, one of the two-member commission hearing the case, said addicts and prostitutes are just beginning to realize that they're addicts wanting to be cured.

Frederick Gardiner, Metro Toronto chairman and also a board member of the board, said "it's high time addicts were given the state should be allowed to wander around the big city without help."

It was learned later that the confession is going to court.

A police officer said after the hearing that there are at least 200 women in the city in the same category as the one who told her tale to the board.

Hopes Dim for Averting Steel Strike on Tuesday

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes dimmed today for averting a steel strike at midnight Tuesday in the basic industry.

The Steelworkers Union turned down a plea by President Eisenhower for an indefinite extension of the two-month strike truce already granted by the union.

David J. McDonald, the union's president, said he could not believe Eisenhower intended that "we negotiate forever"

Easy Atmosphere of Informality Features Queen's Visit to Soo

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—An easy atmosphere of informality marked the visit here Wednesday of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

There were, of course, the usual ceremonies and greeting by citizens, the usual official luncheon and the usual tours.

But at every opportunity—perhaps especially at the big children's gathering at Gateway Park—the Queen gave the impression that she was just visiting around with her people.

Reporters who have been with the four for some time described the Bellevue visit as one of the most simple and charming of the trip so far.

Even the official functions couldn't get very stuffy with fairly Mayor Walter Harry—a 44-year veteran of the steel industry—and motherly Mrs. Harry acting as host and hostess for the city.

Altogether it was a nice day in the Queen's gathering of subjects. The Queen getting about as close a look as a Queen can get at people in their day-to-day lives, and about 50,000 people giving a typical Canadian demonstration of affection.

It was the Soo's first visit from a British reigning monarch.

The royal party—with a day of rest on the Britannia between them and Monday's hectic activities in Chicago—landed at downtown Clergue Park, facing on the St. Mary's River, at noon.

A short two-mile drive followed along Queen street, the Soo's five-mile main thoroughfare, to

WOOD PLANKING CATCHES FIRE

Camnifton Bridge was burning down; but the Belleville firefighters saved it. At 1.52 p.m. yesterday afternoon the Belleville Fire Department was called out to extinguish a fire on the wooden planking of the bridge at Camnifton. The fire was quickly put out when the local firemen directed some water over the bridge rather than under it.

A second alarm was received at 2.30 p.m. yesterday when a fire broke out in the city dump. This conflagration was quickly extinguished as well.

Camera Club Holds Meeting To Talk Shop

A very enjoyable summer meeting of the Belleville Camera Club was held Tuesday at the Kiwanis Centre. After a short business meeting the evening was turned over to the club members to show slides, discuss problems and generally 'talk shop'.

Dr. J. Morris Smith showed many interesting color slides illustrating the effectiveness of the various sizes of slides available from the 2-1-4 inch square to 'super' slides to 35 mm. Dr. Smith's pictures were taken in the British Columbia area of the Rocky Mountains and included views of the landslide at the mining village of Frank, the Columbia ice field, the power dam which supplies electricity for the smelters at Trail, a paddle wheel ferry built in 1898 on which he took a five hour trip up Arrow Lake, scenes from the beautiful Okanagan valley, as well as breathtaking shots of the always picturesque mountains.

Other members showed slides of Niagara Falls, Toronto's Bank in Toronto decorated for the Queen's visit, the Queen in Kingston, nature pictures of robins feeding their young, porcupines clearly visible in plain sight, water lilies, both white and rose and even Canadian orchids.

The 'problem pictures' shown caused considerable discussion of the pictures' causes and how to avoid them in the future.

The camera club is always open for new members and the next meeting will be held August 4th.

Bancroft Man Instantly Killed Near Village

BANCROFT (Special) — A 26-year-old Bancroft man, Walter James Thomas, Faraday Street, was fatally injured shortly before midnight last night when his car went out of control on No. 62 highway north of Bancroft, bounding into onto the roadway.

Police said that Thomas was southbound towards Bancroft when his car went out of control near what is known as the Eldophie Corner. He travelled 300 feet along the shoulder of the highway and overturned. The driver was thrown out and apparently struck his head and was found about 40 feet from the wrecked auto. Mr. Thomas was alone at the time of the accident.

Coroner Dr. G. W. Anderson of Bancroft said there would be no inquest. Provincial Constable D. R. Hooker of Bancroft investigated.

Kingston Wins District Honors On Local Greens

The grip on the honors in the district playdowns in bowling held by the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club for some years was broken Wednesday afternoon by the Kingston Club, when they won the rink, coils and singles honors. The playdowns were in the Provincial Lawn Bowling series, the second stage to be played here, being on July 22nd. This will be a zone playoff, winners from four districts will compete.

Gordon Watkin and Bruce Miller, who won the Ontario Doubles championship some years ago and competed at Vancouver in the Dominion series, were the district heroes again yesterday and will be competing in the playdowns and hoping to duplicate their feat of another Ontario title. Incidentally they had a close squeeze as they won by only one point from a doubles pair from Kingston in their first game but easily tok the second from Bill Fuller and his partner from Trenton.

The colls rink from Belleville, skipped by William VanTassel gave a good account of themselves in their first try at district honors. They won their first game from Campbellford but lost to the Kingston rink in the final game. Sid Dennis of Kingston won the singles title with a fine display of bowling through two games knocking down W. McAdam and Austin Watkin both of Belleville in the process. In the rink series the powerful Kingston rink with Ole old commander, Dick Edney, easily won the title, they defeated that of Trenton foursome in the afternoon and knocked off the Belleville entry in the evening by each time by convincing scores. The second game was close until the seventh end and with Belleville lying shot and well guarded on one side, Malcolm Lewold have tied the score, Mr. Edney with his last bowl ran the "jack" away to the ditch to count two and from then on in the rink was home free.

The district chairman, Horace Ormshaw of Trenton and the vice chairman, Ken Armstrong of Kingston, conducted the various events. A dance was given in the greens were in excellent condition despite the recent heavy rains and the play was exceptionally keen in all classes. The results of the draw were —

The funeral service of Michael Sako, who died suddenly in Fort Pierce, Florida, on Friday, July 3rd, was held on Tuesday, July 7th, in Roselle, New Jersey. Mr. Sako was cremated to the former Muriel Kathryn Perry of this city. Interment was at Roselle, N.J.

Corby Property Site of Three New Apartments

Construction of three apartment buildings with a total of 24 apartments on the Corby property in George and Victoria Streets is underway by Andscott Homes Ltd. of Belleville.

Foundations for construction of the three apartment structures, two with 11 apartments, and one with 12 units have already been taken out at city hall and preliminary work for the construction has been commenced. General contractors for the three apartment buildings is the firm of Grey of Port Credit, Ontario.

To make way for the new apartments, the present Corby residence will be taken down.

Plans call for the 12 unit apartment to face on William Street, while the two 11 unit structures on the same property will face on George Street. The building will be of two-and-a-half storey construction with basement apartments and two floors, completely above ground level.

On completion the grounds will be attractively landscaped with shrubbery and trees to be planted to provide private grounds for the apartments tenants.

Andscott Homes Ltd. is comprised of a group of Belleville businessmen.

Pleads Guilty To Possession Of Firearms

Pleading guilty to the possession of an unregistered firearm, Delia Bilma, Tenyo, was assessed $200 fine and $4 costs by Magistrate T. V. Hicks in the magistrate's court this morning. The Toronto woman was given one week to pay the fine and in default will serve two months in jail.

Miss Burns was arrested by provincial police several weeks ago following an auto accident on No. 401 highway northwest of the city. The car went out of control and turned over with police finding .22 revolver in the car.

The accused had been free on $2,000 bail prior to her court appearance this morning. She was represented in court by Fred Malone, QC of Toronto.

Both Miss Burns and a male companion in the car at the time of the accident were admitted to Belleville General Hospital for treatment of injuries. The man was later released to Bracebridge police, where he was wanted by police in that centre.

Delays Caused By Breakdowns Of Equipment

Apparently the sewer maintenance work which the Public Works Department has been engaged in during the past couple of months has stood them in good stead. City Engineer Malcolm Thompson reports that remarkably few calls were received concerning flooded basements during the exceedingly heavy rainfall of the past weekend. A considerable number of sewers were overloaded since the rainfall was much in excess of what sewers in this area are normally designed for.

Considerable delay in some work has been experienced by the department due to the breakdown of several vital pieces of equipment during the past ten days. Unfortunately the back-loader machine was struck by a vehicle and suffered considerable damage to its rear axle. Parts for the repair of this piece of equipment are now in Customs and it should be back in use shortly. The department grader suffered from a mechanical failure when the axle broke but this condition is being remedied.

An arrangement has been made with the Federal Department of Transport for the local Public Works Department to record rain and snow levels in this area. The local department will shortly install an electronically operated automatic recording machine, being supplied by the federal government, in their yard. Records will be kept locally as well as being submitted to Ottawa.

Two appointments are to be made within the department to fill the vacancy created by the recent transfer of the superintendent of works, Mr. Adam Stalker, to the City Clerk's office. These appointments will be announced shortly.

Painting of street-name and traffic signs continues and the hand of guard rails along the approaches to the various bridges in this city have also been painted. Weed control work is also continuing.

Chicory Can Be Controlled

Summers come and go, but some the month of July and in many parts of Ontario in fence rows are waste places, along water courses, and sometimes in spring grain will be seen the bright blue, attractive flowers of the chicory, reports the Field Crops Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. By noon the blossoms close and remain closed until the next morning.

Chicory, blue sailors, blue daisy, is a weed, as it is sometimes called, is a perennial with a long blue burr, or stickseed. Both these weeds have small flowers.

Frequent cutting or a short rotation of crops keeps this weed pretty well under control.

Effective control can be obtained chemically by spraying with 2,4-D, up to 6 ounces of acid per acre if in spring grain, or 8 to 12 ounces of acid if in non-crop areas.

Chicory if eaten in quantity by cows may impart a bitter flavor to the milk. Chicory roots in some countries are dried and roasted and used as a substitute for coffee.

Orange 'Walk' Will Be Held At Tweed

Belleville and other Hastings county district lodges will "walk" at Tweed this year where the big Orange celebration for the county is being held.

Saturday will be the big day for celebrants of the Battle of the Boyne with the 12th this year falling on Sunday.

The Tweed celebration is the only walk in the county this year and most Hastings lodges are expected to celebrate there. Other "walks" are said being held at Napanee, Peterborough and Port Hope.

Ottawa Model's Death June 19th To Be Probed

TORONTO (CP) — An inquest will be held into the mysterious death of a young model whose body was found in Ottawa's June 19 with a plastic bag tied about her neck.

First dismissed as suicide, the cause of death of 20-year-old Mrs. Lorena Joan de Marcy, 35, was decided by a coroner's jury, the Ontario attorney - general's department ordered Wednesday.

Herbert de Marcy, 35, an insurance company executive, told police he found his wife's body when he arrived home about 2 a.m. from a Toronto business trip. Earlier in the evening he had talked to her by phone from her parents' home here.

FAMILY CONCERNED

Pressure from the victim's family and friends caused the care to be reopened. Coroner John Cross had called the death a suicide but Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Kincaid of suburban Scarborough refused to believe their daughter took her own life.

"I just want all the true facts brought out," Mrs. Kincaid said Wednesday. "I am convinced my daughter did not commit suicide."

Mr. de Marcy said when he arrived home he had to break into his home. The doors were locked and the chain was on and the radio blaring, he said.

His favorite albino rabbit stew —was simmering on the stove. His wife promised during the telephone call she would it for him, he said.

HAD TIED AT NECK

The body was on the living room floor, a plastic bag pulled over the head and tied at the neck.

Mr. and Mrs. de Marcy moved to Ottawa 18 months ago and there she bought a modeling agency known as Finesse Studios. She had opened a branch in Cornwall and was to have gone to Kingston to open another branch.

Her husband said she seemed elated over the trip. They were married in August of 1957 while she was a student in Toronto.

BIRTHS

HANNAH — Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hannah, (nee Catherine Wells) Station Street, are proud to announce the birth of their son on Tuesday, July 7th, 1959, at the Belleville General Hospital.

Transport, Taxi Business Changes Hands

MADOC — Tanner's transport and taxi business which has been in the family for over 75 years, has been sold to the Toronto - Peterborough Transport Company, and oddly enough this company is owned by a family of Tanners.

Ben Tanner started the Tanner business as a horse-drawn stage route operating between Madoc and Belleville and Madoc and Ivanhoe.

Later, the business was taken over by Edward James Tanner and over 50 years ago Bateman Tanner became associated with the business which he operated until his death.

At one time a horse livery was run in connection with the business, but with the advent of the automobile, the business became mechanized.

Oak Lake Camp Busy Place for Sixty Boys

The Y.M.C.A. Day Camp at Oak Lake now echoes with the voices of sixty Belleville boys engaged in the many activities provided them at this location. Currently the campers, who have been split into groups of ten, are busily engaged in the construction of their group cook-outs and in building forts. As if this is were not enough to keep them busy, a bit of archery, swimming is extremely popular as well.

Sports and camping activities are arranged for the campers under the direction of Jack Bernhardt, physical education director of the local "Y", with the assistance of several of the older youths of the "Y". The camp is run under such names as the Yogi Bears, the Vikings, the Vultures, the Eagles, the Chipmunks, and the Tigers, vie with one another in the camp's sports program.

Monday, the first day of the camp for the local "Y", with the young people at indoor games due to the wet weather. The sun won the day at these activities.

Aerial Photos Being Used to Fix Assessments

TRENTON — Aerial photographs are assisting in finding out when additions were built to some of Trenton homes, J. Allan Smith, town assessor, said yesterday.

Mr. Smith said they know what year the photos were taken and it is quite easy to judge by the pictures when the addition was built or being built.

Field work in the re-assessing of the town will be completed in August, another three weeks with the exception of the industrial and commercial areas. For the residential areas three teams of two women have been working continuously for the past weeks in measuring and collecting data of each home in town. Mr. Smith said the teams have all reported excellent co-operation in most cases and have been treated very well at all the homes they have visited.

Following the receiving of the field report they must be calculated in the assessor's office and this being slower work is holding up the reassessing somewhat.

Mr. Smith said that in revaluating the commercial lands the following points are taken into consideration: (1) topography, (2) width of road or sidewalks, (3) type of paving, (4) street lighting, (5) sewer and water to unfavorable surroundings, (7) rentals on ground floors.

"In Trenton the assessment is based on a little under one-third of the present day fair value," Mr. Smith said. "and in some towns in Ontario they go over one-third and as high as one-half. In some town in northern Ontario land was assessed at actual present day value and not one complaint was regarded.

"However," he said, "a town has to have a certain ratio to operate and once equality is achieved then it doesn't matter what percentage of actual value is used, for then all property is assessed on an equal basis."

Kiwanians Enjoy Round of Golf, Good Banquet

TRENTON — Over 60 Kiwanians from Trenton and out of town attended the banquet at the Country Club Wednesday night to mark the end of the annual Kiwania Golf Tournament.

All during the day the Kiwanians played golf and the total scores were tabulated after the final rounds and suitable prizes were awarded. Trenton players capturing four of the five wins. Fire Chief Gerry Wright of Bath, Ontario was the only outside winner.

Hugh O'Neill—of Trenton took the top prize with a score of 175. Actual Kiwanians playing golf numbered 49 with 31 of these from out of town.

Prize winners were: Gary Baker, Trenton, low gross; Bob Farrell, Trenton, low net; Ted Hicks, Trenton, 2nd low gross; Gerry Wright, Bath, 2nd low net.

During the banquet Fred Freeman of Bath, who told the members they were the smallest club in district 6A that his club was holding a family picnic for all Kiwanians at the end of August. He said more information would be mailed out to the various clubs and that he hoped for a good turnout.

D. R. Nick Fraser president of the Trenton club acted as chairman for the night and presented the golfing prizewinners. With him at the head table was Kiwanian Lieut-Governor Charlie Smith of Kingston.

Following the banquet entertainment in the form of a floor show was provided. Judy McKnight of Belleville did two tap dancing numbers and one with baton. In the latter she has just recently won the championship of Ontario at the Hamilton contest. The "Zalacks" also presented several skits and brought the house down with "Space Girl".

Gets Four Years To Help Father

All-Star Cage Team to Meet Harlem Squad

TRENTON — "Basketball enthusiasts in this district can look forward with considerable anticipation to an outstanding basketball contest and exhibition game of basketball when the Trenton Community Gardens in the early fall.

The basketball basketball team from Trenton, Belleville, RCAF Station, Picton, and Marmora Paipair Depot is being organized and will practice all summer through the kind permission of Group Captain R. M. Cox, Commanding Officer, RCAF Station Trenton, at the Station Recreation Centre.

About the middle of September they will oppose the New York Harlem Satellites, a top-notch touring professional basketball group, which features many of the biggest names in basketball.

The Satellites are affiliated with the world-famous Harlem Globe Trotters and the names of their starting line-up, to be released in the near future, will be familiar to all basketball enthusiasts.

Ken Jeffery, himself an outstanding local basketballer, will organize, coach and manage the local basketballers, who are expected to give a good account of themselves against their more experienced opposition.

The floor of the Community Gardens will be converted into a basketball court. Seating accommodation for the occasion and one of the largest summer audiences in the Gardens began operations is expected.

Four Retiring 6RD Members Are Honored

TRENTON — The General Repair Unit of 6 Repair Depot recently held a party in the drill hall at the depot to honor four retiring members of the unit.

The retiring members—Flight Lieutenant E. Laroche, Mr. H. Chapman, Mr.-S. Hyde, and Mr. W. Casey were presented with mementos on behalf of their associates and thanked for their meritorious service to the depot by Commanding Officer, Group Captain, T. A. Sprusten, MBE, CD.

F/L. Laroche has served in the RCAF since 1939 and is well known in the Trenton area where he plans to take up civilian employment. F/L. Laroche will be residing in Belleville after his retirement.

Mr. Chapman's first connection with the military was with the Royal Navy during the First World War. After coming to Canada, he enlisted with the Canadian Air Force and served for three years. He re-enlisted in the RCAF in 1940 and was released in 1946, since that time he has been employed as a civil servant at the depot. Mr. Chapman will continue to reside in Trenton.

Mr. Hyde first became associated with the RCAF as a civilian employee in 1939. He has served at 6 Repair Depot since its formation. The depot has been a valued member of the sheet metal fabrication section on his retirement.

Mr. Casey served in the RCAF for four years during the Second World War. He joined the staff of 6 Repair Depot in 1946 and was employed as a metal worker until his retirement. Mr. Casey is living in Trenton on Parker, Ontario.

Members and their ladies and invited guests spent an enjoyable evening in paying tribute to their retiring associates.

RCAF Trenton Main Station For Departures

TRENTON — RCAF Station Trenton will become the main station for overseas departures it was announced by an air force official yesterday.

At present the departure station is at Lachine but with this station being closed down and the Transport Command moving to Trenton from there the departure point is established to move with it.

However it will not mean any appreciable increase in the strength of the RCAF here and the 2nd Air Command headquarters taken over from the Training Command for difference in strength will be so slight it will not be noticed.

The increase from time to time will be strictly transient and will only be a few days spread at a time and even that number will be very seldom. Once airmen are moved over seas the flow is kept steady and great increases in any one area is practised.

It is reported that there will be a considerable cut in Civil Service personnel at the air base and the layoffs have already been noted to date. Other civil servants are being transferred to the west coast Training Command.

The complete changeover, which has been going on for the past number of weeks, will take place on the 15th.

On Monday, July 13 an impressive ceremony will be held at South Station when the command of the station is turned over.

No Mention Of Payoff Heard Says Minister

TORONTO (CP)—An Anglican minister said Wednesday he had no recollection of a payoff being mentioned at a meeting between a councillor and a real estate agent he attended in a parked car in a secluded mid-town ravine.

Canon A. J. Jackson of St. Hilda's Church was giving evidence at a government-ordered inquiry into suburban York Township land transactions.

Real estate agent Arthur Potter, a former township police officer, at an earlier hearing alleged he had been asked by Deputy Reeve Fred Howard for a bribe to help him get a building permit. He said the bribe was mentioned at a meeting between the two men and Canon Jackson.

Howard, director of information and stewardship for the Anglican Church of Canada, said his impression was that the meeting last April 15 arranged because of Howard involving both men which Mr. Howard thought may have hurt Mr. Potter's business.

Questioned by Judge Joseph Sweet of Hamilton about such a meeting in the car, Canon Jackson said:

"I think Howard) wanted to compose a good relationship between him and Potter. It was out of what Mr. Porter might say at the inquiry . . . he was concerned about it. I would say he wanted to definitely avoid any reason for Mr. Porter being annoyed with him."

Lord Altrincham Just Having "Little Fun"

LONDON (AP)—Lord Altrincham today suggested that the United States join the Commonwealth.

"From the way Chicago greeted his Queen," he said in an interview, "I can't see that American republicanism is terrible."

His lordship is the 35-year-old peer who stirred blood and pretzures two years ago by criticizing the monarchy. He said, among other things, that some of the Queen's speeches sounded as though his former job was to be a pierglish schoolgirl.

Altrincham says he once the United States broke from the Commonwealth, "we'd have to take British out of the name. Otherwise we'd raise people's blood pressure in the states."

He said any union of democratic, English-speaking countries would be irresistible. "The biggest, best and richest of them all —the United States."

He said the headquarters of the new Commonwealth should be anywhere besides Washington or London.

"I don't think the Afro-Asian countries would accept either of them," he added.

THOUGHT GOOD IDEA

Altrincham said he's spoken to a few Canadians about joining the Commonwealth, "and they thought it a very good idea.

"For heaven's sake," he added, "the American revolution was such a very long time ago."

The peer is editor of the 76-year-old monthly National Review, a magazine of comment. He has run for Parliament twice and lost both times.

THE BUILDING OF A NATION

The recent visit to this city of Mr. Zeev Ladror of Israel served to point out a few more things to us than a visitor's view of Canada and our way of life. We were particularly flattered by this delightful gentleman's description of Israel's way of life and the present phase it is going through in its determination to be a stable and democratic nation.

If we were to simplify Mr. Ladror's remarks in determining what the essential ingredients are to make a nation we would list two items -- faith and sacrifice. The first can be fairly easily explained. It is the deep faith of the people concerned that they are going to build a nation which will be on a par with any other nation in the world community.

The second item -- sacrifice -- may be a bit more difficult to explain, especially to people of North America, many of whom seem to think that all good things should come to them naturally and with little or no effort.

In Israel, we are told, the standard of living is deliberately kept low so that the nation's economy can be developed in a stable pattern. We were reminded of the austerity program which citizens in the United Kingdom experienced after the Second World War when they were engaged in building up their economy. Just as British industry was geared to the export markets just a few years ago (and still is to a certain extent) the industries of Israel today are similarly designed.

The best products of this new nation, (it is but ten years old), are for "export only." The people go without some of the luxuries of life and also settle for "second best" on many of the essentials because they believe it is best in the long run. As Mr. Ladror commented, "If I find a poor grade of orange juice on the table I know that the best is being exported . . . and this is actually good for me."

Israel looks to Canada as a guide towards the development of a democratic nation. This gives us a definite sense of pride that our political system is held in such esteem abroad. It also makes us feel better to know that there is being built in one of the most controversial areas of the world today a nation which firmly embraces the democratic way of life.

But just as Israel is learning something from Canada, we feel that the Israelis have a quality which Canadians might be the better for by taking it to heart. That quality is free sacrifice for the benefit of the country. Certainly Canada requires more markets abroad to develop her industries and provide jobs for us, our industries look to the home consumer market for their major source of revenue. We have only some 18 million people and naturally this is going to limit our industrial expansion. Foreign markets are our best hope of building up our manufacturing industries. Canadians must be prepared to be content to take second best of our industries' output and endure a lower standard of living for a while so that our industries could compete on the world market with those of other nations?

We feel that our country's economy would develop much better if this could be the case and would, in the long run, contribute more to the nation's prosperity than an economy based upon production for a high level of living in a limited consumer market.

As we have simplified: There are two ingredients in the building of a nation -- faith and sacrifice. History has borne out the value of these ingredients. The Germany of Bismarck, the British Commonwealth, the France of de Gaulle, the United States of the last century, the USSR of the past 40 years . . . all used these ingredients although sometimes they have been flavored with militarism, jingoism and suppression of a class instead of freedom, individual. initiative, and the courage and determination of a people. We look forward to the building of two great nations in the world community of the future - Israel, and our own Canada.

NOW - - "LIMITED NUCLEAR WAR"

Thomas E. Murray, consultant to the U. S. joint congressional committee on atomic energy, says the U.S. should prepare for a limited nuclear war, "a war that is coming." We now have a new entrant in the war classification field. There was Hitler's "total war," the new "brush-fire" wars which have been pictured as the alternative to all-out nuclear war and now we have the "limited nuclear war." The only limited nuclear war which we shall consider to be staying within acceptable limits is one which is limited to Mr. Murray's imagination.

You vowed to be cheerful;
The test is the moral.
Are you smiling this morning
Or moody and glum?

You vowed you'd endeavor
To spread smiles around.
What was it? Cold coffee?
I heard that you frowned.

You vowed to be patient;
Come now and confess,
Had she used your razor
To rip up a dress?

You vowed you'd oblige,
Yet you growled overmuch
At the friend who came in
Just to make a small "touch."

Oh, these are the tests
That our good resolves end.
Come on and confess,
How about it, my friend?

First Cash Register

New York Times

Man's memory seems to be so short that inevitably we forget, in the excitement about today's what yesterday was like. Primitive man, soon after he had developed the first wheel or the first crude boat and learned joyfully how much both of them had simplified his life and extended his horizons, probably soon forgot what life was like without the wheel or the boat. So it is with succeeding ages, even up to our own. If we have any comment at all to make on the flood of mechanical improvements that add convenience to our leisure, it is generally to ask how we could ever possibly have lived without air-conditioning, without television, without jet airliners. Soon, as the recollection of days without air-conditioners, television sets or jet planes fades into the closed storehouses of our memory, we no longer even ask such questions. Because that is something we assume, because they are rarely told otherwise, that life was always thus.

Fortunately, some institutions within our society do attempt to leaven this static and oncoming indifference by displaying, for all to see, the first examples of the machines that have since become slick and streamlined, machines that have been refined from the they work with marvelous efficiency. At a recent exhibition at the nation's favorite museum of this kind, the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, the first cash register has joined the first typewriter, the first sewing machine and the first of a long series of other modern-day machines. The cluttered machine, close by the Capitol thus becomes that much more cluttered. But the wide-eyed youngster who insists that Mother take him to the Smithsonian on the family's itinerary when they go on their visit this summer to Washington will be richly rewarded. He will see vivid proof that life is a series of improvements that have been brought home by the long struggles of dedicated men. And perhaps he will be inspired to the effect further improvements by the same struggle in the years to come.

The youngster who delves into the tales behind the machines that he sees at the Smithsonian cannot help but be inspired. The story of inventions, as we read in a fascinating new book by Joachim G. Leithauser titled "Inventions' Progress," is one "of clever, perspicacious, bold inventors who emerged victorious from accidental fresh battles with human conservatism and stupidity; a story full of work and sacrifice, genius and error, ambition and selfishness, luck, accident, and disappointment, of the world's gratitude or of his contemporaries that he sold the rights to it for less than $1,000. Yet in time the device or invention so common as to be found in every shop on the block and in nearly on our own block but on blocks in more than 100 countries across the globe.

* * *

Why should this first cash register be so honored with space in the crowded Smithsonian? Because it is one of the devices that have given birth to industries that dominate the world. For modern office machines are derived or adapted from James Ritty's device which he developed only to discover, unfortunately, that the hapless business man no longer would be prey to unscrupulous clerks whose hands were in his cash box every time he left the store. Today it is difficult to conceive of modern life without its office machines. Every year our incomes space or stamp out disease, but mountains of paperwork stem from burying us, and they are being honored when the first cash register makes it way into the Smithsonian.

India's Huge Dairy Farm

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Ontario may think it has problems with its 30 dairy farms, but the world's largest dairy can be found not here but in India on the outskirts of Bombay — oh yes, and it is buffalo.

Some 500,000 bottles of fresh, pasteurized buffalo milk are distributed each day to 120,000 persons in the seaport city.

Behind the city's dairy units house 15,000 cattle in a parklike setting with tree-lined roads and picnic grounds, forming a popular tourist attraction. In the 10 years of its operation, the 3,500-acre colony, blending state and private enterprises, has earned a reputation as representing one of the most successful attempts at large-scale cattle colonization in Asia.

When the plan was launched, Bombay's milk supply was contaminated and irregular and expensive. Cattle were kept in congested and insanitary stables in the city, and the annual hundreds of calves starved to death.

In a bold experiment, the Bombay government decided to set up the cattle colony at Aarey, 20 miles north of the city and sandwiched between the Arabian Sea and a lagoon. The state built the farm units and erected a modern mechanized pasteurizing and bottling plant and invited private owners to move their cattle out of the city.

Today, the owners pay rent to the government but are responsible for feeding and management of herds. All milk is sold to the government on a cost-plus-profit basis and all processed in the central dairy.

The Aarey colony now is running at 80 per cent from one to a hundred thousand gallons a day. The dairy also supplies milk to 300 hospitals and institutions and it is given free to 72,000 undernourished school children.

So India strides ahead to meet the needs of its teeming millions — a staggering task. But India moves ahead.

SCARS

Wherever there is a wound there is left a scar. I wonder if these scars were meant by our Creator as reminders to be kind and gentle, as well as to take care that no one else is to be marked by a scar that we have caused.

Often these scars are marks of valor,—red badges of courage. They are to be looked on many a Freedom! Such a soldier is proudest of the physical scars than the Medals of Honor he has received.

If you will hole the faces of people, you see there many a brave mark, though perhaps in invisible. How deeply great are the scars that distinguished the face of Abraham Lincoln! The scars upon the feet of Christ and upon the hands that nailed Him to the Cross will never be effaced. Those scars signify His and universal brotherhood. See it is to recall that many a scar leaves in its mark from anger and misunderstanding. I note scars upon the bark of many great trees in my home grounds, scars that will take years to mend — and then still others.

There are those who share great books, have loved the finer nature and works of art. Those who do this have never been inside to see if they could feel what the artist felt when he created them. Those who have found beauty first have its feel and its warmth inside. A beautifully bound book is a real Gothic, a joy forever"! So many books have been behind them careless handlers. Starfish Eat Oysters

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

Those starfish found occasionally by visitors on the New Brunswick beaches on summer afternoons do not have the appearance of dangerous pests that could threaten an industry. Yet they do. Lorne Lloyd Shell, Fish Farmers' Association says each is capable of eating $15 to $20 worth of oysters in a year.

The association contends that an infestation of "millions" of starfish is threatening to ruin the multi-million-dollar oyster industry of Long Island Sound. It is seeking a Federal expenditure of $500,000 this year, and $50,000 a year thereafter for four more years for the development of techniques to rid the area of starfish.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A doctor with whom I go fishing -on likely looking evenings from six to nine was not ready to leave for the river. He was sat down on the hatrack in the hall to wait for me.

I struck! Ah, yes. You wouldn't know what that is. It is an article of furniture that is very popular back in the days when the vestibule was built for only the function of man was to be comfortable and sensible. The hatrack stood either in the vestibule or the front hall. It consisted of a set of hooks, usually golden oak like a hope chest, and a tall mirror rising from it. On either side of the tall mirror projected bronze hooks for hanging hats and coats. The more stylish hatracks also had an umbrella stand on one side of the box that was for accommodating galoshes, rubbers and boots.

Well, while I was sitting on the hatrack I noticed my host had bored through the closed doors of the doctor's office, the shrill voice of a woman raised in angry upbraiding to with the familiar, low, placid, voice of the doctor.

Presently, out came a woman, her two children and her angry face. She flounced past me and slammed the doctor's front door. "What," I enquired, "is the matter with her?"

"Oh," said the doctor, taking his old fishing hat down off the hook, "she's just one of those unfortunate women who has no other means of attracting attention except by being unpleasant."

And we went out and caught ten trout each.

Both teams fielded exceptionally well, Mordey of the local team got one of the finest catches of the day. The same boy also starred by batting in the fourth inning when he connected with a lovely two-bagger. Then the next batter came across with the necessary tape and netted five runs in the inning. Weir at shortstop played a nice game. Gerow was injured early in the game, but played a steady game throughout. Centre fielder Ross accepted five or six chances without a miss and also punished the borehide for a nice three-bagger. Gouper and Mills were right there and handled their whole team by their fine work. Pringle and Wallace did the the coaching and handled quite a bit of the game just right. To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

TUBAL LIGATION PREVENTS PARENTHOOD FOR BOTH SEXES

"Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor has suggested that since I have had four children and have undergone my own life and the baby's each time, that I should have a tubal ligation.

"I wish you would tell me how this operation is performed afterward, and would there be painful menstruation?

"Also is there no way in the future that, if my health should become better, they could put a valve on the tubes so as to close it instead? Does this absolutely mean no more children ever?"

I have been astonished at the number of inquiries I have received on this subject. Several times I've made brief comments in passing but the questions keep coming in, so let's discuss it more fully. It seems evident that ligation of the fallopian tubes just isn't thoroughly understood.

The procedure is relatively simple, but the results are quite positive. In ligating the fallopian tubes are tied so that nothing can pass through — meaning, of course, that an ovum, or egg, cannot pass through. Sometimes a section of the tube itself is removed to make absolutely certain of this. In either case, tying (or ligating) the tube which carries the egg prevents what is done to a man. Either way, the result is the same: The man (or woman) cannot have any more children.

Effect on health? None.

Effect on menstruation. None.

Effect on the mind, simply knowing that you cannot have any more children: That depends on the person involved. Depending on circumstances, it may make you feel safer, or it may make you feel sadder. You change your mind, but then it's too late. Either way, there is no emotional aftermath at all. This you must decide for yourself, on the basis of your conscience and your own circumstances.

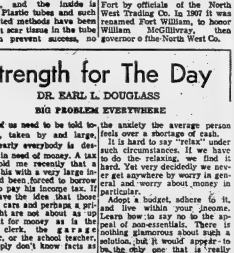
I speak, of course, from the health aspect only. Some churches frown upon such things. That aspect is up to you and your faith.

HEART VALVES, DIFFERENT

A "valve," or "insert" is not practicable, for the valve is a different sort of thing. So give up any thought of that.

It is true that in some instances the tying of the tubes has been "undone," but it is a complicated and time consuming operation. The outside of the tube must be cut, one of a pencil, and the inside is smaller. Plastic tubes and such complicated methods have been tried, but scar tissue in the tube itself can prevent success, no matter how skillful the surgery. Those circumstances in which ligation may be considered desirable or necessary, and it does not impair the child. But I feel strongly that no one should have it done without understanding the facts and accepting ligation on the understanding that it is to be permanent.

My remarks are based in large on letters from women who have had the ligation done and afterward after years itself could become mistaken for epilepsy — not all, but



No to both questions. You obviously are worrying, but you have no concern.

FORT WILLIAM, ONTARIO

The French Explorers, Radisson and Groseilliers, were the first white men to be connected with this region. De Dulhut, founder of Duluth, established a fort and trading post there in 1678, but it was later abandoned when the French concentrated their forces in Eastern Canada as a defensive measure. It was then known as the Kaministiquia River, and remained the name until around 1820 when it was renamed Fort William, after the governor of the North West Trading Co. In 1907 it was renamed Fort William, to honor William McGillivray, then governor o the North West Co.

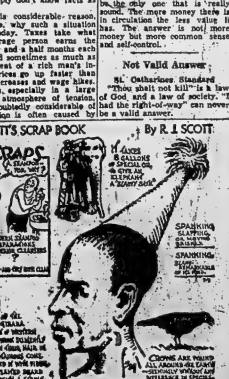
Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

BIG PROBLEM EVERYWHERE

None of us need to be told today that, taken by and large, pretty nearly everybody is desperately in need of money. A tax expert said the average decent client of his with a very large income had been forced to borrow money in the past decade. As people have the idea that those in the stars and perhaps a private yacht are not about as up against it for money as is the grocery clerk, the truck or mechanic, or the school teacher, they simply don't realize how they are.

There is considerable reason of course, why such a situation exists today. Taxes take what was formerly considered the first four and a half months each year. Inflation has taken almost 97 per cent of a rich man's income. Prices go up faster than wages. Everybody knows all this. One feels, especially in a large city, an atmosphere of tension and, undoubtedly considerable of this tension is often caused by the anxiety the average person feels over his financial state.



It is hard to say "relax" under such circumstances. We have to do the relaxing, we find it hard. Yet very decidedly we never get anywhere by worry in general and worry about money in particular.

Adopt a budget, adhere to it, and live within your income. The way to say to do the biggest of non-essentials. There is a definite connection, such a solution, but it would appear to be the only one that is really going to help. Worry about facts in circulation the less value it has. The less we worry about money but more common sense and self-control.

Adenauer Gives U.K. Forerm Office Moments of Anxiety

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

That craggy Gibraltar of a statesman, Konrad Adenauer, is giving Britain's foreign office a few moments of anxiety.

At a time when British diplomats are scouting what is described as qualified optimism about the prospects of a summit meeting, the doughty old West German chancellor continues to express distrust of British-Soviet negotiations.

Despite recent quiet efforts to convince the 83-year - old Adenauer that Britain's diplomatic flexibility on the German question is not exactly the same thing as selling out to the Russians, the chancellor remains as unbending as ever.

His intransigent attitude, which some British officials describe as "obsessional," disturbs the foreign office in its otherwise serene approach to a summit meeting.

SEE SUMMIT

Broadly, the feeling here is that the resumption of the Big Four foreign ministers' talks in Geneva next week will set the stage for a top-level meeting, perhaps in August or September.

Adenauer also has caused pain and surprise in Whitehall by harping on the theme that the British people as a whole are hostile to the West Germans.

Such charges cause bewilderment in London. Officially it is felt that Britons are more or less indifferent to the Germans. If there is any hostility, it is confined to a fairly small minority. Britons are too busy to worry about such things.

Adenauer's reiteration of the rather weary complaint against Britain is believed to be causing embarrassment to his own officials, who are urging the chancellor to accept an invitation to visit London in hopes of patching the quarrel. So far, Adenauer has not indicated he will go.

It is said that Prime Minister Macmillan, confronted with an example of some particularly unyielding obstinacy by President de Gaulle of France, has occasionally shaken his head and says: "Good old Charles!"

If the case of Adenauer, he must assure may be wearing a little thin.

SERIES OF DISASTERS

It was Denmark's second tarrible disaster within six months and the second disastrous fire in Scandinavia in three weeks.

In January the Danish steamer-cargo liner Hans Hedtoft on an iceberg south of Greenland and vanished without trace. Nine-five persons died.

On June 23 fire swept a tourist hotel in Skabelon, Norway, killing 25 persons, including three Canadians.

Thousands of sunbathers along the shore of Hadeby Park Lake at Copenhagen had walked around to catch fire within seconds. The screams of the panicgers, many of them women and children, could be heard.

Some jumped overboard with their clothes afire.

SMALL BOATFULLS

Rowboats and other pleasure craft in the lake raced to the scene. One 8-year - old man saved 15 people in his rowboat. Three teen-aged girls from a nearby 4-H school rowed across the 6-yard-wide lake and rescued six persons.

One vessel capsized when about 30 desperate, screaming women and children tried to climb aboard.

Some survivors said that just before the explosion a makeshift gas line had been put in operation to replace a line that had become blocked. But there was no immediate official explanation of the explosion in the engine room.

Jobless Bill Passes Senate With Criticism

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's controversial unemployment insurance legislation was passed by the Senate Wednesday night, but only after a renewal of opposition criticism.

It was given third reading "on division," the Liberals employing this tactic to register opposition without the necessity of a formal vote. The bill was passed earlier by the Commons.

One of the main Liberal criticisms was that the Progressive Conservatives "raided" the unemployment insurance fund to provide seasonal benefits from 15 to jobless who did not come within the ambit of the fund, and did not replenish it from general government revenues.

WRONG USE CHARGED

Senator W. Ross Macdonald, opposition leader, said the money in the fund was held by the government in sacred trust to look after unemployed people who contributed to it. Yet it had improperly withdrawn money from the fund for seasonal unemployment benefits.

The fund had been depleted in two years of high unemployment from a high of some $900,000,000 in 1956 to about $432,000,000 today.

The government's amendments increase employee-employer contributions to the fund by 30 per cent and add two categories of higher-paid workers who may benefit from it when they are without jobs.

Old Age Kills Banana-Eating Giant Beetle

NEW YORK (AP — Goliathus, an African beetle who charmed museum visitors not only by his size—4½ inches long—but also by his eating habits (he peeled his own bananas), died of old age Wednesday at the Alberic Museum of Natural History.

The bug used his "horns" and "mouth" to peel a banana. He also liked pears, mangoes and tomatoes, very ripe.

Experts guessed his age at death at about seven months, contrasted with the normal life span of the beetle at about two months.

Stampede Finery Polished Up For Queen's Visit

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary, its stampede finery polished — little more this year than usual, today awaited excitedly for the Queen.

And if she doesn't oversteer her visit schedule at least in one instance, nearly all the 330,000 residents of Greater Calgary will be disappointed.

The Queen and prince are due at 10:45 a.m. Mrt (7 a.m. EDT) by Comet airliner from Edmonton. They then will be introduced to the Old West as Calgary portrays it every July.

Railway Union Retains Control By Court Order

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) has retained control of canal labor on the Canadian side of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Ontario Court of Appeal under Mr. Justice Wilfred Roach Wednesday threw out an application by the Seafarers' International Union for an order to prevent certification of the brotherhood by the Canada Labor Relations Board.

In a representation vote July 3-4, the 910 canal employees decisively named the 40,000-member brotherhood to bargain for them in dealing with Canada's St. Lawrence Seaway Authority.

The brotherhood's win over the seaway is another stage of the battle raging between it and the 10,000 - member Seafarer's Union on the east's inland waterway and on the west coast.

FINDS GOOD FAITH

In the appeal Wednesday, Mr. Justice Roach ruled the Labor Relations Board acted in good faith when it accepted the brotherhood's application to be bargaining agent.

The board chose the brotherhood over the Seafarers' and the Dominion Canal Employees Association on the grounds that it had the majority of eligible employees listed in its membership.

An earlier appeal by the Seafarers to prevent canal workers from voting on whether they wanted to be represented by the brotherhood was quashed in the Ontario Supreme Court.

About 645 of the 910 eligible employees, key canal workers from Montreal all the way up the waterway, voted for the brotherhood. The SIU was not on the ballot.

Bellevue Park, where hundreds of school children and their parents swelled.

The Soo's nine-year-old Harmony quadruplets, who had been getting most of the attention of photographers during the waiting period, quietly lined up their white and pink dresses and stood before the Queen to present flowers.

Jenifer Ann made the presentation, with Joyce Carol, Janice Barbara and Joan Diane morally supporting her.

All the girls seemed calm enough, but inside they were excited to survey many of the Queen's questions, and all Jenifer would say afterward, when asked how she felt, was "happy."

Then, in what seemed a spontaneous gesture when everyone seemed to be expecting them to leave, the Queen and prince left the park band shell and walked across the few feet of grass separating them from the hundreds of other children.

Scores of girl guides and brownies were in the front rows, some of them from as far away as Elliot Lake—the new town 100 miles distant which has been named for the Ontario uranium mines as a centre of the uranium industry.

cut-price gasoline to branded stations as well as the independent, unbranded outlets."

CUT OF 5

At least three major oil companies had been selling gas to independent operators as much as 5 cents below the price to dealers under consignment to the companies.

The resulting war saw prices drop from 43.9 cents a gallon to as low as 37.9 cents.

In the lockup which began Tuesday, reports from oil companies indicated only about 500 to 600 of the 1,200 Metro dealers closed up. Mr. Langdon claimed the strike was 75 per cent effective.

Striking operators acknowledged privately the strike failed because so many outlets remained open, some selling gas at generally higher prices, and also because of the shortage of pickets.

FLYING SQUADS

The strikers resorted to flying squads of pickets Wednesday and an Imperial Oil dealer in suburban Scarborough said about 80 pickets smashed bottles in his driveways and jammed their cars around his pumps.

Police warned that attempts to intimidate any operators would result in prompt arrests. Mr. Langdon issued a non-violence edict.

Motorists had little trouble getting gas and regular gasoline was generally sold at 32.9 cents a gallon.

OU companies declined to meet the association, which represents 39 per cent of the dealers, and claimed the setting of prices would violate the federal Government Combines Act.

ON 18 MONTHS

The Toronto price war has raged sporadically for about 18 months. Texaco, British American and Fina have been blamed by the association for selling cheaper gas to the independents.

A BA spokesman said there had been a world surplus of crude oil and a domestic surplus of refining capacity, meaning there are large stocks of gasoline in Canada.

He said the independent operator has always been able to buy gas cheaper as a franchised operators who are involved in expensive national advertising campaigns.

The franchised dealers claim this practice started the price war which reduced their profits to four cents a gallon from eight cents.

work," he said during debate on his department's spending estimates.

Mr. Pearson said the growing integration of Canadian and U.S. defences is a far cry from talk a few years ago by Progressive Conservatives about "freeing our defence policy from the overpowering control of the U.S."

On defence production sharing, he said it won't get very far if most of the sharing is restricted for Canadian industry to sub-contracts or minor contracts. Canadian industry could not survive as a mere adjunct to U.S. industry.

During the debate, both CCF and government-supporting Progressive Conservative speakers urged dispersal of defence production industries from Central Canada.

Mr. O'Hurley said everything possible is being done to make purchases in other areas.

Mr. Pearson said Canada and the United States should abolish tariffs on defence materials.

He also advocated assignment by the NATO alliance of specific defence production jobs to each country, with an agreement that one would not enter into another's field and disbande its industry.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) said it should be government policy to divert contracts to those areas that have not shared in the concentration of industry as in Central Canada. The government should have a long-range plan for Canada as a whole.

Women's Activities

SPRINGBROOK W.A.

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent on Thursday in the basement of Springbrook United Church when the members of the Woman's Association met for their regular meeting. A good attendance was present as each member had invited a guest. The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Gerald Broadworth and Mrs. Ralph Wellman.

With the president, Mrs. Carman Silva, in the chair, a hearty welcome was extended to all.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Irene Bailey, using as a theme "Reconciliation." The Scripture, taken from Matthew 5: 17-24, was read by Mrs. Percy Mumby. Psalm 19 was sung in unison. A prayer for the missionary, Miss Gwen Bell, was led by Mrs. Bearss. The lesson thoughts were read by Mrs. Bailey.

The members repeated 41 cards sent out and 43 calls made, and the secretary's report was read and paid still.

Mrs. Reg McKeown reporting for the June Volunteers visitors, told of 18 calls made on the sick and shut-ins. Also of the volunteers will be Mrs. Lorne Bailey and Mrs. Charlie Gordanier.

The financial summary of the potluck supper was given by the treasurer, Mrs. Frank Cooley, with the proceeds to be given in aid of the resolution for Quinte-Mo-Lac at Lake.

A short business period followed, with reports of the W. A. convention held at Bridge St., Belleville, on May 5. This was given, with Mrs. Edward Bateman reporting for the morning session in the absence of Mrs. George Thompson, while Mrs. Bert McCoy reported for the afternoon session. These reports were both interesting and instructive.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Sine presented Mrs. Gwenvin Middleton of Marmora, a past president of the Bellebrook W.A., guest speaker for the afternoon, who told of her busy life and attending "Five Cents." Mrs. Middleton's talk was much enjoyed by all.

Miss Sine presented her with a gift in appreciation.

A short program followed, of which Mrs. Delbert Flemming was in charge. Mrs. T. Hall sang "Percy Mumby and Mrs. John McKeown, Mrs. Ralph Wellman and Mrs. Bateman played a piano duet, "Children's Day" at the school house on July 2nd, sponsored by River Valley Women's Institute.

Forty-three people, including two men, enjoyed the hot pot luck dinner in the school kitchen while the others arrived in time for the afternoon program.

Conveners were Mrs. Percy Ullman, Mrs. Ross Grierson, Mrs. Kenneth Myers and Mrs. Glenn Hawbaker.

The program commenced at 2 p.m. with Mrs. Roy Tucker in charge. The president, Mrs. Percy Ralph Usman. The roll call was answered with an encouraging health hint. Fifteen members and five visitors were in attendance. Mrs. R. Greenley, Trent River, secretary of Havelock W. I. was formally introduced.

GIVE TREASURER'S REPORT

Mrs. George Heasman gave the treasurer's report stating after all bills were paid a balance of approximately - $40. was on hand. The net proceeds from the district auction dinner amounted to $17.

A letter from Mrs. Gordon Maynard, secretary - treasurer of R.F.D.O., was read. It said in part: "A former member is one who joins a branch at the time it is organized, but who also by no longer pays her fees to the branch, she has forfeited her right to be called a former member." A letter from Miss Helen Bradley, Wagner Hill, on the extension branch, stated correspondence regarding the extension would be on file for Miss Ethel Chapman who will return to Ontario in September 1st. after her trip to Edinburgh, Scotland. The summer issue of "Home and Country" was distributed.

In the name of Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis was chosen to be a member of the Hastings' Historical Society and the fee of $1 yearly.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Belleville, read a poem she had written and an article regarding this department's work. Mrs. Clare Read read over radio station C.J.B.Q. on June 29th.

In a message from Mrs. N. Coombs, Abbott Leigh W. I. in England, it was noted that the choir group won a gold, two silver and a green star in their competition at Frome Secondary Modern School on May 2nd. The annual competition is sponsored by Somerset Federation of Women's Institutes.

Mrs. Roy Bush in her A.C.W.W. message said "Homes are being painted and thus rural women join hands in intensive work". There are 6,000,000 A.C.W.W. members from 140 constituent societies, women of all races, colors, creeds, united and striving for a better mutual understanding.

MAP OUT NEEDS

In the business period it was decided the building committee map out all that is needed to complete the kitchen and then suggest what is most important to accomplish each year. The varnishing will be done in the basement of the auditorium. Plans were completed for catering at Hoards Livestock Sales on July 20th. The souvenir spoons were displayed and several were sold. These are to commemorate the visit of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II to Canada. Her picture is on the handle and the bowl is suitably inscribed.

Mrs. Percy Usman opened the program. Mrs. Kenneth Myers filled an article written by "The Observer" based on the poem, "Land of Our Birth," by Albert Hall, believe that freedom lies only in the heart and that there is no greater wealth than that of mind and soul. "Patriotism is not such a matter of saluting a flag as it is of dedicating yourself to the principles your flag stands for." We must build for generations to come and remember that "Noble ideals ever see visions," she said. Miss Ellis read the first two articles entitled, "My City Friend," and a "Health Prayer."

An interesting letter from Miss Jo-anne Heasman written to her parents was read. It described her trip to England by plane and said the English people are "great". She enjoyed the Danforth Songsters of the Salvation Army Corps. They have sung twice in Albert Hall. The institute provided $8. for prizes and treats for the school children.

17 ENTRIES

There were 17 entries in the school competitions which were posters on conservation, grades 1 and 2, grades 3 and 4, grades 5 and 6, and creative art for the other grades.

The first prize posters were displayed on the blackboard and were awarded as follows: grade 1 — Stanley Morrow; grade 2 — George Tucker; grade 3 — George Tucker; grade 4 — Allen Carr; grades 5 and 6 — Kenneth Morrow, Jr. and 8 — Lois Morrow. All those who made posters were awarded a bag of popcorn and candy. The prizes were donated by Mrs. Ross Heasman and Mrs. Kenneth Myers.

Ribbons were played on the school lawn with all the smaller grade children taking part in a program of games and other races. On the south lawn the kicking shoe contest for girls was held. Carr for grades 5 and 6; Bob Hanna for grades 7 and 8 and Hanna for grades 3 and 4 for the girls; that group. Frances Sager and Alice De Bruyn were awarded in the musical song contest.

The institute members expressed appreciation thanks to the conveners for making children's day a success.

The August meeting will be based on current events and will be held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Morrow.

Mrs. Pridham, Family Given Farewell Party

WOOLER — A farewell party was sponsored for Mrs. Pridham and daughters, on Thursday evening.

Wm. Mc. Edward Nelson as chairman and Mrs. A. G. Austin at the piano many favorites were sung and lovely numbers were given, by the chairman in his absence.

The Junior choir favored with a motion song. A reading by Mrs. Gordon Churchill; a speech by Harold Haggarty, and a vocal by Miss Leila McColl.

Mrs. G. Austin read an address followed by the presentation of gifts by Messrs. Lorne Richards and Harold Haggarty.

Mrs. Pridham graciously expressed her thanks.

Wedding

HUTT — MITZ

Bridal roses, blue delphenium, mingled with baby's breath, and orange lilies, and interspersed with ferns, formed a lovely setting on Saturday, July 4, in Bethel United Church, Wooler, when a very pretty double-ring wedding when Ellen Joan Mitz, of Wooler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mitz, became the bride of Ronald Lawrence Hutt, Tweed, foster son of Mrs. George Painsteer of Tweed. The Reverend Wm. Edgar Bateman officiated. He assisted the Reverend R. Stobbart in the ceremony.

Mr. Llard Morton o Kingston, and the bride's younger brother, Clifford Mitz, played the wedding music. Mr. Edward Reynolds, of Wooler, sang "Because", during the ceremony, "Because", and during the signing of the register "I'll Walk Beside You".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride, who is a tall girl, was radiant in a bridal gown of white embroidered net over taffeta. The bodice was fashioned long, sheath-like sleeves, illusion neckline and a chapel length skirt of tiered net. She wore a shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion, held in place by a crusted satin crown, and carried a cascade bouquet of red Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Glen Belcour, of Toronto, as matron of honor attended the bride, gowned in Swiss dotted organza, over taffeta, featuring pant skirt in ballerina-length. Miss Lee Watson, also of Toronto, as bridesmaid, wore Swiss dotted organdy in green. Both wore matching headdresses of flowers with seed pearls and carried bouquets of yellow rosebuds, encircled by white and mauve mums.

Little Peggy Anne Palmateer, of Tweed, as flower girl, was frocked in white silk embroidered with pastel pink rosebuds, with wide green sash, and floral headdress, and carrying a tiny basket of white Shasta daisies and baby mums.

Mr. Larry Mitz, brother of the bride, was groomsman, while Messrs. Douglas Lynn, of Tweed, and Wayne Shaw of Ivanhoe, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony the reception was held in the church parlors of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Ivanhoe, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a beige printed linen sheath misted with beige organza, beige accessories and feather hat, with corsage of orchids. The bridegroom's mother also assisted, attired in white polished poplin printed with blue flowers, white hat and accessories, and white rose corsage.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask, centred by a tiered all-white wedding cake, flanked by candelabra finished by pink candles in silver candelabra, bowls of sweet-peas and gypsophelia.

For the wedding trip to Lake Simcoe, where the happy couple will holiday for a week at a cottage, the bride donned a blue linen sheath, with empire waistline, while sailor hat, white accessories, and corsage of white roses. They will reside at 154½ Wellington Street, Welland, Ontario.

Out-of-town guests attended from Ottawa; Kingston; Bancroft; Toronto; Bancroft; Stirling; Foxboro; Peterborough and Monkstburg.

George Williams favored with a solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Sine.

The president expressed appreciation at the great response of packages of clothing for the bale for "Overseas Relief."

The collection for the day amounted to $3.77.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses and their assistants, and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

The August hostesses will be Mrs. Kenneth Thompson and Mrs. Ralph Thompson.

Women May Be Answer To Shortage of Dentists

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba men who quiver at the sight of a dentist's drill soon may have to get on a braver front.

There's a shortage of dentists in the province, and Dr. J. W. Neilson, dean of dentistry at the University of Manitoba, says women may be the answer.

"A few years ago women found it difficult to get through the dentistry course," he said in an interview. "As I recall it, women students were given only after a time because of a bias against them on the course."

Things are different now, he said.

In the first year of operation of the Manitoba school of dentistry, the student who came out on top was the class of 21 was a woman, Birute Goina of Winnipeg.

She was the only female on the course, but Dr. Neilson believes that within a few years there may be as many women going through the school.

FINED YEAR ON JOB

A recent United States survey showed that women in dentistry worked a greater number of years before giving up work than men — almost any job.

Dr. Neilson said the probable reason for this is that a dentist can work right and not excessive hours, which would not interfere too much with running a family.

In rural Manitoba, there now is only one dentist to every 10,000 persons—the same ratio which existed in the United States 120 years ago.

Part of the blame for the present shortage, Dr. Neilson said, is overlaid with some dentists disregarding emergency fees having increasing activity of dental mechanics.

He said that despite the inroads of the mechanics, dentistry still is one of the highest paid applications.

This year, there were 92 applications for 30 places in the Manitoba school, compared with 58 last year.

Many Friends Mark 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Ray were in store for a big surprise Saturday night when they were asked to go for a drive with Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Reid. On their return home, about ten o'clock in the evening, 80 or more of their neighbors and relatives were seated around a large table where a delicious supper was beautifully displayed. Bells and streamers decorated the dining room.

A mock wedding was performed by Mrs. Fletcher Reid and Mrs. Harold Garland, Mrs. Reid portraying the best man, and Mr. Corah Howard acted the part of the bride's father in lads and a high silk hat.

Stewart and Irene thanked their many friends and relatives for the lovely gifts. "For they truly gave us a delightful" was sung for the happy couple.

Flash pictures were taken and refreshments served.

The remainder of the evening was spent dancing and playing cards.

The guests came from Belleville; Marmora; Stirling; Springbrook; Crookston; Tamworth, and Peterborough.

HISTORIC DRESS

KENSWORTH, England (CP) — As part of the centenary celebrations of the Methodist church in this Bedfordshire town a 74-year-old dressmaker has made a wedding gown, cape and bonnet which belonged to her mother 100 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. David Frederick Cory are shown following their recent marriage in the Church of the Ascension, Park Avenue, Montreal, Quebec. The bride is the former Miss Jane Ann Read, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Wallace Read, Montreal, and the late Mr. Read. — The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cory of Belleville, and the late Mr. Cory. Belleville Girl Valedictorian At Ontario Hospital Graduation

The Ontario hospital, Kingston held its recent graduation exercises for the "class of 59" in the auditorium of the new Hospital.

There was a good number in attendance including graduates and instructresses from the schools in the city as well as other relatives of the graduating class. The Rev. Minnie Swift offered the invocation prayer and Rev. Father Brady repeated the Florence Nightingale Pledge with the class.

Dr. J. C. Lane was chairman for the occasion and Miss Ella E. Smith, superintendent of nurses, gave the school report.

Presentations of the pins and diplomas were given by Miss Hettie Xarin B. N. Sc., president of O.H.K. nurses alumnae and Mrs. M. A. Eqplett, secretary of O.H.K. nurses alumnae.

Dr. Bruce C. Young, medical director, residence and district Rehabilitation Centre gave a challenging address to the graduating class invoking them to spend as much time with the patients as possible. Instead of "charts" and the direction of others, asking them to get them out of doors, for their health and career.

3rd YEAR PRIZES PRESENTED

Presentation of third year class prizes were as follows:

Highest in ward proficiency donated by Ontario Hospital, awarded to Miss Jean Sjaarda; paediatrics and children's nursing donated by Dr. E. A. James, awarded to Miss Natalia Hoyda.

Second year class prizes — highest standing in ward proficiency, donated by O.H.K., awarded to Miss Virginia Fray; principles and practice of nursing, donated by Miss Helen Starkell, awarded to Miss Lorraine Fray; professional adjustments, donated by Miss Elizabeth Smith, awarded to Miss Joyce Blackburn.

Miss Barbara Wickett was chosen by her class to give the valedictory address which was as follows:

"Dr. James, honored guests, Miss Smith, members of the Training School office, friends, relatives and fellow students: It is indeed an honor for myself to be chosen by my class as valedictorian on this our graduation day. It seems such a short time ago we joined together as students — "the class of 59" — then graduation seemed an eternity away. Alas, this our day has arrived.

"As graduates of this Hospital, our eyes are wide open to the prognosis of the mentally ill person. From witnessing a fine psychiatric treatment we are now prepared to assist the doctor in leading his band of guidance and reassurance to those in need. We have also learned to apply the most effective treatment of all in the field of nursing and psychiatry, that is, "Tender Loving Care".

Outwardly we are appearing uniform like thousands of fellow graduating nurses but inwardly we each feel this moment in our own separate way. It is only now we realize the vastness of nursing opportunities open to us to choose the field which appeals to us as individuals. It is our duty to keep up to date with the medicine, surgery and psychiatry of tomorrow for the benefit of those in our care. Looking forward to tomorrow is important but we must not forget these outside the school who led us to today namely — our friends, our parents and God.

"On behalf of the class may I say thank you to our friends for their kindnes and trust. Just that little 'keep your chin up' lifted our morale and meant so much when we felt down and nearly out. A thousand thank you's go to our parents for lending us to this our calling, giving of their finances to supply our needs and being with us all the way. May we in some way give back a great portion of what you gave to us so freely.

"Before we pass from these hallowed walls of learning wearing our caps and gowns at capping and today, thus holding our diplomas to the highest standard possible.

"In the second year class I would like to say 'have faith, stick to it,' for next year it is your turn.

"To my fellow graduates may I ask that we not only dedicate ourselves to nursing today, but to God, and take this prayer as our very own.

PRAYER OF ST. FRANCIS

"Lord, make me an instrument of Thy peace.

Where there is hatred, let me be love;

Where there is injury, pardon;

Where there is doubt, faith;

Where there is despair, hope;

Where there is darkness, light;

And where there is sadness, joy.

"O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled as to console; to be understood as to understand; to be loved as to love; for it is in giving that we receive. It is in pardoning that we are pardoned. And it is in dying we are born to Eternal Life. Amen"

Following the presentation of awards and the National Anthem by the recreational music was played by Miss Bird and graduates, guests, staff and students moved across to the dining hall where the reception followed.

Dinner for Two

by Mary Moore

Last week I gave you two menus using chicken. The first called for a Roast Chicken and leftovers from it were to be used for today's dinner for two. Remember: Individual Chicken Pie, Currant Jelly, Buttered New Cabbage, Homemade Fresh Raspberry Ice Cream, Snowflake, Iced tea.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Meat Loaf; Spanish Sauce; Fluffy Rice; Broccoli; Head Lettuce Salad with Tomato French Dressing; Lemon or Lime Chiffon Pie; Iced tea.

SUNDAY

Jellied Consomme; Savory Baked Ham; Glazed Yams; New Green Peas with Mint; Old-Fashioned Cole Slaw; Nesselrode Pie (see Saturday); Hot or Iced Coffee.

Whether you have left over chicken meat in the freezer or not, you can be in on this chicken pie making. Nip out and buy a bargain special chicken and boil it. Now join us.

INDIVIDUAL CHICKEN PIES FOR TWO

You may use half the amount of instant pie crust mix needed for one 1-crust pie or make a small amount of pastry (⅝ cup sifted flour, ¼ cup shortening, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ tablespoons water). Roll out to fit tops of two individual baking dishes.

FILLING: Sauce:

Two tablespoons each chicken fat or butter and flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, ½ cup each chicken gravy or broth and milk. One cup thawed cooked chicken in large pieces—at least six ounces or more, ¾ cup fresh or fresh frozen peas, 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento. Melt chicken fat or butter, blend in flour and salt and pepper and stir in gravy or broth and milk until thick. (Note: If gravy is used reduce amount of flour to 1 tablespoon.) Apportion equal amounts of sauce, pimiento, peas and chicken to each casserole in that order, being sure to finish with a choice piece of chicken on top. Cover with prepared pastry tops which have been slashed and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 30 minutes until bubbling and golden.

HOMEMADE FRESH RASPBERRY ICE CREAM

One-quarter pound marshmallows (16), 1 cup fresh raspberries, ¾ cup water, 1/3 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup whipping cream, chilled, 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Put marshmallows in top of double boiler with washed, well-drained raspberries and water; place over boiling water and heat until marshmallows are melted but are still fluffy, stirring frequently. Stir in sugar and salt and chill until syrupy. Whip cream until very thick, then add lemon juice and continue whipping until stiff. Now fold raspberry mixture into cream mixture just thoroughly. Turn immediately into cold refrigerator tray and freeze at the lowest temperature. Stirring is not necessary. This makes 4 servings, so cover leftover carefully with foil and use in a day or two.

Snowballs are made by breaking angel food cake roughly into bite-sized pieces, rolling them in thin confectioner's icing and then coating with desiccated coconut. Allow to dry.

Colorful Ensemble

By VERA WINTON

Border-printed silk is used for the bodice and jacket of this attractive summer evening dress. The skirt, of emerald green chiffon over crepe, is softly gathered and flared. The bodice has a simple, shallow neckline and brief cap sleeves. The jacket is draped and folded to make the most of the print, which is in tones of green, yellow and blue on white.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beechman

DIVORCED PARENTS TO ANNOUNCE DAUGHTER'S ENGAGEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1. My mother and father were divorced several years ago and my mother has remarried. Since her divorce I have lived with her and my stepfather. My father has not remarried and lives in a nearby metropolitan city. I dearly love both my parents, and now that I have just become engaged, I would so very much like to have my engagement announced in the newspapers in both their names. Is this ever considered correct procedure? (I have been told that, since I live with my mother and stepfather, the announcement should be made in their names. However, although I very much like and admire my stepfather, and am deeply grateful to him, it seems to me right and fair that the cause of my own father, whom I love, should be used in the engagement announcement.)

2. If it is correct to use my mother's and my father's names, will you please tell us the correct form? Thank you. — S. H.

1. Today it is accepted as entirely correct for the bride-to-be's mother and father, divorced, to send their daughter's engagement announcement to the newspapers in both their names. And why not? After all, the bride-to-be is the daughter of both parents, and both parents may wisely feel that linking their names in this so-important announcement is right and completely appropriate. Also, and most importantly, the wording of the announcement in this way takes away any inference of the precedence of one parent over another.

2. Here is a correct form for this announcement:

"Mrs. Arthur Blake, of Fairfield, Ontario, and Mr. David Foster Hill, of New York City, announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan, to Mr. Peter Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lane Alexander, of San Francisco." (Often, too, the announcement gives the time or approximate time when the wedding is to take place.)

HOW TO PRONOUNCE "MASSEUR" AND "MASSEUSE"

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Will you please tell me the correct pronunciation of Masseur and Masseuse? (I hear them pronounced in such strange ways!) D. E.

Masseur (masculine): correctly pronounced mass-sir. (Easy to remember sir for the masculine masseur.) Should not be pronounced "mass-ewer."

Masseuse (feminine): correctly pronounced mass-erz. Should not be pronounced "mass-soose."

Women's Activities

UNITED CHURCH W.A.

WELLINGTON :— The June meeting of the Woman's Association of the Wellington United Church was held in the Centennial parlor on Tuesday afternoon with a good number of ladies present. The meeting opened with quiet music played by Mrs. Maybee. Mrs. Pierson extended a welcome to the members and visitors. Mrs. Bishop gave the treasurer's report, and Mrs. Thompson gave the correspondence. Mrs. Palmer gave her report on Christian Stewardship. It was decided that the W.A. pay part of the expenses of sending a girl to the School for Leaders. It was also decided that the association buy two dozen new hymn books for the centennial parlor.

The July meeting will be in charge of group 3 and it is to be in the form of a pot-luck supper.

The program was in charge of group 2. Mrs. Beverley Gibson presented the devotional on the theme "Forgiveness". Mrs. Maybee favored with a solo; Mrs. Edith Ward gave two readings; Mrs. Harold Naish and Mrs. Ernest Bond gave interesting reports of the W.A. convention held in Belleville in May.

Delicious refreshments were served by group 2 and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Gloria P. — He retired too soon.

Tom P. — I felt like loafing.

Gloria P. — I am furious with my husband — with good reason, I think.

Last year Tom retired at the age of 65. If he had worked another two years he could have had a much better pension. He is in perfect health and it wouldn't have done him any harm to work a little longer.

Now he hangs around the house all day and gets on my nerves. We don't have enough money to travel or do anything exciting. This life is really for the birds.

Tom P. — I never before realized how obnoxious I am to my own wife. I can see she just can't stand the sight of me around the house. She keeps sending me on errands and making me fix things, but if I want to relax she says I'm in her way.

I realize I'm in good health and could have worked another few years, but I just suddenly got fed up. I've worked from the age of 13 and I felt like loafing a few years before I make my exit. Is that a crime? Should I be punished?

The Council: The most devoted wives have been known to turn into shrews when they have a man around the house, getting under-foot all day. Most women prefer to be alone until they get through their chores. They become exasperated at the sight of idle hands made by men they love. Tom ought to take it personally.

On the other hand, we don't think Gloria ought to chide her husband about his retirement. He knew the score, made a choice and must now stick by it. That particular issue is closed.

The question now is what to do from here on to provide a better life for this aging couple.

We think it more than likely that Tom will soon tire of his loafing or will want a more interesting kind of loafing than doing in his easy chair. A healthy man of 65 can undermine his physical and mental health by so much inactivity.

So we'd suggest that Tom now look around for constructive ways of using his time. He might develop interests which will eventually bring in a little extra cash. Or he might find hobbies that take him away from the home for a good part of the day. Perhaps he would enjoy a part-time job — as different as possible from his old work.

If Tom doesn't soon make a move to find more activity, we think Gloria ought to take things into her own hands and make some changes. We assume she is a few years younger than Tom. If she is in good physical condition she can undoubtedly find some sort-of job. This will take her out of the home and she can leave Tom home to take care of things.

We aren't joking. Some elderly couples have found this a very satisfactory arrangement.

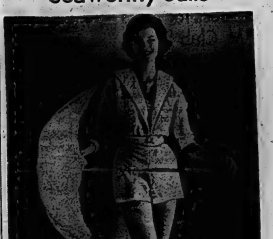
Women's Institutes

RYLSTONE W. I.

RYLSTONE :— Mrs. Alfred Akins was hostess to the Rylstone Women's Institute for the July meeting, which was held in the Sunday School room of Zion Church, at Petherick's Corners on Dominion Day. The attendance was not as large as other July meetings, owing to the holiday and other affairs. There were seven Girl's Club members, three children and ten ladies. This was the meeting of the year when the Girls' Club supply the program. Mrs. Akins, leader has convener in absence of Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, assistant leader.

"Thank you" notes were read from Linda Kerr and Jump-Stanford Hospital Auxiliary. Mrs. Roy Fry gave a report of the North Hastings district annual meeting held in Springbrook the last week of May.

The Club Girls were presented with their silver spoons for finishing their projects.



Shirley Wilson received her county honors.

Norma Thorne gave an address on 4-H club work and Betty Linn favored with a piano solo, "March Triumphant". Judith Oddie gave a solo, "The Ash Grove" with piano accompaniment by her mother. Marilyn Stewart also rendered a piano solo, "In The Woods".

Contests were conducted by Barbara Akins and Donalda Kerr.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and refreshment committee, Madeline Carl Linn, Sanford Ison, Don Kerr, Jack Watson, Gerald Petherick and Stanley Kerr.

Seaworthy Suits

By ALICE ALDEN

Variety is the keynote by the sea this season. Every type of figure should be well suited, with everything available from brief bikini to well-cut, skirted suits for the ample figure. This ensemble is of white eyelet pique. The suit sports little-boy pants and a neat top with elasticized side panels for good fit. The matching jacket is waist-buckled and the whole job has a crisp American look about it.

WELLINGTON

Mrs. R. Norton Hostess for P.M. Club

WELLINGTON — Mrs. Raymond Norton of Hallowell, was hostess on Saturday for the regular meeting of the Past Matrons' Club of Lakeside Chapter 61.

The president, Miss Norma Foster, conducted a short business session. The roll call was answered by a description of the member's year as Worthy Matron, also who was the Worthy Patron and Associate Matron during that year.

The president gave a Scripture reading and a skit, "White Birds" which was quite inspirational.

Following benediction the president announced the following program: a duet, "The Touch of God's Hands" by Mrs. Edith Fox and Mrs. Elmer McFaul; a humorous contest, "Parts of the Body", the winner being Mrs. Florence Dick; a guessing contest by Mrs. Norton, the winner Mrs. Gladys McFaul.

Delicious refreshments were served at quartet tables with Miss Norma Foster, Mrs. Mabel Yoti, Mrs. Ruby Vick assisting the hostess.

Guests from visiting chapters were: from Quinte Chapter, Mrs. Helen Cross, P.M., Mrs. Jetta Noxon, P.M., Mrs. Adelaide Anderson, P.M., Mrs. Milnde Thomas, P.M.; from Colborne Chapter, Mrs. Ruby Fleming, P.M., Mrs. Alma Morrow, P.M. and Mrs. Mabel Brown, P.M.

Rebekah Lodge Entertained at Farewell Party

WELLINGTON — Friday evening 16 Wellington members of the Rebekah Lodge were entertained at the home of Mrs. Eckert Pearsoll. Progressive euchre was enjoyed during the evening.

This party was a farewell get-together for Mrs. Ralph Ellis who is moving this week to Belleville. After the euchre, Mrs. Pearsoll presented Mrs. Ellis with a Rebekah cake plate on behalf of those present.

A lunch of strawberries, ice cream and cake was served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Carol Pearsoll, and Mrs. Garfield Whitney.

Youth Centre Fights Problems In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal youth centre has established a program to fight the special problems that adolescence creates in the families of New Canadians.

The centre is the University Settlement, with a gym-equipped building on St. Urbain Street, a midtown area with a large number of immigrants.

Patricia Morrison, assistant director of the centre, said in immigrant families "the normal clash between teen - ager and adult is often heightened by misunderstandings caused by cultural differences."

The settlement devised a two-facet plan to improve the relationship.

It offered special evening classes for parents stressing counseling and instruction in the English language. And the settlement staff worked to instil among the children a feeling of pride in ethnic background.

Miss Morrison said she has found that immigrant parents generally make great sacrifices for their children and work for a warm family lives.

HARD TO CONTROL

But the conflict brought on by cultural differences was beyond control of the parents.

She said the children usually learn to speak English much faster than the parents and are apt to be reluctant to bring friends home because of embarrassment.

In some extremes, the result has been that the children refuse to speak in their mother tongues at any time, even at home.

She said another source of difficulty is that native Canadian youths apparently lead much less - restricted lives than their European counterparts.

When a new Canadian teen-ager compared his parents with the parents of his friends, he sometimes felt his parents were "interfering."

Miss Morrison said young girls in such countries as Italy are closely chaperoned.

"Consequently a rift develops when the Italian mother insists on picking her daughter up after a party or refuses to let a date take her."
